Large Attendance at the Session of Both Houses of Parliament.

Interest is Acute Over Expected Revelations in Transvaal Matters.

Harcourt Scores the Chartered Company and Eulogizes Chamberlain.

London, May 8.—The house of commons was crowded this afternoon and the peers' gallery was packed, this gathering of interested people being due to the fact that the vote on the colonial estimates was to be taken, and that it was to be made the occasion of an important exchange of questions and answers upon South African affairs. United States Ambassador Bayard was among those present.

The Liberal leader, Sir William Harcourt, asked the government to make a statement regarding the raid into the Transvaal. In so doing he said that the opposition had heretofore not unduly pressed the government on this important matter, but they thought the time had now arrived for the house to be informed of the government's intention in the case. The responsible directors of the British Chartered South African company at Cape Town and Johannesburg were, he said, the authors of the raid, and Dr. Jameson was only their subordinate. The government, the speaker claimed, was responsible for the acts of the chartered company before the nation and the world. (Applause from the benches of the opposite side.)

Continuing, Sir William Harcourt remarked that the partisans of the company were trying to pass off on the credulity of the people that the raid was an impulsive action to protect Johannesburg against outrage. But he could not think of anything more revolting than the low slang of the cipher grams which showed the true aspect of the affair. Sir William Harcourt then proceeded to analyze the telegrams exchanged between Cecil Rhodes, Col. Rhodes, Rutherford Harris, Alfred Beit, Flonel Phillips, Dr. Jameson and others just previous to the invasion of the territory of the South African republic.

Later the opposition leader eulogized the promptness, decision and courage of the secretary of state for the colonies, Joseph Chamberlain, and dwelt upon the course of the chartered company, declaring that it compromised Great Britain's reputation.

BAPTISTS CONVENE.

Six Thousand Visitors and Delegates Present.

Chattanooga, Tenn., May 8.—The Southern Baptist convention was called to order at the First Baptist church by President Jonathan Haralson, of Selma, Ala. The roll call showed 761 delegates present. Judge Haralson and Secretaries L. McAndrews, of Augusta, Ga., and E. P. Gregory, of Baltimore, were re-elected. Mayor George W. Ochs, and Dr. R. B. Garrett, pastor of the First Baptist church, delivered addresses of welcome. There are over 6000 visitors and delegates present. Wilmington, N. C., wants the convention next time and will probably get it.

KANSAS WHEAT.

Present Indications Point to Complete Failure.

Kansas City, May 8.—A special to the Star from Sterling, Kas., says: So far as this section of Kansas is concerned the wheat crop will by almost a total failure, judging from present indications. After the splendid rains about ten days ago, the wheat fields looked more promising, but since then high hot winds have been blowing nearly every day and still continue.

A MURDERER CONFESSES.

Washington, May 8.—All doubt concerning the murderer of Elsie Kelgle, the 16-year-old daughter of a tenant farmer, in the outskirts of this city, just beyond the Zoological park, who was brutally killed while defending her honor Monday afternoon, has been removed. Irwin V. Ford, the negro whom the police captured yesterday at Harper's Ferry, W. Va., after a two days' search, confessed to the detectives today that he committed the crime. The murder was a shocking one and created a sensation which the steadily grown interest in Washington and the adjacent country excited.

PLEADED NOT GUILTY.

New York, May 8.—J. B. Duke, W. H. Butler, W. T. Marburg, L. Glatz, G. Arents, G. W. Gall, B. N. Duke, G. W. Watts, J. Brown and C. G. Emery, through their attorney, W. W. Fuller, today pleaded not guilty to an indictment charging them with conspiracy. This conspiracy, it is charged in the indictment, according to their own admissions, was formed for the purpose of restricting and preventing competition to increase the price of a commodity of trade.

KANSAS REPUBLICANS STUCK.

Lawrence, Kas., May 8.—The second district Republican congressional convention is still dead-locked. It met again this morning and took twenty-eight ballots without a change. The Buchanan men went back to him again, making the vote in all ballots taken this morning as follows: Buchanan, 18; Tricket, 19; Metcalf, 8; Lowe, 10; Harris, 16; Funston, 14. When the ninety-eighth ballot had been taken without any result, an adjournment until 1 p. m. was had.

THE TREASURY CONDITION.

Washington, May 8.—Today's statement of the condition of the treasury shows: Available cash balance, $268,848,380; gold reserve, $119,297,238. Net silver, $24,088,843.

WILL BENEFIT SETTLERS.

Entrymen's Homes Saved By Mr. Towne's Efforts.

Washington, May 8.—(Special to The Herald.)—Representative Towne today secured an order from the secretary of the interior for a survey of the lands entered by Tanner and others near Cedar Island Lake, in St. Louis county, Minn., in 1892. The application for the survey was opposed by Murphy, Dorr and Flynn, lumber men who owned adjacent lands and claimed the land of this settler under riparian rights. A number of entrymen's homes will be saved by the order secured by Representative Towne.

"SOONERS" MUST VACATE.

An Order Regarding the Red Lake Opening.

Washington, May 8.—(Special to The Herald).—Land Commissioner Lamoreux is determined that he will do all in his power to keep "sooners" off the Red Lake reservation, and with that end in view today sent the following telegram to the register and receiver of the Crookston land office.

"Have Special Agent Naff notify all persons who have gone on the agricultural lands to be opened on May 15 to vacate and move off said lands before the day of opening. Those refusing will jeopardize their rights as settlers and claimants under the homestead law. Lamoreux, commissioner."

SCOTT JACKSON.

His Trial For Murder is Nearly Ended.

Newport, Ky., May 8.—The end of the Scott Jackson trial is now near at hand. The commonwealth announced this morning that it had no more witnesses to offer. Col. Crawford called Capt. Bassler, of the United States weather bureau, to show the state of the weather on the night of Jan. 31. This closed the testimony in the case.

During the trial the prosecution called in seventy-three witnesses; the defense eighty-two, including depositions. The prosecution in rebuttal called forty witnesses. The court adjourned until 2 this afternoon. The arguments begin tomorrow and will alternate, the commonwealth closing the case.

John Seward, the detective who figured unpleasantly in the case, was assaulted in the streets late last night with eggs, thrown by a lot of young men and boys.

THE SUPREME COURT.

Justice Start Hands Down Important Decisions.

St. Paul, May 8.— The supreme court, by Chief Justice Start, handed down a decision in the American Savings and Loan case, in Minneapolis, affirming the decision of the lower court, by which the demurrer of the company to the application of the attorney general for an order restraining the company from continuing in business, is overruled. The case will now go into court and be tried on its merits.

The decision is important in more respects than one. Not the least important phase of it is the clause sustaining the attorney general in a policy of restraining these corporations, whenever it appears to him that they are violating the laws under which they hold their franchises and in his opinion the public interest demands it.

The following was also filed: Alonzo B. Hawkins, as assignee, etc., respondent, vs. Amos P. Ireland, et al, defendant; Irish-American bank, appellant; affirmed.

DETROIT BRIDGE BILL.

Senate Postpones it Until the Next Session.

Washington, May 8.—The senate today gave attention to a number of minor matters, the bond resolution being out of the way. The famous Detroit bridge bill was postponed until next session. The river and harbor bill was then taken up.

The house acted on several small measures, the most important of which was an appropriation of $5000 to pay for the deportation of 500 refugee Canadian Cree Indians, who have been in Montana ever since the close of the Riel rebellion.

A CROOKED BISHOP.

Changed His Name to Draw a Pension.

Kansas City, May 8.—A special to the Star from Fort Scott, Kas., says: Dr. W. O. Johnson, colored, bishop of the Kansas district of Mount Zion Baptist church, was arrested today on an indictment by the federal grand jury, charging him with making false pension affidavits and, failing to give bond, he was sent to jail. He enlisted as Wyatt Hogan, and after the war changed his name to Johnson. Later as Hogan, he secured a big back pension.

PROFESSOR M'NEIL.

Will Be Principal of Superior's Normal School.

St. Paul, May 8.—A special to the Dispatch from Madison, Wis., says: Professor L. McNeil is to be president of the new normal school at Superior. The regents so voted last night. There were eight present at the meeting, and the question being put as to whether McNeil should have the place or not, four voted affirmatively. Then the fifth said that if his would settle the matter, he would cast it for McNeil. This ended the case. No other man was voted for. Regent Ostrander, of Superior, fought valiantly for McNeil and is delighted with the result.

It is understood that Professor C. H. Sylvester, of Stevens Point, who refused the berth a few weeks ago, did so chiefly because he did not wish to leave his present environment only to find himself later among those who were hostile to him. The board was not disposed to meet other refusals from Wisconsin men, so it acquiesced in Superior's wishes and selected McNeil.

ON TRIAL

Crew of the Filibustering Competitor Being Tried in Havana.

Captain Laborde's Story of the Trip and the Spanish Capture.

Two Are American Citizens and the Mate is English.

New York, May 8.—A dispatch to the Herald from Havana says: The crew of the alleged American filibusterer Competitor will be tried in the arsenal today. Five of the men were permitted to send a letter to the American consul and to talk with one another tonight for the first time in nine days.

When seen by your correspondent in prison they were swinging in hammocks and talking Spanish. Capt. Alfredo Laborde showed deep sores in his wrists cut by ropes. He said: "They tried to force me to make some sort of confession. I assured them that I had told the truth from the outset, though they tried to make it appear that I had a knowledge of everything, though I was really a victim.

"I had a wrecking license permitting general freight and passenger business and sponge fishing along the Florida coast, though for a distance special custom house papers are necessary. I arranged to carry twenty-four passengers from Key West to Lemon City. We started at night. When near Cape Sable the leaders, Col. Monson, one Tagurde and five others came into the cabin. They said they had expected to find a steamer waiting for them on which they expected to reship for Cuba.

"They ordered me to sail about until it came, but I refused. They seized the boat, saying, 'Well, we will do as we see fit.' They had a pilot of their own and compelling us to be silent by threats, they steered for the Cuban coast. I received only $2 for each man, and never thought that I would carry them so far. When we reached the coast and had almost unloaded the Cubans ashore, a Spanish gunboat appeared and captured us."

William Golf, the mate, is an Englishman. Capt. Laborde says he has been naturalized. One Milton, another of the prisoners, is a native of Kansas.

DELEGATES CHOSEN.

Corrected Lists of the Various State Conventions.

Indianapolis, May 8.—The corrected list of delegates-at-large, chosen at yesterday's Republican convention is: R. W. Thompson, of Vigo county; C. W. Fairbanks, of Marion; F. M. Milliken, of Henry; Gen. Lew Wallace, of Montgomery.

Alternates—R. T. McDonald, of Allen; Hiram Brownlee, of Grant; E. O. Hopkins, of Vanderburgh; George L. Knox (colored), of Marion.

Electors at large—H. C. Thayer, of Marshall; C. E. Jones, of Henry.

James A. Mount was nominated for governor on the seventh ballot.

NEW JERSEY DEMOCRATS.

Trenton, N. Y., May 8.—The Democratic convention yesterday after a struggle, elected the four slated candidates for delegates-at-large to the national convention at Chicago as follows: United States Senator James Smith, Jr., of Essex county; ex-United States Senator Rufus Blodgett, of Monmouth; ex-State Chairman Allen L. McDermott, of Hudson, and ex-Judge Albert Tallman, of Gloucester. The election of sixteen district delegates was also ratified.

MICHIGAN REPUBLICANS.

Detroit, May 8.—The delegates-at-large elected yesterday are as follows: Gen. R. A. Alger, of Detroit; Thomas J. O'Brien, John Duncan, of Calumet, and Perry Hannah, of Traverse City. The alternates are: C. S. Kelsey, Battle Creek; Henry A. Halgh, Detroit; George H. Kempf, Chelsea; Isaac C. Washington (colored), Port Huron.

RATE UNCHANGED.

Representatives of Lines Make No Changes.

New York, May 8.—After two days of discussion the representatives of the lake and rail transportation lines came to the conclusion last night that they would leave the westbound freight rates unchanged. The proposition to reduce the differences between the rate from Duluth and the rate from Chicago was laid on the table, and all of the lines interested pledged themselves to endeavor to maintain the existing rates. A meeting of the representatives of some of the lake and rail lines will be held today for the purpose of working out certain details in the rate apportionment.

A fallacy

You think of Scott's Emulsion as only for those who have consumption or who have inherited a tendency to it. Almost its greatest use is for those whose condition is so impaired as not to be able to get the good they should out of their ordinary food. Strange as it may seem, it is nevertheless true, that in nearly every case with these, SCOTT'S EMULSION of Cod-liver Oil brings back appetite, stimulates digestion, restores color and plumpness, and controls the diseases of thinness. The diseases of thinness are consumption and scrofula, poor blood—starved blood. The former comes of the latter. "Just as good" is not Scott's Emulsion.

FROM DEATH'S JAWS.

An Insurance Man Snatched Therefrom.

Made to Feel Like a Man of Thirty-Five---Vigorous, Now, in Mind and Body.

"Such Wonderful Results Should Be Heralded to the World."—So Says the Restored Gentleman.

"Massachusetts Mutual Life Insurance company, 519 Guaranty building, Minneapolis, Minn., Dec. 13, 1895.—Gentlemen: Will you accept my thanks for the great benefits received from the use of Dr. Charcot's Kola Nervine Tablets? At the time of commencing its use, last July, I could not read without my glasses the signs on our business streets; could not retain on my mind a matter of business sufficiently long to get to the street from my office, and could not call the names of my intimate friends, and would frequently get lost in parts of the city where I had been a daily visitor for the past seven years. I attributed my condition to advanced age. Thanks to Kola Nervine Tablets, however, although 56 years of age, I am satisfied that I am today in as good condition, in every respect, as I was at 35. Anything that will accomplish such wonderful results as this should be heralded to the world. I might add, for the benefit of the public, that this testimonial is given without any solicitation on your part whatever. Yours truly,

W. S. Swett, Manager."

Mr. Swett is one of the best known insurance men in the Northwest—in fact, throughout the country. His case is not singular. Thousands similarly afflicted have been similarly cured by the wonderful Dr. Charcot's Kola Nervine Tablets.

JACK TARS FIGHT.

American and British Sailors Mingle at Shanghai.

San Francisco, May 8.—Fighting with champagne bottles as a beginner and finishing with knives, a dozen or so of the tars of the United States gunboat Petrel whipped twice their weight in Britishers at Shanghai shortly before she sailed for this port, where she is now at anchor. The row was caused by the big British cruiser Spartan throwing its search light on the Petrel in such a manner that it was interpreted as an insult. Capt. Emery wrote a curt note to the commander of the Spartan, and in return received a letter of apology.

The next day eight or ten of the Petrel's seamen were seated in an upper room of a saloon, when about twenty of the Spartan's men entered the bar room. The Yankees were drinking and singing patriotic songs, and the biggest Englishman in the intruding crew suggested that they throw the Yankees through the windows. The British tars started up the stairs, but none of them reached the top. The door above them was suddenly opened and through it came a shower of glasses, bottles and cases of champagne which had been stored in the little room.

When everything that could be utilized as a weapon was gone, the American sailors came flying down the stairs and the battle became a hand to hand conflict. Knives were drawn and used freely and the English forces were badly cut up. When they were finally routed half a dozen of their men lay bleeding upon the floor. The British consul subsequently held an official inquiry into the affair and the court decided against the Spartan's crew.

IRON CONDITIONS.

Trade Still Waiting For a Better Prospect.

Cleveland, Ohio, May 8.—The Iron Trade Review this week will say: The iron trade still finds no satisfactory answer to the inquiry continually going up as to when and by what agency the long-awaited activity is to be brought about. Much is said about the price agreement in various branches of the trade as cause of the halt, but there were evidences that most of the waiting is for an emphatic expression, which the business world expects will soon be made, of the determination to embody protection and sound money in the coming revenue and fiscal legislation of this government.

The Bessemer ore agreement is not keeping out of the market buyers who need ore. Some whose heavy purchases of 1895 will keep supplied for several months are not yet ready to buy. Similarly the steel billet agreement does not prevent buyers from coming into the market for such material as they need; its effect is to bring consumers to the end of their low-priced raw material at about the same time, after which more liberal buying on the new basis may be expected.

Turner and Dunlop, the Burden Jewel Thieves, Are Extradited.

There Will Be Quite a Wrangle Over the Reward Distribution.

Why the New York Detectives Did Not Arrest the Men.

London, May 8.—The extradition of W. A. Turner and William Dunlop, who were arrested here on the charge of having stolen jewelry valued at $60,000 from I. Townsend Burden, of New York, was granted at the Bow street police court today by the chief magistrate, Sir John Bridges.

John D. Lindsay, assistant district attorney of New York, sat on the bench beside Sir John Bridges and Mr. and Mrs. Burden and Detective Sergeant Frank Nevanho, the special agent appointed by Governor Morton to bring Turner and Dunlop back to the United States, were present in court. Counsel for Turner tried to show that his client did not know of the robbery, and that Dunlop is really the guilty man. The magistrate, however, overruled this plea and granted the extradition of the prisoners. Counsel for Dunlop said he did not desire to address the court.

As to the reward offered for the recovery of the jewelry, concerning the right to which a question has arisen between the Scotland Yard men and Streeter, the Bond street jeweler, to whom some of the stolen stones were offered, Mr. Burden said today that the matter would be settled in New York when he obtained possession of the jewels.

The detectives were asked why the prisoners were allowed to leave New York with the jewels and replied that Mr. Borden seemed afraid to adopt vigorous measures as the men had no previous criminal records. Consequently it was added that the New York detectives hesitated to arrest and search the two suspected men.

ENGLISH RACES.

London, May 8.—This was the opening day of the Kempton Park spring meeting. Leopold De Rothschild's Moor won; Mr. Beauchamp's Morton, second; C. Morbey's chestnut colt by Pioneer, out of Hyptia, third. Nashville was not placed. There were thirteen starters in the race for the Fulwell plate of 105 sovereigns, including Richard Croker's Eau Gallie. Blanc Mange won, Moffio was second and C. J. F. Fawcett's Full of Fashion third. Eau Gallie was the Favorite.

Washington, May 8.—The president has issued an order extending the civil service rules to the interstate commerce commission. This brings all offices in the commission here and outside of Washington within the classified service, except the chief executive ones requiring presidential nomination and confirmation by the senate. The order, which takes effect immediately, makes a total of 2384 governmental positions now included in the civil service.

MILWAUKEE'S STRIKE.

Hoodlums Are Awed and Cars Are Running.

Milwaukee, May 8.—Everything is quiet in street car circles today. Over 100 cars are now in service and the number will steadily increase from this time. From present appearances the backbone of the strike is broken. The company has issued a notice guaranteeing protection and permanent employment to all men who accept places at the present time.

The arrests made yesterday and last night have served to quiet the hoodlums, and it is expected that the cars running to the suburbs can be started as soon as the obstructions on the tracks have been removed.

KIDNEY TROUBLES.

Due To Many Causes, But Always with One Result, A Life of Agony Fraught with Horror, Death.

There are many people to-day who are unknowingly suffering from some severe kidney disease. This dreaded trouble should not be neglected. Swollen joints, pains in the small of the back, watery sacs under the eyes, a general bloating of the entire body, a loss of appetite, sleeplessness and nervousness are a few of the many symptoms that attend this awful affliction. The blood becomes filled with the germs of the disease and carries it to other parts of the body, so that when a patient suffering from this trouble dies, the entire body is found to be filled with disease cells. Do not hesitate or experiment if you are in this condition. You cannot begin too soon to look for help. Take at once that greatest and surest of cures, Kickapoo Indian Sagwa. Thousands attest its value for this trouble.

One of the many who testify to its curative powers is J. A. Kaisar, of Kewanee, Ill. He writes as follows: "I would say that I was almost down with my back, and consulted a splendid physician who said my left kidney was badly affected. I could hardly get up when I was sitting or lying down. I had taken the doctor's medicine, but it did me no good at all. I took Kickapoo Indian Sagwa and it cured me."

This same result is obtained in every instance. It cures always where a cure is possible. Above all, it is absolutely harmless, as it contains no poisonous ingredients of any description, being made entirely of roots, barks, herbs and gums of the Indians' own gathering. You can buy it at your druggists. $1.00 a bottle, 6 bottles for $5.00.

CUBA'S DEATH ROLL.

Spanish Figures Make Both Sides Heavy.

New York, May 8—A dispatch to the World from Madrid says: According to the Spanish official figures, the Cuban insurgents casualties from the beginning of the insurrection, Feb 24, 1895, to Dec. 31, 1895, were: Killed, 26 chiefs; 1190 men; wounded, 358; prisoners, 4 captains, 180 men. During the first four months of 1896 there were reported: Killed, 36 chiefs, 3085 men; wounded 20 chiefs, 1618 men. Prisoners, 20 chiefs, 330 men besides 14 chiefs and 670 men who came in and surrendered with their arms.

The total number of horses taken from the insurgents is given as 4657. These Spanish official statistics admit that the royal forces have lost in killed and those who died of wounds or disease, three generals, 29 field officers, 272 officers, and 4892 men up to the end of March 1896, which does not include the heavy casualties in April.

HARRISON'S CHANCE.

Can Now Catch McKinley Men on a Break.

Indianapolis, Ind., May 8.—F. T. Roots, the Indianapolis politician who presided during the greater part of yesterday's convention, and who is very close to the ex-president, made today the following statement regarding the significance of his action:

"The question has been frequently asked what significance attaches to Mr. Harrison's absence from the convention. In answer it may be said his absence is a confirmation of his statement, 'there never has been an hour since I left the White House that I desired to return to it,' and further frees him from the charge that might have been made, i. e., insincerity."

In answer to the question, "What will be the effect of the resolution instructing for McKinley?" he said: "It can be truly said, it must be beneficial for all concerned. First it is a truthful reflection of the sentiment of the voters of Indiana concerning McKinley, which has crystallized since Mr. Harrison's letter of February last, and if the unexpected should happen at St Louis, and there should be a call for the ex-president, he would be in a position to accept such a call, and the followers of McKinley would become the supporters of Gen. Harrison, since Indiana, in no uncertain terms has instructed and declared for McKinley at her state convention."

Excellent Entertainment at Asbury Methodist Church Last Evening.

A Fine Program Was Given and the Attendance Was Good.

Dancing Party By Prof. Collins' Class Last Evening--Other News.

Those who failed to attend the concert at Asbury church last evening missed a rare treat. The church was beautifully decorated with potted plants and cut flowers, donated by the firm of Panton & White. The entertainment was well patronized, the building being filled with a large and appreciative audience. Misses Walken and Bernette and Mrs. De Vore acted as ushers. The Schubert quartet added to their former reputation as concert singers, and Miss Kenny, Mrs. Olund and Mr. Mandelert received honors in repeated encores. The recitations by Miss Heath and Miss Van Werner met with special favor. The instrumental solo by Miss Van Werner was considered the gem of the evening. The ladies of the society feel highly blessed with the success of the entertainment both in a musical and financial way.

DANCING PARTY.

The reception and dance given by Professor Collins and his class at Great Eastern hall last evening was one of the most enjoyable parties yet given by the club. Warm weather did not appear to check the enthusiasm of the dancers, and all were determined to make the final party the merriest one of the course. A number of guests were present from Duluth and Superior.

THE GRAND JURY.

Several Indictments Were Returned This Morning.

The grand jury has been working ever since its organization Wednesday afternoon, and this morning, just to show that it had been doing something, it presented the court with several minor indictments. One was against Edward Lee for grand larceny in the second degree. He is accused of stealing $43.34 in currency, one watch chain hook of the value of 5 cents, and one pants button of the value of 1 cent," all of which property belonged to one Charles Anderson, and was stolen from 230 Lake avenue south.

Albert Quady was indicted for uttering a forged instrument. He is accused of passing upon W. M. Abrahamson a check purporting to be signed by Scott & Holston, and calling for $15.

Bert Sullivan was indicted for grand larceny in the second degree. He is accused of stealing some clothing from a Proctorknott hotel.

An indictment for grand larceny in the second degree was returned against a party who is not yet in custody. No indictments were found against Martin Johnson and Julius Collombe, charged with assault in the third degree.

Up to this morning the jury was busy on the case against F. A. Stratton, charged with grand larceny in the first degree.

$100 REWARD, $100.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages and that is catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers, that they offer One Hundred dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

The man who stands idly by and sees the life fading out of his wife's face, sees her health going, sees her becoming old and faded and wrinkled when she should still be in the perfect enjoyment of vigorous, useful health, is either less than a man or else does not know of the one remedy which will bring her back to health and strength. Perhaps her husband cannot persuade her to go to her doctor, because she naturally dreads the inevitable examinations and "local treatments." He can persuade her, if she needs persuasion, to take Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. This truly wonderful medicine has cured hundreds of women after the best physicians have failed. It has been in constant use and tested every day for thirty years. It isn't an experiment, there are no chances about it. It is a certain cure for all derangements, weaknesses, irregularities and displacements of internal organs peculiar to women.

THE PRODUCE MARKET.

Market on Commission row was very lively today. There was a plentiful assortment on hand early, but it went off with a rush. Bananas are higher as the bunches are bigger and the fruit much finer.

Not Stated Correctly.

A special telegram from Duluth to the St. Paul Dispatch says: "The stockholders no longer have control of the Duluth Transfer Railway company, as the bondholders took charge a few days ago, because of the company's inability to meet its obligations. The stock is held principally by local men, who were unable to float a loan which they have been working for some time. Thomas G. Hillhouse, a New York lawyer and capitalist, and Mr. Foster, a Norwich, Conn., banker, have just been here to arrange for carrying out the company's plan of affording most comprehensive terminals on both sides of the bay."

J. L. Washburn says the article is wrong. A committee of the bondholders is working with the stockholders for the betterment of the financial condition of the road. That is all there is to it. The management of the road is unchanged. The control of the stock and of the bonds is with practically the same people.

Both Sides Heard.

The petitioners for and against the improvement of Twenty-ninth avenue west, which matter was referred to the board of public works by the council, were before the board in force at its meeting this morning. After hearing both sides, the members of the board decided to go out and look over the ground themselves, which they did this afternoon. Aside from the street improvement matter, routine business only was transacted.

Warmest May Day.

Yesterday was the warmest day in any month of May since the weather bureau was established in Duluth. The thermometer registered 88 above. In 1876 it reached 87 degrees. This afternoon at 2 o'clock that figure was reached. Last night was as warm as midsummer and the night was uncomfortably so, a thing very rare in Duluth.

AN INDIAN MURDERER.

Kansas City, May 8.—A special to the Star from Fort Scott, Kas., says: Amos Vallier, the Indian charged with murdering Chief Joe Big Knife, at the Quapaw agency, was today found guilty of manslaughter by a jury in the federal court. Sentence was deferred.

DECLINED

After Several Ups and Down Wheat Closed at a Decline.

A Strong Opening Due to Chinch Bug Stories and More Rains.

Cables Did Not Respond Very Much to Yesterday's Advance.

Wheat opened strong today on the continued reports of chinch bugs and hot winds from Kansas and Oklahoma. There were also reports of too much rain from the Northwest. The public cables responded very feebly to yesterday's advance on this side, though some private advices had an advance of ¼@¼d. July opened here ½c higher at 64⅝c but quickly dropped to 64c and by 11 o'clock was down to 63½c. Then it reacted ¼c but again weakened and sold down to 63c, with the last sale at 63⅛c. Trading was lively and active.

The mills bought 50,000 bus at ⅛c under July, and shippers took a similar amount at ⅛c under July. The close was ⅝c lower than yesterday for cash and ⅞c lower for July and September. Following were the closing prices:

Wheat—No. 1 hard, cash, 64c; May, 61¼c; July, 64⅝c. No. 1 northern, cash, 62½c; May, 62⅝c; June, 62¾c; July, 63¼c; September, 62¾c bid. No. 2 northern, cash, 59½@60½c; May, 59½c. No. 3, 58@59c. GOSSIP.

Received over private wire of B. E. Bagley, grain and stock broker, room 107 Chamber of Commerce and 307 Board of Trade, Chicago, May 8.—It was only natural after the advancing market of the past few days, that there should be a reaction today. Bear traders sold heavily on the higher quotations, and aided by the anticipation of a bearish government report Monday succeeded in forcing out a lot of long wheat and closing the market at about price. Tips on Illinois and California state reports also added to the weakness. Cables noted firm and higher markets abroad, and while from many sections of the southwest denials came of the bug damage reports, the Northwest entered the field again with vigorous talk of a small crop and reduced acreage. The situation remains that the season is late in the Northwest and hot and dry in the South. If either of these conditions continue, we shall have higher markets. Many of today's early sellers were buyers at the close.

Corn and oats stronger early, advancing under free covering by shorts but eased off with wheat.

Provisions dull and lower but without any important feature.

Puts, July wheat, 62¾-⅞c.

Calls, July wheat, 63⅞c asked.

BANKERS BOUND OVER.

Kansas City, May 8.—A special to the Star from Goodland, Kas., says: M. B. Tomlin, president of the defunct Sherman county bank, and Presley L. Knester, vice president of the same concern, have been arrested here on complaint of County Commissioner George Austin. They are charged with receiving deposits after the bank was in a failing condition. At their preliminary examination they were bound over to the district court in the sum of $1200 each.

NEW YORK STOCKS.

Opening Was Active But Trading Was Weak.

New York, May 8.—The stock market opened active and weak with considerable pressure against the industrial shares. Sugar declined 1¼. Laclede Gas 1, and American Tobacco, under the news of the indictment of the officials of the company, slumped 2¾ per cent to 62⅝. In the railway list the Internationals sold off sharply for fractions.

The speculations became irregular, on decreased trading, after 10:15. The pressure against Sugar and Tobacco was relaxed and a rally ensued of 1 and 1¼ per cent respectively. On the other hand Rubber preferred reacted 1¾ per cent and Tennessee Coal and General Electric important fractions. The variations in the railway shares were small. The market at 11 o'clock was very dull, but with shares showing a tendency to improve.

The announcement that the shipments of gold to Paris by tomorrow's steamer would in all probability not exceed $1,500,000 exerted a steadying influence upon the market during the second hour, and small purchases for both accounts induced slight improvements. The foreign houses were conspicuous sellers of Louisville & Nashville and at Atchison stocks and bonds, ostensibly on uncertainty as to the attitude of the presidential candidates yet to be nominated on the currency question. Some of the industrial shares moved independently of the market. Rubber preferred sold off to 75 and Laclede Gas preferred to 80½. The market at midday was well held at the improvements noted. The sales to noon were 105,800 shares.

Divorce Asked For.

H. Matilda Coleman has applied for a divorce from Dennis Coleman, alias Courtemache. They were married in Reed City, Mich., in 1877, by a justice of the peace, and in 1883 they were re-married by a Roman Catholic priest. Coleman is of French descent, and his second marriage was under his French name. In 1894 he was sent up from Grand Rapids, Minn., for five years for grand larceny, and this is the plaintiff's ground for divorce. Richards & Crandall are her attorneys.

A. A. Warfield, assignee for the Simon Clark Grocery company, has reported the sale of the book accounts to Frank Hicks for $85. The whole amount received from the estate by the assignee is $246.77.

Mr. Robinson's Funeral.

The funeral of John Cathcart Robinson will be held tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock at St. Paul's Episcopal church. The body will be placed in the vault at Forest Hill cemetery.

Where is the Board?

Why have not the drinking fountains been prepared for use as yet? Let the board of public works respond.

The thermometer is way up in the eighties and bicycle riders are going up and down London road with their tongues fairly hanging out and about all the satisfaction they can get is to gaze at the lake on the way and rush for the brewery on the way home. Let the board awake from its slumber. Possibly the operation of the ferry flotilla is about all it can attend to at one time.

EXPENSIVE REVENGE.

"Jerry" runs one of those Roosevelt provokers in the Bowery, near Grand street. He has a warm old friend in a brother exile from Kerry, who does a bit of comfortable speculation on the wing, sea trips preferred. Not long ago, when "Jack" dropped down in the groves of Honduras and made a paying deal in coromandel wood, he felt able to dip some into the luxuries. With that end in view he sent his friend "Jerry" a parrot. The bird came safely enough, and was caged with splendor in the tangle-foot tavern, says the New York Herald.

But it was not long before this feathered beau from Honduras began to droop and take on consumptive airs, until "Jerry's" family and friends braced up firmly against the expected blow. Then it was that the young barkeeper winked to himself. His time had come to square up with that larcenous cat who dropped in several times a day to study the lunch counter.

So it came about a few mornings later that the "harkeep," on opening for the day, saw the parrot's remains on the floor of the cage. He plucked a few feathers from the corpse, scattered them as signs of carnage, and awaited developments. The pirated tomcat ambled in afterward and had the run of the shop. When "Jerry" reached the place, later, his young assistant was too overcome with emotion for words. He could simply point to the dead bird, the scattered feathers and then he had Tom ready to point to next. With this unbroken chain of evidence, "Jerry" lured the cat beneath the spout of the hot water can on the stove and turned on the torture. Tom responded with one leap that carried him over "erry," over the bar, and back among the glassware, where he made a $100 havoc. Then he made a wild leap for the street.

"Don't talk your new law to me," says the broken-hearted "Jerry." "Wid me burrud gone and that cat's leap through me glassware, what horrors can the Raines bill have for me?"

THE WEATHER.

United States Agricultural Department, Weather Bureau, Duluth. Synopsis of weather conditions for the twenty-four hours ending at 7 a. m., (Central time), May 8.—The barometer is lowest in the Dakotas and highest in the Ohio valley. It has risen five-tenths of an inch in the region north of Montana, and the pressure has generally increased in all districts.

Light showers have occurred in the Dakotas, Western Minnesota, and Manitoba, and cloudy weather now prevails in the Lower Missouri and Red River valleys.

The changes in temperature have been slight, except over the western part of Lake Superior, where the warm wave that has been prevailing in the Missouri, Mississippi and Red River valleys, was felt yesterday, with the shifting of wind to southwest. At Duluth and Marquette the mercury rose to 88. This was the highest temperature experienced during the first decade of May, since the stations were established. In both cases the previous temperature for the decade was 86, in May, 1880.

Depth of water in Sault canal at 7 a. m. today, 13 feet 9 inches. Forecast for next twenty-four hours: Rising.

Duluth temperature at 7 a. m. today 70; maximum yesterday, 88; minimum yesterday, 44.

Local forecast for Duluth and vicinity: Showers and cooler tonight and Saturday; fresh to brisk southwest winds.

JAMES KENEALY,
Local Forecast Official.

Chicago, May 8.—Forecast until 8 a. m. tomorrow: Wisconsin: Fair, except showers in extreme west portion tonight and Saturday; cooler in west portion Saturday; fresh southerly winds. Minnesota: Local rains tonight and Saturday; probably cooler Saturday; fresh southerly winds.

A COMPROMISE PROBABLE.

It being practically settled that William McKinley will be the nominee of the St. Louis convention for president, and the selection of a vice presidential candidate being an easy matter, interest will center in the character of the platform to be adopted. Of course, the protection plank will be strongly worded; there will be a declaration in favor of reciprocity and various other subjects of lesser importance will be dealt with. Then there is the money question, and here comes the rub. This is the plank in the platform upon which there will be a wide divergence of opinion. A little while ago it looked as if there would be an overwhelming majority in favor of the single gold standard and that the bimetallists and the silver men would hardly be given a hearing. There was a great gold boom on. Starting in Wall street and cleverly maneuvered by the aid of money contributed by the goldbug campaign committee in William street, it swept over a large section of the country.

But the fever has abated, the people have cooled down and are now soberly considering what would be the result of committing the Republican party to the permanent establishment of the single gold standard and the abandonment of the principle of bimetallism, which the party has advocated for many years. Thus it is that a considerable revolution in public sentiment has recently occurred. There has been a revulsion of public feeling, and the outlook for a platform which shall recognize bimetallism has brightened considerably. An indication of this change of sentiment was furnished by the Michigan state convention yesterday. The delegates were divided upon the money question, and finally both the majority and minority reports of the committee were rejected and the currency declaration of the Minneapolis platform of 1892 was reaffirmed, with an additional resolution declaring against the retirements of the greenbacks and opposing the issue of bonds. Altogether, it was a victory for bimetallism. A similar result may be witnessed at St. Louis. There will be a strong representation of bimetallists in the national convention, and when the convention reaches the question of adopting a platform there will be many who were elected with gold standard instructions who will hesitate to place the party on record as absolutely opposed to bimetallism. There will be a disposition to compromise—to build a platform upon which all Republicans may stand.

In a recent issue of the New York Journal, an independent newspaper published within a stone's throw of Wall street, there appeared the following plain statement of facts: "Whatever may be current opinion in the cities, whatever the convictions of Wall street, the bankers, the merchants and even the working classes of the great towns, the overwhelming preponderance of public conviction in the United States today is antagonistic to the single gold standard, hostile to the national bank system and favorable to bimetallism. Perhaps the free coinage of silver at 16 to 1 may not rally to its support a great majority of voters, but there are hundreds of thousands who, stopping short of that, are still hostile to existing monetary conditions. They remember, too, that the men who now preach gold, under the guise of 'honest money,' have behind them a record of falsehood and deceit. Three years ago 'honest money' meant a bimetallic currency. Now, by the persistent reiteration of those who find profit in a contracted currency, it means gold alone. Curiously enough, while the politicians have been drifting toward gold, the people have been turning for relief to silver. It is a condition and not a theory, as Mr. Cleveland said, which now confronts us. The condition is that the agricultural, mining and working districts, or classes, of the United States have been convinced that a greater measure of silver coinage will profit them. The party which puts forward a presidential candidate with a platform responsive to this belief is likely to win. The party which shall put up a Harrison or a Cleveland will doubtless get the 'sound money' vote, but it won't get the presidency."

The delegates to the St. Louis convention know well that every word contained in the above paragraph is true, and, knowing this, it is hardly likely that they will imperil the party's success by resolving in favor of the single gold standard.

INTELLIGENCE OF JURIES.

The Kansas City World draws attention to the fact that at the recent session of the New York legislature there was adopted an amendment of the jury law of that state, providing a method for selecting special juries for criminal trials. That state has a jury commissioner system, but the general verdict is that it does not work satisfactorily. However, the legislature did nothing to disturb the commissioner system, but added to its duty. Thus the jury commissioner of each county is required to furnish a special commissioner a list of citizens in the county liable to jury duty. From this list the special commissioner shall select 3000 men to constitute a select body, from which special criminal juries shall be drawn, as required. The law specifies certain qualifications which these special jurymen must possess. Among these the juror must read, write and thoroughly understand the English language. He must have been a citizen for at least ten years. He must have good moral habits and good health, and be in full possession of all other faculties. The law also specifies that any one holding objections to the death penalty or finding of a verdict upon circumstantial evidence shall be regarded ineligible. It is also stipulated that any person holding doubt of his ability to lay aside opinions or impressions, if such have been formed, from reading newspapers or hearsay gossip, is not competent for the jury box.

It has come to pass, almost universally, says the World, that great difficulty has been experienced in securing juries for criminal trials. That some relief from this condition is very necessary, no one doubts, but whether this New York law is likely to provide a remedy is a question not to be readily decided. The best feature of the new law is a provision undertaking to define the grade of intelligence the juror should possess. Once assured that the men called to sit in the panel have this quality, all else that it has been undertaken to accomplish by various specifications in the law, are fulfilled. The misconceptions of juries and the miscarriage of justice and all the difficulties that environ trials fall upon the grade of intelligence found in the jury box. The usefulness of the new law will depend upon the ability of the special commissioner to provide absolutely intelligent men for the juries. If it will establish intelligence in the jury box, it may be accounted a success and may serve as a pattern for similar legislation by other states.

GIVE THEM THE PREFERENCE.

It is always a good plan, in awarding public and private contracts, to give the preference to local firms and local industries. All other things being equal, a difference of a few dollars in bids should not ensure to an outside concern a contract for work in preference to a local institution. Take the bids for the Short Line Park viaduct for instance. The lowest bidder for a steel structure is a Milwaukee company. The next lowest bidder is a Duluth man, and his bid is only $37 greater than the Milwaukee concern. Good business sense should prompt the county commissioners to award the contract to the home concern, provided that the latter's plans are as good and the character of the viaduct it proposes is as good as that offered by the outside company.

When such a contract is let at home, nearly all the money remains at home and goes into circulation among the people of the county who must pay for the viaduct when they settle their taxes. When an outside firm gets the contract, but very little of the money is expended here, and the people of some other place are benefited.

It is a good idea to patronize home industries. It is the only way to build up our industries, and if we are to have iron and steel manufacturing done here on an extensive scale we must extend encouragement to the concerns already here by preferring them to outsiders when awarding contracts for public and private work.

The Chicago Times-Herald yesterday presented in its "current events in pictures" a cartoon representing a Minnesota farmer throwing out the theater hat on a pitchfork, and labeled: "The Minnesota legislators won't have it either." It would be interesting to learn where the Times-Herald secured this idea, because the Minnesota legislature is not in session and will not meet until next January. Perhaps it is a prediction.

Do not miss The Saturday Herald tomorrow. It will be bright and breezy from start to finish. In addition to all the news there will be a great array of special articles, and the usual departments will be filled with interesting reading. The Saturday Herald leads all the Saturday and Sunday papers published in this section, and it is always getting better.

Editor Pease, of the Anoka Union, was in Minneapolis yesterday and said to a reporter: "Towne will be renominated with a whoop." This is slightly different from the way he talks in the Union, but he probably expressed his real sentiments at Minneapolis.

Everything goes by the pulpit nowadays. A Coney Island clergyman is going to preach a sermon to wheelmen next Sunday. The Boston Transcript expresses a hope that he will impress upon them the spiritual beauty of regarding men on foot as men and brothers.

A Russian bishop has issued a diocesan letter urging clergymen's wives to refrain from publicly using tobacco in any form, from which it is inferred that there are some advanced women in his diocese.

Mr. Cleveland has not yet published that letter declining a third term, and the suspicion increases that he does not look upon the third-term idea with aversion.

Indiana and Michigan both wheeled into line for McKinley yesterday, and all succeeding conventions may be expected to go the same way.

Mr. Lee's candidacy for governor should receive the support of every friend of Mr. Towne in St. Louis county.

The bosses could not seduce Ben into a losing fight. He has a little horse sense.

The St. Louis convention will probably be brief, and certainly not exciting.

These are the days when the iceman wears a large and appropriate smile.

OPPOSITION TO McCLEARY.

St. Peter Press: There is a genuine, strong opposition to the nomination of McCleary throughout the district and unless the various aspirants to the congressional plum get into a wrangle among themselves he will be retired to private life at the end of his present term.

WHAT'S IN A NAME?

Minneapolis Tribune: A temperance social meeting under the Sacred Thirst Total Abstinence society has been organized in St. Paul, but there is something in the name that suggests a drink right away that good intentions are liable to be frustrated.

INGALLS MAY BE IN THE CABINET

St. Louis Republic: Ingalls, of Kansas, may come to the front if McKinley is elected. He is an original McKinley man, and it would surprise nobody if he should happen to be appointed secretary of the interior. He knows more about the Western states than many of the statesmen of this day, and the fact that he once made a speech which was not his would not lessen his influence over the Indians under his care.

PERSONALLY POPULAR.

St. Cloud Journal-Press: Minnesota has never had a more personally popular representative than Mr. Towne. Had he been a less popular man there would have been half a dozen candidates for Sibley already in the field. The fact that there is none is a compliment to his popularity, but not an endorsement of his financial views.

THE LEAVEN WORKED.

New Ulm Review: L. P. Hunt, of the Mankato Free Press is a mighty peculiar fellow. He was one of the first to bolt out George W. Somerville as a candidate for congress in this district, on the ground that it would never do to send Hank McCleary, and now that Somerville's name has been mentioned he has positively opposed his candidacy and lauded McCleary to the skies. Must have been some leaven at work somewhere. Don't know just where and in what manner, but certain it is that it worked successfully.

IS GENERALLY REGRETTED.

Elk River Star-News: We join with The Herald in regretting the removal of so good a man as Senator Allen from the district.

A LETTERED FAMILY.

Somerville Journal: Winks—My wife has got a new degree. She is an M. A. now.

Blinks—You don't say so.

Winks—Yes, I do; and I am A. P. A.

POINTERS ON GOVERNOR.

Benson Times: The roar which goes up from the Clough newspapers over the Eustis-Lee-Van Sant arrangement to carry on the campaign in Hennepin county truthfully show that they fear what every one else is assured of, that the result will be that Mr. Clough will not have a delegate in the convention from his own county and, we might add, mighty few from other parts of the state.

Elk River Star-News: The fact that Lee, Van Sant and Eustis have concluded to let the people of Hennepin county decide which of them they prefer, seems to cause the machine politicians an extraordinary amount of worry. The new idea that the common people should have a voice in the matter is unprecedented.

HEAVY SENTENCES.

Train Wreckers Get Long Terms at Rome.

Rome, N. Y., May 8.—J. Watson Hildreth, the boy train wrecker received a life sentence today. His companions, Plato and Hibbard, pleaded guilty to manslaughter in the first degree, and were sentenced to twenty years imprisonment, on two indictments or forty years in jail.

These boys and another named Fred Bristol, who has since died of consumption, were accused of planning to wreck a train on the New York Central for the purpose of robbing the passengers. The affair occurred last November, the place selected for the crime being near Rome. The engineer of the train was killed and the fireman so badly injured that he is only now able to leave the hospital. A clerk of the railway mail service was also severely hurt. The clue to the boy wreckers was a hat belonging to young Hildreth which was found near the wreck. None of the lads were more than eighteen years of age, and, except in the case of one of them, their parents were well to do people.

THE DAKOTAS.

NORTH DAKOTA.

The lawn tennis enthusiasts of Langdon have organized the Langdon Lawn Tennis association, with nearly fifty members, all men, and as many ladies, honorary members. J. C. Monnet, the attorney, is president; Robert Mellurh, vice president, and Frank Ross, secretary and treasurer. These with G. P. Gibson and Chas. McMillan constitute the executive committee. Mr. Monnet is one of the leading tennis players in the Northwest, having captured the championship for doubles with Lieut. Ely at the first state tournament at Grand Forks last September.

The citizens of Bismarck take great pride in their fire department and will assist in every way to make the state tournament there an event long to be remembered. There are sixty-five men in the three companies comprising the local department, a splendid lot of fellows and a credit to the city. In addition to the usual competitive events between the different fire companies of the state, a number of special features will be offered, including running and trotting races, athletic sports, etc., and a free excursion to Fort Yates and Standing Rock, 100 miles south, on the Missouri. Arrangements have been made with the Northern Pacific for a special train from Fargo, and all firemen in uniform will be carried free. Bismarck will spare no effort to make the event a great success.

The committee of army officers appointed by the secretary of war to select the site for a military post at Bismarck have performed their duties and returned East. It is said that the committee was most pleased with the site southeast of the city and near the penitentiary. It is stated that the proposed post will quarter twelve companies of troops and that the government will make it complete in every respect.

A wind storm struck Devil's Lake at 4 o'clock yesterday morning and for a time threatened serious damage. The wind blew frightfully, waking everybody. No fatalities occurred. It is estimated that the damage to property is $15,000. Peter Killbertson's new $300 barn was demolished, as well as Frank Cockburn's icehouse, and numerous small barns and outhouses were carried away.

John Martin, an intoxicated tourist, was run down by a Great Northern switch engine at Grand Forks Wednesday night. He still lives but is in the county hospital minus one heel and a badly crushed hip.

The Langdon city council has elected Dr. S. G. Gibson physician to the board of health; J. C. Monnett, city attorney, and re-elected J. D. Salter chief of police. It also designated the Cavalier County Republican as the official city newspaper.

It is now settled that J. H. Grillin, who for the past two years has been the agent of the Great Northern at Crookston, will accept the position of the company's agent at Grand Forks. Grillin was offered a place as freight agent when Mr. Fegan was removed, but declined. He, however, asserted his willingness to take the combined positions, both ticket and freight agent, which Mr. Fegan originally held here, provided the salary was satisfactory. This has been tendered him and he will accept it unless something unforseen occurs. The transfer will be made Monday and the man who is most likely to succeed Mr. Griffin as agent at Crookston is the present agent at St. Thomas, Mr. Bapttie.

John Luley, Peter Kilzer and Peter Burkhardt, the three men arrested some time ago on the charge of operating an illicit distillery near Mandan, were given a preliminary hearing before Commissioner Shaw. The evidence against them was strong, the officers having arrested them at the still which was in full operation. Samples of the goods were offered as evidence, and but little defense was made. The liquor was made of wheat, and said to be of as good quality as any wheat whisky. Luley and Kilzer were held to the United States grand jury under $500 bonds each, which they furnished. Burkhardt was married only a few days before the raid and the commissioner decided to release him on that account. The case was prosecuted by C. J. Murphy, who returned home this morning. The United States officials believe that there are other moonshine distilleries in the same neighborhood and hope to have them all rounded up in time for trial at the Fargo term of court.

Nelson county has come to the front with a damage suit for $15,000, and when the case comes up for trial at Grand Forks, there will be some choice bits of gossipy testimoney introduced. Mrs. Berget Kinneberg brings suit against Ole Kinneberg for damages, charging attempted assault and the alienation of her husband's affections. Ole Kinneberg is the father-in-law of the plaintiff and the young couple made their home with him until April 28, when the row ended by Mrs. Berget Kinneberg leaving the house and Hoken Kinneberg, her husband. The complaint also charges the father-in-law with coming to this city and starting divorce proceedings for his son without the latter's knowledge or consent. The case will come up for trial at the June term of the Nelson county court.

SOUTH DAKOTA.

State Auditor Hipple is busy on his annual report at Pierre and expects to have it ready for the printers by July 1. When completed it will be the more exhaustive and comprehensive than any other report ever issued from the state auditor's office. Mr. Hipple has secured reports of all territorial auditors, and from these he has been able to make comparisons which will be of great value. The report will contain much county information. A review of the work so far shows that the total valuation of the present South Dakota in 1879 was $8,916,100, while now it will foot $125,000,000. A railroad table shows that in 1879 there were 542 miles of road in the territory, which paid a tax of $8258, while in 1895 there were 2800 miles which paid $250,000. The report is one which will be much sought after and will be a work of reference for the state for years to come.

At the circuit court in Tyndall the case of C. Goizian & Co., of St. Paul, against Charles N. McCollum, sheriff of Bon Homme county, is now on trial. This is an action wherein the plaintiff seeks to recover $5000 for alleged damages incurred by the sheriff selling under an execution a stock of goods which Gotzian had under a bill of sale. The case was tried two years ago, with a verdict in favor of the plaintiff, but was remanded and a new trial granted.

A large granary and machine shed belonging to William Mills, of Andover, was destroyed by fire at 1 o'clock yesterday morning, together with 2000 bushels of wheat and a quantity of farm machinery; also two separators belonging to J. F. Collins. Loss, $3500; insurance, $1000. Origin of the fire is unknown.

ENGLISH SPECIAL TAXES.

The Incomes and Inheritances Are Specially Taxed.

To the Editor of The Herald:

So much has been said about the fact that the revenues of the English government during the past year created a surplus, and so many erroneous reasons have been assigned as a cause for this surplus, that I would like space to submit a few facts which may help to correct our political orators in some of their statements.

It is a fact that during the last fiscal year the English government met all its expenses, reduced its public debt $40,000,000 and still had a surplus of $20,000,000 available for strengthening its navy or any other purpose deemed wise. This result is sometimes attributed to the fact that England has no silver agitation, and is thoroughly committed to the gold standard. Sometimes to the fact that our present tariff laws work in favor of England. Neither of these alleged causes is in the slightest way responsible for this surplus in the English revenues.

The English government received from all sources of taxation in round numbers $450,000,000. One-third of this sum was derived from two sources, to-wit: $70,000,000 from a tax on inheritances and $80,000,000 from its income tax; in other words, accumulative wealth in England pays its general share of taxes, and in addition pays special taxes aggregating one-third the total revenues received. Without these special taxes the English government would have had a deficit of $90,000,000 during the last fiscal year.

It is interesting to notice that while proposals to pay tax incomes, and inheritances have been denounced in this country by respectable politicians of both parties as Populistic and as class legislation, both methods of taxation are and for years have been in full force in England, where Populism is unknown. It is also interesting to notice that while the English government has laid its hand upon accumulative wealth and forced it to contribute these extra taxes, it has had at all times an equitable bankrupt law through which the unfortunate debtor has been able to release himself from the claims of his creditors.

Two Duluth Men Who Want to Be Delegates to Chicago.

C. d'Autremont and E. C. Gridley Would Like the Honor.

Call For the Democratic County Convention Will Be Out Soon.

The Democratic state convention will be held on Thursday, June 11, and the call was issued some time ago. This convention will elect delegates to the national convention to be held at Chicago. The Democratic county committee has done nothing as yet toward issuing a call for the county convention to elect delegates to the state convention, but will get together next week. It must issue the call within about ten days in order to give the notice required by law for the primaries.

Some of the Democrats seem to be very apathetic at present, and are indifferent as to what the party organization amounts to, but not all are so. Duluth will have some candidates for the honor of being delegated to attend the national convention at Chicago. The foremost of these is Charles d'Autremont, ex-mayor of Duluth, and one of the most prominently known Democrats in this part of the state. Mr. d'Autremont has always occupied a leading position among the Democrats here, and in 1892 might have been the Sixth district Democratic candidate for congress had he so desired. His candidacy will undoubtedly be a popular one.

It is said that E. C. Gridley is also after the honor. Mr. Gridley's oratorical abilities have given him considerable prominence, but a large number of the Democrats have never forgiven him for his iron ore tariff speech a couple of years ago in which Maj. Baldwin was criticized.

There is a disposition on the part of the Democrats here who are interested in seeing a man from here sent to Chicago to work in harmony with the people from the Stearns county end of the district. If Stearns asks for a delegate-at-large on behalf of the Sixth district, which is undoubtedly entitled to one, then the Duluth people would be content with the selection of one of the district delegates from here. Or, if the people down there are agreeable the Duluth people may try to have their man named as a delegate-at-large. In any event, the second district delegate would undoubtedly come from the intermediate portion of the district. It is believed that Duluth has a good claim for one delegate and can get it.

NOT HERE A YEAR.

For This Reason Mrs. Kemppainen Got No Divorce.

Yesterday afternoon the divorce case of Tarvina Kemppainen against Charles Kemppainen came up before Judge Morris. There was no appearance on the part of the defendant, and the ground of divorce, desertion, was easily proven. Then A. N. McGindley asked his client how long she had lived in the state.

"Nine months," she replied.

Judge McGindley tried to get her to say something besides that, but she would insist that she had lived in the state but nine months.

"Hadn't talked with her about that," said the attorney. "Get off there," to the witness.

The case was continued so the plaintiff could live out the year's residence required by the law.

The following call of jury cases has been made for next week:

Monday—9, 10, 11, 14, 23, 32, 38, 39, 42, 44, 49, 50.

Blaze on the Dock.

A fire that broke out on the Stone-Ordeun docks on Lake avenue yesterday afternoon threatened for a time to finish up such of the structure as was spared by the fire of last summer which destroyed the warehouse situated thereon. Shortly after 4 o'clock flames were seen springing up almost simultaneously from the debris at three points on the dock, and before the fire department arrived, a few minutes later, several additional tongues of fire were dancing up from the flooring.

Twenty minutes of vigorous work were sufficient to subdue the flames, which, it is supposed, originated from spontaneous combustion among the waste resulting from the burning of the warehouses, which were stored with a general assortment of merchandise such as sugar molasses and so forth. The damage was inconsiderable.

IS IT A TRIFLE?

THAT COMMON TROUBLE, ACID DYSPEPSIA OR SOUR STOMACH.

Now Recognized as a Cause of Serious Disease.

Acid dyspepsia, commonly called heartburn or sour stomach, is a form of indigestion resulting from fermentation of the food. The stomach being too weak to promptly digest it, the food remains until fermentation begins, filling the stomach with gas, and a bitter, sour, burning taste in the mouth is often present. This condition soon becomes chronic and being an every day occurrence is given but little attention. Because dyspepsia is not immediately fatal, many people do nothing for the trouble.

Within a recent period a remedy has been discovered prepared solely to cure dyspepsia and stomach troubles. It is known as Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets and it is now becoming rapidly used and prescribed as a radical cure for every form of dyspepsia.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets have been placed before the public and are sold by druggists everywhere at 50 cents per package. It is prepared by the Stuart Chemical company, Marshall, Mich., and while it promptly and effectually restores a vigorous digestion, at the same time is perfectly harmless and will not injure the most delicate stomach, but on the contrary by giving perfect digestion strengthens the stomach, improves the appetite and makes life worth living.

O'NEILL IN "MONTE CRISTO."

"Monte Cristo," most romantic and most gratefully thrilling of dramas is ever young and ever popular, and it never fails to draw good houses, especially when James O'Neill is going to play Edmond Dantes. The story of the happy young sailor of the Pharoh is charmingly romantic and full of the most delightful surprises and climaxes, all of which cause his hearers to experience almost the same degree of enthusiasm they felt in their youth when they first attended the theater. And that fervor of excitement at the vicissitudes of the hero of a play is enjoyed by the old as well as the young, especially so by the former because so few plays can cause it.

Mr. O'Neill has been associated with the part for a long time, and like the play, he seems to be ever young, and he most certainly is ever popular. The care-free Edmond Dantes seems almost as youthful and supple as he did when Mr. O'Neill first assumed the role. Yet it must be confessed that later, after a supposition lapse of nearly two decades, Mr. O'Neill is now a bit more natural as the Abbe Busoni and the count of Monte Cristo.

As Abbe Busoni, in the interview with old Cadeross in which he hears of his father's death and repeats his vow of vengeance to the bad and reward to the good, he is especially strong. Mr. O'Neill has been strongly criticized for the manner in which he says to Danglars in the last act, "You're going to die." Whatever the technical or artistic objections, it is noticeable that it never fails to please the audience. To many, however, it looks much like anti-climax with a trace of horseplay. Mr. O'Neill sticks to it, however, and gives as a reason the fact that Dantes, having finished all his enemies excepting this one, and knowing that he as good as has him, feels playful about it, and that it is perfectly natural.

The support is good, on the whole. Miss Florence Rockwell as Mercedes, bears the print of youthfulness with promise of much later on if she steers clear of rant. William J. Dixon is the same old Caderouse, good as usual, and so is Miss Kate Fletcher as Carconte, his sharp tongued wife. Hallet Thompson is good as Nortier, and William H. Pascoe is excellent as Albert de Morcerf.

The house was a larger one than the house has seen in some time, and the performance was well received.

"SINBAD."

The revival of that popular show piece, "Sinbad, the Sailor, or the Maid of Balsora," by David Henderson's American Extravaganza company, which has several times been promised, will positively appear at the Duluth Lyceum next Monday and Tuesday nights. From the rise of the curtain to the last transformation scene entirely new stage pictures have been supplied by Artist Frederick Dangerfield. New ballets have been supplied by Signor Blanchfort, and new music has been selected by William Batchelor. The dresses, over 100 in number, are all entirely new, even in design. A large portion of them, including those that will be displayed in the principal valley scene and those worn in the wedding procession and pageant of nations, were made in London by Charles Allas from designs by Howard Russell. The properties, armor and electrical effects accompanying them were constructed in Paris.

Henderson's "Sinbad" has scored an enormous success on the coast. The piece has been produced, it is said, something like 1700 times in the principal cities of the country. It has played three engagements already in San Francisco, and this one, the fourth, it is said was the most successful that has yet been given. The Portland, Tacoma and Seattle engagements were the utmost capacity of the theaters. In fact, it is reported that it has been the rule in spite of the depression prevailing upon the coast to have the houses entirely sold out even before the arrival of the company. It is the largest company of the kind that ever traveled in the West. It numbers over ninety people, and it is the original cast as played at Mr. Henderson's theater in Chicago.

When Baby was sick, we gave her Castoria.
When she was a Child, she cried for Castoria.
When she became Miss, she clung to Castoria.
When she had Children, she gave them Castoria.

WILL BANQUET HIM.

Judge Nelson Will Be Honored By the Bar.

The attorneys will give a banquet next Tuesday evening in honor of Judge R. R. Nelson, who will on that day have reached the seventieth anniversary of his birth. They arrived at that conclusion yesterday afternoon, and it took them just as long to reach it as it would any other gathering, and they had just as much fun out of it, too, thanks to J. L. Washburn, who was in a somewhat humorous mood.

The meeting was called to order by Col. A. A. Harris, who said that he had taken the liberty to issue the call, and he outlined the purpose for which this had been done. He suggested that a banquet ought to be given, and Judges Caldwell, Thayer and Sanborn, who are holding the court of appeals in St. Paul, invited to come up. He said the St. Paul & Duluth road had agreed to furnish a private car for their transportation. Col. Harris suggested Judge Ensign for chairman and he was unanimously selected.

Judge Ensign took the chair and called for the nomination of secretary. H. B. Fryberger was selected, and the pleasure of the meeting was then asked.

H. F. Greene thought there were just about two things to do, either have a banquet or make an address on behalf of the bar. Judge Ensign suggested a third, the holding of a reception.

There was a suggestion made that a committee of three be appointed to determine which it will be best to do and report at the special term on Saturday morning. This would cause the loss of considerable time, however, and H. F. Greene moved that a banquet be given if possible.

John G. Williams said there should be no banquet unless its success is assured. He thought the banquet was a good idea. The three judges might not come up just for a reception. They will want something to eat "and so forth."

The "and so forth" suggested by Mr. Williams caused some facetious remarks and considerable laughter.

A little later Col. Harris ventured the idea that the women ought to be included and allowed to be present.

Mr. Washburn arose and remarked: "If this were a conference of the Methodist church I would vote for the admission of the women, but as it is not, I prefer to let them stay at home. I haven't got any good clothes, and that's another reason why I don't want them here." Mr. Arbury said "me, too," and that seemed to be the general sentiment.

The meeting finally resulted in the appointment of a committee consisting of Col. Harris, T. T. Hudson, H. F. Greene, J. L. Washburn and John G. Williams, to arrange for the banquet and to report progress at the special term of court on Saturday.

Invitations are also to be extended to Mr. Jordan, clerk of the United States court of appeals, and the lawyers residing in Superior who practiced there during Judge Nelson's residence in that city. There are but two of the latter at the most, Col. Hiram Hayes and possibly Judge Clough.

COLLIDED

The Steamer Mary B. Grover and the Moran Came Together.

A CANADIAN RATE WAR.

Canadian railway and steamer lines are waging a rate-cutting war. Heretofore the Canadian Pacific, Grand Trunk and Northern Pacific railways and the Beatty line of steamers have entered into an agreement with the merchants' line, running from Montreal to Port Arthur and Duluth, by which, in transporting through freight, a differential rate per 100 pounds has been allowed. Last year the rate on fifth-class freight, through, was 69 cents. The steamers took 22 cents and the railroad 47. This year, while the rate is the same, the railroads have advanced their proportion to 57 cents, thereby cutting the steamers off with only 12 cents. This demand has caused the Merchants' line to make the rate 12 cents on all classes of freight.

By this move the Merchants' line will capture a lot of freight which has been sent heretofore partly by rail over the Grand Trunk and Canadian Pacific.

THE ELKS' SESSION.

Delightful Entertainment Given Last Evening.

The Elks had a social session last evening, one of the best in the history of the lodge. There were a number of celebrities present. Tom Fitzgibbons, the famous traveling man, better known as "Gilhooly," was there and told a number of his choicest stories, and gave inimitable impersonations of Irish characters.

Patrick Doran sang, "Put Me Off at Buffalo," "Killarney" and a number of the popular favorites. He was frequently called upon and responded amiably each time, George K. Taylor, representing the "juveniles of the board of trade," recited a poem, which fairly teemed with delicate sentiment. J. F. Martin, Arthur Gilbert and Robert Cox sang and were called on several times. Arthur G. Drake gave some fine piano numbers, and the Duluth Mandolin club, under the leadership of Professor Wernes playing several charming selections.

During the evening James O'Neill and several members of his company came in. Mr. O'Neill spoke of his long connection with the Elks and his love and admiration for the order. He recalled the cordial reception and entertainment given him a year or two ago, and made some very happy remarks. He also recited, with much pathos, Bret Harte's poem, "The Babes in the Wood."

John F. DeGez recited Ingersoll's soliloquy "Before the Tomb of Napoleon" in a manner which brought tremendous applause. Mr. Dixon, of the company, also told some stories and recited.

The admirable entertainment was arranged by Messrs. Mitchell, Phillips and McFadzean.

The Horton Bridge.

Tomorrow the commissioners will consider the bids for the viaduct at Short Line Park. C. M. Horton, of this city, is only $37.50 higher than the outside bridge company, and as he is a local man, thinks he ought to have it. Further than this, he says his bid is really much lower, because the piers which he agrees to put in are much better. He agrees to put them in much deeper than the Wisconsin Bridge company, the other bidder, so that they would be below the frost line. In addition he will have all the iron except the top cord of the bridge manufactured here. The style of bridge he offers to build is a new one, but it has received the endorsement of the most famous engineers in the country.

MAY DISCONTINUE.

Humane Society's Future Very Much in Doubt.

If the council does not grant the Humane society the usual appropriation of $200 a year, it is feared that the work will have to be discontinued. So said J. B. Middlecoff today, adding that the funds for paying the officer employed by the society are about exhausted.

The recent organization effected on the ranges is already making itself felt. The humane officers at Virginia have reported the cases of two poundmasters who had dragged dogs through the streets en route to the pound in an inhuman manner. The society responded with instructions to the officials reporting the offense to use every means to persuade the offenders to desist from their barbarous practices before resorting to prosecution, in accordance with the usual policy of the society.

The society officials in the range towns have served thus far without pay. An effort may be made to procure their appointment as special officers. The objection to such a course in this city lies in the fact that the work here requires the whole of the officer's time, which he could not give under a special appointment, as there would be other duties imposed upon him.

Only resort in city having music Saturday night. Ideal Beer hall.

A NEW TORPEDO.

A new target-seeking steering device for torpedoes is on trial at Newport News, says the New York Sun. It has a magnetic needle which deflects naturally toward a steel vessel as soon as the torpedo to which it is attached comes within magnetic range of the craft. The motor causes the rudder to turn so as to guide the torpedo in the direction pointed by the needle, and when the torpedo is parallel with the needle its rudder becomes fixed and it follows the ship in the most direct path. The device made more than thirty knots an hour in a very heavy sea and a wind velocity of forty miles. It weighs 190 pounds.

QUITE PROPER.

Boston Courier: "The county will present you with a suit of clothes to be charged in if you want them," said the sheriff to the condemned man.

"Well," said the doomed, thoughtfully, "I suppose it would be the proper thing for me to have a noose suit."

THE FIRST LADY.

Robert Stuart Pigott, the baritone, has a lovely little daughter, whose sayings are really worth making a book about, says the Washington Post. Mrs. Cleveland is the object of her adoration just now. The child was walking in I street with her mother the other day, when they met Mrs. Cleveland, out for her daily constitutional. Mrs. Cleveland saw the child's wrapt admiration and smiled as she passed.

"Mamma," said Katherine, who hadn't seen the president's wife before, "she doesn't look nearly so old as grandma."

"Why, of course she doesn't," said the surprised mother. "What makes you say that?"

"Well," went on the child, "you told me she was the very first lady in the land."

Woman Question Will Not Stay Down in Methodist Conference.

But Like Banquo's Ghost It Walks at Each Session.

And It Stirred Up a Great Big Dissension This Morning.

Cleveland, May 8.—The woman question having been disposed of by the Methodist conference there was a marked falling off in the attendance this morning. Bishop Hurst presided, and the devotional exercises were conducted by Rev. Charles W. Thomas, of Philadelphia. Dr. Ackerman, of Alabama, presented resolutions thanking the mayor and city council of Cleveland for the cordial manner of their greeting to the delegates.

"For all your kind words and loving, fraternal deeds," declare the resolutions, "we most sincerely thank you, and we will ever pray that upon you and yours the blessing of heaven may continue to descend, and that the already splendid commercial, social, educational and ecclesiastical achievements of your city may be multiplied an hundred fold."

No sooner had the resolutions been adopted by a rising vote than the woman question came up again like Banquo's ghost and caused a great deal of trouble both to delegates and to Bishop Hurst. Morris Sharp, of Ohio, presented a resolution to excuse the women delegates, in that they have relinquished their seats, and that their expenses be paid to the date of their withdrawal. The resolution also called in their made reserves, Dr. Neely, of Philadelphia, presented a substitute in which the women were invited to remain as honored guests of the conference and their expenses ordered paid. Dr. Cranston rose and asked for a ruling by the chair as to the present status of women in the conference.

Bishop Hurst decided it was not a point of order, but was a matter of interpretation for the body, and ruled that Dr. Neely had the floor. Just after Dr. Neely began speaking, Dr. Frysinger, of Pennsylvania, appealed from the decision of the chair, and Dr. Cranston's point. Bishop Hurst put the question as being on the appeal of Dr. Cranston and great confusion existed. A motion to lay the entire matter on the table was lost by a vote of 218 nays to 109 yeas. Dr. Kynett raised the point of order that the question had been improperly put, but Bishop Hurst held that Dr. Neely had the floor, and Dr. Kynett appealed.

Bishop Hurst declined to entertain the appeal and a dozen men were on the floor shouting for recognition. Bishop Hurst declined to recognize any one, but pounded with his gavel and shouted: "Dr. Neely has the floor."

Dr. Leonard, Dr. Chaffee and others loudly insisted on the appeal being put. Bishop Hurst pounded until he broke his gavel. Dr. Frysinger insisted on the appeal being put, and in this he was joined by the entire conference. Shouts to put the appeal almost drowned out the bishop's voice and the utmost confusion reigned. Dr. Frysinger leaped to his feet and said if he would not be given the right to appeal he would resign. Dr. Neely made himself heard above the din and said he desired to withdraw his paper. Bishop Hurst would not permit this and the din continued. Finally forced by the conference, Bishop Hurst said he ruled that both papers were before the house and he would entertain the appeal.

Mr. Sharp asked to withdraw his resolution, but he was not permitted to do so. In the midst of intense excitment the vote on the appeal was taken. The ruling of Bishop Hurst was sustained by a vote of 223 yeas, and 201 nays. As soon as it was decided that the papers were before the house, Dr. Neely and Dr. Sharp both withdrew their papers and the most violent struggle of the first week of the conference was over.

HOLLAND'S WAR.

No Final Victory is to Be Allowed.

We were talking about England's little wars at the club, says the Buffalo Express, and, most pertinently a man, a Boston man, who has only been ashore four or five days after a voyage of something like 115 days from Java in a sailing ship, chipped in: "I've got a yarn to spin in that connection." You will note the nautical way he spoke, after his experience at sea.

"As all the world knows, the Dutch have for years and years been trying to conquer the island of Sumatra. Sumatra is the largest island in the world, bar Australia"—that's what he said I am, geographically speaking, too weak, to state it as a fact—"and as the Dutchmen have made Java a great source of revenue, they have been trying to conquer Sumatra as well.

"I got to know our consul at Batavia, the principal Javanese port, and, through him a lot of Dutch officials, and I thought I'd like to take a shy at going to Acheen, the one place in Sumatra where the Dutch have a safe foothold, and see how so long drawn out war was conducted, for the Dutch have every modern appliance for romping over such savages as the natives of Sumatra, and only the interior climate is against their easy success.

"I got a tip from the inside that I had better not waste any time, as under no circumstances would the Dutchmen at Acheen let me go to the front, where military operations were going on. That point, as I understand it, is some 300 miles inland.

"And why?" I asked.

"'For the very good reason,' said the man who gave me the tip, 'that this war is a permanent thing for Holland, and a soft thing for the ring. There are government officials in Amsterdam and Dutch government colonial officials out here who each make from 50,000 to 200,000 florins a year out of the war in the way of supplying military stores, and the transportation of troops, or by means of any various little games that big politicians out for the dust have a way of playing. Not very long ago, in a moment of enthusiasm, on someone's part, a Dutch general was appointed to the command of Sumatra because he boasted that he could put an end to the war in a few months. He started in at full speed, and was keeping his promise so well that a vigorous (but very quiet) row was kicked up in the innermost circles, and he was recalled. Therefore, I didn't bother to go and investigate the Dutch campaign in Java.'"

RAILROAD TRAVEL.

In the May Ladies' Home Journal John Gilmer Speed writes entertainingly and instructively on the construction and operation of railroads, under the caption, "Running a Train at Night." He prefatorily asserts that "the most remarkable achievements of modern civilization, probably, are those which affect traveling, making it at once quick, comfortable and secure. We cross states and continents at the rate of thirty miles an hour, with greater security against accident than our grandfathers enjoyed in their stage coaches, and we have, even when on the cars, comforts unknown in the palaces of kings when our grandfathers' grandfathers were young. * * * During the year (from interstate commerce commission's report for year ending July 1, 1894) one passenger was killed for every 1,985,153 passengers carried, and one was injured for every 183,822 carried. This surely is as safe as living ordinary humdrum lives in large cities. The report further shows that a man's chances against injury were such that he would have to travel 4,406,659 miles before getting hurt, and go 47,588,966 miles before being killed. At the rate of thirty miles an hour a man could travel, if nature permitted, on American railways for one hundred and eighty-one years, without leaving the cars, before being killed, or with the same amount of security against accident he could go round the earth nineteen hundred and three times before meeting his death by accident, and one hundred and seventy-six times before getting hurt."

CHARMED THE HENS.

A big cock-ruffed grouse came plunging down in the barnyard at Seth Colby's, near here, the other day, and strutted about among the hens, giving himself all sorts of airs, says a Bear Creek (Pa.) letter to the New York Sun. The rooster that had charge of this flock of hens gazed at this impudent intruder in astonishment for a few seconds, and then bristled up and started in to show the grouse that sole authority in that yard was vested in himself. The rooster was as big again as the grouse, but the gamy interloper from the wilds put himself in shape and treated Mr. Rooster to something that was a surprise to him. The grouse was so quick and fierce in his fighting that after three lively rounds the rooster turned tail and retreated to a far corner of the barnyard. The victor couldn't crow, but he jumped upon a mound of straw and looked the surroundings over with such an imperious air that it spoke louder of his triumph than a crow that could have been heard a mile. After thus gloating over his victory the wild cock came off the mound and strutted about among the hens with more assurance than before. The hens did not conceal their admiration for the audacious gallant, and huddled around him, ignoring scornfully the presence of their rightful lord, beaten and humiliated in his corner. For half an hour the grouse enjoyed his pleasing triumph, and then whirred away to his wooded haunts.

"And them hens," says Seth Colby, who witnessed the remarkable exhibition from the window of his hay mow, "looked sorrier than a whipped when that dandy pheasant left 'em, and they kept it up so long that they didn't recognize the rooster for more'n two days."

SQUIRREL WHIPPED A CAT.

There was a lively scrap at A. H. Trent's store yesterday, says the Spokane Chronicle, in which two men came near losing their fingers, while Patsy, the cat, was badly chewed up.

Trent is the possessor of a fine gray squirrel, and thought it would be a grand scheme to turn the squirrel out of the cage and give him the freedom of the store. The store doors were closed and the squirrel liberated.

For a few minutes the squirrel had a lively time chasing about, but came too near the cat. There was a maddened scream, and then the air was full of fur and claws. An attempt was made to separate the combatants, in which Trent was bitten through the finger and large chunks of cuticle were torn from his hands. His clerk came to his assistance and fared no better. The squirrel and cat continued to fight while the bleeding human referees stood and looked on.

At last the cat got loose, escaped through a back window, and has not been seen since. The squirrel returned to his cage, proud of his victory, having cleaned up all in sight.

THE MOON NOT ROUND.

According to the teachings of advanced modern astronomy it is a mistake to suppose that the shape of the moon is similar to that of the earth, says Science. It is believed nowadays that the moon is a perfect ellipse, its figure being nearly exactly one-third longer than it is broad. The elliptical theory of our satellite's shape is founded on the well-known fact that a certain side (end, rather) of the moon is always presented to our view. This is caused by the moon revolving once on her axis in exactly the same period of time that she revolves around the earth. Her elongated shape was probably caused by the attraction of the earth when both planets were young and soft.

OWNED UP

Wendell Caulkett Reported to the Police That He Was Robbed.

Today He Owned Up That He Had Invented the Story.

Was Behind on His Board Bill and Finally Grew Desperate.

Wendell Caulkett was not held up as he reported to the police last night. Wendell was behind on his board bill, and the hold-up story was a scheme he had devised in his powerful brain to induce his uncle who has paid his board before, to again come down with the shekels.

The young man, who is about 17 years of age has been employed in Panton & White's store at a salary of $6 per week, the firm having given him a place out of interest in him and his connections. Out of this salary, the young man had found it difficult to fly as high as he wished and he has twice before come down on his aforesaid relative for aid. Being ashamed to strike him need again, and hundred desperate by being two months behind on his rent, he planned the brilliant scheme he carried out last night.

A member of the firm employing him said today that Wendell had exactly $16 in cash in addition to what he may have received on soaking his watch the first of the month to pay current expenses and back debts, and that Wendell had not seen the sum of $40, which was the amount he claimed had been taken, in many moons.

The young man's uncle and the employer of the young man had an interesting interview with him today, and under their questioning the weak spots in the story were shown up so glaringly to Wendell that he lost all conceit in himself as a successful romancer.

BROUGHT THEM OUT.

Hot Weather Uncovered a Lot of Drunks.

It was because the hot weather yesterday melted their virtuous resolutions, probably, that so numerous an array of drunks lined up in the municipal court this morning to take their medicine. There were eight of them who responded to roll call as Officer Jensen stood them up before the court.

Napoleon Neads was the first one called up. Napoleon had been looking for work and found a jag. He wanted to leave town, and on his promise to do so the court gave Napoleon a chance to give an imitation of the retreat from Moscow. James McLennon came forward. James had a face that would make a hyena shun his society. He attempted the role of the unfortunate looking for work and led astray by evil companions, but he could not arrange his features to suit the part. His countenance contradicted him emphatically. Ten dollars and costs was his portion, and he went up on the hill.

William Hellaman, Owen McGuire, G. Cavanau, and Thomas Miller had nothing to say for themselves and were each fined $10 and costs. None were able to pay and they were all given a chance to work it out.

John and James McCaffery promised to leave town and their sentences were suspended on condition that they do so.

Caught Under a Car.

The 5-year-old child of C. Lavick, a furniture dealer located in the Fontanel block on Superior street between Twentieth and Twenty-first avenue west, met with a narrow escape from death about 1:30 this afternoon. The child with other small children were playing on the street and the older ones were running across the track in front of a passing car. This youngster started to run across the track and fell beneath the front of the car, being dragged fifteen or twenty feet before the car could be stopped. The passengers got out as soon as possible and pulled the child out. Fortunately all the injuries that could be ascertained was a cut in the forehead and a slightly damaged eye.

Case of Shocking Cruelty.

A shocking case of cruelty to a horse occurred yesterday near Howard's mill. One of the teamsters in the employ of the Howard Lumber company, becoming incensed at one of his horses seized his whip and belabored the animal with the heavy handle in a terrible manner, striking it in the eye, inflicting injuries that will probably result in the loss of that organ. The poor beast reared and screamed in pain, which only goaded the two-legged brute to greater efforts. At this juncture, H. F. Howard, president of the company, drove along and put a stop to the proceedings, discharging the man on the spot. The matter has been brought to the attention of the Humane officials, and the fellow may be prosecuted.

An Assured Success.

The banquet in honor of Judge Nelson is fairly an assured success. The committee has arranged with the Spalding to serve an elaborate spread with all the accessories that go to make up a delightful banquet. The invitation to Judge Nelson and the judges of the court of appeals have been mailed. Committees are at work preparing the lists of toasts, looking after printing, etc. The tickets have been placed at a reasonable figure and the attendance will undoubtedly be large.

Did Not Steal It.

The trial of Joseph Dischan in the municipal court today on a charge of stealing a coat from T. Bennison resulted in an acquittal of the accused. The evidence showed that Bennison's and Dischan's coats were hanging side by side, and Dischan claimed he made a mistake when dressing and took the wrong one. The claim seemed reasonable and Dischan was discharged.

DOUBTFUL

Not Definitely Known What Sentence Was Given the Competitor Crew.

Belief That Death Has Been Fixed as Their Punishment.

State Department Is Active--Some Conflicting Spanish Reports.

Washington, May 9.—No information is to be had from official sources in Washington today respecting the Competitor case in any aspect, either as to the results of the courtmartial or as to the general course of our government in the future. Nevertheless, it is generally understood that the courtmartial found the prisoners, one and all, guilty, and has imposed the death sentence upon them subject to Admiral Navarro's approval. This, however, does not necessarily mean that there is to be speedy action in the execution of the sentence, or even that hope for the convicted men must be abandoned.

Under the Spanish military code, as in the case of our own military law, all capital sentences are reviewable by superior authority. The impression prevails in well-informed quarters that the proceedings of the courtmartial must be submitted either in the first instance, or eventually, to the council of ministers at Madrid, and although this may be done by the free use of the cable, several days will be required to complete the action in the case. Meanwhile the state department is in close connection, by cable, with United States Consul General Williams, at Havana, and under instructions, he will lose no opportunity to aid the prisoners in all proper ways. Indeed, it appears that he has already been energetically making representations, in the interest of the Americans captured, and raising some points that, although dismissed by the courtmartial as inapplicable, are likely to be made the subject of a repart to the state department.

Our department is not disposed to accept as final by any means, the construction given by the courtmartial to the celebrated Cushing protocol, upon which depends the safety of so many American citizens in Cuba. As gathered from the newspaper reports of yesterday's trial, the Spanish authorities, in answer to Mr. Williams' demand that the Americans under arrest be granted the privileges assured by that protocol, say that the treaty is not germane in this matter.

The Competitor case is also complicated by a wide variance between Spanish law and our own respecting the definition of piracy, and this because of great moment when it is realized that in the present case the captives are accused, in addition to treason, of being pirates. Under our law, or under British law, such a charge would not apply to their case, but it appears that the Latin code recognizes what is called "municipal piracy," meaning offenses committed against the laws of a country from a base within its waters over which municipal jurisdiction extends.

Altogether the case promises to present features of novelty making it extremely difficult to deal with legally and perhaps to call forth some strong expressions of opinion from both sides before it is finally disposed of satisfactorily.

SENTENCED LAST NIGHT.

Havana, May 9.—The naval officers forming the courtmartial which tried the men captured on board the American schooner Competitor, of Key West, Fla., sentenced the prisoners last night, but the judgment will not be disclosed until it is signed by Admiral Navarro.

A MADRID REPORT.

Madrid, May 9.—Dispatches received here from Havana say that the men captured on board the American schooner Competitor, who were tried by courtmartial yesterday, have been sentenced to death.

A CONTRADICTORY RUMOR.

New York, May 9.—A dispatch to the Associated Press late last night in reply to a question on the subject, said that the courtmartial adjourned shortly after 12 o'clock and had not arrived at a judgment of the cases heard during the morning.

WAS LOVESICK.

Why a Seattle Lawyer Committed Suicide.

Spokane, Wash., May 9.—A. M. S. Hilgard, a nephew of Henry Villard, and a rising young attorney of Spokane, is believed to have committed suicide. He has been dissipating and was heard to discuss self-destruction. He left his room about midnight, taking a revolver with him. When his roommate discovered his absence he reported the fact to police headquarters. At daybreak his hat was found on the Post street bridge just above the main falls in the Spokane river.

An inspection of the bridge indicated that Hilgard had climbed over the railing. Hanging by one hand he had sent a bullet through his brain. The theory is sustained by the fact that a shot was heard in that vicinity by a policeman at 2 o'clock this morning. It is said that Hilgard's trouble was partly due to a love affair.

COL. ASHFORD IS ILL.

San Francisco, May 9.—Col. Volney P. Ashford, late attorney general to Hawaii, one of the most noted of all the Hawaiian revolutionists and exiles, a British subject, whose ambition to be king disturbed the peace of Lilliuokalani, is dangerously ill in the French hospital in this city, where he had a second attack of paralysis on Wednesday. Ashford was banished from Hawaii when the Dole government came into power, and since that time has been living in this city. It is believed that he cannot recover.

A. P. A. MEETING.

Important Convention in Washington Next Week.

Washington, May 9.—The annual convention of the supreme council of the American Protective association, which will be called in Washington May 12, will be the most important to the organization of any meeting in its history. Two questions of policy are to be passed upon, one of them relating to the part to be played by the society in the impending presidential campaign, the other the project of establishing permanent headquarters in Washington to influence legislation. Incidentally there will be an election of officers; a declaration of principles for publication will be framed on the lines of last year's announcement, and the financial question, it is anticipated, may break into the deliberations as a disturbing factor. Some 250 members comprise the supreme council of the order. They represent the various state branches, the representation of each state being proportionate to the A. P. A. members therein.

Among the members who are now in the city, discussion is forced upon presidential matters. The action of the executive committee of the advisory board, which met in Washington and New York recently, and published an attack upon McKinley. Thirteen members constitute the executive committee of the board. Seven of the committee is a quorum for the transaction of business. Warm partisans for and against McKinley are numbered among the councillors, and those friendly to McKinley will endeavor to force the supreme council to disavow the executive committee's declaration. The platform is to be framed will have for its chief plank the absolute separation of church and state, no government aid for church institutions and more restrictive immigration laws.

A strong movement has been set on foot in the Western branch of the order to secure a declaration advocating the free coinage of silver as one plank of the platform. How strong this will prove remains to be seen, but it will be fought by the Eastern delegates, and by some others, who believe the financial question to be without the domain of the organization. Nevertheless, opponents of this plank fear that it will be adopted.

The national headquarters of the A. P. A. at present are at Chicago, but the removal to Washington is thought to be assured. The establishment of headquarters here means that the order will take a more active part in politics that it has in the past. Its representatives here will be expected to watch legislation for the detection of measures opposed to the A. P. A. One requirement to be imposed upon the candidates for the positions of supreme president and secretary is that they will reside in this city. W. H. J. Traynor, of Detroit, who has served as president for three terms, will not be a candidate for re-election. The leading candidates are: Col. Bowers, of Iowa, the founder of the order; Judge J. H. D. Stevens, of St. Louis, and Dr. J. W. Ford, of Troy, N. Y. Supreme Secretary C. T. Beatty, of Chicago, will be a candidate for re-election.

CRUISER BROOKLYN.

Big Vessel Will Make a Builder's Trip Today.

Philadelphia, May 9.—The cruiser Brooklyn has left Cramps' yard on her builders' trial trip. She will be given a speed trial over what is known as the Cramp course, which is eleven knots long and lies between northwest and southeast lightship, a few miles off the Jersey coast. After this trial she will run out to sea for one day and is expected to return to her dock Tuesday afternoon.

The contract is for twenty knots an hour, but her builders expect her to make twenty-two knots. She is larger and is regarded as a more effective type of fighting cruiser than the New York. Work has been pushed rapidly on the big steamship, and she will be completed and ready for her official trial about the middle of July.

ALASKAN GOLD.

Marshal Williams Says it is Plentiful.

San Francisco, May 9.—United States Marshal L. L. Williams, of Sitka, Alaska, is in the city. In speaking about the Alaskan mining excitement, he said: "I thing it no exaggeration to say that fully 2500 miners have flocked into Alaska this season. This influx of people, has materially increased the white population. I believe the latter has doubled during the past two years. Favorable reports are being made about the gold country around Cook's Inlet and some large finds of the precious metal are rumored.

"The Yukon country maintains its high reputation for yields of gold in its placer mines. Last season fully $1,900,000 in gold dust was taken out. There is every prospect of much larger returns for this season. As many as 500 miners wintered in the Yukon district the past winter. They tunnelled under the frozen surface of the ground and brought out tons of rich gravel. They are now engaged in washing it out."

DUBOIS WILL BOLT.

Idaho's Senator is Silver Clear Through.

Boise, Ind., May 9.—The Evening Mail has created a political sensation by announcing that Senator Dubois has written a letter to Hon. D. A. Penn, of Boise, one of the leading Republicans of the state, in which he states he will not support a Republican presidential nominee, unless he is a free silver man. The Mail prints following extract from the letter: "In the event the St. Louis convention adopts a goldbug or straddle platform or nominates a goldbug or straddle candidate, I shall bolt the convention."

It also gives the following as the substance of another statement in the letter: "I believe that I have sufficient personal following in Idaho, added to the following, which I will get from the other parties, to defeat the Republican party of Idaho."

Dubois' friends here are much exercised over the declaration. Straight up Republicans who are expected to go to the Pocatello convention May 16, say under such a declaration they will bolt the convention there if Dubois' friends succeed in securing the adoption of the resolution endorsing the action of the senator in the senate. The bolters will elect a set of delegates and send them to St. Louis as a straight Republican delegation for McKinley. Ada county convention is to be held here today and will instruct for McKinley.

TOBACCO

Methodist Conference Having Settled Women Tackles the Weed Nicotian.

A Resolution About Colored Men Provoked Laughter---Other Resolutions.

Church Consolidation Matter Urged Before the Conference This Morning.

Cleveland, Ohio, May 9.—When Bishop Ninde called the general conference to order this morning but few delegates were in their seats. In fact, since the conference settled the woman question delegates generally have been tardy.

Mr. Lowther, of the Southwest Kansas conference, when the roll of conferences was called, introduced a resolution denouncing the use of tobacco in a preamble, and then recommended the members to absolute abstinence, and recommended that all Sunday school superintendents and Epworth league presidents be forbidden the use of tobacco. It was referred to the committee on state of the church.

A resolution was introduced which created a deal of laughter. It said that Bishop Hurst in his speech on last night said that the first dollar given the American university was by a colored man, and therefore the resolution provides that a colored man shall always be represented on the board.

A resolution was introduced by Merritt Hurlburt, of the Wilmington conference, recommending that the senate and the house of representatives do so amend the constitution that it might recognize the deity, and in the preamble insert the words "Trusting in God." It was placed upon its passage, but finally referred to the committee on state of the church.

A resolution in favor of taking better care of superannuated preachers was referred to the proper committee.

Secretary Monroe read a communication from the secretary of the Methodist Episcopal conference south, which met in May, 1894. It spoke of the matter of federation of the two bodies, and therefore recommended that the conferences of the church and missions of Great Britain and Ireland, of the United States, of Australia and its branches, and of Canada and its missions be united. The resolutions asked if such a conference was not possible, and if so, that a committee be appointed by all the various conferences, to consist of three bishops, three ministers and three laymen. It announced the committee already appointed by the Methodist Episcopal church south. The matter was taken up by a resolution from one of the members, but it was decided that no action should be taken by the conference until official notification was served.

The movement is important, as it may result in the consolidation of two of the great Methodist bodies of the country. Dr. Broadbeck asked leave on behalf of the committee on missions to submit his report out of its order. The request was granted and the report was read. It related to the reception of pastors from other denominations into the Methodist church. While the resolution was general, it was explained that it referred to a special case in Germany, where a union with the German Wesleyans desired to incorporate with the Methodist Episcopal church. There were difference of opinion as to the financial arrangement.

The Wesleyans had property worth $200,000 which would be brought into the Methodist church. They would sacrifice their life-long connection with the English Wesleyan society, which they regarded as quite a sacrifice. The speaker further asked that the conference take such action as would open the door of the Methodist church to the Wesleyan brothers, and if so the union would be consummated next year. The resolution was unanimously adopted by a rising vote. A cablegram was sent to the Wesleyan synod, now in session, informing it of the result of the conference's action.

A resolution was introduced which provided that changes in the constitution could be made without the two-thirds vote rule and the three-quarter vote of the annual conferences. It looked like a storm for a moment, but it was sidetracked to the committee room. Ex-Senator Harlan, under the order of the miscellaneous business, introduced the following resolution: "Resolved, that the second restrictive rule be so changed as to admit of equal representation by the ministry and laity in the general conferences."

The resolution was signed by James Harlan, Chris Howe and J. P. Leter. It looked as if the old fight would be opened again, and the lines more closely drawn than they have been heretofore.

The resolution of ex-Senator Harlan was referred to the committee on lay representation. Dr. Stevenson, of Kentucky, introduced a resolution of sympathy for Cuba, which was adopted. The conference before adjourning passed a resolution condemning the recent enactment of the Florida legislature whereby it was made illegal in that state for colored persons and white persons to receive instruction in the same school. The conference then adjourning for the week.

BOLLN IS GUILTY.

Omaha's Defaulting Treasurer Convicted of Embezzlement.

Omaha, May 9.—Shortly before noon the jury in the case of Henry Bolln, the defaulting city treasurer, returned a verdict of guilty on every count. Sentence is not yet pronounced. The penalty prescribed is from one to twenty-one years and a fine to double the amount stolen. The amount of defalcation was $105,500.

COREAN MATTERS.

Yokohama, May 9.—Negotiations are in progress between Japan and Russia, looking to joint action in Corea. The chief points under discussion are the return of the king to the palace from the Russian embassy, Japan to have the disposal of the troops above the palace, and the placing of the Corean telegraph system in the hands of the Japanese.

CANADA PROHIBITION.

Privy Council at London Gives a Decision.

London, May 9.—Judgment has been rendered by the privy council in the Canadian prohibition case. Their lordships answered the question separately, and gave the opinion that the Ontario legislature had jurisdiction to enact section 18, subject to the necessary qualifications, and that its provisions are or will become inoperative in any district of the province which has already adopted, or may adopt, the second part of the Canada temperance act of 1866. The order of the supreme court of Canada is discharged; no costs.

The judgment of the privy council covers twenty-one printed pages, and is highly technical. It was read by Lord Watson, and deals chiefly with the seventh question submitted by the governor general of Canada, which, after an exhaustive review of the Canadian laws for the restriction of the liquor traffic, it answers in the affirmative. It is their lordships' opinion that the enactments of the imperial act of 1867 indicate that the exercise of legislative power by the parliament of Canada is strictly confined to matters unquestionably of Canadian interest and importance. Any other construction, they say, is not only contrary to the intendment of the act, but would practically destroy the autonomy of the provinces, if it was once conceded that parliament had the authority to make laws applicable to the whole Dominion, in relation to matters which, in each province, are of local interest. Upon the assumption that they also concern the peace, order and good government of the Dominion, they are hardly subject to be enumerated in section 92, whereon it might not legislate to the exclusion of the provincial legislatures.

Their lordships are likewise of the opinion that section 92 does not give the provisional legislatures the right to make laws for the abolition of the liquor traffic. It assigns to them the saloon, tavern and other licenses, and the imposition of reasonable conditions upon the licenses, in return for that regulation, but it cannot be construed as authorizing the abolition of the sources of revenue. The parliament of Canada has not the power to pass a prohibitory law for the province of Ontario, therefore it has no authority to repeal an act whereof the operation is limited to that province. In a like manner the express repeal of the Canada temperance act of 1886 in the liquor prohibitions adopted by the municipality of the province of Ontario, under the sanction of the provincial legislature, does not appear to be within the authority of the Dominion parliament.

The answers to questions one, two, five and six sufficiently answer, in the opinion of their lordships, question seven. In answer to question three their lordships express the opinion that the provincial legislatures have jurisdiction to that effect if it is shown that the manufacturer is carried on under circumstances as to make the prohibition merely a local matter in the province. Their lordships answer question four in the negative.

SOUTHWEST CROPS.

Chinch Bug Stories Are Not All True.

Kansas City, May 9. Modern Miller, in its issue today, says: Stories of chinch bug ravages come from Oklahoma, Western and Southern Kansas, Tennessee, Kentucky, Southern Indiana and Central and Western Illinois. These reports for the most part come from alarmists, and unless a week of two more of hot, dry weather encourages prices, we do not expect to report any widespread damage.

There was no rain in the winter wheat region this week until last night, when Western and Southern Kansas was visited by from one and a half to three-quarters of an inch of water fall, which extended into Northern Oklahoma. The outlook as this writing is for heavy rains in Kansas and Oklahoma today. On the whole, we cannot report a gain in condition this week, nor can we admit that there is any important damage done, the whole area considered.

STRIKE COLLAPSED.

Milwaukee Street Cars Running Without Trouble.

Milwaukee, May 9.—The excitement in regard to the street railway strike is subsiding. The heat has driven the tired idlers from the streets and consequently there is less noise and less jeering of the operators of passing cars. The company secured about fifty new men today, and is now running 110 cars. Its officers state that they are furnishing all the facilities that the situation demands, and the care of the rest belongs to the city.

They declare that they will institute no black list, but will take back all of the old employes that may be required when the strikers yield. The new men who have helped the company through its difficulty will, of course, be retained. Manager Wyman states this morning that he has already re-engaged a number of the old employes.

ARIZONA INDIANS.

On the War Path and Killing Settlers.

Tombstone, Ariz., May 9.—A report comes from the vicinity of Wilcox which indicates that the Indians are on the war path. Three men are said to have been killed near the Mexican line on May 5. They are S. B. Reid, a prominent cattle raiser; his foreman, Gus Wisner, and a young man named Hand, brother of the herder killed a few weeks ago. Details are meager.

DOUBLE TRAGEDY.

Jealous Lover Kills His Sweetheart and Himself.

Trenton, N. J., May 9.—Annie Alderson, aged 24 years, was shot this morning by John Graham, who immediately afterwards shot himself. Both died inside of an hour. The shooting took place in the dining room of C. I. Taumgarner, a prominent merchant of this place, in whose family the girl was employed as a domestic. Graham entered the residence through the alley. At the time the girl was in the dining room reading an unsigned love letter dated East Orange, N. J. He grappled with the girl, got his arm around her shoulder and shot her in the back of the head. Then he placed the revolver behind his left ear and fired, the ball lodging in his brain. Jealousy caused the tragedy.

FLAMES

Fire Destroys Half a Million Dollars of Property at Ashland.

Fine Plant of the Shores Lumber Company Was Burned.

Four Human Lives Swept Away in the Vortex of Flame.

Milwaukee, May 9.—A special to the Wisconsin from Ashland, Wis., says: This city experienced a great fire today. Half a million dollars' worth of milling property and lumber went up in flames. The Shores Lumber company mill, the largest on Chequamegon bay is a smouldering ruin, together with several thousand feet of lumber on a dock upon which was piled 19,000,000 feet of lumber. The fire started in W. R. Durfee's lumber dock. The mill was surrounded by water, with wooden tramways leading to the shore.

When the flames burst out in great volume and enveloped the mill and the dock, all the men but four succeeded in reaching the tramways. Among them was John Nelander. The fire is still burning fiercely, but has been checked somewhat. The Keystone Lumber company's lumber and milling property is practically out of danger, although all ferry boats and tugs have been taken away from the regular runs and are pumping water on the stock.

The origin of the fire is still a mystery, but it is presumed that a spark from some employe's pipe started the lumber pile on Durfee's dock. The distance between Durfees' and the Shores Lumber company's docks is only fifteen feet, so the fire jumped across the short stretch of water in fifteen minutes after it had started. The Keystone Lumber company's mill was shut down, and also Durfee's, soon after the fire started, and all the employes of the mills went to Shores' plant to fight the flames. Figured approximately, the loss on milling property and docks will reach $270,000; on lumber, $238,000.

Three bodies of men have already been recovered, and another man is missing.

SIMPSON'S SENTENCE.

Detroit's Criminal Justice Gets Six Years.

Detroit, May 9.—J. Blair Simpson, justice of the peace, was sentenced today to six years in Jackson prison for criminally assaulting Miss Annie Howlett in a restaurant in this city.

A motion for a new trial had just been argued and denied. Simpson has previously escaped conviction under two similar charges.

A JERSEY SCANDAL.

Treasurer Michellon is Short in Accounts.

Camden, N. J., May 9.—As a result of the legislative investigation in this city, Supreme Court Justice Garrison called today a special session of the grand jury. He said the report of the commissioners showed that the late treasurer, Frank F. Michellon, had received large sums of money which cannot be found, and for which there is no record on his books. The justice said the experts working on Mr. Michellon's books found that sums ranging from $40,000 to $200,000 had been paid out by him illegally.

CHISAGO LAKE PARK.

St. Paul, May 9.—W. A. Russell, general passenger agent of the St. Paul & Duluth, returned yesterday from Lindstrom, where he went to make final arrangements for the accessories to the new pleasure park which his company is to establish there. The park is a tract of sixty acres of picturesque ground lying between Chisago City and Lindstrom. It is most advantageously situated, pleasing to the eye and attractive to those who are looking for rest or fishing, and the company will spend about $3000 at once in putting it into shape. The new buildings will include a large pavilion, a dining hall and kitchen, a boathouse and a number of bathhouses, together with a boat landing. In addition there will be swings, platforms and summerhouses scattered about the place, making it perfect in its appointments.

THE LAST OF HOLMES.

Philadelphia, May 9.—The body of H. H. Holmes was yesterday afternoon taken from the vault in Holy Cross cemetery, where it had been under guard since the execution yesterday, and was lowered into a grave ten feet deep. A layer of cement two feet thick was piled upon the coffin and his tomb will be a solid wall of rock. These precautions were the result of Holmes' last wishes. He feared the dissecting table more than he did the grave. The dead murderer was accorded a Christian burial, but the services were brief.

SENATOR WALLACE'S CONDITION.

New York, May 9.—William A. Wallace, formerly United States senator from Pennsylvania, continues unconscious, his general condition is unchanged.

BIG TEXTILE MILL BURNS.

Chester, Pa., May 9.—The textile mills of Samuel Riddles & Sons and George Riddles, in this county, were destroyed by fire today. Loss, $130,000; insurance, $105,000. The departments destroyed were the weave looms and two mull rooms, the card and picker rooms, boiler and dry houses and cloth room. Four hundred hands are thrown out of employment.

NATIONAL BANKS' CONDITION.

Washington, May 9.—Comptroller of the Currency Eckels has made a call on the national banks for a report of their condition at the close of business Thursday, May 7.

LONDON

Scandal Mongers Are Again Attacking the Prince of Wales.

Who Is Said to Be Thick With the Countess of Warwick.

But the Countess is Handsome and Rich---London Social Gossip.

London, May 9.—((Copyrighted 1896, by the Associated Press.)—The prince of Wales and the countess of Warwick have succeeded in once more absorbing the gossip of society for the best part of the week, and many of the venerable dames and blushing belles of the world of aristocracy have not yet ceased chattering or whispering over the doings of the heir apparent and his beautiful friend, sometimes referred to as "Babbling Brook" of the days of the great baccarat scandal when that lady was simply Lady Brooke.

The prince, the mischiefmongers point out, spent Sunday at Warwick castle, where a hastily arranged house party, which included Sir Frederick Sykes, Maj. Gen. Sir Francis Grenfell, "Bill" Low, and others, had been gathered together to meet the prince. The lovely countess took the prince of Wales up the River Avon in an electric launch and in the afternoon the party enjoyed a "tea" on the lawn of the courtyard, where the ladies and gentlemen also played tennis and cycled, and in short, enjoyed themselves greatly. Of course, this in itself was sufficient to start the tongues of the gossips off at full speed, but the rate they went then was nothing to the clatter which followed the announcement on Thursday, that the countess of Warwick had been practically presented to the queen on her accession to the title at the drawingroom held at Buckingham palace.

It is true that Princess Christian, of Schleswig-Holstein, (second daughter of her majesty), presided; but it was "in behalf of Queen Victoria that she did so, and a presentation at which princess upon that occasion was equivalent to being presented to the queen herself." The princess of Wales, who was to have presided at this function was "unavoidably" absent in the south of France, where she is visiting her sister, the empress of Russia, while the latter nurses her son, the long suffering czarewitch, who is said to be in the last stages of consumption.

To add to the triumph of the countess she was presented by no less a person than the marchioness of Salisbury, wife of the premier, and was the center of admiration. Her dress was of the richest white satin, with a stomacher profusely embroidered with diamonds. Over her shoulders were flat bows with long ends of turquoise satin, edged with diamonds; her skirt was richly flaked with diamonds and round the hem of her train was plain blue velvet embroidered with silver and diamonds. Her jewelry consisted of diamonds, turquoises and pearls.

Growing interest is taken in the coming wedding of Princess Maud of Wales, to Prince Charles of Denmark. The royal family will put off their mourning for Prince Henry of Battenburg on the day of the ceremony, and it is expected that the orders of dress will be the same as at the wedding of the duke and duchess of York. The proposal that the wedding shall take place in the private chapel at Buckingham palace, where the duke and duchess of Fife were married has not been kindly received in the quarters most concerned. It will be practically impossible to have a semi-private ceremony, owing to the fact that Prince Charles is the son of a reigning monarch, and is moreover closely allied to the English house.

It is not likely that the young duke and duchess of Marlborough will spend any portion of the summer at Newport. The couple are making extensive arrangements for the entertainment of large house parties at Blenheim at the conclusion of the London season. The duke and duchess of Marlborough will entertain largely in town in addition to giving the looked forward to "week end" parties at Blenheim.

The marquis of Donegal, who is hereditary high admiral of Lough Neigh, and clerk of the peace for Belfast, is in the bankruptcy court. His liabilities are estimated to be £519,000, and his assets thus far are £122,000.

In spite of the many new cycling clubs which have been organized and that Hyde Park is thronged with "cyclists" there are signs that the so-called wheeling craze is on the wane. Several of the leaders of fashion are now always to be seen in the park on horseback.

St. Petersburg society is agitated by the czarina's order forbidding ladies and women servants from smoking in the palace. As they are all habitual smokers the edict has caused a great sensation and is imperilling the czarina's popularity.

London has been at its best during the past week. The weather has been warm and bright, and the parks and streets have been crowded. There are many Americans in town and may more are expected.

Lord Dunham has sold his collieries from which he derived an income of about £70,000 to Sir James Joicey, the wealthy North country coal owner, who for years has been a sort of a gold mine for the Liberal party, in whose interests he represents the Chester Lee street division of Durham in the house of commons.

On the other hand a receiving order has been issued against Earl Poulett, father of the notorious Viscount Hinton, who for years acted to shame his family into supporting him in idleness by playing a hand organ in the streets. When last reported in the newspapers, about a year ago, the viscount was acting as showman for a kinetoscope near Leather Lane, Holborne. He said that organ grinding had permanently crippled his right arm, and that he greatly preferred the occupation of showman. The family estate of Hinton, St. George Park, covering about 1000 acres of ground, and many treasures, including a £10,000 Vandyke, are offered for sale at £600,000. It is believed proceedings are taken in order to prevent the organ-grinder viscount from inheriting the heirlooms.

Yvette Guilbert is proving a great attraction at the Empire theater. Regarding her recent trip to the United States, she is quoted as saying that New Yorkers have no individuality, and that they are too busy minded for money getting. She rated Chicago, especially its citizens, and said that Philadelphia did not impress her at all.

THE VERMILION RANGE.

A Strike on the Tower Logging Railroad.

Tower, Minn., May 9.—(Special to The Herald.)—A number of men employed by the Tower Logging railroad in the woods here, struck this week for better pay. Their demands were refused and men from Duluth were secured to take their places.

Two serious accidents occurred at the Minnesota mine the past week, one of them proving fatal. A Finlander named Matt Johnson was killed by a cave-in of rock, and John Rumerich had his skull fractured and one leg broken by a fall of ore from overhead the place he was working.

The state university mining students arrived here Saturday for a two weeks' study of the workings of the Minnesota mine, that being the oldest and best equipped in the state. Professor Denton, who was formerly mining engineer of the Minnesota, will personally superintend the task of acquainting the young men with the underground workings, and before returning to Minneapolis the party will visit the mines at Ely and Eveleth.

State Game Warden Sam Fullerton completed this week the work of gathering pike spawn at Pike River Falls, on Vermillion lake, and if none of it spoils in being hatched, the state will be the gainer by 100,000,000 pike. Some of our citizens complain that Mr. Fullerton refused to pay them in full for bills incurred. Deputy Phillip arrested Louis Peterson and Peter Hakkonen for fishing with nets, and at their trial before Judge Owens they were committed to the county jail for thirty days in lieu of $25 fine.

The Tower Baseball club has let a contract to Matt Wilson to enclose the ball grounds and erect a grand stand, and the first game of the season will be played here on May 17 with the Ely team.

At the third medal shoot of the Vermillion Gun club, the medals in the A, B and C classes were won by Congdon, Oppel and Swanson, respectively, the scores being 20,; 18 and 17 out of a possible 25. The members have not yet reached their good form of last season.

MOTHERLY INTUITION.

Judge: Mrs. Gashus (to Mrs. Slambang, whose daughter has been recently married)—How are Amantha and her husband getting along in New York?

Mrs. Slambang—Wretchedly, I fear; poorly, I am certain. She writes that she is perfectly happy—but it just like my poor darling to try and shield the wretch that way. But, no! she can not deceive her own mother—no, no—far from it. I leave for New York tomorrow to see things righted or know the reason why.

French Political and Social Circles Have a New Gossipy Bit.

Duke of Orleans Will Ostracize Prince Henry of Orleans.

And Several French Royalty Skeletons Will Be Trotted Out.

Paris, May 9.—The Matin says that a rupture of amicable relations between the duke of Orleans and his cousin, Prince Henry of Orleans, is imminent, and that the duke will publish a manifesto cutting off Prince Henry from the Orleans family and depriving him of the privileges of a prince of the blood. Although the cause of the trouble is not stated, it has been an open secret for some time past that the Orleans family was displeased at the growing popularity in France of Prince Henry of Orleans, the elder son of the duke of Chartres, and a cousin of the duke of Orleans, the pretender to the French throne.

Prince Henry recently returned from an exploring trip in China and Thibet. The discovery of the sources of the Mekong river by the prince and his companions brought the young traveler prominently before the public. On March 9 last Prince Henry was decorated with the cross of the legion of honor, in accepting which he made a speech acknowledging the existence of the republic. He was also presented with the gold medal of the French Geographical society, and his utterances upon that occasion were much commented upon and gave rise to a rumor that he migh; be a possible candidate for the presidency of the French republic.

Later, in a speech made at a dinner given in his honor by Count Albert De Dion, who was one of the late Gen. Boulanger's warmest supporters, Prince Henry of Orleans said: "I have endeavored to remember two counsels given by my grandfather in his admirable will—Be passionate servants of the republic and manage to get yourself in for being princes.' I think I have obtained that pardon. In bestowing on me the cross which my father received from Gambetta, the government of the republic has given me, if not complete absolution—for we are still deprived of the rights of citizens—at least a partial one. You have kindly honored the representation to me of this decoration, which I highly value. In receiving me you have said to yourselves that there was one Frenchman more among you, and you have clasped the hand of a fellow-countryman who has done his best to deserve well of the fatherland."

Prince Henry's father earned considerable popularity by serving in the French army under Gen. Chanzy, in 1870, against the Prussians, assuming the name of Robert Le Fort, in order to evade the law of banishment. He was decorated with the cross of the legion of honor under that name by Gambetta. The prince is about 33 years of age and is a formidable factor in French politics at present. If the duke of Orleans should die without issue, the duke of Chartres, father of Prince Henry of Orleans, would become heir to the throne.

Besides the duke of Orleans, who visited the United States with his father, the late count of Paris, is an unpopular, heavy witted young man, whose ridiculous proclamation and still more stupid utterances have earned the contempt of some of the most ardent royalists. He has been responsible in a suit for divorce brought against him by an Australian of little note, but whose wife is a singer of considerable prominence. The duke is said to have followed the singer about, disguised as a valet. This, with his burlesque of trying to make himself out a martyr, by seeking imprisonment sooner than forego his right to serve in the French army, have made the duke of Orleans an object of ridicule.

The duke's bluff at soldiering occurred on Feb. 7, 1890. He had attained his majority four days previously, presented himself at a recruiting office and asked to be enlisted in the French army. The matter was referred to the minister of war, who ordered the duke to be arrested, under the law of 1886, which prohibited the entry into France of pretenders to the throne. Later the duke was sentenced to two years' imprisonment, but was pardoned when he had been laughed at from one end of France to the other. About a year ago the duke of Orleans is said to have engaged in a fight at a fair at Seville, Spain, about a woman, and was nearly killed by a stab wound. Another version of the affair had it that he fell from his horse.

Under these circumstances it is more than probable that if the duke of Orleans really publishes a manifesto cutting off Prince Henry from the Orleans family, and depriving him of the privileges of a prince of the blood, he will boom his cousin up to such a degree of popularity that, instead of in any way harming him, Prince Henry will be a prominent candidate for the presidency of the republic, in succession to M. Faure, especially as the Bonapartists, at the suggestion of Prince Reliparti, and Bonaparte, the friend and admirer of Prince Henry of Orleans, are understood to be willing to agree to support the latter's candidacy.

THE DAKOTAS.

NORTH DAKOTA.

Judge Templeton's decision in the case of the state ex rel J. Goldsberg vs. M. J. O'Connor, as sheriff, is of general importance to North Dakota. It is a test case of the constitutionality of the so-called peddlers' license law. Mr. Goldsberg was convicted at Grand Forks for peddling goods without a license and subjected to a fine of $5. The decision of Judge Templeton is that the law is unconstitutional, on the grounds of discrimination and class legislation. The law provides that everybody shall pay a license for peddling except old soldiers and the deaf, dumb and blind.

The annual report of the chief of the fire department of Grand Forks includes these items: Total number of box alarms during the year, 38; still alarms, 12; total value of property exposed, $125,000; total loss by fire, $5000; expense of the department for the year, $5589.74; amount paid to call men, $590. Among the equipment is the engine house and lot, 4 horses, 2,000 feet of serviceable hose; 1800 feet in fair condition; 500 feet for sewer mains; one hose wagon on wheels, capacity, 1550 feet of hose; 1 hose reel, capacity, 1100 feet; 1 hose box on runners, capacity, 1550 feet; 2 hand hose carts, 1 aerial hook and ladder truck complete, 1 truck on runners, 13 fire alarm boxes, 4 gongs, 2 indicators.

There has been much excitement at Minot over the report brought in by Deputy Sheriff Allison, of Glasgow, Mont., of his experiences with a couple of desperadoes about sixty miles southwest of the Knife River country. The bandits are the same men who rode into Glasgow last fall armed to the teeth and in broad day liberated from jail two of their number imprisoned for murder and horse stealing. Allison undertook to locate them single-handed. He overtook them yesterday. They had pitched a small tent and were lounging about carelessly when the deputy rode up and covered them with a Winchester, demanding of them to hold up their hands. They immediately made a break for their rifles and a combat began. Allison wounded one with his first shot, the firing being incessant, until a bullet from the gun of one of the outlaws shattered the magazine of his rifle, rendering him helpless. He then took to his horse and was given a chase by the unwounded cutthroats for thirty miles. Had it not been for the superiority of his horse, the deputy would immediately have been killed. A posse has started to bring the outlaws in, dead or alive.

A committee appointed to raise a bonus of $2000 to secure a flouring mill at Abercrombie has secured practically the whole amount. Several communications have been received from different parties who are anxious to put up a 200-barrel mill. John Quorm and Sime Healey will each erect an elevator this season. These are a few of the improvements planned for this year.

SOUTH DAKOTA.

A severe storm of a cyclonic nature passed over Clark Thursday night. The house of G. H. Lindland, twelve miles southwest was taken up by the wind and carried a distance of fifty feet and totally destroyed. There were ten persons in the house, and Mrs. Lindland is reported killed, while other members of the family are more or less injured. Lightning struck five places here and upwards of two inches of rain fell in three hours.

Deputy Marshals Tscheller and Lewis, and ex-Sheriff James Morgan, now an employe at Lower Brule agency, arrived at Chamberlain, having in custody Handsome Elk, the Sioux, who three weeks ago shot two Indian policemen and has since been at large. He had been closely pressed by the deputy marshals and Indian policemen since last Saturday. Handsome Elk, the Sioux who three weeks ago yesterday. His action was a surprise as it was believed he would never surrender. The systematic manner in which the deputy marshals and Indian police patrolled the reservation had much to do with compelling the surrender of the fugitive. He will be taken before United States Commissioner Stuart tomorrow.

Capt. Gerlach, of Fort Snelling, member of the Third United States Infantry, was at Huron Thursday, returning from the Cheyenne Indian agency, where he makes monthly visits to superintend the issuing of rations to the 2000 Indians there. On his last trip Capt. Gerlach issued 100,000 pounds of beef, and this is about the average monthly issue of fresh meat "doled out" to Indians at the Cheyenne agency. The captain spoke very highly of Maj. Couchman and his management of affairs at the agency, and expressed regret because of the removal of Dr. McChesney to the Rosebud agency.

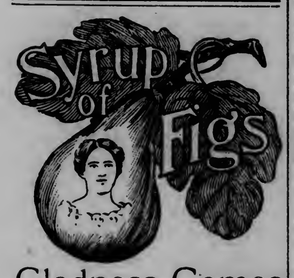
Syrup of Figs



Gladness Comes

With a better understanding of the transient nature of the many physical ills, which vanish before proper efforts—gentle efforts—pleasant efforts—rightly directed. There is comfort in the knowledge, that so many forms of sickness are not due to any actual disease, but simply to a constipated condition of the system, which the pleasant family laxative, Syrup of Figs, promptly removes. That is why it is the only remedy with millions of families, and is everywhere esteemed so highly by all who value good health. Its beneficial effects are due to the fact, that it is the one remedy which promotes internal cleanliness without debilitating the organs on which it acts. It is therefore all important, in order to get its beneficial effects, to note when you purchase, that you have the genuine article, which is manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co. only and sold by all reputable druggists.

If in the enjoyment of good health, and the system is regular, laxatives or other remedies are then not needed. If afflicted with any actual disease, one may be commended to the most skillful physicians, but if in need of a laxative, one should have the best, and with the well-informed everywhere, Syrup of Figs stands highest and is most largely used and gives most general satisfaction.

CHURCHES

Special Musical Service at the First Presbyterian Church Tomorrow.

"Favorite Anthem" Service at the Pilgrim Church in the Evening.

Rev. Herman M. Cook, of Fargo, at the First Baptist Church.

On Sunday evening there will be a special musical service at the First Presbyterian church in honor of Frank M. Stephenson, the basso of the choir. It will be his last appearance in that capacity, as he will leave in a few days for the East. Mr. Stephenson has sung in the choir for nearly a year, and his departure will be sincerely regretted. The program will include some very choice anthems, in which Mr. Stephenson will sing solo parts and also a solo number for him. It is as follows:

"Hark, Hark, My Soul".....Shelley
"King of Love My Shepherd Is"...Shelley
"Softly Now the Light of Day"...Schilling
"Soon May We Join the Lay".....Allen
Solo—"Rock of Ages".....Shepherd
Mr. Stephenson.

At the morning service also Mr. Stephenson will sing a solo number. The program for the morning is as follows:

"Sing Alleluia Forth".....Buck
"The Sands of Time Are Sinking"...
.....Allen
Offertory solo—"The Better Land"...
.....Cowen
Mr. Stephenson.

The choir is composed of Miss Mary Caldwell, soprano; Miss Fannie Calverly, alto; F. W. Maynard, tenor, and F. M. Stephenson, basso. Mrs. C. H. Clague will be organist on Sunday. Rev. T. H. Cleland will preach at 10:30 a. m. and 8 p. m. Sunday school at 12 m.

The services at the Pilgrim church will be of an unusually interesting nature. It is the anniversary of the coming of A. G. Drake as musical director and of the establishment of Pilgrim choir. The choir will commemorate this event by giving in the evening a "Favorite Anthem" service, at which they will sing a number of the most popular anthems rendered during the year. There will be five numbers in all by the choir. In addition to the anniversary features, great interest is being taken over the introduction of new hymnals. The church, after using the manual of praise for many years, has adopted the Plymouth Hymnal, which is the most beautiful hymn book published and by many considered the richest in its contents. Being the last book published, it in many respects indicates the high-water mark in the development of hymnody. The evening service will be a popular introduction of the book to the public, although it will be used also at the morning service. In the morning Rev. C. H. Patton will preach to the children on "How Peter Helped Satan," after which will come the regular sermon on "The Divine Method of Reforming the World." This will be the last Sunday before Rev. Mr. Patton starts East on his vacation.

Rev. Herman M. Cook, of Fargo, will preach at 10:30 a. m. and 8 p. m. at the First Baptist church, 1026 East Second street. Sunday school at 12 m.

AN OLD LOAF.

Chicago Chronicle: The Soar family of Ambaston, Derbyshire, England, have a curious heirloom in the shape of a loaf of bread that is now over 600 years old. The founders of the family, it appears, were great friends of King John. When that monarch died he made several land grants to the Soars. One of these tracts, it appears, had always been conveyed with a loaf of bread along with the "writings," and the deed and the loaf are both kept to this day as sacred relics.

TRADE CONDITIONS.

Dun Says Finances Are in Good Shape.

New York, May 9.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s weekly review of trade, which issued today, says: That exports of $5,850,000 gold this week have produced no monetary disturbance is at once proof of the soundness of financial conditions and of the prevailing confidence in better things to come. Much of the hesitation at present is due to temporarily reduced demand in some industries, and in iron and steel the power of the new combinations is being generally tested by refusal of orders, so that production exceeds consumption, but consumption exceeds new buying. The general irregularity of prices and slackness of demand for finished products do not prevent the marking up of prices by combinations, but are largely due to doubt whether such prices as are fixed can be maintained. Pig iron is weak and most finished products are weaker, with remarkably narrow demand. Minor metals are inactive, with copper weak, tin steady and lead slightly lower, and American tin plates 30 cents below foreign.

For textile manufactures the situation is trying. Cotton mills have a fairly active demand, though not equal to their normal output, and for many months have been accumulating goods, hoping for better things, so that some are now stopping, although the demand for some grades, with higher prices for cotton, has helped to a small advance in prices. Print cloths are ⅛ higher, but some other grades have declined, so that the average of all quotations is slightly lower. Woolen manufacturers find prices of wool both here and abroad lower than usual, while the average of quotations by Coates Bros., Philadelphia, was nearly 1 per cent lower May 1, and prices have been further reduced by concessions to clear off stocks.

At the West traders are buying much above the parity of seaboard prices, and many growers are refusing to sell, believing that the upward spurt of last year will be repeated. Sales for the week have been less than half a week's full consumption, and for five weeks 15,146,700 pounds against 29,409,000 last year. Men's woolens show no improvement, but there is more active business in flannels and the demand for fancy dress goods is encouraging, though for plain goods it is but moderate.

Traders in wheat have lifted prices a little, and yet nobody questions the correctness of Western reports indicating more than an ordinary yield of winter wheat and unusual progress in the planting of spring. With the narrow stock usual at this season, a speculation for advance always has many opportunities, but Western receipts are 40 per cent larger than last year, while Atlantic exports flour included, are for the week 932,667 bushels, against 1,615,051 a year ago. After a fall to 59½c the price rose about 2c. Corn is also a shade lower, but without definite reason. Cotton speculators have lifted the price to $8.31, and profits have been realized from the men who have sold cotton they did not own, but it is still the fact that the outlook for next fall's crop is unusually favorable, while stocks here and abroad exceed all possible demands until Sept. 1.

Failures for the week have been 238 in the United States, against 277 last year, and 24 in Canada, against 34 last year.

WHAT BRADSTREET SAYS.

New York, May 9.—Bradstreet's today says: Relatively unfavorable features of the general business situation this week include unseasonably cool weather, which at some centers has checked trade; continued surplus stocks of cotton, which depress prices and bring idle machinery in the woolen goods industry; a falling off in demand for lumber at St. Louis and Minneapolis and continued dullness in iron and steel where, although mills and furnaces are fairly active, there is a continued absence of new orders. Chicago jobbers report the week's business in light, seasonable fabrics as only fairly satisfactory; transactions in clothing smaller than in the like period a year ago, and the leather market weaker owing to lack of demand, but light hardware relatively active.

The favorable side of the picture includes a marked increase in the total volume of bank clearings, a long list of staples, for which quotations have advanced, almost uniform and unexpectedly improved prospects for cereal and cotton crops, and a reflection of the more confident feeling as to the autumn's business in an improved demand throughout the territory supplied by St. Louis, Kansas City, Omaha, St. Paul, Minneapolis, Milwaukee, Duluth and Sioux Falls. Exports of wheat (flour included as wheat) from both coasts of the United States this week amount to 1,882,000 bushels, compared with 1,260,000 bushels last week, 2,805,000 bushels in the first week of May, 1895; 2,815,000 bushels in the corresponding week of 1894, and 2,712,000 bushels in the like week of 1893.

There were 267 business failures reported throughout the United States this week, as compared with 254 last week, 224 in the week one year ago, 189 in the first week of May, 1894, and as compared with 219 in the corresponding week of 1893. There were 38 business failures reported against 26 last week in Canada, 27 in the week one year ago and 30 two years ago.

HE WAS A HUSTLER.

"Yes," said the Portland drummer to a Lewiston Journal reporter, "when you want to get to the fountain head of hustle you've got to come up to Maine. And I don't know of a better one to define it to you than one of our sewing machine agents who went up to Dover a couple of months ago. He tackled a house in which there lived an old bachelor, who, of course, did not have and did not want a machine. The agent stuck it out, and the bachelor was obdurate, although he yielded so much after an hour's campaigning as to say as positively as before that he wouldn't buy a machine unless a woman was provided to run it. That was a cheese for the agent, and he hunted around for three or four weeks in the course of business, until he found an elderly but excellent maiden lady, who had been waiting for some good man to speak out to her. The agent went to work and actually succeeded in getting her married to the bachelor. And the point of it is that he sold his machine, though it would have sounded a bit better if he'd given it to the bride as a present."

EASTERN DANGER.

A Western Tenderfoot in the East.

"So you were a pioneer in the early days of the West?"

"I was," answered the graybeard.

"And you lived out among the hostile Indians?"

"Yes."

"Lived with a rifle in your hand, and in hourly expectation of being the mark for a hidden enemy's bullet?"

"It was something like that."

"Do you know, I often think that a life like that must be terrible. I should think the mere strain on the nerves would kill a man in a short time—holding your life in your hand all the time, always conscious that a moment's relaxation of vigilance may mean death."

"Oh, I don't know," replied the graybeard, "When I came back from the West I was 60 years old and did not have a gray hair. I got off the railroad train and started to go across the street. Half way over I heard the dingdes clanging and yelling right on my heels I ever heard, and somebody gave me a push that sent me clear to the curb. Then when I looked round I saw I'd come within an ace of being run over by a trolley. Never had so narrow an escape from Indians.

"I went into a saloon close by to get a drink and settle my nerves. While I was standing at the bar a couple of fellows got into a scrap and one of them threw a heavy beer mug. Didn't hit the other fellow, but it came within a sixteenth of an inch of my right temple.

"I started to walk up town, and the first crossing I came to a policeman grabbed me by the shoulder and jerked me across so quick it made my head swim. I looked to see what was the matter, for there were no car tracks on that street, and I saw that I had just escaped being run down by a hackman who was hurrying to catch a train.

"Up street a little farther somebody yelled 'Look out!' at me, and when I jumped a big icicle fell off a roof and struck just where I had been standing.

"I got to my hotel and was heading for the door when somebody grabbed me and asked me if I wanted to be killed. They were hoisting a safe into a second-story window over where I'd been trying to go, and I hadn't more than got out of the way before a rope broke and it dropped.

"I went to bed, and about midnight I was called up by a bell ringing over my head, and found the place was on fire, and I had to slide down a rope to escape. Being a sound sleeper, they had hard work to wake me, and I had barely touched the ground when the roof fell in.

"When I looked at the glass next day I saw the first streaks of gray that had ever showed themselves in my hair. Oh, there's dangers in civilized life as well as out on the plains!"

WEST END

J. W. Peterson's Handsome Summer Resort Was Opened Yesterday.

Large Number of Guests Were Present at the Ceremonies.

The New Resort Was Christened "Zenith Park"--- Other News.

J. W. Peterson, the proprietor of the fine new summer resort on Clough island, royally entertained about 200 of his friends at his island home yesterday afternoon. The party met at the foot of Sixty-first avenue at 2 o'clock, where they found the steamer Mary Mann and barge in waiting to transport them across the bay. The Swedish Glee club accompanied the guests and entertained them with musical selections at frequent intervals during the trip.

Mr. Peterson has chosen a delightful spot for summer outing, and the natural beauty of the place has been supplemented by the erection of fine buildings and other accessories necessary to the complete enjoyment of visitors. The island contains 650 acres, and of this tract Mr. Peterson has secured possession of 333 acres. The surface is in the nature of a plateau or rolling prairie cut up with small ravines, which have been spanned by rustic bridges. A suitable amoun: of land has been cleared for baseball grounds, parks, etc. The buildings include a grand stand, a fine dancing pavilion 40 by 80 feet, a commodious structure for bar and waiting rooms, an ice house and a cottage, the home of Mr. and Mrs. Peterson.

The new resort was yesterday christened "Zenith Park," and while the stars and stripes were being raised Capt. Randall made a short speech appropriate to the occasion. The party was generously treated with cigars and liquid refreshments, and before their departure they were taken to the dancing pavilion, where Mrs. Peterson and the other ladies had prepared a fine lunch to crown the entertainment. The party left the island about 6:30 with three cheers for Mr. and Mrs. Peterson, who had contributed so much to the enjoyment of their guests. On May 17 Mr. Peterson will give his grand opening. The best of music will be provided and all arrangements made for a general good time.

Centuries ago, people used to fear what they called the pestilence. "Black Death" was the most terrible thing in the world to them. They feared it as people now fear the Cholera and Yellow Fever. And yet there is a thing that causes more misery and more deaths than any of these. It is so common that nine-tenths of all the sickness in the world is traceable to it. It is merely that simple, common thing—constipation. It makes people listless, causes dizziness, headaches, loss of appetite, loss of sleep, foul breath and distress after eating. The little help needed is furnished by Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets. One pill is a gentle laxative and two a mild cathartic. Once used, always in favor. If you are careless enough to let an unscrupulous druggist sell you something on which he makes more money, it is your own fault if you do not get well. Be sure and get Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets.

TOO MUCH "GROWLER."

West End Woman on a Big "Tear" Yesterday.

The wife of a well known West End man started out to have a good time yesterday. She had a time, but a part of it was no: as pleasant as it might have been. The warm weather suggested thoughts of beer and she began the day by supping foaming beakers of beer, to procure which she enlisted the services of some accommodating friends, who carried the "growler." The "growler" traveled often and as the effects of her unaccustomed potation began to make itself felt, she became more reckless, she resolved to roam abroad and do the town.

Sending to Downie's livery stable for a rig, which was furnished her, she started off, taking her baby, which is less than a year old with her. As her course sped along, the beer and the motion exhilarating her, the spirit of Jehu took possession and she laid on the whip like the rear contestant in a chariot race. Pedestrians stood in the curb, gaping with amazement as he careened by, and as the buggy disappeared on two wheels around a neighboring corner, stirred by a common impulse all hands followed expecting to find a wreck, only to see a cloud of dust, suggesting the passage of a cyclone. The lady had a penchant for turning corners, careening like a ship in a gale. The providence that protects people in such a condition was with her, however, and although it was kept pretty busy, the fair driver was brought safely through.

The poor horse was in a lather of foam when the woman lashed it down Michigan street, and at the corner of that thoroughfare and Sixth avenue west an officer stopped her nice ride and took her to the central station, where she was kept in the woman's department until late in the afternoon, when she had become pretty well sobered and was allowed to go.

Mr. Downie has made complaint to the Humane society and a prosecution may follow.

Chinch Bug Stories From Illinois, Kansas, Oklahoma and the Southwest.

Reports of Needed Rain in Kansas Restrained the Bullish Tendency.

The Visible Expected to Decrease Two and a Half Millions Monday.

Chinch bug stories from Southern Illinois, Kansas, Oklahoma and the Southwest together with bullish news from the Dakotas and Ohio, had a buoyant effect on the wheat market today. July started at 63⅝c, or ¼c over yesterday's close, on the strength of these reports. It soon went to 63¾c and then to 64c, and in the rush it touched 64¼c. That was the culmination of the advance and a reaction soon took place. The bullish feeling shown by the above was evidently through the digesting over night of yesterday's revelations concerning the damage to the previously very promising wheat crop. The conditions of the weather were improved for Kansas this morning, the signal service reporting .72 inches of rain at Dodge City, and also at Wichita and predicting further showers before Monday. As the need of rain was urgent and the damage already done there not thought to be irremediable, those exected showers calmed the tone of the buyers and created rather a heavy feeling toward the end, July going down to 63⅝c.

Argentine shipments for the week were 822,000 bus, against 1,560,000 bus on the corresponding week a year ago. Minneapolis and Duluth received 351 cars against 301 a week ago and 174 on the year before. The total number of cars received at these two places this week was 2216 against 2534 on the previous week, and 1596 on the corresponding week a year ago. Minneapolis stocks of wheat are expected to show a decrease for the week of 800,000 bus, and Duluth stocks a decrease of 2,200,000 bus. Chicago is looked for to show 500,000 bus reduction. St. Louis a falling off of 350,000 bus and the general expectation is for 2,500,000 bus reduction in the total visible. The Ohio state report makes a May 1 condition 55 against 57 a month ago. Michigan makes the condition of wheat in that state 92. The day's exports from the Atlantic seaboard were only 90,000 bus of wheat and flour altogether.

The mills bought 30,000 bus to arrive at ¼c under July, and shippers took 50,000 bus all under July. The close was ⅛@¼c higher than yesterday for No. 1 northern wheat and ¼c higher for No. 1 hard. Following were the closing prices:

Rejected, 55¼@59½c. Rye, 35¼c. No. 2 oats, $1.93; No. 3 oats, 18¼c. Flax, 86c. To arrive—No. 1 hard, 64¼c; No. 1 northern, 63c.

GOSSIP.

Received over private wire of B. E. Baker, grain and stock broker, room 107 Chamber of Commerce and 307 Board of Trade.

Chicago, May 9.—Too many speculators were all fixed for a break this morning in wheat but, though nearly all the news at first favored lower prices, there were so many buying orders from outsiders at the opening that the market opened strong and advanced ic very easily. The outside prices were not maintained, but the close is ½c higher than yesterday. The main factor in the day's strength was the renewed reports of insects in the Southwest and central sections, different localities sending various complaints of not only chinch bugs, but Hessian flies and army worms. We look for a higher wheat market Monday.

Corn and oats freely bought by local shorts and with better general trade than for some time past.

Provisions weak and lower. Packers continue heavy sellers, and long lard comes on the market very freely.

Puts, July wheat, 63¼@¼c.
Calls, July wheat, 64¾c.

NEW YORK STOCKS.

Some Slight Improvement Visible This Morning.

New York, May 9.—The stock market opened dull but firm, with most stocks showing a slight improvement over yesterday's final sales. Manhattan gained an exceptional ¾c. Higher prices for the International shares followed improvements in the London quotations. Tobacco was shaded slightly. Lower prices were in order after 10:15. The recessions, however, were trivial up to 11 o'clock, and the offerings also meager. The demand from the shorts to cover contracts over Sunday tended to check decided effect on values through realizing sales.

The industrials absorbed most of the trading in the final hour. Laclede Gas advanced 1¼ and an early recession of a point in Bay State Gas was fully recovered. General Electric, Tobacco and Sugar gained important fractions. The railway list was without special feature, but improved sympathetically. The closing was firm at slight net gains generally. The aggregate sales were 52,660 shares.

WANTED BUTTERMILK.

Weary Waiter Enlightened on Joys of the Farm.

Chicago Times-Herald: "How's the buttermilk?" asked the tired man, and the weary waiter looed the enul he felt as he answered:

"Churned fresh every hour."

"Well, now, give me a glass from the last hour, and let her be full," said the tired man. Then he unfolded the midnight edition, smiling as if memories haunted him, and never seeing a line of all the black type which tried to startle satiated humanity. He was thinking of buttermilk fresh from the churn, and the big, staring headlines were as blank paper before him. The weary waiter disturbed his reveries.

"Buttermilk's all out, sir."

He said the "sir" as one who follows a vacant form, and meant nothing by it.

"I'm sorry," said the tired man, taking coffee and sandwich—of course—and still conjuring up pictures of the country.

"Great thing when you're tired," said he, smiling and looking past the weary waiter and the coffee urn, and the blank wall beyond. "La; I can hear the soft chug of the churn dasher yet when the butter is coming. Gets lighter then, and splashes inside and yellow drifts wash down from the hollows in the lid, and you hit twice half way and once clear down, and—butter's come."

The weary waiter smiled without releasing his stare at the street, silent in midnight darkness.

"And then they put the buttermilk down in the springhouse in a great, big jar, and the water swishes around it, and there's a board on top, with a stone to keep it down. And Sunday morning you curry the horses and turn them out on the clover pasture, and dive off the bank in the river and take a wash, and you put on a clean hickory shirt and Sunday clothes, and lay down in the shade of the apple tree in the long, soft grass, and catch the wind from the woods and the music of the cowbells far away—and then you think of the buttermilk."

"That's right," said the weary waiter, as he rearranged the sugar bowl and the spoonholder.

"And you go down and dip it up with a big tin cup and drink it in great, big swallows and the other boys come in, and we all sit there and drink and talk of the tough times we are having, and chatter about the girls, and josh each other about going home with them from meeting, and after awhile dinner is ready, and we go in and eat fried chicken and mashed potatoes, and biscuits and custard pie——"

"U-m-m," said the weary waiter, fervently.

"And then again along in the afternoon," resumed the tired man, "we get out there when the sun is down, and have another cupful and the whippoorwill is booming from some place up in the clouds and the katydid tells of the frost six weeks ahead, and the cattle are standing along the barnyard fence, with the smell of fresh milk in the mellow air, and the tin cup has yellow flecks all over the sides, and we fill it again and drink——"

"Or in the harvest field," said the weary waiter.

"Yes, when the woman folks send it out in a jug, with a slab of ginger bread in the long forenoon, and we take great swallows——"

"And sweat——"

"And sweat and buckle down with the cradle and the rake, and set up a shock to shade the buttermilk——"

"And a rain comes up ,and we run for the barn." The weary waiter stood erect, and smiled delightedly.

"Ah, yes! Ah, yes! That was life, after all."

The tired man took his check to the desk and waited outside for the owl car to come along, but all the time he was thinking of that mellow nectar, which mingles the acids and sweets of rural ecstacy, and all the tired insistence of his journey home could not impress the city's hopelessness upon him.

SHOULD BE FOR LEE.

A well-posted Republican of the Sixth district is quoted in the Minneapolis Journal regarding the gubernatorial campaign in the counties of this district. Naturally he gives the great majority of the counties to Mr. Lee. Concerning this county he said:

"St. Louis county is claimed by both the friends of Lee and the friends of Clough, but the logical situation would give the county to Lee. Duluth and St. Louis county are very much interested in having the congressman from that district located at Duluth. The people there are interested in deep waterways, in the Duluth harbor and in the iron industries and other matters requiring national legislation. It would be illogical for St. Louis county to oppose the only candidate for governor from the Sixth congressional district if it expects the balance of the district to support its candidate for congress. Lee has many warm personal friends in St. Louis county, and this, with the congressional situation, would naturally give him the delegation. Clough, however, will make a fight in this county, depending on the appointees and officeholders for his support."

The situation, so far as this county is concerned, is well stated in the above paragraph. St. Louis county Republicans should support Mr. Lee, because he is the candidate of the western end of the district, which must be looked to for the necessary support to ensure the renomination of Mr. Towne for congress. Every Republican in this county who supports Mr. Clough as against Mr. Lee is working against the interests of Mr. Towne. Since Judge Searle's defeat, mainly by the reversal of St. Louis county's normal Republican plurality, the Republicans in the western end of the district have asked nothing. They felt sorely the defeat of Judge Searle, but they cheerfully gave their support to Mr. Towne, aided in nominating him unanimously at Brainerd two years ago and rolled up an immense majority for him. They have been willing to let bygones be bygones and cultivate friendly relations with the St. Louis county Republicans. They are now prepared to renominate Mr. Towne by acclamation, despite the fact that many of them do not agree with his views on the money question and regard them as rank heresy. All they ask in return is that St. Louis county shall reciprocate by supporting Mr. Lee for governor. It is a reasonable request. In return for supporting Duluth's candidate for congress, they ask Duluth's support for their candidate for governor. This request should meet with a favorable response from every friend of Mr. Towne in this county. The people in the western end of the district do not make any threats against Mr. Towne, if the vote of this county in the state convention should be cast against Mr. Lee, but they would undoubtedly feel sore and the more hotheaded among them might make serious trouble in the congressional convention at St. Cloud. It is the part of political wisdom for Duluth to work harmoniously with the rest of the district, whenever possible, and this is an occasion where it can be done with good grace.

Mr. Lee will compare favorably in point of ability with any candidate now in the field for governor. The fact that he is the anti-machine candidate, the only aspirant for the nomination who is pronouncedly anti-Merriam should also commend his candidacy to the Republicans of St. Louis county. Mr. Merriam is taking an active interest in behalf of Mr. Clough, because he wants to maintain his grip on the political machinery of the state, the better to carry out his plan to succeed Cushman K. Davis in the United States senate. The defeat of Mr. Clough would be a serious blow to Bill Merriam's aspirations in this direction, and St. Louis Republicans can do their party a great service by uniting in support of Mr. Lee and downing the Merriam-Clough-Bixby machine.

POSTAL SAVINGS BANKS.

The Herald has on several occasions strongly urged the establishment of postal savings banks in the United States, and has explained the benefits which the people would derive from such institutions. It is pleased, therefore, to learn that the Republican platform to be formulated at St. Louis next month may contain a plank pledging the party to establish the postal savings bank. This plan is advocated by a writer in the Philadelphia Press, who presents cogent arguments in behalf of such a system and cites its successful operation in other countries. "It is a mystery," says this writer, "that the United States, claiming to be the most progressive of nations, stands almost alone among civilized countries in refusing to its people the great blessing of a place for savings, accessible and secure." He says he cannot conceive of anything which would more promote the interests of the great body of the people than the postal savings bank.

The suggestion receives the endorsement of the Omaha Bee, which commends the opinion expressed by the writer in the Philadelphia paper. "Everyone," says the Bee, "must reach this view who will give the subject intelligent and unprejudiced consideration. In the first place, the necessary tendency of such a system is to encourage saving, which is helpful to the individual, to the family, and to the state. This has been the experience in all countries where postal savings banks have been established. It has been found that many more people saved money after this system was instituted than before. The British statistics are conclusive as to this, as are those also of Holland and some other countries. In the second place, a great many people who do not have confidence in the ordinary banks would avail themselves of postal savings banks, knowing that in depositing their money with the government it would be absolutely secure, and thus a considerable amount of money that is kept in hiding would become available, to the benefit of the owners and the government. Postoffices being everywhere, tens of thousands of people would be provided with a secure place for their savings to whom the ordinary banks are inaccessible."

The Bee might also have pointed to the success of the postal savings bank system in Canada. The government savings bank, as it is generally called in the Dominion, is the place of deposit for all the savings of the people up to a certain amount, because the rules of the government of these banks limits the total amount which may be deposited therein by one person. The idea is to prevent capitalists from using the government bank as a safe place of deposit and drawing interest on it. The government's idea is to make them savings banks in every sense of the word, providing an absolutely safe place of deposit where the poorer classes can place their earnings and, on complying with certain conditions, draw interest thereon. Apart from the beneficial results of these institutions in inculcating a spirit of thrift and saving on the part of the people, the system would also insure to the government the possession at all times of many millions of the people's money, so that loans would be unnecessary.

It is to be hoped that the postal savings bank will figure prominently in the Republican national platform, and it should also be incorporated in the Democratic platform. It is now one of the planks in the Populist platform. With all the great parties committed to the idea it would not take a long time to secure the legislation necessary to put it into effect.

ELECTRICAL TRANSMISSION.

The successful opening of the national electrical exposition in New York last Monday evening marked an important step forward in the application of the forces of electricity, because it demonstrated the feasibility of conveying electrical power long distances. From this particular point of view, the opening of the exposition in New York had an important bearing upon the future of Duluth. If, as was done last Tuesday evening and is now being done daily, machinery can be operated in New York by the power of Niagara Falls, conveyed over an ordinary telegraph wire 462 miles in length, power can be similarly conveyed from the dalles of the St. Louis river to Duluth and the adjacent territory.

As a result of the recent inventions of Tesla, it has been shown that the feat of carrying electrical power at long distances and for commercial purposes is perfectly feasible, and consequently it opens the way for utilizing the water power of the St. Louis river in an effective manner. The claims made in regard to utilizing the immense power of Niagara Falls having been fully realized, it will be but a short time when the great power of the St. Louis river will be put to practical use, and the electrical power generated there will be carried to Duluth and the neighboring towns for power and lighting purposes. The wonderful impetus which this will give to the establishment of manufacturing enterprises at the head of the lakes and the consequent boom to the growth of population in Duluth and vicinity can hardly be overestimated.

This subject has been alluded to so frequently by the press of the city, and those who have at various times attempted to make arrangements for the full development of the St. Louis water power and the utilization of its mighty force have explained so fully the benefits that would be experienced by all this section of country, that it is unnecessary to dwell at length upon this point. Suffice it to say, that the demonstration at New York of the perfect feasibility of transmitting electrical power at long distances and for commercial purposes has brought much nearer to realization the hopes and predictions of those who have taken an interest in the utilization of the immense water power at our very doors.

The Duluth Press, also known as Buffalo Bill's Press, has changed its policy. It has left the weekly newspaper field and decided to become an up-to-date weekly paper for the home, leaving the publication of current news to the daily papers. In explaining this change, the Press says: "The day for the city weekly newspaper to quit the field has come, for the advent of typesetting machines, fast presses and improved telegraph facilities make it possible for the daily papers to print all the news of the world in detail. This makes it impossible for the weekly paper to serve its patrons with anything but stale news." There is no reason why under its new policy the Press should not be highly successful.

The Chicago Times-Herald had a table yesterday which puts Mr. McKinley's majority of delegates at 36. A dispatch to the same paper from Wellman, the Washington correspondent, says that the Republican bosses have practically given up the fight. They will hold on and say nothing until the convention, hoping against hope that something may happen to change the untoward aspect of affairs. But in reality they practically concede Mr. McKinley's nomination.

The representatives of the lake and rail lines, according to a New York dispatch published in yesterday's Herald, have declined to reduce the difference between the rate to and from Duluth and the rate to and from Chicago, although these rates discriminate largely in favor of Chicago. Is not this a proper case for the interstate commerce commission?

Some of the large wholesale houses of Chicago are opposing the national bankruptcy bill which has passed the lower branch of congress. This is not unexpected as they have always fought the idea of a national bankruptcy law, preferring the state laws under which they can work their old game of getting preferences over other creditors.

Representative Bailey, of Texas, is reported as saying that as a presidential candidate Secretary Carlisle could not secure the vote of a single delegate from the South, and if he were nominated at Chicago he could not carry a single Southern state.

Whenever Tom Reed thinks of the time when he appointed McKinley chairman of the ways and means committee, he must feel like kicking himself. But for that act, McKinley might never have been heard of as a presidential candidate.

The Democratic office holders are happy over the extensions of the civil service rules made by the president. They feel secure in their positions. But suppose the next congress should repeal the law under which the president is acting?

The McKinley followers are now talking of Thomas B. Reed as vice president. And why not? As presiding officer of the senate, Mr. Reed would be certain to make a record that would keep him prominently before the people.

The Kentucky Democrats do not enthuse very much over the Carlisle boom. His kaleidoscopic changes on the money question have not strengthened him at home. A Bourbon does not make such radical changes of opinion.

And now Boss Quay says he always did have great affection for Mr. McKinley. What an effort it must have been for him to repress an unseemly display of his affectionate regard for the Ohio Napoleon!

Marshall Field & Co., of Chicago, and Wanamaker, of Philadelphia, do not advertise in Sunday papers. They put their announcements in the Saturday evening papers and, of course, get the best results.

Many people are wondering what Dave Hill expects to get for his numerous defenses of the administration. It is hardly likely that he expects anything. He naturally has a sympathy for the "under dog."

The California Republicans declared for McKinley and silver, which many people regard as a queer combination, and yet Mr. McKinley has spoken and voted in favor of silver bills in congress.

Tom Platt started out in the campaign with the assertion that "We want no more presidents from Ohio," but he evidently underestimated the strength of the Ohio man.

Governor Altgeld scored a sweeping victory over the Cleveland henchmen at the recent meeting of the Illinois Democratic state committee.

Bob Ingersoll says he would like to see Tom Reed nominated at St. Louis, but he frankly admits that it is not Reed's year.

Mr. McKinley can safely devote his spare time to outlining his inaugural message.

Again it may be remarked that The Saturday Herald leads all competitors.

WHISTLING STATESMEN.

Whistling and small boys are generally supposed to be the inalienable rights of one another, but any one whose vocation throws him much in the company of the statesmen of the day knows that whistling belongs as much to them as it does to the small boy, says the New York Journal. It may not be the height of dignity to fill the air with the shrill notes of some popular tune, but that doesn't seem to count.

Even President Cleveland is given to the whistling habit. He has only one tune in his repertory, and this was in the heyday of its popularity twenty-five years ago. The first line of it runs, "Darling, I am growing old, silver threads among the gold." Men who were young a quarter of a century ago will recall the touching sentiments with which this refrain was associated in those days.

Mr. Cleveland was not such a very young man when "Silver Threads Among the Gold" was brought out, but his mind was evidently in a receptive state at that precise period, for men who have known him for the last three decades say they never heard him attempt any other tune. More than that, the president only whistles the first three or four lines of the song, and then begins over again.

It is always a sign of great good humor on the part of the president when "Silver Threads Among the Gold" is heard in the White House. The servants know it means the situation is safe, and that the president has risen above the cares of state.

Ruth and Esther can both sing "Silver Threads Among the Gold," but their baby sister is not old enough yet to appreciate the beauties of the song. Every night when Ruth and Esther have been placed in their brass cribs Mr. Cleveland visits the room and sits with them until they are asleep. Ruth always says, "Whistle, pop," and Esther, who always says everything that her sister does, repeats, "Whistle, pop."

William McKinley is the personification of dignity at all times, with the one exception of when he is in a whistling mood. Rumor says that since he began sweeping everything on the board, to the chagrin of his Ohio G. O. P. rivals, he has been whistling a great deal. He has a number of songs, but unconsciously he has settled upon as his favorite joyous melody called "Yer Can't Lose Me, Honey." Joe Manley, of Maine, heard the Ohio statesman whistle this not long ago, and mutual friends say he regarded it almost as a personal affront to Tom Reed.

The whole political world knows that Tom Platt recently earned the title of the "Sweet Singer of Gotham" by rendering the "Battle Hymn of the Republic" at a love feast. Mr. Platt sang in a tremulous voice which was now a bass and then a baritone. He only sings on very rare occasions but if he knows you well enough he will tell you that he is something of a whistler. "The Bowery" is his favorite.

John Griffin Carlisle does not confine his whistling to the private apartments. It is said that even at cabinet meetings he breaks into melody when there is a lull in business. "My Old Kentucky Home" is very naturally his favorite. When the secretary of the treasury is softly whistling this tune Hoke Smith has been known to keep time by knocking his knuckles on the mahogany table, with the rest of the cabinet leaning back in their easy chairs enjoying the rare musical treat.

Matt Quay, of Pennsylvania, is really a very fine whistler. He can throw in a lot of whistles and trills with the ease of an expert. In war times he was said to be the finest whistler in his regiment, and he always went into action whistling his loudest. He has an extensive repertory, but of the popular songs of recent years his favorite is "Mary and John Lived in a Little Village."

Marcus Aurelius Hanna, who is said to be the most joyous man in the land today because of his successful inflation of the McKinley boom, whistles "The Man Who Broke the Bank at Monte Carlo" all day long, and with such great persistence that some of his friends think it must have a deep political significance, but not one of them has been able to fathom it.

"Shoo Fly, Don't Bother Me," is the particular melody which Chauncey Mitchell Depew has whistled so long that he seems to have a copyright on it. This is a harmless little tune, but it has disappointed many people and many plans. When his private secretary, H. C. Du Val, hears the little ditty he knows that it is a signal for him to keep out callers. A millionaire forty times over may call, or the biggest politician in the country may bustle into the anti-room, but after "Shoo Fly," has sounded its warning note it is impossible for them to penetrate to the private office. Mr. Du Val has compiled a list of 100 different excuses with which he can bombard the persistent caller.

THE MACHINE MUST GO.

Sauk Center Herald: The candidacy of William E. Lee for the gubernatorial nomination gains strength every day, and the indications are most favorable. The state house machine is fighting him more bitterly than any other candidate, for it has most to fear from him and his friends. With Mr. Lee out of the way it would have little difficulty in effecting its purposes. The Herald is confident that the nomination and election of Mr. Lee would mark the commencement of a new era in Minnesota politics. Pernicious bossism would decay, and the state, in all the ramifications of its business interests would be placed upon a business basis. There is no implied reflection upon the present or past administrations in this assertion, other than the fact that the present manipulations of the machine—the bosses who desire a lengthened lease of power—consider a public office a private snap, and desire to perpetuate this order of things indefinitely. Mr. Lee is committed to better methods. He is a thorough-going business man, who believes in applying economic business methods to state affairs with the same rigidity he would to personal affairs. He has no sympathy with ring politics. The machine is not more bitterly opposed to Mr. Lee than he is to it. Every citizen who shares this aversion to ring politics is logically driven to the support of Mr. Lee. And he will win.

ABSOLUTELY PURE

ACROSS THE TEA TABLE.

When I take my walks abroad these days I am forced to divide the feminine world into two great classes—those who ride the bicycle and those who clean house. Men say that women work themselves up to a frenzy once or twice a year over real or supposed dirt, and tear a whole house to pieces, with the underlying motive of making every person in the house as uncomfortable as possible. They do not seem to realize that, no matter how carefully a house may be kept during the year, unless one is fortunate enough to have hardwood floors and rugs, there is a positive necessity urged upon the housewife to take up carpets and lift down curtains, that they may be more thoroughly and successfully cleaned. Upholstered furniture must be whipped and aired, and possibly recovered, and though the thoroughly cleaning of a room does take almost an entire day, the satisfaction one feels over the sweet, fresh cleanliness of a room that has no lurking moth or dust is payment enough for the labors of the day. The only true and cleanly way to live is to have hardwood or painted and polished floors, and rugs upon them which can be lifted and thoroughly beaten and shaken two or three times a year. Next to this, fine, closely-woven matting is the best floor covering. After it has been in use some time it should be wiped up once a month with a cloth wrung almost dry out of tepid salt water. The cheaper mattings are not bargains, although one might suppose so at first. They will stand very little wear, being so loosely woven, and allow the dust and dirt to sift through them. When I have my "house beautiful," the rooms on the first floor may have hardwood floors if the purse allows, but the bedrooms must have hardwood floors; too often the reverse of this is the case, the first floor having beautifully polished and expensive inlaid floors and the bedrooms those which necessitate complete covering. The bedroom floors should be the first consideration, if the desire for health is a motive. If financial stringency does not allow hardwood floors all over the house, cut out some other item of expense, but have the floors, if you would live up to the modern ideas of health and moral well-being.

* * *

The yellow Southern or Georgia pine makes an inexpensive but beautiful floor; successfully treated either with polish or wax, it wears remarkably well and is a pleasure to the eye. I have seen some very simple but well-laid white pine floors very prettily and successfully stained and polished, and though the labor is arduous if one attempts it oneself, once accomplished, housekeeping is so much simplified thereby. Two coats of orange shellac put on swiftly and evenly stains the floor; should the put on the floor during a warm, dry day, it will be then thoroughly hardened in twenty-four hours, and though it needs a fresh coat every six months, all polished softwood floors need that. It should always be wiped up with cool, clear water, and there is nothing better for it than a mixture of milk and water in equal parts for keeping it looking. Try the polished floors for the summer and see if there is not an airiness and freedom from dust and dirt heretofore unknown, if your floors were covered with heavy wool carpets flush up to the wall. Take my advice, though; let no one persuade you to have a painted floor; they are delusions, and nothing wears so badly. Stain the floor to any color that you wish in imitation of the yellow pine, or of oak or cherry, but do not, and you value peace of mind; paint them. Keep the floors well wiped; it is such a simple process, and you have eliminated one home of disease-breeding microbes. One of the best things for wiping the floor is a cantonflannel cloth. Some ingenious women make canton-flannel bags which fit the broom and tie on with tapes. These bags are invaluable, and the first maker should secure a patent right for her invention. There is nothing better than these broom bags. The house maid does not have to get down on hands and knees but once a week, then the damp cloth is used, and the canton flannel gathers up every particle of dust in the ordinary daily cleaning.

One of the most arduous tasks before the housekeeper these warm spring days is the putting away of the heavy woolen and fur clothing and wraps. These should never be put away unless they have been thoroughly aired and brushed, folded with either gum camphor or moth balls rolled in paper and put in the folds. They should then be carefully wrapped in newspaper, tightly pinned or tied so that there is not the slightest entrance way for the moths, and placed in the cedar chest or packing trunk, with a legibly written descriptive slip as to contents. A great many women prefer putting coats and wraps in large boxes and pasting slips of paper over the edges to prevent the moths getting in; this of course, is an effective preventive, of crushing, and if the closet or room devoted to the storage of winter clothing is large, it is undoubtedly the better method. To many people the odor of moth balls is extremely disabreeable. I must confess to a preference for gum camphor, albeit more expensive than the moth balls. The odor is more fleeting and quite as effective in warning off intruders. Many people send clothes to the professional cleaner before putting away suits of winter clothes, heavy cloth dresses and overcoats and wraps. No matter how carefully put away, these nearly always need repressing in the autumn, but there is a satisfaction in knowing that all grease and dust is skillfully removed. Of course the housekeeper attempts to do this, but it is seldom as effective as when done by a professional cleaner.

As to the bicycle, there seems a perfect infatuation in the craze. All the world seems to have gone mad on the subject, and it is a positive distinction not to ride a wheel. No one advocates fresh air and exercise more than I, but the bicycle rider is so apt to overdo the matter that therein lies a great danger for women; however, there is so much good acquired, that I am led to believe that it more than overbalances the evil. A celebrated London scientist has published a rabid article on the disease, which he says attacks the devotee. It is in plain language a constant nervous hurry, a desire to get over the ground of all subjects as speedily as one skims over the surface of the earth, a recklessness and want of repose which it is impossible to overcome. All detractors, however, will concede the advantages accruing from fresh air, and freedom of movement, and exercise which the rider experiences. So ride, my sisters, get all the good you can, and eschew the evils of overdoing the matter. There is no more glorious health-giving climate than is found right here on the borders of our lake, drink in in full measure great draughts of ozone, and let the pessimist wail as he will; if his diatribe is not preached against the bicycle it would be something else, he must by nature be a prophet of evil.

To be up to date in matters bicycle you must have a bicycle breakfast, an' you wish to entertain these lovely May days. Your guests are invited to come on their wheels, which means bicycle dress, and the breakfast may be as dainty as possible. Of course there is always a run afterward, the hostess accompanying her guests, or if the breakfast is as late as 12 o'clock, the run is taken before hand. This can be made such an attractive function, and yet need scarcely assume the dignity of a function. Guests at breakfast are supposed to be on the moment, especially are those who go forth on wheels expected to be promptly on hand. If the table be in good condition and the polished surface unscratched, then the bare table adds to the effective service, giving occasion for the use of dainty embroideries, which, if these tone in with the scheme of decoration, makes thoroughly artistic setting. Eggs in some form are supposed to be served at breakfast, either as an omelet souffle, which adds its golden glory to the finale, or as an omelet with mushrooms, or a cheese souffle; fish is a necessity on the spring breakfast table, and fruit also. Fresh air and sunshine are improper in the morning, no hostess with an idea of good form treats her guests to artificial illumination so early in the day. The guests are not supposed to need the service of a maid, in the dressing rooms, but are received by the hostess on entering the house, and after chatting a few moments informally are invited out to breakfast. Of course the hat is not removed. It has always seemed peculiar to me, the uncertainty in regard to the retention or removal of hats and bonnets at functions in the West. There seems to be an old-fashioned desire to remove headgear in the daytime, and retain it in the evening. I have actually seen women at weddings, and wedding receptions in the evening in bonnets and hats, whereas a social dictum which seemed part of my training was that these were as much out of place after 6 o'clock in the evening as a man's dress suit was a necessity after that hour. At midday luncheons, afternoon card parties, and afternoon functions, excepting an afternoon tea, guests are requested by example, if by no other suggestions, to remove the bonnet and appear in a sort of undress uniform. To me the hat or bonnet is so necessary a part of the day outdoor attire, so often the hair is arranged especially for its wearing, that to remove it leaves one without an important accessory of dress. It is as bad as wearing a guest as so many charming summer morning functions, whist parties, "thimble breakfasts," and luncheons, with or without a motive, and until I dropped into the ways of the Western country, I never thought of such a thing as removing my bonnet or hat; to retain it simplifies morning entertainment. To go out of the bright sunlight into a cool shady hall, feel a gentle pressure of a soft hand from a gracious hostess, sit down to a friendly chat for a few moments, and then seek a cardtable, already arranged and waiting, have an exciting game of cards for an hour, and then partake of some light, seasonable refreshments, and after saying a pretty word of thanks, pass out again. All this seems to me the perfection of a gracious understanding between hostess and guest. No bother, no rushing upstairs to doff or don bonnets and veils, but the simplicity which makes entertaining and being entertained a true pleasure.

There is a certain hall-mark of refinement which, if one has access to the private apartments of a woman, is a more positive proof than a gentle manner and a low sweet voice. It is the care of the accessories of the toilet table. Most luxury-loving women possess, or long to possess, silver, its pretty glisten appealing strongly to the feminine mind and heart, but it demands care, and unless kept in its pristine freshness, carries a tale of carelessness, that he who runs may read. Above all, should hairbrushes be kept white and clean. They need constant airing and a weekly washing, at last. The hairbrush should never be laid bristles up. This is one result of the beautiful backs placed upon them now. They are nearly always placed back up, so that the minimum amount of dust is gathered. A great many women place their brushes in boxes, but I must confess to a leaning toward the benefits of a circulation of air. For the woman who is careful to have her hair and scalp in good condition, a weekly cleansing of the brush in tepid borax water suffices. It should then be thoroughly rinsed, and placed in a current of air back up, and is kept from being musty, as is often the case if kept in a close place.

* * *

Duties seem to crowd upon the head of the family these days, since by this title have we learned to call the woman who is the mother of a family. Not only is the house to be made fresh and clean, brave in new paint and accessories, in accord with the joyous aspect of nature, but since we are not like the lilies of the field, we are obliged to put only to clothe ourselves, but the little ones of the family. And for these little ones, mothers love to put out their daintiest stitches and finest needle work. For summer coats for little ones from 2 to 5 years old, piques in sky blue and apple blossom pink are very smart. They are not exactly reefer shape, but are about the length of the reefer used last year. They have a wide triple box plait in both back and front. This box plait is sewed on a yoke about three or four inches deep, which is covered by a great sailor collar. This either has white insertion set in or sewed on. The sleeves are moderately large. The whole is a very beautiful and dainty little coat to wear with a white frock and a hat to match either the coat or frock. Many little polke bonnets, like the pretty sun hats, are shirred over cords and have rosettes and bows of ribbon. Poke bonnets for maidens of 4 or 5 have rouge straw crowns and frilled gauzed fronts, roses or ribbon trimming. For every day use these little maidens look very cunning in "split" sun bonnets of striped dresses and overcoats and wraps. No matter how carefully put away, these nearly always need repressing in the autumn, but there is a satisfaction in knowing that all grease and dust is skillfully removed. Of course the housekeeper attempts to do this, but it is seldom as effective as when done by a professional cleaner.

WHAT HOME IS.

A prize was offered recently by London Tid-Bits for the best answer to the question, "What is Home?" Here are a few of the answers which were received:

Home is the blossom of which heaven is the fruit.

A world of strife shut out, a world of love shut in.

The golden setting in which the brightest jewel is mother.

The only spot on earth where the faults and failings of humanity are hidden under a mantle of charity.

The place where the great are sometimes small, and the small often great.

The father's kingdom, the children's paradise, the mother's world.

Where you are treated best and you grumble most.

A little hollow scooped out of the windy hill of the world, where we can be shielded from its cares and annoyances.

PLIGHTED.

Mine to the core of the heart, my beauty!
Mine, all mine, and for love, not duty;
Love given willingly, full and free,
Love for love's sake—as mine to thee.
Duty's a slave that keeps the keys,
But Love, the master, goes in and out
Of his goodly chambers with song and shout,
Just as he please—just as he please.

Mine, from the dear head's crown, brown-golden,
To the silken foot that's scarce beholden;
Give to a few friends hand and smile,
Like a generous lady, now and awhile,
But the sanctuary heart, that none dare win,
Keep holiest of holiest evermore;
The crowd in the aisle may watch the door,
The high priest only enters in.

Mine, my own, without doubts or terrors,
With all thy goodness, all thy errors,
Unto me and to me alone revealed,
"A spring shut up, a fountain sealed."
Many may praise thee—prize mine as mine,
Many may love thee—I'll love them, too;
But thy heart of hearts, pure, faithful and true,
Must be mine, mine wholly, and only mine.

Mine! God I thank Thee that Thou hast given
Something all mine this side of heaven:
Something as much myself to be
As this my soul which I lift to Thee;
Flesh of my flesh, bone of my bone,
Life of my life whom Thou dost make,
Two to the world for the world's work's sake—
But each unit each, as in Thy sight, one.
—Dinah Mulock Craik.

REST.

My feet are weary and my hands are tired.
My soul oppressed—
And I desire, what I have long desired—
Rest—only rest.

'Tis hard to toil when toil is almost vain,
In barren ways;
'Tis hard to sow and never garner grain
In harvest days.

The burden of my days is hard to bear,
But God knows best;
And I have prayed, but vain has been my prayer,
For rest—sweet rest.

'Tis hard to plant in spring and never reap
The autumn yield;
'Tis hard to till and when 'tis tilled to weep
O'er fruitless field.

And so I cry a weak and human cry,
So heart-oppressed;
And so I sigh a weak and human sigh,
For rest—for rest.

My way was wound across the desert years,
And cares infest
My path, and through the flowing of hot tears
I pine for rest.

And I am restless still; 'twill soon be o'er,
For down the west
Life's sun is setting, and I see the shore
Where I shall rest. —Father Ryan.

In Duluth's Social Circles

The Q. F. U. party at the Spalding will be the society event of the coming week, and is being eagerly anticipated by all society people. It will be given on Friday evening at the Spalding. The Q. F. U. is an organization of young ladies which assists in the Duluth Home society work. The exact meaning of the name has never been given out. A number of the young men all once guessed "Queer Folks Union," when it was first given out, but the young ladies smiled and said that was not it and refused to tell. They have guarded their secret well, and the name is still a mystery. The dance will be very much in the nature of an assembly party. Hoare's orchestra will play, and a program satisfactory to the young people will be prepared.

The McDowell recital given at the Bethel last evening, under the direction of Ernest Lachmund, was well attended. Artistically it was a conspicuous success, and it will rank as one of the finest musicales that local talent has ever presented. Every number was a composition of A. E. McDowell, of Boston, who stands foremost among the American composers. He is a young man of but 35 years of age, but has already written music that immortalizes him, and with the best years of his life still before him, he will make a name for himself that will rank with the first of the world's musicians. He is a composer of the modern school. He is strongly influenced by Wagner, Liszt and others, but he has retained his own individuality and has found an original path of his own and follows it. One of the most striking characteristics of his work is its great strength. It is classical to the highest degree, but has not gone beyond the popular taste, as was shown by the frequent encores last evening. Many of his pieces are simple in technique, but very difficult to interpret.

Miss Kennedy played "Idyl," op. 28, No. 1, and "The Brook," op. 32, No. 2; Miss Carey, "Danse Andalouse;" Miss Smith, "Witches Dance;" Miss Vail, "Elfentanz," and Miss Winifred Holmes, "Revery," op. 19, No. 3, and "Polonaise," op. 46, No. 12. All were admirably rendered. E. W. Prophet sang "Deserted" and "The Sea," two fine compositions. Miss Louise Hall sang three numbers, "Midsummer Lullaby," "The West Wind Croons in the Cedar Trees" and "Slumber Song." All were excellent. Ernest Lachmund gave "Romanze," a 'cello solo of remarkable beauty. Mrs. O. W. Baldwin accompanied him.

Mrs. d'Autremont added greatly to the success of the recital by prefacing the music with a sketch of the life of MacDowell.

The "Eugene Field" social in the parlors of Pilgrim Congregational church last evening was a very enjoyable informal affair and was well attended. The parlors were decorated with plants and flowers, and each of the guests received a bouquet. Miss Moody sang one of Mr. Field's most touching poems, "Little Boy Blue," Mrs. Olund played the piano accompaniment. Miss Ella Roe read "A Sketch of Field." A poem, "Lizzie and the Baby," was read by Mr. Hawkes. It is always a rich treat to hear Mrs. Olund sing, and her song, "Love in Spring Time," and encore, "Good Night, Sweet Dreams," were specially charming. Miss O'Donnell recited "Si and I," and for encores "The Rose and Dew Drop" and "Seein' Things at Night." Ices were served in the side rooms.

The production of "Don Munio" by the Oratorio society was one of the particular events of the week, and nearly all of the musical and society people of Duluth were in the audience. The principals were Miss Kathleen Sibyl Fogarty, soprano; Miss Mary Syer Bradshaw, contralto; Mark C. Baker, tenor; C. Mandelert, basso, and G. F. Herriman, baritone. All acquitted themselves with great credit. The production was a complete success artistically and to Arthur G. Drake, the director, is due great credit.

On Wednesday evening Edward Kuss, of Chicago, a noted basso, will give a concert at Pilgrim Congregational church and will be assisted by local talent. It is a farewell recital as Mr. Stephenson will leave within a week for Pittsburg, where he will make his home hereafter. The Commercial Appeal, of Memphis, has this to say of a well known Duluth young lady:

"Mrs. Henry C. Myers, who is a social and literary magnet, drawing to her so many gifted people, has entertained during the past week Miss Mary Statham, of Duluth. It is not often that Memphis has the honor to entertain a more charming young woman than is this adopted daughter of the "snow-clad hills," whose birthplace is Virginia. In addition to rare personal charms, Miss Statham possesses in a marked degree the descriptive talent, and is writing to the papers of the far North a series of very fine letters about the "Old South" (or what is left of that beautiful wreck), and picturing with skillful pen the faint reflections that even yet linger about us of the 'old regime.' On the desk before us lies a recent Duluth Herald, containing her description of 'A Springtime Journey on the Mississippi,' every line of which is rich in picturesque wording and redolent with the fragrance that floats over the beautiful land she so ably describes. Particularly good and true is her pen picture of Natchez, Miss. Miss Statham pays generous tribute to the brave women of this land through which her pleasant journeyings lie. While in Memphis she received distinguished social attention."

ONE IN EVERY FOUR.

One Person in Every Four Suffers From Piles.

About one person in every four suffers from some form of rectal disease. The most common and annoying is itching piles, indicated by warmth, slight moisture and intense, uncontrollable itching in the parts affected.

The usual treatment has been some simple ointment or salve which sometimes give temporary relief, but nothing like a permanent cure can be expected from such superficial treatment.

The only permanent cure for itching piles yet discovered is the Pyramid Pile Cure, not only for itching piles, but for every other form of piles, blind, bleeding or protruding. The first application gives instant relief and the continued use for a short time causes a permanent removal of the tumors or the small parasites which cause the intense itching and discomfort of itching piles.

Many physicians for a long time supposed that the remarkable relief afforded by the Pyramid Pile Cure was because it was supposed to contain cocaine, opium or similar drugs, but such is not the case. A recent careful analysis of the remedy showed it to be absolutely free from any cocaine, opium, or in fact any poisonous, injurious drugs whatever. Sold by druggists at 50 cents per package.

A MONTANA BOOMER.

There never was such a country for the best brand of husbands; they run loose on the streets and you meet them everywhere, says the Townsend (Mont.) Messenger. If you are a young woman full of golden visions and would like to pick up a husband on every mountain side, come to Montana. Before many years every quarter section will be dotted with hoists, stamp mills and thousands of men delving into them for their hidden treasures, and the foothills, that now only know the spangled cow and unrained bronchos, will echo to the heavy tread of the better grade of cattle and horses as the years sweep onward. The face of the earth seems to glow with beauty and health, and the people who live in this marvelous country go around congratulating each other and trying to analyze their goodness. Our cities are growing and the railroads change their time tables each week to accommodate new cities that were not on the last one issued. There is not a man idle who wants work. Farmers do their plowing sitting upon their spring seats, with a box of cigars on one side. In the East they walk behind their plow until they have no distinct idea whether they are shoving the machine or the horses are pulling it. The man who can't thrive, prosper and grow rich in Montana would starve in a bakery. If you want to see how much this will assay to the line come to Montana.

Ladies, why not have good complexions? We remove wrinkles, freckles, hollow cheeks and pimples, all blemishes and disfigurements of the face, neck and arms. Miss Parsons, 17 West Superior street.

Why give an entertainment on the street and injure yourself and break your wheel when you can learn it quickly and safely at Wieland & Munsey's, 26 East Superior street. Evening entrance, 25 East Michigan.

FACE RAW AND BLEEDING

My little boy was afflicted with Eczema in acute form for a year, during which we tried without success every known remedy. The disorder appeared on the right cheek and was of a blistery and bloody form. His pillow, mornings, would bear the bloody imprint of the side of his face, while it was impossible to prevent him from scratching his face owing to the itching. Advised to try CUTICURA, I bought a box. The first application was made at night, and it is a fact, that the appearance of the affected parts showed a noticeable improvement the next morning, and, continuing the treatment, as a result, my child has as fair and smooth skin as can be found anywhere.

PRINCE OF WALES.

He Was Baptized as a Roman Catholic.

The Freeman's Journal, of Sydney, New South Wales, has a correspondent who seems to know a great many things not generally known, says the Ave Maria. He confides to us the secret that the prince of Wales was baptized a Catholic, asserting that he has the testimony of an eminent bishop that his statement is absolutely correct. It seems that when the time came for the baptism of Albert Edward, two dignitaries of the Church of England arranged to divide honors on the occasion, with the result that one poured the water while the other read the form of baptism. This was the perfection of Protestant politeness, but, all the same, it was a blunder which made the baptism invalid. After the ceremony the queen of the Belgians, who had been an observant witness, spoke to the queen of Saxony, and pointed out that the interesting infant had not been made a Christian in the proper way.

Victoria was much troubled, and asked: "What can I do?" "Oh," said her Belgian majesty, "it is easy enough," adding, "I have here in the palace a Belgian priest, my chaplain; let me call him in to baptize the child properly, and no one will be any the wiser." The young queen of England, whose mother, by the way, was a Catholic, at once gave her consent, and the Catholic baptism was performed with only two witnesses. Apart from his baptism under "circumstances over which he had no control," the prince of Wales has always exhibited a sympathetic feeling toward the Catholic church. He has befriended more than one Catholic sisterhood in England and was an ardent admirer of Father Damien, and he has, on several occasions attended mass.

Cardinal Manning had no warmer champion and supporter than the heir to the British throne, and it will be recollected that on a memorable occasion he placed the cardinal on a royal commission next himself, and before the premier and the Protestant bishop of London. There was a "big fuss" about it at the time, but the trouble blew over and has been forgotten.

Suffered Eighteen Years.

Pains Departed and Sleep Came.

Mrs. Julia A. Brown, of Covington, Tenn., whose husband has charge of the electric light plant at that place, has been a great sufferer. Her ailments and speedy cure are best described by herself, as follows:

"For 18 years I suffered from nervousness and indigestion. I tried every remedy recommended by family and friends, but I could get no relief at all. Two years ago, while being treated by three local physicians, Drs. Barret, Maley and Sherod, they informed me that I had become dropsical, and that there was little hope for me. I then decided to try

Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine,

I was then unable to get to sleep until well on toward daylight, and during all this time I had a deep, heavy pain in my left side. I was most miserable, indeed, but after taking one-half bottle of the Nervine I could sleep all night just as well as I ever did. The Nervine is the only remedy that gave me any relief whatever. I am now well and strong, and I thank God every day of my life for Dr. Miles' Nervine."

Family of Hon. William R. Smith Made Well By Paine's Celery Compound.

"To him who in the love of Nature
Holds communion with her visible forms,
She speaks a various language."

No one has a deeper insight into nature's ways than the superintendent of the extensive botanic gardens of the United States at Washington.

No one knows so well as he what precious opportunities come with the spring.

Superintendent Smith, like most scientific persons, firmly believes that everyone would be benefited by taking a spring remedy while the blood is readiest to be purified and invigorated.

Paine's celery compound is the only genuine spring remedy worthy of that name, in the opinion of Superintendent Smith. He writes:

Washington D. C., March 4, 1896.

Gentlemen: The female members of my household are more than delighted with Paine's celery compound. I learn from other friends that its popularity is steadily growing. It aids digestion, and in view of the prevalence of dyspepsia, it is one of the benefactions of the age. Very respectfully,

W. R. Smith,
Supt. U. S. Botanic Gardens.

Paine's celery compound is as far removed as the poles from the many trivial, unscientific preparations that call themselves spring remedies. It has earned the confidence of men and women the world over.

It is exclusively employed in families where nothing short of the best of everything pertaining to health will do.

It has lived up to the most sanguine expectations of physicians who naturally look for extraordinary results from the discovery of an eminent a physician as Professor Edward E. Phelps, M.D., LL.D., of Dartmouth medical school.

That Paine's celery compound does cure positively and permanently all diseases arising from impure blood or decline in the vigor of the nerves is cheerfully attested by thousands of earnest men and women.

Weakness, depression, irritability, pain and langour tell that the nervous matter in the brain, nerves and spinal cord is not getting sufficient nourishment.

To quickly furnish a fresh and abundant supply of nutriment for every tissue of the body is the purpose for which Paine's celery compound was first prepared. This rapid production of fresh nervous energy and pure blood was the aim of Professor Edward E. Phelps' long study of the causes of nervous exhaustion.

The result of his life work was Paine's celery compound—this remarkable remedy that permanently cures diseases of the liver, kidneys and stomach. It is the greatest nerve regulator and blood purifier of this century.

FREED BY OYSTERS.

How a Russian Serf Gained Freedom.

One of the best known banking houses of St. Petersurg, and the one to which most American visitors to Russia carry letters of credit, is that of Messrs. Shalounine & Sons, the founder of which, father of the present head of the firm, owed his liberation from serfdom fifteen years before the decree of emancipation, to a barrel of oysters, says the New York Tribune. Old Shalounine was a serf belonging to Count Sheremetieff, one of the wealthiest nobles in Russia. He had frequently entreated the count to grant him his freedom, offering him as much as $500,000 for the boon. But money was no object to the count, and it gratified his pride to feel that one of the leading bankers of the empire was one of his serfs, unable to marry either his sons or his daughters without his master's consent. Moreover, as serf, the banker was liable to have his money seized and confiscated by the count, since everything that belonged to a serf, including his wife, children and property, belonged ipso facto to his master.

One day Shalounine, who had just that very morning returned to the capital from Odessa, called at the Sheremelieff palace for the purpose of reporting his arrival, as in duty bound, to his owner. He had brought with him a barrel of delicious Crimean oysters for presentation to the count, but left them in his carriage at the palace door until he should have obtained his master's intimation that his gift was acceptable.

On entering the presence of the count the banker found him surrounded by a party of guests and engaged in berating the chief butler for neglecting to provide oysters for the breakfast to which they were about to sit down. The butler was explaining to the count that there were no oysters to be got in the capital at that moment for love or money. Catching sight of the serf banker the count exclaimed:

"Oh, it is thou again, thou art come to pester me once more for thy liberation! Thou knowest that it is useless. I should not know what to do with the money. But, stay, I will tell thee something: Get me some oysters for my breakfast and thou shalt have thy freedom!"

Shalounine bowed low, left the room, fetched the small barrel of oysters which he had left in his carriage at the door, and laid at the feet of the master.

As soon as the barrel had been opened the count called for a pen and paper, wrote out a declaration emancipating both the banker and his family from serfdom, and then bowing courteously to the man who but a moment before had been his slave, exclaimed: "And now, my dear Mr. Shalounine will you give us the pleasure of your company at breakfast?"

TRAGEDY AT SEA

Chicago Tribune: Steadily the water gained on the pumps. It was now six feet deep in the hold. The ship was sinking.

Preparations were made to abandon the doomed vessel and take to the boats.

With a firm hand the captain wrote a brief account of the disaster, giving his reckoning of the latitude and longitude and the direction in which he expected to navigate the boats.

Then he called for a bottle.

It was brought.

He removed the cork, rolled up the manuscript, and was about to insert it when one of the passengers, a tall Missouri colonel, hastily spoke up:

"Captain," he said, pale, but with the ring of iron resolution in his voice, "I see they's a few draps left in that flask. Hand it here and I'll empty it. * * * Thanks. Now, let 'er go!"

One minute is the standard time, and One Minute Cough Cure is the standard preparation for every form of cough or cold. It is the only harmless remedy that produces immediate results. S. F. Boyce.

REFUSED

Sale of Masonic Temple Association Judgment Was Not Confirmed.

Strong Objections Convinced Judge Moer That It Should Not Be.

Instructed the Assignee to Push the Claim Against Stockholders.

The only important matter in a very light special term calendar this morning was the hearing on the sale of the H. H. Bell estate. The only part of that left for discussion was the sale of a judgment for $16,000 against the Masonic Temple association to L. E. Judson for $2500. T. T. Hudson, on behalf of the New Duluth Land company, entered a protest against the confirmation of this sale on the ground that it is collectible as curiosity. He argued that though the assets of the corporation are less than liabilities, the stockholders are all solvent and are probably liable to the amount of their stock for its debts. The list of stockholders contains many good men from a financial standpoint, and a suit is now pending to test there liability, under chapter 76.

Gilman Markell testified that in his opinion nearly all the stockholders were solvent and able to pay the debts if they should be declared liable. He testified, also that he understood that the indebtedness of the association was about $150,000, including the first mortgage on the Masonic Temple.

Judge Moer recalled that he would not confirm the sale from any standpoint, and directed the assignee to endeavor to collect from the stockholders.

Judge Moer ordered the discharge of Assignee Warfield, of the Duluth Cash Grocery company. Judge Morr's ordered the discharge of the assignee of Susman Cohen, after he has paid out some small sums remaining in his hands.

F. W. Parsons, assignee for the Merrill Manufacturing company, has filed a report showing receipts of $1149.76, and disbursements of $665.20. He asks a discharge on the report.

The assignment of the Duluth Dry Goods and Provision company having been cleared up, creditors are trying to get their balances out of the stockholders.

The Wells-Stone Mercantile company has begun suit against the Washington Iron company to have a receiver appointed and to enforce the statutory liability of the stockholders. Draper, Davis & Hollister are the attorneys.

The grand jury was still in session this morning, and it adjourned at noon until Monday without returning any further indictments.

LAID TO REST.

Funeral of John C. Robinson This Afternoon.

All that was mortal of John Cuthcart Robinson was conveyed to the tomb today attended by a large concourse of surrounding friends. The funeral services took place at St. Paul's Episcopal church, at 2 o'clock this afternoon, Rev. Dr. Ryan officiating. The church was well filled with friends of the deceased, including many of his business associates. The casket was buried beneath a mass of flowers, and several beautiful floral pieces, among them being a lyre, a pillow and a broken wheel.

During the service the choir rendered "Nearer, My God, to Thee," in a most affecting manner, and at its conclusion the casket was borne from the church, preceded by the choir, singing the processional, "A few more years shall roll." The pallbearers were: A. L. Craig, of St. Paul; Berlah Magoffin, W. C. Sargent, James C. Hunter, A. L. Pelican and W. E. Lucas. The remains will be placed in the vault at Forest Hill cemetery.

EIGHTEEN BABIES.

M. and Mme. X—, when they returned to their residence earlier than they were expected the other night from the ball at the Elysee, found, to their astonishment, says the Paris Gaulois, that their three servants and the two children had disappeared.

On questioning the concierge and threatening to send for the commissary of police, the parents learned that in their absence the servants had gone off to a popular dancing room and taken the children with them. M. and Mme. X——, still in evening dress, immediately drove in their carriage to the address given.

At the door of the dancing saloon they met the man who receives the money, and he evidently took in the situation.

"Reassure yourselves, monsieur and madame," he said, "and kindly step this way."

The man led the way to a large, well lighted and warm room, in which were eighteen babies fast asleep upon benches. They were under the care of an old woman, and M. and Mme. X—— had no difficulty in picking out those which belonged to them.

HARD ON THE POLICE.

The yarn that the down town streets in Boston were formerly cow paths and that unless one be careful in keeping bearings he is liable to walk in circles, although apparently walking straight ahead, must be true, because it has been verified, says the New York Times. It is to the effect that a stranger, having asked a policeman to direct him to a certain place several blocks distant, followed the directions until he became bewildered. Seeing a policeman he asked again to be directed on his way. Confused again by not finding the place he again appealed to a policeman.

"Look here!" the policeman remarked, emphatically, "if you ask me that question again I'll run you in—see."

A stranger who inserted that story into a description of his experiences in the town recently was confused when a reputable gentleman of 85 years interrupted him by saying that his experience in 1835 was similar, except that the person he asked was not a policeman. Any yarn that holds good for half a century ought to be believed.

A NEW POINT.

Secretary Hoke Smith Promulgates a Ruling.

Secretary Hoke Smith has rendered a decision in a timber and stone filing case which contains a new point. Gurine Sovde filed on the ne¼ of section 6-63-19 under the timber and stone act, claiming that she wanted the land for timber. Between the day of filing and that of proving up the timber was burned. She then asked permission to relinquish and file on the se¼ of nw¼ of section 10-59-20. The local officials considered her application meritorious and so reported to the general land commissioner. The latter, however, rejected the application, claiming that the law has no provision authorizing any such action. The secretary reverses this and grants the application, saying:

"It was error to reject the application. The decision seems to deal with the applicant as if she had already purchased, but she was only a mere applicant to purchase and not an actual purchaser. It is true that the timber and stone act does not expressly provide for amendment or change of an application to purchase, but it is also true that no such provision is contained in the statute authorizing other kinds of entry. Nevertheless, it is the uniform rule of the department to allow correction, amendment and change of application to homestead before actual entry and segregation of the land, and in some cases even after entry, and no reason is seen why amendment or change of an application to purchase under the timber and stone act may not be allowed. In this case there had been no entry, no segregation, no adverse right, only an application to purchase, and before the day came when the law would allow such purchase the very quality of the land which brought it within the class subject to purchase was destroyed by an agency for which the applicant was not responsible. Then, simply because the applicant applied to purchase this particular tract while it was valuable for timber, shall she be compelled to purchase it after its value had been destroyed pending the delay entailed by the law, or lose her right to purchase under the law at all? It is the opinion of this department that the law is too liberal in its character to admit of that construction."

PAUL SCHULZE.

He Lavishly Endowed a Pretty Widow.

Since the suicide at Tacoma of Paul Schulze, the colossal embezzler, who, prior to his sudden and fitting end to a Dr. Jekyl and Mr. Hyde career, had almost undisputed control of the Northern Pacific Railroad company's land interests, some of the strangest stories regarding his double life have been floated. The dead embezzler was extensively known in Portland as in the city where he met his tragic death to avoid serving out the rest of his misspent life in the penitentiary, hence any fresh episode in his uncommon career may prove of interest, says the Portland Telegram.

Soon after Schulze's death rumor had it that his chief mourner would be Maude Wainwright, the actress, to whom he was to have been married. Miss Wainwright, however, quickly put an end to this gossip, by denying the report in the press over her own signature.

Frank S. Chamberlain, of San Francisco, who was a frequent visitor at Tacoma during Schulze's life and prosperity, is the first to come forward and positively corroborate Miss Wainwright's denial, which, unsupported as it was, left a doubt in the minds of some people having participated in the lavish, if not royal hospitalities Schulze tendered the actress and her daughters in Tacoma. The story Mr. Chamberlain related last evening, whether for publication or not, is not known, must dispel all lingering belief in the once-rumored marriage engagement between Miss Wainwright and the crooked fiduciary agent. Mr. Chamberlain's story also accounts for $300,000 of the $1,250,000 stolen by Schulze from the Northern Pacific and other corporations.

"About two years before Mr. Schulze died," said Mr. Chamberlain, "he met Mrs. Charlotte Burrill, a young widow from Winchester, Va., at a Bohemian club reception in San Francisco. She was on the coast visiting friends in the city. I was acquainted with her and raised her late that evening for allowing a comparative stranger like Mr. Schulze to pay her so much attention as he did. She smilingly answered that she fancied him as one of the most gallant gentlemen she had yet met in San Francisco; and if she permitted him to pay his devoirs to her it was her affair and concerned none other.

"After this mild rebuff I refrained from further commending on the subject to her. But a few months later I heard that the Tacoma financier and Mrs. Burrill were engaged. Later I personally informed myself, as a matter of curiosity, that every two or three months Mrs. Burrill made trips to Tacoma, where she also had friends, but as a matter of fact to see her fiance, Mr. Schulze. I will vouch, though, for the strictly pure and honorable nature of their relations, for Mrs. Burrill was of irreproachable character, whose estimate of a good name was priceless.

"Early in 1895, Mrs. Burrill no longer concealed the fact that she and Mr. Schulze were to be married some time in the fall. In substantiation of this she exhibited to a few of her most intimate friends a $500 diamond ring, and, on several occasions, large sums in paper money, forwarded to her by Mr. Schulze per registered mail. For what purpose this money was sent her she did not tell; but she cut the dash of a princess.

"Last summer when Mr. Schulze met his untimely death and the report of his heavy defalcation reached San Francisco, I happened to be lodging in the house of some of Mrs. Burrill's friends—also my friends. It was a fearful shock to her, from which she scarcely rallied in a month. No, she did not attend the funeral of her betrothed, but soon thereafter she returned to Winchester, and in December last she and a sister went to Europe, where the pretty widow is being consoled, from what I hear.

"About a month ago I moved in to the room Mrs. Burrill occupied in the house of our friends, and on opening a bureau drawer I found a lot of partly destroyed letters written by Mr. Schulze, which the widow had forgotten to throw into the fire before her departure. Natural curiosity led me to patch up a few of them, and their contents convinced me that Mr. Schulze not only was madly in love with Mrs. Burrill, but that he also sent her a fortune during their engagement. The most interesting of these letters was this one," remarked Mr. Chamberlain, drawing a misgive from his pocketbook, bearing date June 16, 1895, written at Tacoma, and signed "with unquenchable love and devotion, your own Paul." It read:

"So soon as I can arrange my business affairs that I may take a month's rest I will go to San Francisco, and there once again enjoy the aroma of your delightful presence and the charm of your incomparable intellectuality.

"The last package of bank notes I mailed to you makes a total of $255,000. I trust you may well husband these resources, for in these times of depression the most unexpected may come to pass.

* * * *

"That Bohemian club reception made Mrs. Burrill's fortune, and even if she did lose a lover, she has enough money to buy a title for me in Europe," was Mr. Chamberlain's concluding remark.

Captain E. M. Peck, the Veteran Ship Owner, Died at Detroit.

He Was Among the Pioneer Ship Builders on the Lakes.

Steamer Marquette, With Ore, Aground Just Above the Sault.

Detroit, Mich., May 9.—(Special to The Herald.)—Capt. E. M. Peck, the veteran ship owner, died at his home in this city last evening. It has been known for several days that Capt. Peck was ill, but no one supposed him dangerously so. The captain was among the pioneer ship builders on the lakes and constructed many of the best vessels in service a score of years ago. His interests in that line were taken by the Detroit Drydock company and he has since devoted himself to his vessel interests, owning large shares in a big fleet.

Cleveland, May 9.—(Special to The Herald.)—The steamer E. M. Peck, now at Erlick, will be sent to Detroit and remain until Monday and then will bring the remains of Capt. Peck to Cleveland to inter them.

NO COAL CHARTERS.

Buffalo, May 9.—(Special to The Herald.)—So long as grain and ore freights remain as good as they now are, the movement of coal will be light unless rates are advanced. Nothing was done today in the way of coal charters.

MARINE NOTES.

Inman's tug, Bob Anderson, leaves tonight for Cleveland, where she will receive a new boiler.

"It would certainly be fitting," says M. A. Bradley, "to name one of the new Rockefeller ships for Capt. Alexander McDougall, especially as the names are planned to honor men connected with progress in shipbuilding and the iron industry. As the inventor of the whaleback type of ship, Capt. McDougall is entitled to distinction, and his connection with Rockefeller interests would seem to be a special reason why one of the ships should be named for him." The Marine Review says there are a great many vessel owners on the lakes who agree with Mr. Bradley in his opinion.

This afternoon the new whaleback 137, to be the consort of the Franklin Rockefeller, was to be launched at the yards of the American Steel Barge company, in Superior. She is 376 feet in length, 46 feet beam and 26 feet deep.

A Cleveland dispatch says: There is still good demand for grain carriers from Duluth and Fort William, and ore shippers that are getting any tonnage are doing considerable hustling. Docks at shipping ports are pretty well filled, and shipments are not as heavy as the ore men would like them.

Two hundred helpers struck yesterday at the Globe shipyard at Cleveland. They want 10 per cent more pay.

A Buffalo dispatch says: Vesselmen are holding off for an advance in coal rates to Lake Michigan ports. Fifty cents is asked, and as there is little doing at the old rates shippers are looking for tonnage, and it is thought the advance can be secured.

The grain freight situation here continues much the same. The liners are not so much in evidence and there is less talk of shading 3 cents, however, and it is doubtful if tonnage could be obtained at a lesser rate.

Duluth clearances—City of Bangor, 110,000 bushels wheat; City of Paris, 67,000 bushels wheat; Uganda, 70,000 bushels wheat, Buffalo; H. B. Tuttle, 919 tons ore; Vega, 2000 tons ore; H. M. Sage, 1300 tons ore, Buffalo; Connelly Bros., 1,100,000 feet lumber, Tonawanda; Waverly, 950 tons ore, South Chicago.

Mrs. Mary E. Kitchener, of Carlton county, Minn., is at La Porte, Ind., looking for her husband whom she says has three wives, including herself, one in Detroit, and one in St. Louis. At Des Moines, Iowa, the jury in the case of S. R. Dawson, for shooting his son-in-law, Walter Scott, last evening, returned a verdict of murder in the second degree. The least punishment is ten years' imprisonment, and it may be for life.

Six hundred of the Detroit Carpenters' unions have decided to strike next Monday for an 8-hour day. There are upwards of 1000 union carpenters in the city and it is believed that tonight's action will be endorsed by most of those not present at the meeting.

At Camden, Tenn., yesterday, six houses, twenty horses and other valuable property was consumed by fire which originated in the livery stable. The entire block and contents were burned. The entire town narrowly escaped destruction.

A fight yesterday between negroes and Hungarians at Keystone, West Va., resulted in two negroes and one Hungarian being killed. Wilson Worthington and George Manard were injured by stray bullets.

Emperor William will go to Cowes in spite of his reported decision to the contrary. It is expected that the emperor's yacht, the Meteor, will sail its first match at Harwich.

CANNON KNOCKED OUT.

SOME CENTENARIANS.

Five centenarians have come into public notice in the newspapers in the last two days, two through the celebration of their birthdays and three by death. Mrs. Honora McCarty, of South Shaftsbury, Vt., celebrated her one hundredth and fifth birthday on April 6. She is in good health and recently walked five miles to church. Mrs. Mary Skeffington, of Woonsocket, R. I., passed her one hundred and first birthday a few days ago. Mrs. Martha Swan, 103 years old, died at Lee, Mass., last week. She was born in Methuen on Dec. 17, 1792. Mrs. Nancy Cooper, 101 years old, died in Dover, Mo., on April 3. Thomas W. Hall, of Cain, Pa., passed his one hundred and first birthday early in March and died on April 8. He left a brother 99 years old and a sister 94.—New York Sun.

NOT IMPOSING.

Miss Mary Grace Thornton, daughter of the British ambassador, describes the coronation of Alexander III, of Russia, in May Century. The writer says: I was certainly disappointed in the bit of the procession that I looked forward to most—the 'Deputes des Peuplades Asiatiques soumises a la Russie,' which promised to be the most original, something that one could see in Russia only. The opening of the procession was characteristic: Kozlov, the head of the police, and twelve policemen. Then came the emperor's private escort, very handsome in red and gold, two Cossack regiments, the Cossack deputies, and my friends the Asiatics. No wonder I didn't find them imposing; for just as they were passing the bands struck up the national hymn, the horses started, and the deputies became a confused mass clinging to their horses' manes. The owner of a very beautiful yellow silk dressing gown—all their costumes looked like dressing gowns—kept his head and his seat; but I saw the khan of Khiva's huge black fur hat bobbing up and down in a most un-khann-y way."

BOODLE

Don Dickinson Says Gold Democrats Used No Boodle in Michigan.

But Adds If Any Money Was Used the Silverites Used It.

Finishes By Declaring the Chicago Convention Will Ignore Free Coinage.

Detroit, May 9.—The Evening News today publishes an interview with Don M. Dickinson, replying to the strictures of Senator Vest and other free silver men as to the alleged corruption of the late Democratic state convention by officeholders.

Mr. Dickinson denies that Mr. Stevenson, (Dickinson's law partner), or any one else, issued any circular to officeholders in connection with the convention. Through free silver congressmen, he says, free silver men were put in all the offices of their districts, and in both county and state conventions outnumbered the others two to one. According to the law, he says, the places of the delegates could not be filled by proxies, as stated by Mr. Vest. The 16 to 1 men never had a majority of the delegates elected, and the talk of the use of money is a "pure and unadulterated slander and libel."

"If any money was used," says Mr. Dickinson, "it was in behalf of a free silver syndicate, organized and existing outside of this state, and furnishing money to carry out the campaign in this state." In conclusion, he says: "I am proud to say that the party in this state is properly represented by its delegation to Chicago, and is in favor, by an overwhelming majority, of maintaining the pledge of congress on this question, whenever there has been silver legislation since '73, that the policy of the government is to maintain the parity of the metals. Our party will not favor repudiation in any form, or take any chances of favoring a policy that by any possibility would lead to repudiation. The Chicago convention will not favor the policy of free coinage at the ratio of 16 to 1."

VALUE OF POETRY.

Little Poem Which Drew an $8000 Verdict.

The exact money value of poetry has been determined. For years people have been worrying over this problem, and there has been one continuous howl over the fact that while one man's verses are bought by the magazines for untold wealth, those of a brother poet are hidden so deep in the waste-paper basket that fame can never get a peep at them, says the Louisville Times.

People who have deluded themselves with the idea that Col. Bennett Young spent his time educating girls in bloomers from prehistoric mounds will be surprised to find that it is he who has brought the soothing and ennobling influences of poetry to bear upon the law, and only yesterday, one of his clients, Charles C. Corsey, was awarded $8000 damages by a jury at Lawrenceburg for injuries received last November on the Southern railroad.

Col. Young hypnotized the jury by reading the following poem from the pen of Mad. Henry T. Stanton, and at the close of the reading everybody was in tears, and the voice of the foreman of the jury shook with sobs as he brought in the verdict.

ONLY A BRAKEMAN KILLED.
Accident on the Southern road—
A night train ditched with a heavy load,
And twenty cars all filled.
The engine is smashed and down ten feet,
The flats and boxes a wreck compiete,
And only a brakeman killed.

A mass of goods in the muddy ditch,
A heavy loss, but the road is rich
And stands for all the freight.
The engineer and man at the bars
Both jumped in time, but ne on the cars—
The brakeman—jumped too late.

A lucky thing that the other lives
Were spared to their homes, their children, wives,
And gave the road no cost.
A fortunate thing that, in the dump,
These luckier men could make the jump.
The brakeman only was lost.

Only a brakeman killed in the night—
A fortunate thing—the loss is light
Noise of the wreck is stilled.
No horror at all, the papers say;
Only the accident every day—
Only a brakeman killed.

Only a brakeman crushed to death;
Don't stand frightened and hold your breath;
It's done, and all is said.
Clear the wreck from the track and ditch,
The loss is small, the road is rich—
Only a brakeman dead.

MOUNTAINS OF MANICALAND.

Two hundred miles north-northeast of Basutoland, the great Kathlamba range rises in very bold slopes from the coast levels behind Delagoa Bay, and the scenery of the valleys and passes is said to be extremely grand. Knowing it, however, only by report, I will not venture to describe it. Nearly 500 miles still further to the north, in the district called Manicaland, already referred to, is a third mountain region, less lofty than Basutoland, but deriving a singular charm from the dignity and variety of its mountain forms, says Profesor James Bryce in May Century.

The whole country is so elevated that summits of 7000 or 8000 feet do not produce any greater effect upon the eye than does Ben Lomond as seen from Loch Lomond, or Mount Washington from the Glen house. But there is a boldness of line about these granite peaks comparable to those of the west coast of Norway or of the finest parts of the Swiss Alps. Some of them rise in smooth shafts of apparently inaccessible rock; others form long rides of pinnacles of every kind, of shape, specially striking when they stand out against the brilliantly clear morning or evening sky. The valleys are well wooded, the lower slopes covered with herbage, so the effect of these wild peaks is heightened by the softness of the surroundings which they dominate, while at the same time the whole landscape becomes more complex and more noble by the mingling of such diverse elements.

No scenery better deserves the name of romantic. And even in the tamer parts, where instead of mountains there are only low hills, or "kopjes" (as they are called in South Africa), the comparatively friable rock of those hills decomposes under the influence of the weather into curiously picturesque and fantastic forms, with crags riven to their base, and detached pillars supporting loose blocks and tabular masses, among or upon which the timid Mashonas have built their huts in the hope of escaping the raids of their warlike enemies, the Matabele.

WAITING FOR BUSINESS.

A New York paper says that "the days when you could open a bicycle store and wait for the people to come to you, with a fair prospect of their coming, have passed away—and they won't come back."

They won't come back, because they won't pay. There are a few lines of business in which by reason of etiquette the waiting plan is still pursued; but as for trade in any general sense, it isn't to be gotten in these days without advertising for it. Nor even then, unless the advertising possesses the power to arouse public interest and keep it on edge.

RILEY

Populace Turned Out to Greet Their Famous Poet Townsman.

Riley's Early Days and Some of the Trials Experienced.

The recent visit of James Whitcomb Riley, the "Hoosier Poet," to Greenfield, Ind., his native place, will probably never be forgotten by the poet himself, nor by anyone in the little Indiana town, says the Cleveland World. He was back among the people who had known him in his youth. Since he had left them he had traveled far and wide and became famous. The honest old villagers who had known the poet when a barefooted boy and later when he had painted signs, were mighty glad to see Riley, and as the "Hoosier Poet" appeared upon the street there were cries of "There's Mr. Riley," but there were many more unaffected and simple greetings of "Howdy, Jim." It was a sight to be remembered to see Mr. Riley greeting those old friends of his that knew him in his boyhood; it was affecting to watch the old men trying to reconcile the much adomade over the famous poet of a simple people, with the harum-scarum "Jim" they remembered so well. "Why, I remember Jim when he used to run 'round without any shoes on," said one old, bewhiskered citizen, as he noticed the eagerness with which the crowd pressed forward to shake the poet's hand. "See that sign there, over Banks' hardware store? I can remember the time when Jim Riley painted that," said another; and these remarks were uttered in a tone of great surprise, as if the speakers could not understand the evolution from a country lad to a poet of the people.

In a brief biography, written of Mr. Riley some time ago, when he and Bill Nye were touring the country together, it was said:

"Citizens of his native town of Greenfield, Ind., while warmly welcoming his advent, were no less demonstrative, some few years since, to 'speed the parting guest.' It seems, in fact, that as they came to know him better, the more resigned they were to give him up." The same biography says:

"The father of young Riley was a lawyer of large practice, who used, in moments of deep thought, to regard this boy as the worst case he ever had. This may have been the reason that, in time, he insisted on his reading law, which the boy really tried to do; but, finding that political economy and Blackstone didn't rhyme, he slid out of the office one hot, sultry afternoon and ran away with a patent medicine and concert wagon, from the tail-end of which he was discovered by some relatives of his in the next town, violently abusing a bass drum. This was a proud moment for the boy; nor did his peculiar presence of mind entirely desert him till all the county fairs were over for the season. Then, afar off among strangers in a strange state, he thought it would be fine to make a flying visit home. But he couldn't fly.

Fortunately, in former years, he had purloined some knowledge of a trade. He could paint a sign—or a house—or a tin roof—if some one else would furnish him the paint, and one of Riley's hand-painted picket fences was a rapture to the most exacting eye. Yet, through all his stress and trial, he preserved a simple, joyous nature, together with an ever-widening love of men and things in general. He made friends, and money, too—enough, at last, to gratify the highest ambition of his life, namely, to own an overcoat with fur around the tail of it. He then groped his way back home, and worked for nothing on a little country paper that did not long survive the blow. Again excusing himself, he took his sappy paragraphs and poetry to another paper and another town, and there did better, till he spoilt it all by devising a Poe-poem fraud by which he lost his job; and, in disgrace and humiliation shoe-mouth deep, his feelings gave way beneath his feet, and his heart broke with a loud report. So the true poet was born."

When Mr. Riley reached Greenfield he was greeted by a happy smiling crowd, and the old band struck up something that sounded a little like "Hail to the Chief." The mere fact of the presence of the band at the station to welcome the citizen guest was of itself a peculiar honor, for the band was led by "Ike" Davis, who used to be the leader of "the old band," and whose five brothers were the main body of that now world-famous organization.

The band was not in uniform, but "it got there just the same," and as James Whitcomb Riley heard the strains from the old familiar instruments, the genial smile on his face grew broader, and he walked with a firmer step.

The occasion of Riley's visit was the urgent request of the ladies of the Presbyterian church for him to give a reading for the benefit of the church. Tickets sold like hot cakes. Handsome lithographs of the "Ole Swimmin' Hole" were displayed in the stores, and on the programs of the entertainment; stores vied with each other for the honor of getting the tickets to sell, and the local merchants pointed the advertisements of their wares with quotations from the poet. As a specimen of the ingenuity of some of this advertising, the following are given:

"When the frost is on the pumpkin
And the fodder's in the shock,'
There can be no better time to purchase groceries from Blank, Blank & Co."

"Oh! the ole swimmin' hole! In the long, lazy days,
When the hum-drum of school made so many runaways,
How pleasant was the journey down the old dusty lane,
Where the tracks of our bare feet was all printed so plain.
You could tell by the dent of the heel and the sole,
They was lots of fun on hand at the ole swimmin' hole.'
"If you want to be in the swim always trade with Riley, Whitcomb & James."

The particularly graceful coincidence was that the only hall available for the reading was the old Masonic hall, that in the old days used to be the school house in which James Whitcomb Riley went to school to his old friend and preceptor, Lee O. Harris. Many recalled the fact that night, as they recalled other facts about Mr. Riley's early life, as they recalled the well-known names of the characters he has made live again in his poems, and there were dozens of people who offered to tell strangers just exactly who "Tradin' Joe" was, or where "Man by the name of Bolus" could be found, or what had become of "Old John Henry," but as no two of these authorities agreed in their identifications of these characters, they still remain incognito, and of them Riley did not speak.

If there is one man in Greenfield who cares more for Riley than others do, who loves him and admires him, it is his old friend and teacher, Lee O. Harris. A plain, unpretentious man, with an honest, kindly face, that lights up when he speaks of "Jim," and whose voice thrills with pride, with no touch of envy in it, when he says, "The pupil has long since outgrown his teacher." He says that he can remember well when "Jim" came to school to him. He says: "I believe that I recognized his genius from the start, for I did not press him to study the uncongenial things. He never did any good at mathematics, and I did not give him any more of it than I could help. I just turned him loose where he could find grazing to suit him. I used to live about two miles in the country then and Jim used to come out and spend days with me. He used to write verses for the local papers, but I told him he was wasting his time. Then he got on a paper in Anderson, and did some work there, but he never did any real good for himself till he went to Indianapolis. Jim was always an actor—I believe it was born in him. I can remember him acting in a play called 'The Child of Waterloo,' in which he took the character of Troubled Tom. He was supposed to be the son of a blacksmith, left on the field of Waterloo. Jim made the character so funny, mad so much out of it that he made it the star part of the play. That was his first attempt in that line, too. The old homestead where he was born is still standing in Main street. Mr. Riley bought it two or three years ago. I guess Jim got his gift honestly. His father, Reuben A. Riley, was one of the most eloquent speakers I have ever heard."

At the reading the great audience laughed or shed tears in turn while Riley recited his well-known poems, such as "Good-by, Jim," "Down to Old Aunt Mary's," "Didn't You, Charley?" "The Discouraged Farmer," "That Old Sweetheart of Mine," etc.

A LITTLE DUTCHMAN.

I herd a good old German giving his little grandson a lesson in English yesterday, says a writer in the San Francisco Post. The old man sat tilted back in a chair against the sunny side of the house, smoking his pipe, while little Paul played on his lap and the collie Joe frisked about them.

"Come, Yoe; come, Yoe," called the little boy.

The old man knew that Yoe was not the English pronunciation of Joe, so he undertook to correct the little fellow.

"No; gran'pa's boy don't say him right," laughed the old man. "You musn't say 'Yoe.' Say 'Yoe.'"

"Yoe," repeated the child.

"I'm 'fraid Paulie, you vas a Dutchman und can't say 'Yoe.' Now look at gran'pa und say him right. Say 'Yoe.'"

The child watched the old man's mouth and then repeated "Yoe."

"I think, Paulie, your tongue vas too tick. You vas gran'pa's little Dutchman und can't say 'Yoe.'"

Then they both laughed and the little boy called:

SOCIAL PHILOSOPHY.

Two boys were seated on the bleachers that afternoon waiting for the baseball season to be inaugurated, alleges the Detroit Free Press.

"It makes me blood boil wit' indignation," said one of them, "ter see de way we've gotter bow down ter money. We hafter sit out here in Sunstroke avenue while them fellers dat has de price luxuriates in Easy street."

"De're ain't no use er kickin'," was the response. "Dese distinctions has gotter be drawed. De world couldn't git along lessen dey was some difference made. Sposen you want ter go ter de ball game. An' ye tells de man ye're workin' fur dat yer health's failed all of a sudden an' ye feel like ye'd better see a doctor an' go home."

"I allers tells 'im I hafter see me grandmother off on de train."

"It don't make no difference. Sposen' ye get off an' de boss took a notion ter go ter de ball game hisself dat afternoon. DOWN ON CONSULS.

An Old Lady's Indignant Complaint Heard.

It is a hot August day. An elderly lady, blowing like a small tug-boat, puffs into the consulate and casts anchor near the consular desk, says B. H. Ridgely in May Scribners. The elderly lady is evidently "real mad," and although I am innocent of having offended her she looks at me with great severity.

"Can you tell me," she asks, suspiciously, "if in going from Geneva to Paris tonight my baggage will be examined again by those stupid custom house officers?"

"Presumably it will, madame," I reply.

"Well, it's a shame," observes the lady, majestically, "and if you are over here representing the American people you ought to have it stopped. I have had my baggage examined four times since I left Baden Baden. Last night at the Italian frontier they threatened to boil my clothes because I had been in Hamburg, where there is said to be cholera. This morning at Geneva they seemed to be actually searching my trunk for microbes. Why, sir," and the lady grew absolutely splendid in her indignation, "I have never had the cholera in my whole life."

I knew it would be useless to reason with this excellent female, and so I tried diplomacy.

"Alonzo," I said in business-like tones, to my gifted secretary, "make a note of this affair and report it at once."

Alonzo had no idea to whom he was to make his report, but he took copious notes, and the lady went away presently in a better frame of mind. Two days afterward I received a note from her in the following biting terms:

"Paris, August —, 189—.

"Sir: My trunk was examined as usual last night, and if possible more rigidly than before. My opinion is that our so-called consuls are as deceitful as they are incompetent. Yours respectfully,

——."

How Sweet it is to Love.

FLOWERS

Peerless Orchids Found Mostly in Deadly Tropical Swamps.

Many Lives Have Been Sacrificed in an Effort to Get Them.

An Immense Grove of the Demon Flowers Exists in Brazil.

For a brilliant flower which will enhance the beauty of many a fair woman and which will glow with splendid color among floral decorations at costly weddings, men have died in far off savage lands beneath the tropic sun, says the New York Journal.

It is curious that this flower, the orchid—the emblem of death with which the cannibals of the Southern seas deck out victims for their sacrificial feasts—should be the recognized flower of fashion during the days which directly follow the anniversary of the resurrection of our Lord. For it has alone its gorgeous beauty and its rarity to recommend it. Its curiously shaped, rich-hued petals give forth no sweet perfume, for they are either scentless or their odor is unpleasant. But as the diamond is the costliest of precious stones, the orchid is the rarest and most valuable of all flowers. There are some varieties, even, that exist only in tradition, and they have been seen only by savages in the dense tropic forests where they grow.

Yet so great is the pecuniary reward for these rare and wonderful parasitic flowers that men are continually risking and losing their lives in the attempt to obtain the plants which produce them. For it is in the fever-haunted jungles of the lands that lie in the equatorial zone that the most prized and rarest orchids are to be found. To obtain them fearless explorers look death in the face at every turn—death at the hands of cruel, treacherous natives, eaters of human flesh, from fatal miasmas, from noisome serpents and from savage beasts.

Another thing that makes these rare bulbs worth many times their weight in gold is that after the orchid hunter has returned triumphant, perhaps dying, to the coast, the bulbs must be watched and tended unremittingly on the long voyage to Europe, and even then they may die before they have produced more than a single flower, or even none at all.

The rarest of all the varieties of orchids are the blue ones, and the list of these is short indeed, even when those which exist only in the tales of orchid hunters are taken into account. One kind, the blue Calanthe, is said to grow in Burmah. Another, the blue Habenaria, is found in Sikhim, in one of the northern states of British India. The variety has been much sought after, but without success, as the country in which it grows literally swarms with tigers and robbers. In this quarter of Asia, near the frontier between Burmah and China, grows the blue Cypripidium, but this, like the others mentioned, has never been secured and brought to civilization.

A single specimen of the blue and white Cypripidium is known to have reached England, but it has not yet flowered. It was found in Sarawak, in Western Borneo, by a hunter named Ericeson, who describes the flower as having white sepals and petals, with a slender blue stripe down the middle of each, the petals also being dotted with blue at the base. The column of the flower is blue and the wings orange, while the "slipper" ranges in color from the deepest purple to the faintest blue.

PERILS OF THE HUNT.

Ericeson, in hunting this flower, for days folowed a path knee deep in mud, through a swamp, and at night slept standing, propped up against a tree. Every moment of his long march clouds of stinging insects hung about his head, poisonous serpents hissed in the ooze about his feet, and in the dense steaming jungle deadly exhalations rose at every step. When he reached the coast with his treasure it took him some months to recuperate, but at last accounts he had again plunged into the unknown in search of other rare varieties of orchids.

In the Solomon islands is the home of the Renantheras species of orchid, which grows there in every hue. This is another quarter of the globe where cannibalism is still all but unchecked. Explorers say that the natives, when they offer human sacrifices to their savage gods, load the victims with garlands of these gorgeous blossoms. Until spear or knife or flame ends the victim's life these flowers still hang and twine about him, their colors growing richer and deeper hued with his spurting blood.

The white laelia majalis is a kind of orchid, the first specimen of which reached civilization less than a year ago. It grows somewhere in the western part of Mexico, just where the Indians from whom the specimens were obtained will not tell, for they regard the flower as sacred. Centuries ago their forefathers used to decorate their savage temples with it, and now on feast days the Indians place it at the feet of the virgin. It took two years and a vast amount of money and diplomacy to bribe these Indians to part with seven bulbs.

There are many other rare varieties which a score of rich collectors would pay any price for. Among them are the yellow phalaenopsis, which is reported as growing somewhere in the Philippines. Its color is a dull gold. Along the Congo there are many kinds as yet unclassified. Here, too, there are cannibals without number. In Peru there is said to be a golden orchid twelve inches across, and in Venezuela the natives claim to possess an orchid shaped like a dog. In the neighborhood of Medellin, New Granada, is one which the natives name "The Widow," whose snow white flower resembles a duck hanging beak downward, and is almost as large, and in the province of Minas Geras, Brazil, is the Cattleya de Jonghe.

There died in New York a year or so ago a man named Fosterman, who had been one of the most renowned of orchid hunters. Like many others he combined with this business that of capturing wild beasts for the museums and menageries of the great cities of Europe. Coming to New York to live, he was an almost daily visitor of Charles Thorley, the florist, and it was at his place one night that Fosterman told this curious tale:

Landing on the coast of Brazil, a few degrees south of the equator, he met a native chief, who told him of a "village of the demon flowers" to the westward. Further questioning convinced Fosterman that the "demon flowers" were orchids of the rarest and most wonderful kind, so he decided to find this "village" at any cost. "It is useless," said the chief. "You will never return alive. Devils live within those strange blossoms and devils immuneable guard them. They move from place to place, and to approach them is certain death. It has been thus since the days of my remotest ancestors. I myself did once come unknowingly near this awful place, and some of my young men, who heeded not the legends of their fathers and attempted to enter it died, and their bones lie there where they fell to this day. The awful demons of the air breathed in their nostrils, and they died."

THE DEMON'S OWN FLOWER.

Fosterman had traveled through forests about six weeks, and was calculating that in a fortnight more he should be in the neighborhood of the "village of the demon flowers," when, one afternoon, three of his vanguard threw up their arms, and with a cry, fell senseless to the ground. Fosterman had noticed a peculiar sickening odor pervading the heavy, heated air, and now gave the order for the other men to advance with caution and drag back the three fallen ones from the spot where they lay. They did so, and returning, reported, with awe-struck faces, that they had seen through the forest, a little further on, the vast "village of the demon flowers" that Fosterman sought. It was the demon's breath, they said, which had stricken down their comrades, and they would go no further.

Accompanied only by his Portuguese interpreter, Fosterman started forward, their mouths and noses muffled as a safeguard against the awful odor. They managed to reach the spot where the three men had been stricken down, but could go no further. They could see 100 rods ahead of them a great mass of orchids. Trees, undergrowth and everything were loaded down with them. They were of hues more brilliant than any Fosterman, experienced collector that he was, had ever seen or dreamed of seeing. But like an unseen barrier, the wall of awful, sickening, overpowering odor rose between. Fosterman and his companion retired a little way, and when they could safely tear the bandages from their mouths, Fosterman cried: "If we can get at those flowers it will make us rich for life."

It was of no avail. The mass of brilliant orchids might have been a mirage painted on the clouds, so far as reaching them was concerned. The "village" was perhaps an acre in extent, and Fosterman and his companion made a complete circuit of it, but everywhere rose the awful odor. At last, almost crying with the bitterness of his disappointment, Fosterman gave it up and returned with his companion to the rest of his party.

The odor, Fosterman explained, was simply the odor of this vast mass of orchids. It is a curious fact that, though many orchids are almost scentless, the handsomest ones have a most unbearable smell. When millions of them are collected in a small space their stench, as can easily be imagined, becomes simply intolerable and is literally fatal when long inhaled.

AN ORCHID EXPEDITION.

Returning to London, Fosterman told this wondrous tale to some of the rich orchid collectors, and an expedition was organized to go in search of it. Fosterman was ill and could not go. The expedition found the exact spot that Fosterman indicated, and identified it by marks that he had blazed upon the trees. But of the great colony of orchids there was not a sign. They were returning to the coast in disgust, and when about half way back they stumbled upon the very mass of orchids of which they were in search. But, like Fosterman, they gave up in despair of ever being able to more than feast their eyes upon the flowers through their field glasses. And there, somewhere in the depths of the vast tropic forest, they remain to this day.

But how could this great mass of flowers have migrated bodily over 200 miles? The only way Fosterman could explain the mystery was this: The orchid is an epiphyte, or air plant, and wherever the pollen of its blossoms finds lodgment, there the plant grows and blossoms and dies. In this particular case the plants had probably all flowered at the same time, and the wind, by some strange freak, must have blown the flower germs in a cloud so that they all found lodgment together miles further in each season, thus moving the great distance they had in about two years.

A JAY MANAGER.

How He Embarrassed Fair Lillian Lewis.

During Lillian Lewis's recent short tour through the South she played in one of the cities in "Credit Lorraine," and the play, star, and company made an immense hit, says the New York Sun. The local manager was wild with enthusiasm, and, as the company was to lay off the next night, induced Miss Lewis to stay and play the second night in his city.

"What will you give me to play?"

"The first $250 that comes in."

"Well, do you think it will come in?" asked the clever actress, who is also very much in de sleede in business matters.

"Without a doubt," replied the local art censor.

"Very good, then, I will stay and risk it. Two hundred and fifty dollars will cover my salaries, and that's all my expenses, if I stay."

Bright and early the local manager hustled out a dodger, telling his people that Lillian Lewis, adorned with a $20,000 diamond necklace, would appear in "As a Looking Glass," and stated further that only Lewis and Langtry had ever played the part of the dear, delightful, naughty Lena. Night came, and a $40 house (all men) came with it. The manager was in despair, dressed immaculately in an evening dress, a huge boutonniere in his lapel. He rapped on the door of the eccentric star's dressing room.

"Come in."

Perspiringly mopping his face, he bowed to the smiling actress to kill.

"Good gracious! You look awfully hot. Anything wrong, eh?"

"The house," gasped the manager.

"Ah, turning them away? So glad!"

"No, $40."

"Heavens."

"I've done everything in my power, see," pulling out of his pocket a specimen of the dodger. "Got 5000 of them out early, and put them in every house, office and store in the city. I looked after the work myself."

The lady slowly pulled off her gloves. "So the play the beautiful Langtry, the great Lillian Lewis, and the $20,000 worth of diamonds could only draw a $40 house." Then her eyes fell on the dodger. "Good gracious, man, look at that!"

"Where? What?"

"Why, don't you see," howled the tragedienne, "that you've advertised me as appearing as 'Lena Despard,' wearing only a $20,000 diamond necklace and nothing else. Oh! Oh!!"

You could have played marbles on the local manager's coat tail as he flew round the box office. The noisy $40 house was as quietly dismissed as a congregation after benediction, and the very mad and hysterical star was driven to her hotel in a carriage and put to bed.

Permission has been granted by the health department for the reopening of the Adams school and the Polish Catholic parochial school, both of which were closed on account of cases of diphtheria. The disease has been effectually stamped out. Of the eleven cases reported, all but two have entirely recovered, and they are convalescent. The disease was in a very mild form, and there has been but one death, in which case no physician was summoned until a few hours before the end.

To Bridge the Chasm.

An effort is to be made by the mayor to bring to an end the present unsatisfactory condition in the department matters at New Duluth. Letters were today addressed to Dr. McCuen, leader of the Reindl-Shaw faction, and O. D. Kruger, who leads the Miller forces, inviting them to a conference at the city hall Tuesday afternoon. The mayor hopes that he can bring about a bridging of the chasm in the volunteer company caused by the retirement by the commissioners of Reindl and Shaw, who had acted as engineer and watchman respectively, and the appointment of Miller to act in both capacities.

To Be Independent.

There is a movement on foot among the members of St. John's Episcopal Mission church at Lakeside to place the church on an independent footing, and to that end one meeting has already been held, at which, however, no action was taken. Another meeting will be held in the near future. It is the earnest desire of many of the parishioners to place St. John's on an independent footing.

Lester river falls were never as beautiful as now. Lakeside cars will run every twenty minutes on Sunday.

THE BISHOP CONCERT.

Fine Musicale at the Methodist Church.

The concert by Mrs. Genevra Johnstone-Bishop at the First Methodist church last evening marked the close of the Star lecture course, and now is perhaps the proper time to thank the lecture committee for the fine course of entertainments which it provided at such a low price. The entire course was remarkable for its excellence, the lecturers were the most noted of the country and the musical attractions were of the very finest. It is pleasing to know that the committee is already arranging a course for next year, and that it has not lowered the standard, so that the entertainments next year will be equally excellent.

Mrs. Bishop is one of the very best sopranos Duluth has heard. Her voice is remarkable for its purity and flexibility. It has great natural excellence, and admirable training has made it superb in quality. Her whole soul seems to enter into the song and deeply moves the hearers. In shading and in crescendo and diminuendo she has wonderful control. Her opening number was the most elaborate and was a gem. She sang the aria from the opera, "Gabriella," by Camillo Pizzi. The song, "Visions," with violin obligato by Mr. Flaaten, was a beautiful number. For one of her encores she sang "Ben Bolt," and it was one of the choicest of her numbers.

Mrs. John Loman played Mrs. Bishop's accompaniments, and the faultless manner in which they were given, and they were difficult, attracted much attention. Mrs. Loman also played the opening number, an organ solo, "Rosemunde," by Schubert, and it was admirably rendered.

Master Hawkins Jacobson, the boy soprano, covered himself with glory. He sang "Ave Maria," by Bach-Gounod. It is a heavy number, but he sang it without a falter or break and reached a high note that quite startled the audience, so true, clear and full was it. It is apparent that he has the soul of an artist, for without it no amount of drilling could make him sing as he did last night. His voice shows the effect of excellent training. He was encored and repeated the number.

Miss Bradshaw sang "Songs We Used to Sing," by Mascheroni, with violin obligato by Mr. Flaaten. It is a fine number and it was admirably sung. For an encore she sang the old but ever popular "Genevieve."

Frank M. Stephenson sang Dudley Buck's "Salve Regina," a magnificent number. He received an enthusiastic encore and sang "Thou Art Like Unto a Flower," by Rubinstein.

Mark C. Baker sang an "a, b and c" number, the compositions being "After Sorrow's Night," by Rotoll; "The Princess" and "Good Morning," by Grieg. They were all excellently sung.

A trio by Miss Bradshaw, Mr. Baker and Mr. Stephenson concluded the program. They sang "The Mariners," by Randegger.

Installation Service.

There will be an installation service at the Glen Avon church on Wednesday evening, May 13, at 8 o'clock. The pastor-elect, Rev. Wilson Auld, will then be formally inducted into office. Rev. Dr. T. H. Cleland will preach the sermon; Rev. W. C. Hackett, moderator of Duluth presbytery will ask the constitutional questions; Rev. A. H. Carver will deliver the charge to the pastor and the pastor and the congregation will be charged by Rev. G. E. Keithley. This service is held on Wednesday evening so that members of other churches may attend without missing their own mid-week prayer meeting.

BIG SALES

Two Pieces of Superior Street Property Were Transferred Today.

J. B. Maltby and C. F. Houghton, of Corning, N. Y., the Purchasers.

Price Paid Was About One Thousand Dollars a Foot.

Two sales of Superior street property were made today, and in both cases the purchasers were out of town capitalists. The deals are advantageous ones, both for the sellers and the buyers. The price paid was $1000 a foot in each case, and this is the same value that has prevailed in nearly all sales which have been made in the same vicinity within the past three or four years, which goes to show that Duluth property is holding its own.

The Beckman block, between Second and Third avenues west, occupied by the St. James' hotel, was sold by R. M. Hunter to James B. Maltby, of Corning, N. Y. The price paid was $52,500. Mr. Maltby has been here for two or three days. He recently purchased the McDougall half of the Norris-McDougall block, and has had his eye on the St. James' property for some time.

The other piece sold was the fifty feet adjoining the Burrows block. The owner is Charlotte L. Mills, of California, and the purchaser is Charles F. Houghton, of Corning, N. Y. Mr. Houghton owns a great deal of Duluth property, among which is half the Mesaba block, the building occupied by the gas and water company, and the J. M. Geist store. Mrs. Mills, who sold the property, bought it thirty years ago for $50. She has been getting more than $2000 a year rental from it.

Both of these men bought the property as investments, and do not contemplate any immediate improvement, although they may eventually build.

ABUSE THEIR DOGS.

Henry Haskins is After Some People.

If there be those who think the lot of an officer is a happy one, they should have been allowed to accompany Humane Officer Haskins in his wild race through the railroad yards under a broiling sun this morning, that they might have quaffed the cup of bliss to the full. People living along the line of the St. Paul & Duluth tracks from Sixth avenue west to Twenty-eighth avenue west, have for some time observed with indignation the torture to which the urchins living in the latter vicinity subject unfortunate canines in their possession. It is the practice among numerous of the poorer families to send their children out along the tracks after fuel.

The latter utilize dogs to drag the loads, hitching them up to cars that would carry a ton of hay, loading the vehicles to the limit and then belaboring the poor brutes mercilessly in their efforts to force them to draw loads that would bother a small horse.

Officer Haskins' attention was called to the matter, and he started out this morning to course up and down between the hot cinder path between the blistering rails in pursuit of the young fiends. He had not returned at noon.

BOAT EXCURSIONS.

Booth Line Will Run to Two Harbors Tomorrow.

Hot, is it not? You can find no one to disagree with you on that subject today. It is indeed warm, and there is no necessity of looking at the thermometer to find out, either. The question is, how to get away from the heat. There has been an incessant drain upon the soda water fountains, and gallons upon gallons of cold drinks have found their way through thirsty lips. But the effect is only temporary, and one cannot continue to swallow ice cream sodas always.

To this state of the weather enters Manager John Coventry, of the Booth Packing company, in the role of deliverer. He has arranged a double excursion by lake to Two Harbors on the steamers Dixon and Hunter, leaving at 10 a. m. and 2 p. m., returning at 5 p. m. Tickets are 50 cents.

MUST HAVE A LICENSE.

Executive Agent Fullerton, of the fish and game commission, has just been called upon to decide an interesting case regarding a squaw man in the Lake Superior region. The man claims, or rather the United States disbursing agent claims for him, that since the government treaty by which these Indians took their land in severalty exempts them from the provisions against fishing in certain places for twenty-five years, and this man, Peter Gagnon, is married to a squaw who maintains her tribal relations, has taken land, and should be allowed to fish on Lake Superior without a license. Mr. Fullerton holds that he must have a license.

MOTHERS ARE AROUSED.

New Duluth Women Incensed at Tobacco Sellers.

New Duluth parents are complaining that some conscienceless dealers in that locality are dispensing tobacco to their children. A lady residing there today complained to Humane Officer Haskins that a merchant had been selling snuff to her two boys, one of whom is aged 12, and the other 4 years. She was naturally highly incensed over the matter and anxious that the offender be arrested and prosecuted. No names are forthcoming at present, but the matter is being investigated and an exposure to the chilling air of public reprobation may follow, it is said.

Indignation meetings have been held by the mothers in the neighborhood and it was even proposed to mete out to one dealer the fate that Skipper Ireson, of notorious memory, met at the hands of the women of Marblehead. Wiser counsels have prevailed, however, through the exertions of the cooler heads, and the law will be invoked to deal out punishment.

MINNESOTA HISTORICAL SOCIETY.

A GRAND FREE ART FESTIVAL

For the people at the Head of the Lakes. The World-Famous Montana Silver Statue will be at FREIMUTH'S STORE Duluth.

Dimensions of the Statue: Height, 9 feet; weight, 97,000 ounces, of pure silver, valued at $64,800, with gold base valued at $224,000, making a total value as seen at the World's Fair of $288,000 worth of precious metal.

The Statue comes to Duluth in a special car under an armed escort, and as its enormous weight and great intrinsic value requires great care in handling, a special outfit for loading, unloading and placing it in position is carried along with it.

This peerless statue of Ada Rehan, representing "JUSTICE," is the product of Montana's genius and enterprise; it is the marvel of the age and proved the leading feature of the World's Fair and the Atlanta Exhibition. Its enormous intrinsic value of nearly $290,000 merely accentuates the immensity of the exhibit. The expense of bringing the Statue to Duluth and giving the people at the head of the lakes an opportunity to view this masterpiece of art of the century is a very large one, but it is only another proof of the great enterprise and sagacity of Duluth's Most Popular Store.

THE FAMOUS MONTANA SILVER STATUE

GOSSIP OF ★ ★ THE STAGE.

"Sinbad," the best and biggest of all David Henderson's productions, will be seen here at the Duluth Lyceum on Monday and Tuesday nights next week. The American Extravaganza company, which will present this famous piece, is universally regarded as the foremost organization of its kind in this country, if not in the world. It has been seen for the last ten years only in the large cities of the country, such as New York, Boston, Philadelphia, St. Louis, Denver, San Francisco, and its own home, Chicago. "Sinbad" has really had a most marvelous career. It has been given, it is said, nearly seventeen hundred times, and during its present tour in California its record of the enormous business of the past is unbroken. The music of "Sinbad" was written by W. Batchelor, and the scenario of the piece is by Frederick Dangerfield. "Sinbad" come here with what is regarded as the best and most evenly balanced organization that David Henderson has ever had.

Miss Louise Elssing is regarded as one of the best impersonators of boys' parts in the country, and Miss Frankie Raymond is universally regarded as one of the foremost comedians in this line of business. Both play their original parts in the piece. Oscar Girard is one of the comedians of the company, and he has proved himself, according to all accounts, one of the best, if not the best, who has ever occupied this position in the Henderson organization. The rest of the company includes such names as Martha Ralnsford, Hugh Chilvers, a baritone who has been identified with the finest grand opera and comic opera companies of Europe; Miss Willard, Miss Flora Evans, of London, J. L. Gullinette, Henry Carter, Harry Blaney, who has quite a record as an acrobatic comedian, Messrs. Turner and Murphy, two of the best specialty performers in this country, Signor Bianciforti, Mlle. Ferrero and over eighty others.

The ballet scene in "Sinbad" is one of the most original and impressive scenes ever put upon the stage in this country. It is supposed to occur in the "Frozen Valley of Diamonds." The whole scene is lighted by electric calciums, and throws out the beauties of the scene in a most artistic way. A cold blue light illuminates the frosted rocks, while over the summits of the snow-clad mountains which form the back-ground, a winter sunset helps to heighten the beauty of the picture. The dancing is very original. The dancers represent skaters, sleighers, tobogganers, snow-flakes, icicles and other features of Jack Frost's domain. The music is the composition of W. Batchelor, and is said to be a marvelous piece of work, illustrating the action and movement of the figures of the scene. Another great feature of "Sinbad" is the procession of nations in which the ladies of the company represent delegations from different nations of the world. They are clad in costumes designed by Howell Russell, of London.

The story follows the "Arabian Nights" tale with terrible fidelity, though some liberties have been taken with the original text in order to make a good acting version. All the essential elements of the story have been retained, such as the Valley of Diamonds, the Old Man of the Sea, the cannibals, the shipwreck, the pigmy island, and other familiar details of the most popular of Oriental yarns. The principal ballet is fantastic in design and arrangement. A splendid procession is a spectacular feature of the fourth act. The wedding of Sinbad and Ninetta is about to take place and a procession of guests from all nations arrives, bringing gifts for the bride, which, however, fall into the hands of the rapacious smuggler Snarleyow, while his cohorts' stomachs absorb the wedding breakfast. The dresses in the procession are said to be of great beauty and attractive in design. In the pigmy island scene an attractive effect is a war dance of cannibals, which culminates in the capture of the smuggler, who is about to be eaten, when he frightens the aborigines with a change of location of the terrors of the Bogie Man. The principal scenes of the four acts are well diversified, the first being a seaport town with a view of the ocean, this being followed by the smuggler's ship, a vision of the ocean depths, a tropical island, the Diamond Valley, the terraced interior of Sinbad's palace, and the final tableau by Dangerfield, the "Origin of the Harp."

MATINEE GIRL'S IDOLS.

Actors' Salaries Are Regulated By Feminine Admiration.

Many clever and witty remarks have been lightly made at the expense of the matinee girl with her fads and fancies, heroes and hero worship, her reckless extravagance in photographs, flowers and adjectives; but all the same the experienced manager knows that no business venture is so safe for him as a contract with one of the reigning idols of feminine fancy, writes Marion Depew. The rising actor also is not long in discovering that there is a singularly obvious relation between the extent of his salary and his powers of charming the fair sex; and that if he desires to hair the dazzling drip of the shekels he must make for himself a secure stronghold in the hearts of romantic maidens. In point of fact, the matinee girl cuts a decidedly more important figure in the shrewd world of finance than in the picturesque realm of romance.

Indeed, women as a whole constitute the potent factor in determining the popularity of matters theatrical. It is she more who casts the deciding vote, and actor or actress who has lost prestige with women (I have in mind a certain actress now) will soon be playing to empty houses. No matter how enraptured a man may be with an actress, he takes his wife where she wishes to go. It is always the mother who decides where the daughter shall be taken, and in the case of theater parties the choice of plays invariably rests with ladies.

"CUPID" IN SINBAD.

Women do not by any means confine their hero worship to Romeos, Siegfrieds and Rudolphs, but include in it as well the Juliets, Rosalinds and Marguerites, and are often quite as generous with notes and flowers to some feminine idol as to their robust ideals of manly beauty and perfection. Mrs. Kendal owes her vogue in America largely to the enthusiastic admiration of women, and men have not been more strenuous than women in laying laurels at the feet of Duse.

No better example of the substantial influences of the matinee girl can be cited than the career of John Drew. His run in New York this winter has been something extraordinary. A great deal has been said of the important metropolitan engagements of Nethersole, Bernhardt, Duse, Rehan and others. But John Drew without any apparent effort or special role for popularity has a record that beats any one of them many times over. He has appeared at so many different theaters that one scarcely realizes that he has been playing perpetually in New York for a good six months. Choosing society plays of a more or less light and flimsy character, and making no claims to greatness, he nevertheless seems to be the only actor that can go on playing much after a month in New York to full houses. It is one of those inexplicable things incapable of analysis, and the reason for it can be found only in matrons' hearts and matinee girls' affections.

It is sometimes difficult to separate the personality of the actor from the character of his roles and decide which constitutes the veritable lodestone. But in the case of John Drew his popularity obviously rests in his personality; for with his silick hair, strong, salient muscle, supple, flexible hands, he is always the same. Dressed in perfect taste, pleasant, clean, refined, finished, he never looks or behaves like an actor, but is always on the stage the same attractive, interesting society man that he appears at the 5 o'clock teas, which he so much frequents.

On the other hand, Prince Karl, quite independent of Mansfield, enjoyed a tremendous vogue at one time with the matinee girl. I chanced to know one of them whose heart was given over to his royal highness, and who went unending time to see him. But while he reigned alone as the hero of her youthful day dreams, she stoutly maintained that Mansfield had nothing to do with it.

It is a melancholy fact that when actors of certain special types become passe with the matinee girl their halcyon days are over, and they are relegated to less important roles—the quondam lover becoming friend, rival or counselor—with a corresponding depletion in their exchequers. There are several such declasse actors in all our large cities. Men who play with much more intelligence and greater refinement than of old, and certainly dress their parts as perfectly; but their heyday with the matinee girl being over, they become at once of less value to managers.

Let the young adored Sothern assume what role he will, and his managers can safely count upon three full matinees a week. Charming, graceful, with a touch of the heroic, Sothern possesses in addition that nameless something that ensnares tender feminine enthusiasms. I suppose there could be no estimating the number of pretty dressing tables in this great republic that his photograph adorns, and a peep into his own charming suite in New York, which he occupies with his brother, would still further endear him to his enthusiastic feminine admirers. Here we find him ensconced in apartments furnished with all the daintiness, refinement and exquisite taste of the most aesthetical minded young woman.

Neither Mr. Frohman nor Mr. Daly were unmindful of the matinee girl in making up their dramatis personae for the present season, and the tall and blonde Mr. Hackett, who made his debut in "The Home Secretary," shares with Mr. Richmond, of Daly's, the conquest of the maiden hearts of '96.

Even the great Sardou is willing to make concessions to the needs of the matinee girl, and has just gracefully yielded a point to the chic Parisian demoiselles. Several young women belonging to the best Parisian society have long been very desirous of seeing Coquelin in Thermidor, at the Porte St. Martin, but have always been told by their chaperones that the piece was "not written for young girls." As the only parts that could offend were contained in the coarse expressions made use of by the characters in regard to the maternity of Fabrienne, these young women wrote imploring notes to Sardou asking that the play be altered so as to be suitable for their inexperienced ears. The great author, though amused, excised the offending passages, and the adored Coquelin now finds himself playing daily and nightly to bright, youthful faces.

A GRACEFUL DANCER.

Always Attended By Her Mother and Sister.

It was a delightfully cosy family party that the visitor beheld as she pushed open the door of Miss Mabel Clarke's dressing room behind the scenes at the Park theater, says a feminine writer in the Philadelphia Times. On a trunk sat the mother of the graceful dancer, putting in a few stitches to the exquisite brocaded sash on one of her daughter's pretty gowns. Miss Gertrude Clarke, the "Jill" of the pas de quatre, was wrestling with the obstinate high boots she wears as a member of the City Troop, while Philadelphia's graceful and favored child of Terpsichore, the dark-eyed Mabel, was in the act of heating tongs in the gas, her winsome wavy hair which looked so naturally curly being produced by those agents of the toilet, safety kids and the aforesaid tongs.

Around the room enveloped in great white sheets were the billowy gowns and petticoats that add so much to the fascination of movement when the childish figure whisks before the footlights. "How much lace do you suppose is on these bloomers?" queried the writer, woman's natural curiosity getting the better of her politeness.

"I really don't know," laughed the wielder of the tongs as she critically examined her make-up in the glass. "Mamma makes all my things, how much is there do you think?" Before this weighty question could be solved Mrs. Clarke gave the desired information in the statement that thirty-eight yards were used in these garments, while as many as sixty-five frequently appeared on the lovely fluffy petticoats.

To those who imagine that Miss Clarke wears tights beneath this cloud of filmy lace it may be surprising to hear that opera length stockings are preferred by her, as the tights would resist her movements unless they were worn loosely and such an arrangement, as every woman knows, is, while comfortable, certainly unlovely. Standing before the mirror this 18-year-old sylph looked as though she might be the younger sister of Theresa Vaughan, the likeness having, as Mrs. Clarke said, being the talk of New York city when Miss Mabel was there with the E. E. Rice forces. "And how about admirers?" was the question prompted by this sight of dainty femininity. Here the dancer blushed, even through the layer of rouge so carefully laid on as she modestly replied: "Oh, of course, there is always candy and flowers." "Mabel is a great favorite with society girls and college boys," her mother put in, smiling at her daughter's embarrassment. "In Providence I had an entirely new stand of her photographs completely stripped by the boys. Some were her afterward and told her they had them, though that didn't help to get them back."

"Mamma always puts the college colors on my gown when we play in a university town and it takes immensely."

"Of course, as you are being interviewed you must tell of your impressions of the stage and stage people," dutifully suggested the writer, though it seemed almost ridiculous to put such a question seriously to the young girl, who was hurrying into a gown that made her look even more like a lively French doll than a full-fledged dancer being asked for experiences. "I have only been in the profession three years, but I think the people of the stage heavenly. We have some charming friends among them and I love my life, though I am always glad to get back to Philadelphia." Mrs. Clarke and Miss Gertrude echoed this sentiment, all three telling of their home on Twelfth street, in which the little Mabel first capered on her tiny toes long before she ever thought of dancing in public.

"And have you no fads?"

"Oh, yes, I love fine perfumes, soaps and dainty lingerie. Do you know if mamma did not stop me I would spend half my salary on these," and a laughing glance was cast over her shoulder to where Mrs. Clarke was giving assistance to her other daughter in her preparations for the shopping chorus. "Mamma" is evidently an oracle in whom Miss Mabel believes implicitly and her chaperonage and constant care keeps the two daughters far removed from the atmosphere that the unknowing think must be lived in from the moment the stage is adopted as a profession. The second act call, and the visitor departed to ponder over the real domesticity that strangely enough she had discovered in a dancer's dressing room.

BESSIE BONEHILL.

How She Obtains Comfort on the Trains.

Did you ever notice how much real comfort an actress takes out of her nomadic existence? In a hotel or on a sleeper the average actress abrogates to herself all the means offered for making the brief stay or prolonged trip less irksome, and it may be said that she often goes about it as if there was no one else in the world.

Bessie Bonehill, the clever little burlesquer, who successfully transplanted herself from the hearts of the English to the American public, and is the bright feminine star in Rice's "Little Christopher," is an exper traveler. It is in the hope that some lay woman may profit by this veteran tourist's experience that a short account of how Miss Bonehill spends a night and day on a Pullman is given.

In the first place her satchel is large, and as she learned to be a good packer she carries in it a house jacket for use in the day time, when she removes her corset, replacing it with a corset waist. That is made of black pongee silk, as is a dressing gown that she wears when going to the dressing room, and both are capable of being compressed into the smallest possible space. In separate compartments are her manicure set, tooth powder, brushes, eau de cologne, salts, etc. A sponge in an oiled silk bag with her soaps is a prime necessity, for Miss Bonehill insists on taking her morning bath even on a Pullman, and to accomplish this she arises early and pre-empts the dressing room for an hour or more to the entire exclusion of all other women in the car. A little traveling clock, toilery, lingerie and other odds and ends of femininity take up all the room left in the satchel.

She makes the porter do all manner of things for her. In the day time he must bring her pillows, a table, footstool and tell her what is the next stop and just how far she is from her destination twenty times a day and has her little clock on the window sill so see that he makes no mistake. He must reserve a table for her in the dining car, and get her a glass of fresh milk whenever the train stops at some pretty little country village, for all of which he is liberally feed at the end of the journey. The newsboy leaves his entire stock in trade for her perusal, and the conductor even comes in for his share of satisfying Miss Bonehill's insatiable thirst for knowledge and comfort.

At night the berth must be made up early with the head to the rear of the train so that she may ride feet foremost and not backwards. When she awakens it is the duty of the porter to raise the upper berth so that she may make her toilet with less discomfort and when she reaches her journey's end Miss Bonehill comes out of the hot and dusty Pullman as fresh as a daisy in both mind and body.

PEOPLE OF THE STAGE.

Duse Will Return to Europe Next Week.

It was Mme. Duse's intention to return to Europe today, but owing to the illness of her maid she has postponed her departure for a week. This maid, who has been with Duse for some years, was taken ill on the road and had to be brought to New York to have an operation performed. Duse had taken her at once to a private hospital and has promised the girl, who was in despair at the prospect of being left in this country alone, that she will not leave until she is able to undertake the voyage. The doctors say that the maid will be able to stand the voyage next week. Schumann, Mme. Duse's personal manager, has returned to Paris with a flea in his ear. Duse is just beginning to realize that her refusal to see her managers in person has caused almost ridiculous to put such a question seriously to the young girl, who was hurrying into a gown that made her look even more like a lively French doll than a full-fledged dancer being asked for experiences. "I have only been in the profession three years, but I think the people of the stage heavenly. We have some charming friends among them and I love my life, though I am always glad to get back to Philadelphia." Mrs. Clarke and Miss Gertrude echoed this sentiment, all three telling of their home on Twelfth street, in which the little Mabel first capered on her tiny toes long before she ever thought of dancing in public.

"And have you no fads?"

"Oh, yes, I love fine perfumes, soaps and dainty lingerie. Do you know if mamma did not stop me I would spend half my salary on these," and a laughing glance was cast over her shoulder to where Mrs. Clarke was giving assistance to her other daughter in her preparations for the shopping chorus. "Mamma" is evidently an oracle in whom Miss Mabel believes implicitly and her chaperonage and constant care keeps the two daughters far removed from that atmosphere that the unknowing think must be lived in from the moment the stage is adopted as a profession. The second act call, and the visitor departed to ponder over the real domesticity that strangely enough she had discovered in a dancer's dressing room.

Kate Claxton's oldest daughter is 24 years old, married and living in Paris.

Henry Irving's son, who married Dorothea Baird, the English Trilby, against his father's wishes, is coming to this country next season with his wife, and the two will act here in Wilson Barrett's play, "The Sign of the Cross."

Olga Nethersole, who sailed for Europe last week, will play eight weeks in London, after which it is not unlikely that she will play in Paris, Berlin, Frankfort, Vienna and Buda Pesth. It is her intention to return to this country next November and to make several productions of new plays. As a result of her Kansas City cycle practice, she took an American wheel home with her.

A New York paper tells of the melancholy experience that befell Marie Wells, whom it describes as a "pretty society belle, who came from Missouri a few months ago to study for the stage." Recently Miss Wells was persuaded to give her photograph to a friend, who said he would have it reproduced in a dramatic paper with a notice that would be of benefit to her in securing an engagement. The picture appeared the other day, but by an error the notice accompanying it stated that she was well known in farce comedies and light operas and would shortly appear on the Vaudeville stage with a partner in a singing and dancing act. Miss Wells has since been in a semi-hysterical condition and has spent a small fortune in telegrams to friends and relatives denying the statement in the article.

The New York Evening World tells this story: Mrs. Isabelle Coe McKee delights in housekeeping. While spring cleaning recently she discovered that she was short on feathers. She immediately went on a feather shopping tour. That evening when her husband returned home, she exclaimed: "Frank, I got the greatest bargain today. I bought the greatest lot of feathers you ever saw. And so cheap, too!"

"That's good," was the laconic commendation from Frank.

The next day, when the stuffing process was over Mrs. McKee was pained to discover that she had over estimated her bargain and still lacked feathers. So the day following she again went down town and bought more.

She said nothing when her husband returned in the evening; but little Isabelle, aged 7 immediately took her father into the domestic confidence.

"Oh, papa!" she exclaimed; "mamma didn't have enough feathers and had to buy a lot more today."

Her mother flushed, but Frank only smiled and observed: "That's good."

Horror upon horrors! The next day the supply of feathers was still short and another purchase was necessary. Mrs. McKee is sensitive to her husband's humor; so to prevent any further sarcastic observations, she called little Isabelle to her, when the feathers were brought home.

"Isabelle," said the mother severely, "if you say anything about feathers when your papa comes home tonight, I'll chastise you."

When Frank came home that night there was an unusual calm, an especial reserve in the manner of the little girl. It continued at the dinner table. Finally, to break it silence. Mr. McKee addressed his daughter and asked: "How are the feathers today Isabelle?"

"Feathers," echoed the child, in earnest tones. "For the Lord's sake, what's feathers?"

A European performer calling himself Fregoli, who is coming to America to entertain the music hall audiences, promises a novel performance. He is a lightning change artist of remarkable skill and resource. In one of his plays, a one-act piece, there are eleven characters, and he plays them all himself and effects his changes of costume and make up with such unheard of rapidity that the characters come and go upon the stage with hardly an instant's interval, and the plot and action run on practically uninterruptedly, as though a company, not one man, were acting the play. "El Dorado," one of the most popular selections from his repertoire, and in which he will probably make his debut tells the story of a manager's troubles with his troupe, and introduces, besides the manager his German prima donna, French tenor clown, "character artist," a serpentine dancer and her mother, an "eccentric duetist," and the rest of his company, all of whom come in to badger the financially distressed manager, who endeavors to escape from them through doors and behind scenes. Fregoli not only acts all the various parts, but the extraordinary quality of his voice enables him to sing the bass barytone, tenor and soprano music in his operatic sketches. Some of his plays or operas last over two hours. At the various entrances are a dozen or more skilled assistants, who, as he passes out one door, change his costume as he passes in an instant later, at the next.

"Sister Mary Jane's Top Note" is the song success of the moment in London. It is sung by a little Miss Freear, in the character of a slatternly servant in "The Gay Parisienne," and is the particular bit of the performance.

Thomas Q. Seabrooke and Elva Crox, whom divorce is about to put asunder, were married nearly thirteen years ago. Seabrooke has made no answer to his wife's suit.

"Capt. Kidd, Coin Collector," is the name of a new comic opera by unknowns that was recently tried in New England.

Irene Perry, who was a very young, pretty and popular comic opera and burlesque actress when she left the stage ten years ago, has returned to the footlights again. In 1885 she married Albert Weber, of the piano maker family, and went into domesticity. Weber, who had plenty of money, cared more for his reputation as a man-about-town than for anything else and he soon tired of little Irene. He gave her a home, which he seldom entered and he cultivated other stage women so assiduously that he became much celebrated therefor and his lonely wife often read scandals of him in the newspapers. He seems to have been a pretty complete cad and blackguard. A year or so ago he sent her to Europe, agreeing to send her $40 a week. After keeping this promise for just two and a half weeks, he stopped the allowance, and only the kindness of friends enabled her to get back. Recently she sued for divorce and returned to the stage. She is now playing in "Excelsior Jr."

Calve sang six-y-three times in America, this season, and was paid $100,000 for it.

"Happy" Ward's marriage to Lucy Daly, the dancer, makes a sort of an Evans & Hoey combination of Ward & Vokes. Vokes' wife is Lucy Daly's sister Maggie.

Louis James's tour, under the management of Wagenhals & Kemper, ended last night at Columbus, O., Mr. Wagenhals' home. The Dramatic Mirror says that Wagenhals & Kemper have about completed arrangements for the purchase of "Spartacus, the Gladiator," from the Bird estate of Philadelphia, and expect to make a production of the play with Mr. James next season.

American managers and agents who have inspected the London production of the Gilbert & Sullivan opera, "The Grand Duke," declare emphatically that it will not do for this country and so far no one has secured the American rights.

Probably John C. Rice will play Charles E. Evans' old character of I. McCorker, the book agent, in "A Parlor Match" next season. "Old Hoss" Hoey has been engaged for his famous character and the second act is to be full of specialty acts.

Do you vaguely remember reading something about a San Francisco "society" woman who took a dramatic company to Alaska? Well, she was Mrs. Louise F. Auzerais then and had just inherited half a million from her father. She was stage struck. She appeared amateurly in a comedy, "Love on Crutches," and was so charmed with her success that she decided to join the ranks of the professionals. She got together a sort of an amateur-professional company and made the Alaskan trip, which was a dead failure. Mrs. Azurerais then got a divorce from her husband, who was studying sculpture in Paris, and wasn't interested enough to even file an answer to her suit. She immediately married Hereward Hoyte, an English actor who had been with her in the Alaskan venture. A few weeks later he beat her, but the police quieted him. Last week she made her debut as a professional actress at the Alcazar theater in San Francisco and the kindly papers said that "she has some talent, but it is hardly fair to judge a beginner on her first appearance. She did not offend, certainly, if she did nothing which was beyond the ability of a great number of actresses who are not notable. She has an attractive figure for the stage." If her Hereward still bears her it is held as strictly confidential by both of them. He carried her pug dog to the theater Monday night.

THE BICYCLE WORLD.

Saturday, May 30, will be not only Memorial day, but it will be the date of the greatest bicycle road race Duluth has ever had. For a number of years the annual Memorial day road race has been a fixture in Duluth, but the way things look now the event will become still more popular after this season, for the one this year will be away above anything that has been attempted here before.

The lists are not yet open, but it is said that there will be fifty starters at least, and a number of them will be closely matched for the prizes. Those from outside will form quite a sizable phalanx, and there will be some crack riders among the number. The outsiders will come from Superior and the Twin Cities. The committee which has in charge the collection of prizes reported good progress at the club meeting last night. The list is nearly completed, and it will be large and valuable. Several local dealers have promised wheels for first place.

London road, which is to be the scene of the race, as usual, is reported to be in excellent shape by the wheelmen who have gone over the track, and their number is large, for most of those who expect to enter are in training for the event. There is one place in the road, however, that is simply awful, and that is the crossing of the Duluth & Iron Range tracks. Once upon a time the city had a crossing there which was serviceable enough. But pine planks do not last forever, and in the natural course of events this crossing has worn out completely. As a result, when a wheelman comes along at a pretty good gait and strikes that crossing he receives a jolt which, while it is a good test of a wheel, is decidedly unpleasant and not a little dangerous. It is only a little less so when a carriage or wagon passes over.

THOSE WHO BUY WHEELS.

Wheeling belongs alike to young and old, big and little, rich and poor. Nobody is debarred who has the money to buy or hire a wheel, says the New York Sun. It is amusing to watch the crowds who pour into the salesrooms and hear their propositions to the managers. A woman walks in and thinks nothing of ordering a tandem and two or three single wheels at a clip, paying $150 down for the former and $100 each for the latter. Perhaps before she gets out a woman who looks as if she were not very well off in this world's goods enters. She must see the manager. Nobody else will do. Poor manager! He allows her to be brought into his private office, knowing very well that she wants to make a trade.

"Why, you have no idea," said one manager, "the ridiculous business propositions that people make, and I must confess that most of them come from women. The other day one called with a little church paper. She said she would get me a wheel for a year and take it out in a wheel, as if she was doing me a great favor. 'No, this concern doesn't do that,' I answered.

"She went away and in a few days was back, saying that she would give me the space for $60 and pay $50 down for a wheel, and when I again declined she returned the next day and said I might have the space for $25 for the year and that she would pay $75 cash for the wheel. I was firm, for I read her like a book. She'll come in about next week and pay the $100 down for the wheel. Another woman tried to get one by paying $5 monthly, and when we declined to let her have it she offered to let her boy come here and work it out. Fun for the mother, but hard on the boy, wasn't it? That didn't work, so she sold her piano and now has a '96 model. Such things come up every day. People are going to have bicycles, no matter what sacrifice they have to make to get them. But you may be sure that the managers of the high grade cycle concerns in the city are heartily glad that there are a great many people who can and do come in and buy not one, but several machines at a time. They never ask for reductions or time.

"Indeed, it's marvelous—this hold that wheeling has taken on people. It has a grip not only on working people, but also on the wealthy, and they are not content to own wheels just for their own use and pleasure, but buy two, three or four extra ones for the use of any visitors that they happen to have. Take the Goulds, for example. Last spring Miss Helen Gould bought two, and the autumn before, when women first began to wheel, she had one sent up to her country place on the Hudson. That was evidently an experiment, but it must have been satisfactory, for she ordered two more the next spring, two in autumn, and now has one or two tandems. Her latest purchase is a '96 model for herself, weighing twenty-four pounds. It is a plain black enamelled wheel and cost $100, and it is no better in any way than any of our other models. Her brother, Frank Gould, also owns a number of wheels which he keeps at their country place, and it is said that they make delightful runs when their house is full of guests. They tell a funny story about the salesman who waited on George Gould. He bought, I think it was, a tandem and two single wheels, and when the salesman asked his name he said 'Gould.' That didn't signify anything to the salesman, and as he fixed up his papers he showed a little uneasiness. Finally he braced up and said: "'Look here, how are you going to pay for these wheels and where do you want them sent?'

"'To Georg> Gould, at my private car, side tracked on such a road,' was the answer, and the man almost collapsed. It's needless to say he got his pay and Mr. Gould his wheels.

"William C. Whitney is an ardent cyclist, and so are his children. He bough; three wheels here this spring, one for himself, one for his son and the other for his daughter, Mrs. Almeric Paget. All were plain wheels. They are very fond of riding in Central Park, so it is said. William Waldorf Astor treated himself to a tandem and two single wheels, one a diamond and the other a loop frame, just before going abroad, and he took them with him. A great deal has been said and written about the Four Hundred riding wheels mounted in silver or gold, with pearl handles, silver lamps and cyclometers, but there isn't a word of truth in it. Our experience with wealthy and prominent people has been just the reverse. They do not care for conspicuous machines; they do not have their wheels made to order, but take a plain black model such as we carry in stock."

Another dealer, in speaking of prominent enthusiasts, said:

"I think that the Rockefellers have more wheels at their country place than any other family. They have a large number of single wheels and three tandems, and can accommodate a party of twenty or perhaps more. We send a man up there to inspect them occasionally, and he always comes back with glowing accounts of the handsome storage room and of the fine runs that the young people and their friends have."

A PRINCESS ON WHEELS.

Previous to the recent carnival ball at Dresden there were rumors that the Princess Luise was in a state of quiescent rebellion against the authority of her mother. It takes a long time for information to leak out regarding domestic squabbles among royal personages, but the truth in this case seems to be about as follows: One day the queen learned from an attendant that the princess had been taking lessons in bicycle riding. A long time previously the court had felt itself scandalized by similar conduct on the part of Princess Luitella, who was promptly ordered to abandon the delights of wheeling. Luitella regretfully obeyed, much to the disgust of Luise, who made no secret of her determination to learn the art of steering a bicycle. Her determination caused no particular excitement in court, her parents not believing that she would stick to it. Therefore the queen was horrified on hearing the news that Luise had taken several lessons. Her majesty hurried to the king, who called Luise into his presence and informed her that she must stop wheeling. The princess reminded her father that the annual carnival ball would soon be given, adding that if she couldn't ride a bicycle she wouldn't dance. In vain the king of Saxony stormed and entreated by turns. Luise was not to be moved, and she was finally given permission to indulge to her heart's content in the plebeian exercise of wheeling.

DISMEMBERED TANDEM TEAM.

So far as known the only maimed tandem team in the country is to be found in St. Louis. The members are John B. Waters, a one-armed night watchman, and William G. Davis, a one-legged bicycle repairer. Waters is well known in St. Louis as a survivor of the terrible explosion at the Haydock carriage factory in March, 1885, when he was frightfully mangled by falling walls, two of his fellow workmen being killed at the same time. Since recovering from this awful shock he has devoted himself to athletics and making strong those parts of him which he had left. He can now run 100 yards under twelve seconds, can lift with his one arm a greater weight than the average man and, though riding on a wheel only since the middle of last March, he can outstrip the average rider on the road.

Davis, the other member of this curious team, lost his left leg when a boy. When trying to catch on behind a buggy he fell and was run over by another vehicle, his leg being so mangled that amputation was necessary. He is an expert bicycle repairer. He challenges any one-legged man in the world to a race for any amount and for any distance, from one to 100 miles. This challenge also holds for any crippled tandem team in the United States.

Neither of these riders seems to feel the loss of his limbs while astride a wheel. Both can ride without handle bars and tackle a hill as nonchalantly as though they were fully equipped with all that nature gave them.

LONDON HAS A HANSOM CYCLE.

An airy-looking novelty, light in frame and graceful in construction, has made its appearance in London, and is called the hansom cycle, because of its resemblance to that familiar vehicle. It looks like a two-seated tricycle, with an extra seat and buggy top for the passenger. There is the high seat at the back, which has made the hansom so characteristic, and the same little trap door on the top, through which the enterprising "cabby" can indulge his proclivities to bicker for all the traffic will bear. The "hansom cycle" is high-geared, and with two stout operators is capable of developing great speed. Besides, it is far more comfortable to the weary traveler than the rickety, jouncing little vehicles which are such a feature of the great English metropolis.

ADVICE TO SCHOOL TEACHERS.

At a dinner of the Schoolmasters' association the other day, President Low, of Columbia college, made a speech which might be incorporated in all bicycle advertisements. "The first thing a school teacher should know," he said, "is what he doesn't know. The second thing he should know is how to ride a bicycle. Even college presidents need exercise. I am not joking," he remonstrated, when his audience roared with laughter. "I was never more serious in my life. It's a good thing for every school teacher to ride a wheel."

WHEELS OF MANY BRANDS.

An examination of the list of the various kinds of bicycles made in this country, compiled by an expert last year, gives 850 different names. It is true that a number of the companies placing these wheels on the market own and sell more than one kind, but it is also true that a large number of bicycles are not named at all. In February last there were 1143 different kinds of wheels made and registered in this country. In other words, within three months' time 300 new makes of bicycles were placed on the market.

ADVICE TO TANDEM RIDERS.

An instructor in a riding school believes that special lessons should be given to those riders who contemplate using a tandem. "They may think they are expert," said he, "and doubtless are good riders on a single wheel, but with a tandem it is different. In the first place of the two riders one always should be agreed upon to do the steering, and the other must so discipline himself that under any emergency he will not try to guide the wheel. Otherwise there will be a "spill" and injury. Practice is needed to turn corners. You cannot swing around sharp turns with a tandem as you may with a single wheel. Make a big, wide, comfortable curve of it. It takes a steady hand and a good eye to guide the machine 'built for two' and to keep the wheels in line. You may always tell the trail of a tandem steered by a novice on a damp roadway, for there will be an 'in and out' track like the links of a string of sausage. Yes, I believe all riders ought to take a lesson or two in tandem riding in private before they venture upon the public roads.

NEW KIND OF BRAKE.

A new device in connection with bicycles that has created a deep and general interest among mechanics is a brake which cannot be seen by any casual inspection of the wheel, yet is so perfectly efficient that it seems to have solved the vexed problem of brakes which has so long been distressing wheelmakers and riders. The brake is as simple as it is marvelous in action. It is the adaptation of an old principle known in machine shops as a "coil clutch," and used in conjunction with a rope on shafting to regulate flywheels. In this new bicycle brake the coil is a spiral one of steel that encircles the crank axle inside the bracket, or box. One end of it is attached to a light steel chain which runs up through the tubing of the machine to the right hand grip on the handle bar. Inside the grip is provided with a steel sheath which is grooved so as to form a "worm." The worm engages on a little pin or "block," and when the handle is turned the chain is tightened. A tension is put upon the coil, which then grips the axle and stops the wheel.

JEWELERS SELLING WHEELS.

Why do jewelers sell bicycles? This question has no doubt occurred to the minds of everyone who has passed in front of jewelry stores and seen some high-grade bicycle advertised for sale. As a general rule these jewelers are not sole agents for the wheel, but are simply acting as sub-agents for the bicycle dealer who represents the manufacturer. A prominent jeweler, in explaining the point last week, said: "We are doing it in self-defense. The average young man in former years when going on a trip would purchase a watch; on his sweetheart's birthday he would purchase a lady's watch. I do not say this occurred often enough to cut quite a figure in the receipts of the jewelry house. The young man does not buy watches or bracelets or brooches any more; he buys bicycles instead. Count the number of ladies riding on the boulevard or through the parks on some fine day and then think that not one in 100 of those ladies bought their own wheels. They were given to them by brothers, fathers or their sweethearts as presents instead of jewelry. We have decided to keep in front of the procession as before, and now if we cannot suit a young man or young lady with some article of jewelry we have the bicycle which 'runs like a watch' that we can offer instead."

ONLY ONE FACTORY IN JAPAN.

Many highly colored stories have been recently printed about the astonishingly low cost of bicycles in Japan. As a matter of fact that country has but one large bicycle factory, and that is situated in Yokohama. The company occupying this plant has been in business seventeen years and at present is devoting itself chiefly to filling orders from the military, police and postal departments of the Japanese government. The prices of its wheels are high enough to admit of the importation of American bicycles on a paying basis. It is very obvious that the Japanese could not compete successfully in the American market against the home manufacturers.

MIRROR FOR THE HANDLE BAR.

One constant danger in wheeling is the liability of being run into from behind. Now a bicycle mirror has been invented which will enable the rider to keep an eye on the road behind him. It is claimed for this invention that it will enable racers to keep their eyes on contestants in the rear, but this is perhaps doubtful, for the reason that a racer is generally too intent on the road ahead to give any attention to what follows. While it may not do for a ride or being taken out on a bicycle by their parents.

The wife of Senator-elect Foraker, of Ohio, and her three daughters are enthusiasts on the bicycle. They will take their wheels with them to Washington when the senator's official term begins.

Dooby: What is coming in bicycles for? Dooby: Don't you know? Why, the riders ring them, you know, when wheeling through the streets so's to let the people know they're going to run them down.—Roxbury Gazette.

Saginaw has a bicycle ordinance which permits bicycle riders to ride on sidewalks where the streets are not paved. The ordinance says no rider shall ride at a greater speed than ten miles an hour on the streets and must carry a bell and lantern.

A Nashville, Mich., man has invented a device for instantly changing the gear of a bicycle, and a meeting of the citizens of the town will be held to consider the project of organizing a company to manufacture wheels embodying the improvement.

In the circuit court at Grand Rapids, Mich., Judge Adsit has decided that a bicycle is personal property and not subject to execution. Several weeks ago a constable levied upon E. E. Allen's bicycle to satisfy a judgment, and Allen replevined the wheel and sued the officer. The court rendered a decision for the plaintiff for 6 cents and costs.

A BRIGHT DOUBLE EAGLE

Is a pleasant object to contemplate, particularly if one happens to be its proprietor. But the hue of that justly esteemed coin is not provocative of admiration when visible in one's complexion. This indication of biliousness, as well as discomfort in the vicinity of the liver, fur upon the tongue, sick headache, sourness of the breath, nausea, constipation and dyspepsia are speedily remediable with the never failing aid of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, the finest alterative, carminative and corrective in existence. As a preventive and remedy for malarial complaints it is also thoroughly reliable. They whose sedentary pursuits tend to impair the active discharge of active digestion and bilious secretion never seek its help in vain. It is a capital appetizer and promoter of nerve quietude.

NOTES OF THE WHEEL.

Michael, the European champion, uses a wheel geared to 112 inches.

It is reported that ten tandems have been sold in 1896 for every one sold in 1895.

A cyclist in Bedfordshire, England, has had his machine shattered under him by lightning, while he escaped unhurt.

One peculiarity about a "safety" is the number of different kinds of danger to which it subjects you.

It is now a misdemeanor to throw upon any road in New York state glass, tacks or any sharp substance likely to injure bicycle tires.

Canvas cloth, fine woven wire and tanned rawhide, put together and vulcanized, constitute material for a new tire which has just been patented.

An Englishman named Jefferson has started on a 6000-mile bicycle ride to Irkutsk, Siberia. His machine and baggage weigh sixty pounds.

The San Francisco aldermen have enacted an ordinance which prohibits children under 6 years of age riding or on the race track, it has advantages that will certainly appeal to the average rider, who feels nervous when a clatter of hoofs behind announces an approaching vehicle. With the mirror the rider will be enabled, without glancing around and thus running the danger of a fall, to tell exactly what is coming after him.

The device consists of a yoke-shaped or arch bar fastened on to the handle bar of the bicycle by means of two clamps, and supporting a mirror, which is hinged to a V-shaped holder, so that it can be moved up or down the standard by loosening the two ends of the holder together and releasing it at the desired height. The mirror itself may be placed at the inclination desired for distance or near-by observation by simply pressing it in the desired position, where it is held by the pawls catchingiato the toothed holder. The adjustment of the mirror to the proper place can be easily accomplished by one hand, and that, too, while riding. All the parts are very simple and not liable to get out of order.

BUYING NEW WHEELS EACH YEAR.

Many of the men who are most devoted to cycling buy a new wheel each year. You ask them if the old one was in good condition and they say it was. They admit that the improvements in the newest models are slight, and, indeed, they seem to give no completely satisfactory reason for changing. As a matter of fact, a new wheel runs more easily than one which has been ridden some thousands of miles. The ordinary rider, who goes perhaps 1000 or 1500 miles in a season, might not notice this difference, but the man who makes long runs or goes on century runs appreciates it. Then, too, dealers customarily allow $50 for a wheel of the previous year which cost $100, and thus the price of a thoroughly up-to-date machine is virtually only $50 to the man with an old one to give in part payment. Another point is that bicycles after a year's use show some signs of age, such as imperfect enamaling and dingy nickel-plating, and your true wheelman takes as much pride in a spick-and-span bicycle as in his best suit of clothes. The dealers profit handsomely by this custom of getting a new outfit annually. Not only do they make their profit on the new bicycle, but they will fit the old one up and sell it at an advance, or use it for hiring out.

DOES NOT CONSIDER WEIGHT.

A dealer who has had a long and varied experience in selling bicycles states that he has learned not to consider the weight of the rider as deserving a great amount of attention. Heavy men, he thinks, usually put a bicycle to less strain than lighter and more active wheelmen. His notion that the mere supporting of weight does not constitute the real strain on the machine seems plausible enough. Of course, if riders, one heavy and the other light, always rode at the same speed the heavy weight would use up his machine first, but heavy riders, as a rule, ride much slower than light and middle weights, and it seems probable that this dealer is right in thinking it unnecessary to recommend specially heavy mounts for his 200-pound customer.

FOR THE ATHLETIC GIRL.

The newest sweater is made with a deep-pointed V-shaped yoke which is outlined with little knots of the wool. The sleeves are decidedly puffed, though it is said that before long the sweater is to discard entirely this frill of fashion, and that the sleeves in sweaters for both men and women are to be made alike—small. Sweaters in two colors are much more the vogue than one color. Beige and white and fawn and dark blue are new color combinations. The sailor collar is now as much worn as the one which is straight, merely rolling over a little at the top; and, of course, every well regulated sweater buttons on the shoulders.

BIKE FOR THE BEDROOM.

Two machinists of Berkeley, Cal., have perfected and patented a racing machine, by the use of which a bicyclist may reel off "centuries" in the hall bedroom or a series of races may be held in a parlor. The racing machine, or bicycle track, as the inventors call it, consists of a set of three hard wood rollers secured in a frame. The rollers are four inches in diameter and two and one half feet long. Two rollers are placed five and one-half inches apart and the third roller is placed a bicycle length further ahead in the frame. The hind wheel of the bicycle rests on two rollers set together and the fore wheel on the first roller. The lower part of the tire of the hind wheel sets about an inch below the level of the upper surface of the rollers. This prevents the bicycle from slipping. The rollers are connected by a strong rubber band.

The bicycle is placed on the rollers, the bicyclist is held up until he has secured a good start, and then he and his machine are released and he can pedal away for dear life, reeling off miles of revolutions, but not advancing an inch. The wheels hold their position securely on the rollers and are subject to the same conditions as they would be on an ordinary road. The apparatus is exceedingly simple, but many experiments had to be made before the proper size and exact adjustment of the rollers could be fixed. The track is substantially the same as that on which horses race at record pace in a theater. In front of the rider is a dial, which is connected with the rollers on which he is riding. As he pedals the finger on the dial revolves accurately, marking the distance the rider has traveled. Two sets of rollers are set in a frame facing each other and the riders pedal head on to each other. The machine has been tested by bicycle experts and under the auspices of the bicycle clubs and is said to be entirely successful.

A CANDID BOY.

The train drew into a station on the Atlantic Coast line, en route for Jacksonville, and the rear car was immediately besieged by small darkies, clad in rags, and clamoring for a nickel, says Harper's Magazine.

"Why don't you boys go to work instead of begging?" asked one of the travelers.

"We ain't a beggin'," returned one of the lads; "we's workin'."

"Oh!—and what is your business?"

"Scramblin'," replied the spokesman, showing a set of teeth beside which the ivory keys of a piano would have seemed like amber.

"Scramblin', eh? And what is that?" asked the tourist.

"Shoot up a nickel an' you'll see," replied the spokesman, and the nickel was tossed, and the tourist at once perceived two things; first, what scrambling was, and, second, why the legs of the Southern darky seem to be the raggedest rags in creation.

After the struggle for the possession of the nickel was over, one of the smaller boys, who looked tired and as pale as a negro can, asked for another to "buy sumpin' t' eat."

"Something to eat! Why don't you go home and get it?"

"Ain't got no home," he replied, his eyes growing wide.

"What? No home? Why, where do you sleep?"

"Don't never sleep," was the answer.

The boy received a quarter for his candor.

FROM AN OLD MINT.

It is evident that the recent bond sale drew many old stockings containing hoarded gold from their hiding places, says the Boston Post. In a small lot of gold paid in at the treasury a day or two ago were five rare old gold coins. They were $5 pieces, and bore the dates of 1842 and 1847, yet appeared fresh and bright. On the faces of the coins appeared the letter D, the mark of the old mint at Dahlonega, Ga. The mint at Dahlonega was seized by the Confederates shortly after the outbreak of the war, and gold coin to the amount of $27,000 was confiscated. The pieces received at the treasury the other day were probably among those confiscated in 1861. The total coinage at the Dahlonega mint was about $6,000,000. But few of its coins are in circulation. Those received at the treasury the other day were the first that have shown up there for a good many years.

DEFIED THE GOVERNOR.

It appears that on the death of Alexander III the Countess Strogan off wished to drape the palace in crape, etc., but the autocrat of St. Petersburg, Lieut. John von Wahl, sent word that nobody was to drape his or her house in crape or anything else until he issued orders, says the New York Advertiser. Notwithstanding this very clear order, the resolute, zealous and loyal countess ignored the wishes of the all powerful von Wahl, and, in fact, calmly sent word to him that she intended doing exactly as she pleased in the matter of draping her palace. And she did so. Enraged at being set at defiance in this way, von Wahl sent a posse of constables to the Strogan off palace to tear down the emblems of mourning. This was exactly what the lady wanted. She at once let the young czar know what was going on, and painted the outrage in the most glowing colors; and the result was that young Nicholas promptly ordered the great governor of St. Petersburg to remain at his residence for three days. One must know St. Petersburg well to understand how much von Wahl is detested there, and, moreover, the childlike nature of the Russians to form any conception of the intense delight that this episode caused in all classes, from prince to moujik.

MARVELOUS RESULTS.

From a letter written by Rev. J. Gunderman, of Dimondale, Mich., we are permitted to make this extract: "I have no hesitation in recommending Dr. King's New Discovery, as the results were almost miraculous in the case of my wife. While I was pastor of the Baptist church at Rives Junction she was brought down with pneumonia succeeding la grippe. Terrible paroxysms of coughing would last hours with little interruption and it seemed as if she could not survive them. A friend recommended Dr. King's New Discovery, it was quick in its work and highly satisfactory in results." Trial bottles free at Duluth Drug company's drug store. Regular size 50 cents and $1.00.

IN THE LABOR FIELD

The Trades assembly has taken in hand the cause of the Ore Trimmers' union against the Duluth, Missabe & Northern railway, and the first step has been taken in what may possibly be the most notable and desperate struggle in the annals of the struggles between organized labor and organized capital. Behind the Trades assembly stands the gigantic American Federation of Labor, and behind the railroad in question stands the gigantic Rockefeller, and both are fighters. There was a note of determination, the determination that makes haste slowly that victory may not be lost by a mistake, in the debate at the Trades assembly last evening in regard to the action to be taken on the communication from the Trimmers' union in regard to the issue between it and the railway. The Trimmers' union is affiliated with the Longshoremen's union, which has a strong organization in all the lake ports and there was sentiment among some of the delegates in favor of a call on the latter at once to refuse to unload vessels, the cargoes of which had been trimmed by non-union men. Delegate Morrison, of the local Trimmers union; Delegate Baker, Organizer Nichols and others reviewed the history of the trouble arising over the refusal of the railway people to all representatives of the union on the Missabe ore dock to compete for work.

A strong letter from the mayor was read, in which it was intimated that the real reason of the company's action lay in a profit accruing to some favored millman. The consensus of opinion as developed by the discussion was that in view of the magnitude the struggle might assume should the fight be opened all steps be taken made it desirable to use every possible means to effect a settlement before calling on the national organization. To that end a committee, consisting of Messrs. McDonald, Baker and Maher, was appointed to confer with the railway people.

The trouble among the barbers, caused by rate cutting by some of the shops, still feeds quite a debate. The representatives of the Barbers' union requested the assembly to instruct the locals to request their members to patronize the union shops. To this objection was raised on the ground that there had been a boycott declared or other action taken by virtue of which such a command could not be laid on the union by the assembly, and that the matters at present stood, such a procedure would be an unwarranted encroachment on the autonomy of unions. The matter was finally referred to the grievance committee.

President Newberg, of the International Coopers' union, addressed the assembly on the subject of the struggle now going on between the Coopers' union and the Imperial Mill company. He made an eloquent appeal for the moral and financial support of the assembly and urged continued agitation which, he said, was the life of the boycott. His remarks were received with applause, and it was resolved to extend to the Coopers' union such aid as is needed.

The committee appointed to visit the Woman's and Children's home reported that the institution was in need of aid and recommended that the assembly contribute to the construction of the new building for the home, which, it is lateded, is to be erected on sixteen acres of land at West Duluth donated by Wheeler. The committee's condition that the building be commenced by Jan. 1, 1897. The committee was continued, and it was resolved to take up a collection for the home at the next meeting of the assembly.

With the view of furthering the work of getting aid for the home, Delegate Maher, of the Theatrical Employes' union, moved that the committee to solicit for that organization be dispensed with. Maher thanked the assembly in behalf of his union and said it could now get along unassisted. As the committee had not made a final report, this could not be done, but the committee was instructed to solicit no more aid. The club committee reported that dues were being neglected. Several delegates responded that the omission did result in the lack of interest, but arose from forgetfulness and said if the matter was called to the attention of the unions the dues would be paid. The club directors were directed to notify delinquents.

The new Sawmill Workers' union presented its delegates for obligation, and these were conducted with applause. They were J. Potter and Daniel McCarthy. They took the oath in due form and became regularly enrolled delegates.

Organizer Nichols reported that the coal and freight handlers were imbued with the union spirit and that a strong organization could be effected among them, and also that the cooks would organize on Monday evening.

The committee on the assembly ball reported that it was the greatest success of any of the like affairs ever given by the assembly and that a final report would be made later. A committee, consisting of Messrs. Murray, Sturm and Brown, appointed for the purpose, drew up and reported to the assembly resolutions of thanks to J. S. Pardee for his services to the assembly and of good wishes for his future success, which were adopted and ordered forwarded to Mr. Pardee. John L. Morrison, who has recently returned to the city, and A. Schalbe, of West Superior, were called on and made a few remarks. The official call for the convention of the State Federation of Labor, to be held in Minneapolis June 14, was received and laid on the table until the next meeting, with instructions to the delegates to report it to their unions.

The Carpenters' union will hold an open meeting Tuesday night, at which the advantages of organization will be discussed. Several prominent speakers will be present.

EIGHT-HOUR DAY STRIKES.

Contrary to the general impression created through the recent manifesto issued by the American Federation of Labor, that May 1 would witness a determined movement and many strikes for the eight-hour day, that date was almost as quiet in labor circles as in previous years. In Chicago, but for the strike of the bridge workers, which may assume serious proportions through the action of other trades, the day was more uneventful than many that had preceded it. This is owing to the fact that the carpenters have already won the shorter day, and the horseshoers will not engage in a struggle until after their convention in June.

In one or two industrial centers, however, the anticipated strikes came off, the city most affected being Boston, where all the building trades called out a portion of their men. For the next two weeks conditions in the labor movement in that city will be much disturbed. The workmen expect to win in most cases.

In Buffalo, San Francisco and Los Angeles strikes of the building trades were called, the men uniting in the demand for the eight-hour day. In the first mentioned city, it is stated, nearly 10,000 men are involved, including the workers on large and small jobs.

In St. Louis, where only the cigarmakers are in enjoyment of a short workday, the movement amounted to nothing. Committees from the Building Trades' council have been consulting with employers, and report that the short day will be granted by many of the latter. But no concentrated effort is now contemplated.

It had been predicted by Cleveland unionists that the movement in that city would be widespread, but it has fizzled out. There, as in many other cities, the bosses and the men compromised the matter, and it is said many of the building trades will secure the desired concession without trouble.

Leading labor men regard the eight-hour day as the true solution of the hard times and out-of-work problem. They quote figures to prove their assertion, claiming that there are 22,000,000 wage earners in the United States, and about 2,000,000 persons idle. The latter, according to them, are almost entirely nonconsumers. They argue that if they consumed, business would necessarily be better, and they furthermore assert that if the working days of the 22,000,000 workers were shortened from nine and ten hours to eight, the idle 2,000,000 could be given work from the hours saved in the others. As a result of this there would be that many less paupers, that many more consumers, trade generally would pick up and the country would be a comparative Utopia.

The only country has the eight-hour day generally is Australia. The agitation for it was begun as far back as 1856 by the building trades, and in three years they had won it for eight different trades. Today over sixty trades enjoy the eight-hour day, or about three-fourths of the working population. Trades unionists do not point to Australia as a particularly prosperous country, but they take especial pains to refute the old slander about shorter days meaning more time to dissipate by stating that since the hours were reduced arrests for drunkenness have decreased from 23.17 to 8.3 per 1000.

PROFIT SHARING A SUCCESS.

N. O. Watson, head of a big manufacturing establishment of Leclaire, Ill., about eighteen miles northeast of St. Louis, thinks his company has struck the secret of success in dealing with wage workers. The company bought 125 acres of land and thereupon established factories and neat and comfortable homes for thousands of its employes. Profit sharing has been in effect for many years. This scheme, after regular wages have been paid and 6 per cent allowed as the commercial rate on the capital invested, sets aside 10 per cent of the profits for a reserve fund to pay for the care of the sick and of the families of deceased employes. Incapacitated members each receive $5 a week, to which is added $2 for the wife and $1 for each child. The remaining profits are divided as the rule is 2 per cent on wages and 1 per cent on capital. The dividend on wages for the eight years ending in 1891 aggregated 51 per cent, or nearly 7 per cent a year. This is the stepping stone from ordinary wages to the co-operative plan. The company provides homes which cost about $2000 each. They are sold on an easy plan. The company consults with the person who wishes the house in regard to details. The deed given to the workman for his home is secured by mortgage bearing low rate of interest, and the house is paid for in monthly installments of from $10 to $18.

Leclaire has a kindergarten and a good school system which are free to everybody. Boys above 12 years of age must work an hour a day learning a trade while attending school. An hour a day is added to each subsequent year, and when he is 18 years old he is working half the time. He is supposed to graduate at 18, when he has both a good education and a good trade, and a job at full level at $1 a day. Ordinarily, boys who get a good education have no trade, and boys who begin early to learn a trade seldom secure a good education. The school system has an endowment and is supported from the earnings of the factories.

PLEA FOR LABOR ORGANIZATION

From many points we are in receipt of reports that the working men and women of the country are organizing more thoroughly than at any previous period in the history of the Federationist. A reference to the list of reports from officers in our last issue will give a slight inkling as to how far this process is growing, but we are free to say that with all that is being done in this direction it is not sufficient. It is not sufficiently widespread, engrossing or absorbing. There are hundreds of thousands—yes, millions—of workers of the country who can and should be organized under the banner of the trade union movement.

During the industrial crisis of 1893-95 a number of the smaller and weaker local unions did result, and in the lack of interest, but arose from forgetfulness and said if the matter was called to the attention of the unions the dues would be paid. PLEA FOR LABOR ORGANIZATION

From many points we are in receipt of reports that the working men and women of the country are organizing more thoroughly than at any previous period in the history of the Federationist. A reference to the list of reports from officers in our last issue will give a slight inkling as to how far this process is growing, but we are free to say that with all that is being done in this direction it is not sufficient. It is not sufficiently widespread, engrossing or absorbing. There are hundreds of thousands—yes, millions—of workers of the country who can and should be organized under the banner of the trade union movement.

During the industrial crisis of 1893-95 a number of the smaller and weaker local organizations were pushed to the wall. These can be revived. In many industrial centers organization is practically unknown, no attempt having been made to bring the workers within the protecting and compelling sphere of the trade union movement and influence. We are confident that if the active men in the labor movement were to put aside their faults and theories and concentrate all their efforts upon organization much better results would be easily attained.

Our friends need not fear that the workers when organized in the trade union movement will not be progressive. It is common history and an open book to every student of, and much more so to the active participant in, the labor movement that the great responsibility resting upon the shoulders of those who have always striven to organize our fellow workers is that the newly organized workers have always been anxious to go further than their power warranted, to endeavor to secure results which for the time being were positively unattainable.

The opportunity is at hand. The times are ripe. Let us put our shoulders to the wheel. Let us make it our duty to organize our fellow workers in existing unions, or to organize new unions where there are none. Let us avoid the conflicts among ourselves, the bitter antagonisms that result from conflicts of theory, politics, nationality or religion. The essential to labor's success lies in the charm contained in the immortal words, "workers organize, workers unite."

MORAL PHASE OF UNIONISM.

While the essence of labor organization is undoubtedly material and its central purpose is to secure for its members the highest possible proportion of the product of their labor, it yet has its moral side, which cannot be too often mentioned or too highly emphasized, says the Railway Conductor. In fact, there is a moral bearing even to the material side of the question, which of itself is worthy of consideration. Unless a man is in receipt of wages sufficient to give him an independent living and comfort to his family, it is impossible for him to reach that plane of citizenship which alone can make him a valuable member of the community. He must also receive enough to enable him to educate his children and start them in the direction of a right citizenship, or they are liable to become public charges either through ignorance or vice.

Experience has shown, however, that there are influences connected with all forms of rightly organized labor which tend in themselves to elevate the moral standing of the members. No one will dispute the fact that there is less drunkenness among workingmen than there was before the era of organization opened, and this is doubtless due to the fact that the organizations are constantly working and using every influence in the direction of sobriety. At one time it was argued against the plea for a shorter workday that more hours of leisure only meant a double opportunity for dissipation. The memberships of the crafts enjoying the greatest privileges in this direction are a constant demonstration of the value of shorter hours and of labor as a means of moral growth for men.

Through the same channels influences are brought to bear upon the members, urging them to educate in all general lines, and particularly in those lines of social and political economy pertaining to the rights of citizenship. As a result, the men which make up the more advanced labor bodies of the world may well stand comparison with their brothers in all these particulars and every such comparison cannot be but to the advantage of the cause of organization. The difference in the condition of organized and unorganized workmen would be more readily apparent if it were not for the fact that under present conditions those who have refused to join in bearing the burden have been able to reap many of the advantages arising from co-operation.

These advantages, however, are growing more apparent year by year, and the consequent trend of the sentiment among the laboring classes is bringing them closer and closer together. The time is undoubtedly not far distant when a great majority of workingmen will be enlisted in support of the common cause and when that time comes many of the ills which they now suffer will have become history.

TRADES UNION ETHICS.

According to the ethics of trades unionism only one organization should represent each trade; each individual workingman should ally himself with the union representing his calling, says the Locomotive Fireman's Magazine, and all trades should unite in a federal union for purposes offensive and defensive. Were these purposes carried to their legitimate conclusions there could be no antagonisms within the ranks of labor; an absence of the adoption of these principles has led to antagonism, and has prevented a perfect unification of the working people.

Dual organization is but another name for opposing, or rival organizations. That two organizations should represent the same branch of labor without clashing of interests is an accepted fact, but that two organizations never have represented the same branch of labor without clashing of interests is also a fact. A labor organization is a recognized benefactor of working people, but working people who have remained unorganized are more fortunate than those undergoing the strife and fratricidal warfare incidental to a struggle for supremacy between two influential labor organizations of one trade or craft.

Trades unionism reduces this cause of dissension to a minimum. Should petty jealousies or personal ambition lead to the launching of a rival trade union, the ruinous effect is restricted to that particular trade; but should the same cause lead to the institution of a universal organization, one founded on the "great brotherhood" or French republican system, immediately is heard the rattle of musketry from all the extreme right to the extreme left, and labor despairingly witnesses a battle royal between contending forces. The new organization is not the only rival of particular trades unions, but all trades unions, whose calling the new organization assumes to represent. The struggle is for supremacy between the old and the new. The old calls into service every resource at its command for self-preservation, the new leaves no act undone, no abusive word unsaid that will secure acquisitions of membership and territory.

WORKERS' RIGHT TO STRIKE.

The right of the laborer to strike is identical with his God-given right to life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness. There is no question but that in days past much advance toward better conditions for the laborer has been gained by strikes. It has been only by the threat of a strike and by a show of strength that organized labor has gained and maintained whatever of just wages have been allowed, says the Moldie Pulonist. The shortened labor day, first from twelve hours to ten, then from ten to eight hours all wrested from the greed that overworks the toiler only by the strike, latent or expressed.

The laborer's power to work, the strength in his strong right arm and the skill in his trained muscles and faculties are his capital, and he has the same right to defend them that the moneyed capitalist has to protect his stocks and bonds.

Whatever method or means are used by the capitalist are equally justifiable in the laborer. The laborer's job is his property, his "vested right." Any one who tries to steal it or depreciate its value is as much a thief as the rogue who steals an overcoat, loots a bank or wrecks a railroad. There are two ways of stating the right of this question of strikes, but there are two sides as to the expediency and the wisdom of the strike. As the trade now stands capital is cornered by trusts and corporations and these unwholesome combines have grown stronger and are better equipped than ever before for the conflict upon organized labor.

The surplusage of unemployed is larger than ever before and it can be exploited to break down organized labor. The balance of power is now with monopoly. From now on the failure of the strike is foredoomed. There is but one salvation—that is the strike via the ballot box to restore the lawmaking power to the people.

REBUKE TO HOTHEADS.

There are so-called friends of labor in this country (notably the United Mine Workers' Journal, whose claim for sincerity we have learned to despise and contemn, on account of their eternal disposition to fear those among us who are not every institution built on that idea, that does not agree with their own views of turning the world upside down in a day. Such hobgoblins do not frighten the people to style every leader of trades unionism a "labor faker" who is not revolutionary in his propensities, and to throw cold water on the work of every one who will not more for labor than ever they had or will have the ability to do. We have always prided ourselves on our radicalism, but for these so-called friends to talk as in the manner here indicated, who pretend to be the bona fide saviors of the working classes and of society we have the utmost abhorrence, and are mollified in setting them down as premeditated and disguised enemies of labor, or incorrigible ignoramuses whom it behooves the laboring people to right about with.

Even the life, work and sacrifice of the hero Debs is set at naught by these disciples of the gallied pen, and many of our political leaders, educators and organizers who have not attained to the same degree of eminence as he, are made the target from week to week of vile epithets and insulting remarks, because their politico-economic views are not more revolutionary. We say again that nothing but ignorant or premeditated enemies of the laboring legions could prompt those attacks.

RAILWAY FRATERNAL SOCIETIES.

Recently we have heard a great deal of abusive language hurled from certain quarters at the chief heads of the railway men's orders or brotherhoods, particularly in the West, says the Carpenter. At one time a few years ago there was room for moderate criticism, especially against the isolated attitude of the Brotherhood of Railway Engineers. But of late years that organization there are not the same grounds for censure, as that society has broadened out and is now federated with the other bodies of railway workers.

These railroad men's organizations are getting closer together in mutual action and fraternity of purpose. They are one by one coming to a common center of united effort. Peoria, Ill., is now the headquarters of two of those brotherhoods—viz, of the firemen and of the trainmen. And it is now the purpose of the Brotherhood of Railroad Telegraphers and the Order of Railway Conductors to likewise remove to Peoria. Both these trade unions propose to have the proposition acted on favorably at their respective forthcoming conventions.

The trainmen have 551 lodges and ninety-one ladies' auxiliary lodges. The firemen have 519 lodges and forty-nine ladies' auxiliaries. The conductors have 375 lodges and 100 ladies' auxiliaries.

The ladies' auxiliaries in all three societies are officered by women. In fact, these ladies' auxiliaries are one of the recognized and well established features of all the railway fraternities. At each convention these societies of ladies attend and add refreshing interest to the proceedings. Each order or brotherhood pays from $25,000 to $30,000 per month for funeral benefits of deceased members and for disability benefits to the crippled and maimed among their members.

Such trade unions are not likely to be wiped out by superficial criticism and unjustifiable invectives. They have come to stay and their influence is extending more and more as their merits become known.

Woodenware workers in Detroit have struck against piece work.

The city council of Dionys, Belgium, voted 5000 francs to the unemployed.

A daily labor paper called the Independent has been started at Atlanta, Ga.

The bricklayers of Minneapolis, Minn., won a strike for 40 cents an hour.

The locked out employes of the consolidated Steel and Wire company, of Cleveland, successfully resisted the company's efforts to substitute new men last week.

A law for the inspection of bake shops was adopted in the Dominion of Canada.

Kansas City, Mo., plumbers, gas and steam fitters will demand eight hours tomorrow.

The Journeymen Barbers' International union refused to admit females to membership.

Carpenters in Forfar, England, recently got an advance in pay by standing out just one day.

Mayor Sutro, of San Francisco, has ordered that union men be employed in his bath establishments.

Coal miners of the Shamokin, Pa., subdistrict have organized. The union will have a membership of 10,000.

Windhrop, Mich., miners struck against returning to the ten-hour day, and the eight-hour day was speedily restored.

In thirty-five years Switzerland has had only 206 strikes, and half of these were won by employes. During this time there were ten lockouts.

The Canadian government has decided to introduce the eight-hour system in all branches. The reform was brought about by the agitation of trades unionists.

Cripple Creek, Col., is overcrowded with carpenters and laboring men, brought in from the East by reports that more help is needed there. They are coming and going every day.

The moulders of Detroit and Lansing, Mich., have been on a strike for a week, and the trouble is expected to spread to the machinists, who refuse to work on castings made by non-union men.

The Sprague Elevator company, of Newark, N. J., discharged sixteen union machinists last week because they refused to work on the Syndicate building in New York, where a strike of building trades is in progress.

The auditing committee of the International Association of Machinists is engaged in its annual task of auditing the books of the grand lodge, assisted by an expert, as required by law. The committee is composed of Thomas Long, James Adams and J. J. Conley.

It is said that the average number of working days in the year in various countries is as follows: In Russia, 276; in Britain, 278; in Spain, 290; in Austria, 295; in Italy, 298; in Bavaria and Belgium, 300; in Saxony and France, 302; in Denmark, Norway and Switzerland, 303; in Prussia, 305; in Holland and North America and in Hungary, 312.

Public-spirited women of Philadelphia have formed themselves into a woman's union, the purpose of which is to look after the interests of the working men and women of that city. Recently committees of the union made the rounds of a number of the bake shops to ascertain the true condition of affairs. Thirty-six bake shops were visited, most of which were under ground and unhealthy to employes.

H. V. Jackson, secretary of lodge No. 90, International Association of Machinists, Schenectady, N. Y., is one of the busiest trades unionists in the country, and the fact that he finds time to attend to various vocations explains why the association is so well organized in his town. In addition to this office he has been president for two years of the Trades assembly, organizer of the American Federation of Labor, editor of the Toiler, and trades union alderman of the ward in which he lives.

ABOUT BULUWAYO.

Rapid Growth of King Lobengula's Kraal.

Buluwayo has become unexpectedly, and through no desire on its part, the center of unusual interest to all British people, says the Pall Mall Gazette. A little more than two years ago it was the chief kraal of old Lobengula and his dusky warriors. Then the irrepressible Britisher stepped in, claimed it for his own, and fashioned and modeled it into the semblance of a mother country town, with most of the concomitants that go to make up a civilized community. Now we are alarmed with the news that the Matabeles have risen in force, and are ferociously murdering all the struggles in the earlier parts of this century between the white pioneers and the Kaffirs.

No better idea of the position occupied by Buluwayo today could be obtained than by a glance through the columns of its paper. The Buluwayo Chronicle is a well-printed, eight-page journal published twice weekly, and containing a brave show of advertisements as a testimony to the enterprise of the settlers. Already the editor finds cause to chasten: "There are various events occurring in Buluwayo which denote the transition of the town from the rough-and-ready period to that of the settled stage. Men are beginning to come in, and the age of starched shirts and full dress suits has arrived. The free and careless order is relegated to the past, and the progress, and the age of change. But if the change has its reverse, for there is not the dependence on the word that there was in other times. The lawyers are more busy, and the reading of this or that clause is now contested, and a judicial decision obtained, where previously the spirit in which the contract was entered was religiously acted up to."

What right have dress clothes in this recital? And what connection have starched shirts with an influence for the word? Is it the advent of the lawyers, who, unlike their English brethren, are not above advertising their presence? Litigation would be difficult without them, and what has Buluwayo to do with dress clothes? Do they dine there at a fashionable hour, or are the young sextuses preparing for the opening of the new opera house, which is to be erected by a company with a capital of £20,000? This opera house is to have an "elegant exterior," seating accomodation for 800, to be lighted by electricity. Modernity with a vengeance in old Lobengula's Buluwayo.

Buluwayo, too, has its club, a number of hotels, a stock exchange, as a matter of course, a building society on mutual principles, a chamber of commerce, a circuit court, a polo club, and a lodge of Free Masons. True, a remnant of primitive habits, dating from two years ago, survives here and there. What shall we say, for instance, of stubborn old pioneers who persist in turning their horses adrift in Eighth avenue to make their way back unattended to the stables? No wonder our editor calls it an "extraordinary passage." The thing couldn't be done in London; Buluwayo must put a stop to it.

One piece of gratifying news is that the Buluwayo Laundry company "went through swimmingly, being largely oversubscribed." Buluwayo will now have the opportunity of getting decently clean shirts. This is, we repeat, gratifying. Dress clothes would look strange without the complement of starched shirts. Then one finds innumerable other instances of the progress of Buluwayo. Some one has become bankrupt there, or gone into liquidation, and a shop keeper is already holding a clearance sale, at which enormous bargains are to be had. The Westleyans have built a new church on Ninth avenue, and had a conversazione to celebrate the event. Suburban resorts, too, are springing into existence, a certain gentleman having taken the Welsh Harp hotel, at the Umgusa river, six miles out, with the intention of making it a popular place for shooting matches (pigeons, not lions), cricket, tennis and other essentially British sports.

English farmers will turn green with envy on reading the prices paid for produce in Buluwayo. Butter realizes from 7s to 13s 6d per pound. Eggs are to be had for modest little sums varying from 4s 6d to 12s per dozen, though this is somewhat difficult of comprehension when fowls are only worth from 3s 6d to 6s each. Do not the hens lay in Matabeleland? And if they do not, whence come fowls? Cabbages, too, is at a premium, being worth from 2s to 4s 6d each. Probably the people of Buluwayo dispense with butter, eggs and cabbage as superfluous luxuries, unless they are all becoming wealthy.

And now, like a bolt from the blue, we read of Buluwayo being in danger itself from the men who once owned the land—an unpleasant reminder that savages cannot be subjected and civilized in a day.

Sweet music fills the air at Ideal Beer hall, Saturday night.

Funny Things Which Two Postal Employes In New York See.

All Sorts of Things Pass Through Their Busy Hands.

Peculiar Articles Which Turn Up Almost in Every Mail.

Two young women in New York daily handle dynamite bombs, dead snakes, live mice and large rats, horned toads, dead dogs, living bees and grasshoppers, young trees, new clothes, jewelry, false hair and teeth, glass eyes and human bones, says the New York Journal.

These are only a few of the unique, weird or commonplace articles which daily pass through the hands of Daisy James and Mamie Husted, of the mail inspection and rating department of the general postoffice, at the head of which is J. Campbell. It was Miss James who found the first bomb which was sent to Commissioner Roosevelt last August. She opened it in the matter-of-fact way found in her, and when she saw the sulphur matches protruding from it she turned and said:

"I guess this is a dynamite bomb. You had better put it in water."

It turned out it was only a fake bomb, similar to the second one sent to Mr. Roosevelt, which was found the other day.

Miss Husted opened a package once out of which, as she took the wrapper off, jumped a mouse. Did Miss Husted scream and jump on chairs and create a panic in the postoffice? Not she. The mouse scampered around the examining table for a few moments and then jumped to the floor, with Miss Husted in pursuit. She finally ran the little fellow down and replaced him in his box, just as coolly as if she had been handling a piece of ice. The two girls are rather averse to talking of their work.

"You see," said Miss James, "we work so rapidly we scarcely have time to realize what we are handling until the moment for shock or surprise is past. There is scarcely anything you can mention that we have not handled there, except furniture, steel vaults or bank safes. Articles of clothing, jewelry, kitchen utensils, stylographic pens, cyclometers, precious stones, wedding cakes, bonnets, men's hats and flowers are so common that we scarcely notice them any more. Flowers, especially in February, are very common. They come from persons in the South who send to friends in the North, and their odor is often sufficient to perfume the whole building. They generally come in pasteboard boxes, and are passed as third-class matter unless there is writing with them."

During the year 1895 542,000 pieces of mail matter were handled here. Money recklessly packed is frequently found by the girls in their search. Miss Husted once opened a package containing an old pocketbook in which there was $3000 in cash and a check for $5000. On another occasion she was the means of running down a gang of postoffice thieves in St. Louis. She opened a package found to contain $500 worth of uncancelled stamps. The package was addressed to a man in New York. An investigation was set on foot and resulted in the arrest of two men in St. Louis and one here. They were members of a gang who had been robbing Western postoffices. The trio are now serving long terms in prison.

While a Journal reporter was admiring the nimbleness of the girls as they opened the packages, Miss Husted came across a small white box with one of those sliding covers. When opened it was found to contain a great eye and one glass eye. On the cover within in pencil was this message:

"What do you mean by sending me a right eye? My right eye is all right. My left eye is gone. Send me a left eye. I told you distinctly I wanted a left eye. I can't use the eye at all."

"That writing on this package first-class matter," explained Miss Husted. "If the writer had sent no message the eye would have passed as third-class matter."

In response to further questions she continued:

"We are never surprised at anything we get here. Miss James found a cute little dog dead in an envelope the other day, and recently I found a baby's skull. Meat, potatoes, vegetables, eggs, in fact almost every kind of food is sent through the mails. At Easter there are dozens of eggs mailed. I found one of those big candy eggs with $25 in it last Easter time. We never found but one big snake, but all the time of the chameleon craze hundreds of the little things were sent here from the South, but we soon got used to handling them. Every once in a while we find a dead snake and snake skins, especially rattlesnake skins are common. They always have the rattle on them, too. Revolvers and bowie knives and razors are found every day."

"Are any of the pistols loaded?"

"Oh, my, yes. But we send all such things to the inquiry department and don't handle them much once we find out what they are. One thing about razors not generally known is this: If the razor is closed and the end secured with a piece of wire it will pass through here all right. But if not, it is sent to the inquiry office. Court will not do to fasten it with."

"Do you like the work?"

"Yes, indeed. It is novel and exciting. You never know what you are going to run across when you open a package. There is just everything. And then you ought to see the love letters. Oh, my!"

"Love letters?" echoed the reporter.

"Yes, loads of them. You see, when a young man and a young woman are in love they write a great deal, and they keep each others letters and tie them up in pink and blue and red and yellow ribbons, and most of them are sweetly perfumed, and then when they quarrel for good they send each other back their love tokens and letters. Once I remember two large cardboard boxes filled with such letters crossed each other in this room. We could tell, because the names of the senders were written on one side and the names and addresses on the other.

"In the box addressed to the woman there was a long piece of soft, yellow hair and a picture of a petite young woman dressed in white, on the back of which was written: 'To My King,' and a name signed. Last of all there was an invitation wedding card, requesting the pleasure of Miss So-and-So's presence at the wedding of another Miss So-and-So and the man who was returning the old love tokens.

"Mean, wasn't he?" asked Miss Husted, indignantly.

"Of course. What was in the box addressed to him?"

"Oh, ever so many letters! They were very much worn, as if they had been read and re-read. Then there was a lock of black hair and a man's photo. On that was written: 'Your Sweetheart Until Death and After,' and finally a small white card, on which was written, 'I hope you will be happy.'"

KILLING TIME.

Washington Star: "I am told," the young man said, "that you belong to a club of girls who have taken a vow never to marry."

"Oh, yes," she answered. "I joined that last summer."

"How did it happen to be organized?"

"Why, you see, we were at a stupid summer resort. There were no men there, and we got so lonesome that we just had to do something to kill time."

Young mothers dread the summer months on account of the great mortality among children caused by bowel troubles. Perfect safety may be assured those who keep on hand DeWitt's Colic & Cholera Cure, and administer it promptly. For cramps, bilious colic, dysentery and diarrhea, it affords instant relief. S. F. AMONG THE SPORTS.

Barring accident, such as an inconvenient rain storm, or some such calamity, the baseball season in Duluth will be opened today and tomorrow by games with the team of baseball players who hail from Hibbing and who have descended from the range with the purpose of doing up the Duluth club to a finish. The Duluth club is not yet all together, and it probably will not be before some day during the coming week. Some of the best players will be here, however, and there will probably be a nine in the field that will make it interesting for the fans and incidentally for the gentlemen from Hibbing, who are to worry the ball around the diamond tomorrow and today.

Once started the season will move along rapidly enough, for there will be games nearly every Saturday and Sunday during the whole season. Next Saturday and Sunday, May 15 and 16, the "Diamonds Export" nine, of St. Paul, will be here, and they will undoubtedly give the Duluth club the game of their lives. The "brewery" nine is made up of a consolidation of the St. Paul Pickets and Spaldings, and it is said to be one of the strongest semi-amateur teams in the Northwest. A number of the players have been professionals, and have played in the larger leagues.

The next thing in sporting circles is the field day of the High School Athletic association. The date has been set for May 23, when a number of interesting events will determine who is going to compete in the joint field day at Superior, which takes place June 6.

The preliminary field day of the Duluth High School Athletic association will take place at the old driving park at Woodland. Wednesday afternoon many of the boys went out to look over the ground, and Thursday they started in to fix up some parts of the track which needed repairing pretty badly.

The heavy rains of this spring have played havoc with the track in some places where it runs somewhat lower than the rest. The melting snow at first and the rains later have worn deep gullys through the track which must be filled in and leveled. With spades and kindred implements the boys turned in Thursday morning headed by A. S. Ames and Walter Murphy, and good progress was made in repairing the track. The high places in the track are dry and hard, showing that it was well built originally.

* * *

"The only sporting matters the association has to report," said Physical Director A. S. Ames Wednesday, "is that A. G. Seegamp takes out his first rank cup wear in the pentathlon once a week and looks at it."

The Y. M. C. A. will hold no field day this summer.

This afternoon at 4 o'clock the executive committee of the Minnesota and Winnipeg Rowing association met at 4 o'clock to decide upon the date of the 1896 regatta and other matters relating thereto. This year's regatta will be greater than ever. Duluth's interest will be centered largely in her first senior four, though she will put up a strong junior four also. The Duluth Boat club will hold a regatta by itself about June 1.

At the meeting of the Duluth Cycle club last night twenty-five new members were admitted and the contract for furnishing club uniforms was let to the Great Eastern Clothing company at $4.50. The uniforms will be latest designs adopted by the L. A. W.

A new baseball ethical code has been promulgated by Charles Dryden in the New York Journal. He says:

While many of these points of recognized and imperative parlor etiquette cannot be introduced in baseball, yet the sport offers a vast field for improvement. We all have noticed that fact, or will when our attention is called to it. Here is a new code of ethics, said to have been promulgated by the National league, the object being to elevate the game to the social status of golf, tiddledewinks and lawn tennis, and impart that recherche tone which has long been lacking:

Rule 1.—Field captains and thirty-third degree kickers must refrain from altering the natural expression of an umpire's features in the presence of the populace. To convey an air of correct St. Louis, Mo., the Mafia should entice said umpire into the dressing room after the game, put a bat bag over his head and imprint a series of swift kicks. For authority on this point see the case of Latham et al. vs. Sheridan on Thursday, April 23, 1896.

Rule 2.—Mixed-ale language reflecting on the habits and character of annual pass-holders who intimate by word of mouth that the performance of a player is in an advanced stage of decomposition can be taken as conclusive evidence that the offender is hopelessly Walla Walla, Wash. It is much better to tell the critic in placid accents that he is bughouse, whatever that may be.

Rule 3.—Winning pitchers, unless they wish to be branded as irredeemably Omaha, Neb., should avoid grooming a bright new ball on the slack breadths of their blooming before submitting it to the batsman. Such procedure is not only heartless, but exceedingly Battle Creek, Mich., as well. Unlicensed endeavor to put good men out of the business cannot be tolerated. The ball at best is practically invisible to some of them, particularly the most pronounced New York, N. Y.

Rule 4.—No league player can be too Baltimore, Md. For instance, when a batsman with an average of .372 dodges into a wild pitch or perverted inshoot that loosens his slats, he must not walk around in a gradually decreasing circle with his pallid face upturned to the grand stand, unless the game is taking place at Wilmington, Del. In this case he is not amendable to the new code. he is not amenable to the new code.

Rule 5.—White-garbed catchers or first true Brooklyn, N. Y., will abstain from disposing vast quantities of distilled tobacco in the palm of the large mitt and smiling the same with the furled fist of the other hand. Such conduct, while no doubt improving the efficacy of the performer, is now considered too Dubuque, Iowa, for the big league.

Rule 6.—Another offense unpardonably Upper Sandusky, Ohio, in itself is that of a fat-footed athlete tearing up the soil while sprinting several inches in advance of his hair and howling: "I got it! I got it!" To declare instead "I have it!" denotes the highest Boston, Mass., attainable. This rule should meet the approval of all grammar fiends.

Rule 7.—When head-end collisions result from enraptured fielders bent on retrieving the same fly ball, the victims should not display the least sign of Moline, Ala., nor seek to inflict further injury. The most Washington, D. C., course is for the young men to assist each other in plucking dislocated teeth from the grass so as not to delay the game.

Rule 8.—For runners to wilfully hamstring a bugman, or for the custodian of the bag to chip souvenirs from the faces of prostrate base-stealers with his sharp shoe plates, is now regarded as utterly El Paso, Texas, according to the latest handbook on true baseball politeness. Besides, the shedding of blood lowers the pastime to the level of intercollegiate football.

Rule 9.—It is also bad form, or the height of South Bend, Ind., for a player of national repute, in the act of cooling his pipes at the water pail, to hold the dipper in such a position that the overflow from his jowls dribbles back again into said pail. This breach is and should be tolerated only in horses and Oakland, Cal.

Rule 10.—Any player when bowing to the plaudits of the peanut-eaters after landing a home run or for other meritorious exploit should not at the same time employ the thumb and forefinger of either hand in lieu of a handkerchief. While this odd conceit enables the palpitating athlete to appear entirely at ease, at the same time it betokens extreme Shamokin, Pa.

Rule 11.—Visiting teams cannot be too guarded in the manner of table etiquette while away from home. Carving hard-boiled eggs around the dining rooms of leading hotels no doubt keeps the throwing arm in splendid condition, but at the same time it does look distressingly Beloit, Wis.

Rule 12.—Lose without frenzied exhibitions of Kankakee, Ill., and in case of victory avoid undue symptoms of Cheyenne, Wyo.

* * *

Again the rules governing the great college game of football have undergone a pretty thorough revision at the hands of an expert committee appointed for the purpose. This committee consisted of Walter Camp, Yale; Alexander Moffat, Princeton; J. H. Sears, Harvard; John C. Bell, Pennsylvania, and Professor Dennis, Cornell, and after carefully overhauling the whole code they unanimously agreed on many important changes, and for the first time in the history of the sport will the colleges of the country be able to play under a regular and uniform set of rules. The fact that slugging is to be absolutely tabooed will meet a most generous and popular approval and go a long way in elevating this vigorous pastime. The rules subject to material change are subjoined:

Rule 29—No player shall by his hands upon, or by the use of his hands or arms interfere with an opponent before the ball is put in play. After the ball is put in play, the player on the side that has possession of the ball can obstruct the opponents with his body only, except the player who runs with the ball, but the player of the side not having the ball can use their hands and arms to push the opponents out of the way.

Rule 30 (A)—A player shall be disqualified for unnecessary roughness, tackling or striking with a closed fist.

(B)—If a player be disqualified or injured a substitute shall take his place; the player thus replaced cannot return to further participation in such game.

(C)—For the offense of throwing, tripping or tackling below the kneed the opponents shall receive fifteen yards or a free kick at their option. In case, however, the fifteen yards will carry the ball across the goal line they may have the distance from thes pot of the offense to the goal line, but shall be allowed a free kick.

Rule 31—A foul shall be granted for any violation of the rules or for unnecessary delay of the game, off-side play or holding an opponent unless he has the ball. No delay arising from any cause whatsoever shall continue more than three minutes.

(B)—The penalty for fouls, except where otherwise provided, shall be when the offending side has the ball, the advance of the ball ten yards.

(C)—The offended side may refuse to accept the penalty where it is to its advantage. But in the case of a run resulting, should it be over fifteen yards, that distance shall be the limit allowed.

(D)—Whenever the rule provides for a distance penalty prescribed would carry the ball across the goal line on that of the intervening distance shall be given.

The British Sportsman, under the kennel department, quotes as follows from an English pamphlet: "It is a growing evil, and unquestionably a bad fault from a working point of view, a dog overdone with feather can't work, and I notice that in nearly all the specimens that have this abundance of feather, the feather is of a quality that is quite wrong in texture, and instead of being silky it is linty in texture, consequently everything sticks to it, and with a spaniel with feathering of this class and with as much of it as one now sees in a modern Skye terrier work is simply out of the question. In snowy weather the snowballs of the poor brute's legs are of such an extent he can't walk, and it is almost as bad on heavy, wet land; in fact, such feathering picks up everything, and such an animal can't walk through a farm yard without taking half a truss of straw away, and to work a ditch or a fence is an impossibility."

A week from Monday night, at the Suffolk club in Boston, Mysterious Billy Smith and Kid McCoy will punch each other for the so-called middleweight championship of America. It will undoubtedly be a great battle, and is already arousing much interest in short-haired circles, says the sporting editor of the Omaha Bee. In the minds of a majority of the patrons of the game the event is now all over but the shouting, and the wise ones are anxious to put up their coin on the Hoosier boxer. He is regarded as a lead pipe almost by the quid nuncs, but I must confess I am not a quid. I have seen these sapient ones bowled over and separated from their bank notes and silver pieces with a regularity that has been conducive to a higher education. Smith was one of the hardest welterweights the ring has produced in many a morn, and during his late sojourn on the tight little isle across the sea he took on a good deal of "size" and is back here in such condition as he hasn't known for two years, and from this on he will trot in the middle class. From what I know personally of the two men I am convinced that the match is a very even one.

The actions of the crowd at Pittsburg the other day—tearing up paper and throwing it in the air in such clouds that it confused the Louisville fielders—marked a new era in devilitry. It was as clever a trick as was ever played by a gang anxious to see the home team win, and its inventor ought to be decorated with a medal by the Pittsburg managers. The antics of the crowd at a ball game are always amusing, but it is not one time in fifty that the crowd manages to interfere so far as to give victory to its team.

"Kid" Nichols, of the Bostons, according to an Eastern paper, announces that at the close of the season he will quit baseball and go into business. Two seasons ago Nichols was promised some $500 if he pitched extra games. He pitched all that was required of him, but the next season the directors shut down on the scheme. This made Nichols feel sore.

Oarsman W. S. McDowell, national amateur champion in singles, began preliminary training for the Henley regatta this week. He left for Canada on Wednesday, under the care of Jake Gaudaur, where he will remain until about two weeks before the regatta. He will not cross the water as early as the Yale crew, or as Cornell men did last year. The Chicago man thinks that the climate is such that a long wait in England before the race destroys the effects of previous training in America. McDowell goes as the representative of the Delaware Boat club.

A VERY OLD MULE.

Old Rabbit is no more. He succumbed to the inevitable during the last week, and the cause of his demise is given as old age, says the St. Louis Globe Democrat.

Rabbit is said to have been more than 60 years old, and during a long part of his career he has been employed in hustling things at the city workhouse. Some time ago Superintendent Karr of that institution registered a kick, almost as emphatic at one as Rabbit in his younger days had been in the habit of delivering, saying that he must have younger live stock. As a result new horses and mules were procured, and Rabbit and some of his comrades, who, like him, had grown old in the service, were laid off. When the newcomers were introduced to Rabbit he positively refused to have anything to do with them. The thought that he was to be relieved from duty in his old age rankled in his bosom, and, just to show that he was still spry and young, he flung his heels into the air every time one of his new acquaintances came near him. He grew cross and morose, and was never the same, even to his old friends, after the day on which the young animals reached the institution.

Rabbit continued this way until the day of his final exit. While old age is given as the immediate cause of death, some assert that his demise was due to a broken heart. The news that Rabbit had yielded up the ghost caused much sorrowing at the city hall, where his career has been watched with considerable interest. Capt. Stone reported his death to the board of public improvements, and a motion was made that the workhouse be draped in mourning on the occasion of his funeral. This motion failed to carry, as some of the members objected to such proceedings on the score of expense, and Rabbit will be buried just like any everyday mule.

"Here at last is information from a high medical source that must work wonders with this generation of men."

The book fully describes a method by which to attain full vigor and manly power.

A method by which to end all unnatural drains on the system.

To cure nervousness, lack of self-control, despondency, &c.

To exchange a jaded and worn nature for one of brightness, buoyancy and power.

To cure forever effects of excesses, overwork, worry, &c.

To give full strength, development and tone to every portion and organ of the body.

Age no barrier. Failure impossible. Two thousand references.

The book is purely medical and scientific, useless to curiosity seekers, invaluable to men only who need it.

A despairing man, who had applied to us, soon after wrote:

"Well, I tell you that first day is one I'll never forget. I just bubbled with joy. I wanted to hug everybody and tell them my old self had died yesterday, and my new self was born to-day. Why didn't you tell me when I first wrote that I would find it this way?"

And another thus:

"If you dumped a cart load of gold at my feet it would not bring such gladness into my life as your method has done."

Write to the ERIE MEDICAL COMPANY, Buffalo, N. Y., and ask for the little book called "COMPLETE MANHOOD." Refer to this paper, and the company promises to send the book, in sealed envelope, without any marks, and entirely free, until it is well introduced.

FOG KING

That Is the Title Conferred on Captain Jacob Hector.

He Fairly Revels in Fog and Has Never Been Lost.

There Are Those Who Assert That He Smells His Way.

Have you ever taken a cruise along the north shore, say as far as Port Arthur? Not railroaded through, and yet not loitering, but skirting along the picturesque coast of this mightiest of the inland seas called the "lakes," old Superior. If you have not, do so at the first opportunity; do so before traveling far to spend your money and enthusiasm in breasting foreign seas and viewing the banks and braes of other lands. Does your soul yearn for the dangers of the raging main and revolt at the idea of paddling in a "lake" as being fit only for ducks and small boys? If so, just to get your nerves in trim, and also your stomach, take a try at Lake Superior. Tickle the old fellow when he is tossing his mane, and if you can retain your nerve—and so forth—you are fit to be a sailor, and old ocean himself will have no terrors for you.

Superior has moods—and in its stormy moods the stoutest craft are put to it for their lives. And it has gusty moods, when it wraps itself in fog and lies in wait, the jagged teeth of its isles and reefs dripping foam as it watches in stealth for its prey. No Venetian gondolier nor canal boat driver can wrestle with it at these times. To battle with its billows and to evade its lures when it lays traps in the fog, stout hearts, level heads and all a sailor's craft are required. There are captains who sail by the sun, the moon and the stars, but did you ever hear of one who, in addition to these guides, enlists the sense of smell? Well, then, hear of the "Fog King"—hear of a sailor for whom even the cold, clammy grasp of the seaman's lance as it lays hold of his ship has no terror—a sailor who is never duped in the deadly game of hide and seek in which so many have met destruction.

Perhaps Capt. Jacob Hector, of the Hiram R. Dixon, may not recognize himself in the midst of all this phrasing of fog kings and raging billows, but he and his craft are the subjects of the present sketch. The saying goes that the coming and going of the Dixon is as sure as death and taxes. Her whistle is familiar to Duluth ears, and for years it has been raised in parting and greeting as she departs and arrives on trips with the regularity of which wind and weather seem to have nothing to do. She is one of the finest boats in the A. Booth fleet, and it is on her bridge as master that Capt. Hector has stood for six years past.

HE REVELS IN FOG.

It is said that as the sea gull delights in storms, the captain revels in fog. It is firmly believed by many that his sight is keener when the "pea soup" hangs thickest over the water than when the sun shines from his highest perch in an unobscured sky. Many are the anecdotes that are told of him in support of this theory, and there are others who maintain that the captain navigates by the sense of smell. The captain himself laughs, but he does not, and perhaps cannot, explain the secret. The Dixon carries supplies and package freight on her out trips, returning with fish, the catches made by fishermen up along the north shore. She has ample accommodations for and carries passengers as well, and is a favorite boat for sportsmen, as they can disembark anywhere they desire.

Engaged in such trade as this, it will be seen that her master must not only be a skillful sailor, but also tolerably well acquainted with the shore along which she coasts. And it is said of Capt. Hector—he does not say much about it himself—that he knows the location of every bay and where every water-course empties into the lake between Duluth and Port Arthur.

TWO SPORTSMEN'S EXPERIENCE.

Two amateur sportsmen, who went out with the captain last summer tell of their experience, a story which is one of many. They told the captain where they wanted to get off—some stream that was loaded clear to the muzzle with fish—and he told them to be up and ready to leave the boat at 5 o'clock the next morning. Said one of them:

"We wondered how the captain could fix the time of arrival with such exactness, and when we went on deck at the appointed hour—and a cold, raw hour it was, as is often the case in that region, with a fog like a pea soup hanging over the water—we neither of us felt very kindly toward the world; we were cold and sleepy and imagined we had a grievance in having been routed out so unnecessarily early. The Dixon was going at full speed, and we could not see half her length ahead. Whether we were in mid-lake or forty feet from shore neither of us could have told, and we did not think the captain knew. He was standing on the bridge looking out into the fog as if he took no particular interest in the proceedings. I was on the point of asking him if he knew where we were at, when he gave a signal, and the boat began to slow down.

"'Well,' said he, looking at us, 'are you ready?'

"'Where are we,' said I, trying to pierce the curtain that hung around us.

"'Right over there is your fishing ground,' replied the captain, pointing off to the left, in which direction I should have headed for the 'Soo.'

"We crawled into the smallboat with some misgivings, and as the steamer receded in the fog I inwardly bade good-by to the world, and thought of stories of castaways feeding on each other as they floated about in open boats. These reflections were interrupted by the grating of the keel on the pebbles, as we touched at the landing place of the cabin where we were to put up. How the captain knew our whereabouts is more than I can tell. We apologized to him on the return trip."

A. BOOTH'S TRIP.

A. Booth, the head of the concern, once took a ride with Capt. Hector. He had heard of the captain's ability to find his way in a fog, and he had an opportunity of seeing it displayed—for it is a rare time when the north shore cannot provide a fog. It was skirting Isle Royale that the captain convinced the owner that he was as much at home in a fog as a mite in a cheese. Anybody who has ever been at Isle Royale knows the abruptness with which the channel twists and turns, the sentinel rocks rising up to bar the passage in the most unexpected way. Well, the captain churned around there flying, Mr. Booth's hair rising and his breath coming in gasps at every turn. He afterwards admitted he was scared.

The captain has been with the company thirteen years, and has never had an accident.

The Dixon is worthy of a few words herself. She was built at Mystic, Conn., in 1883, being designed as an ocean going vessel. Her prow has plunged through the cold waters of the Arctic circle, she having made three whaling trips to that region, and she has been rocked by the sun-kissed waves of the Mediterranean. She was brought to Duluth in 1888, and this has been her home port ever since. Capt. Martyn Wheeler, one of Duluth's old citizens, was her first commander after she entered the lake service.

MILE A MINUTE.

What That Means on a Locomotive.

To May Ladies' Home Journal John Gilmer Speed contributes an article upon the safety and comforts of railroad travel in the United States, in which he says that: "the highest type of American railroad is today constructed with such skill and sagacity that we travel in more luxury and more security than any people in the world." In considering the locomotives and the speed attained by them on our railroads Mr. Speed says: "* * * At sixty miles an hour the resistance of a train is four times as great as it is at thirty miles—that is, it requires four times as great an effort to send your train at sixty miles an hour this fuel must be exerted for a given distance in half the time that it is at thirty miles, so that the amount of power exerted and steam generated in a given period of time must be eight times as great as the faster speed. This means that the capacity of the boiler cylinder and the other parts must be greater with a corresponding addition to the weight of the machine. Obviously, therefore, if the weight per wheel, on account of the rails it must carry, is limited, we soon reach a point when the driving wheels and other parts cannot be further enlarged, and then we reach the maximum of speed. * * *

"The nice adjustment necessary of the various parts of these immense engines is well indicated by some figures as to the work performed by these parts when the locomotive is worked at high speed. Take a passenger engine on any of the big railroads. At sixty miles an hour a driving wheel five and a half feet in diameter revolves five times every second; now therefore, reciprocating parts of each cylinder, including piston, piston rod, cross head and connecting rod, weighing about 650 pounds, must move back and forth a distance equal to the stroke, usually two feet, every time the wheel revolves, or in a fifth of a second. It starts from a state of rest at the end of each stroke of the piston, and must acquire a velocity of thirty-two feet per second in one-twentieth of a second, and must be brought to a state of rest in the same period of time. A piston eighteen inches in diameter has an area of 254½ square inches. Steam of 150 pounds pressure on each square inch would, therefore, exert a force on the piston equal to 38,175 pounds. This force is applied alternately on each side of the piston ten times in a second."

DIPLOMACY TRIUMPHED.

The young man was bringing to bear all his limited attainments as a contortionist in his efforts to see around the tall, wide hat worn by the sweet girl in front of him, says the Detroit Free Press.

The young woman whom he was accompanying saw him and pitied him.

Then a knowing smile passed over her face and she leaned over and whispered loudly enough for the girl with the big hat to hear:

"What a lovely hat that girl in front of you has on."

He looked fierce, but said nothing, and the owner of the hat stared straight ahead with a pleased expression.

"What a pity it is," the young woman with the knowing look resumed, "that she doesn't know it isn't on straight."

The girl in front made a convulsive grab and shifted the hat to one side. Then it didn't feel right, and she shoved it away over on the other side, only to hear in the commiserating stage whisper behind her:

"Poor thing! She'll never get it straight now!"

It was too much. The girl in front reached up with a resolute hand, undid the hat, and laid it in her lap, while the young man cast a glance at his companion which was eloquent with undying admiration and eternal gratitude.

PERMANENT JOB.

Boston Courier: "That man," exclaimed Fitz, as he observed a man hanging lights at precarious places along a highway that was in course of repair—"that man is pretty well assured of a permanent job."

"Why do you say that?" asked a bystander.

"Because," responded Fitz, "a man that hangs fire isn't apt to be discharged."

A WAR REMINISCENCE.

Scenes at Hatcher's Creek and Petersburg Recalled.

John B. Scace Speaks to a Reporter of Stirring Scenes—Escaped with a Slight Wound, but, Like Other Veterans, Has Suffered Since—A Story that Reads Like a Page from History.

From the Albany, N. Y., Journal.

When one encounters in print the life story of some scarred veteran of the civil war a feeling of admiration and sympathy is the certain result. Accustomed though we are to tales of heroism and suffering in everyday life, there is something peculiarly attractive about these old war records, serving, as they do, as a sacred passport to the heart of every true American. Thousands found their rest on the field of carnage or in the hospital, but their comrades, when the struggle was over and the victory won, returned to their homes and began anew the battle of life.

John B. Scace, the widely known contractor and building mover of Albany, N. Y., has had an unusually interesting life, and when seen by a reporter recently at his home, No. 15 Bradford Street, told of his many experiences and adventures while serving under the old flag in the late war. Although having endured all the hardships and privations of life in the ranks, Mr. Scace bears his more than half century of years with an elastic step and a keen mind, taking an active interest in private and public affairs.

While still a boy, his family moved from Albany, his birthplace, to Pittsfield, Mass., and here he was educated. He mastered the carpenter's trade, became a member of Berkshire Lodge, No. 1, O. F., and was entering upon a successful business life when came the call from Washington for men. All over the country the word sped, and excitement ran high. All the old-time patriotism that had made Massachusetts famous in Revolutionary days was fired to its utmost. Every town and village sent out its sons and company.

The company in which Mr. Scace enlisted in September of 1862, as a private, became Company A, Forty-ninth Regiment, Massachusetts Volunteer Infantry. Under the common impression that the war would be one of but short duration, the men were enlisted for nine months only. Scarcely were they uniformed and armed before they were ordered to the front. The regiment, which at the time was under the command of Col. W. F. Bartlett, served in the First Brigade, First Division, Nineteenth Corps, and participated in some of the hottest battles of the great rebellion.

Mr. Scace, at the time, was but twenty-two years of age, and he remembers well with what a beating heart he first fell in line. His regiment was ordered South, directly through the enemy's country, with Baton Rouge as the objective point. After several months of weary marches, and during which Company A passed through several lively scrimmages with the enemy constantly hovering about the flanks and rear, the capital city of Louisiana was reached. An evacuation followed. Citizens and the rebel soldiery stationed in the city fled like frightened sheep, bearing with them what goods they could carry and setting torch to the rest. The beautiful capitol building, which had been converted into a war prison, had also been fired, and the boys in blue swarmed in, just in time to save their captive comrades from perishing in the flames. Mr. Scace, who had been, while en route, promoted to corporal, was in the thickest of the melee, and describes the scenes in a graphic manner. Although the city had fallen almost without a blow given or received, a fight was not far off, for word was received that a large force of the enemy was fast approaching.

A bloody battle ensued at Plain Store, a few days' march out of the capital, in which Corporal Scace was severely wounded. A minnie ball struck his left thigh and, grazing the bone, narrowly missed the great artery. He was retired to the camp at Baton Rouge, but recuperated so rapidly that he entered, soon after, again into active service. The battles of Port Hudson and Donaldsonville followed, with all their thrilling episodes.

It was not long after this that, by reason of the expiration of his term of enlistment, he was honorably discharged. His respite was not a long one, however, for he soon afterward re-enlisted, to serve for the remainder of the war. For meritorious action he had been raised to the sergeant's stripes, and as such served in Company A, Sixty-first Regiment, Massachusetts Volunteer Infantry, under Col. Charles F. Walcott. During the term of his re-enlistment Sergeant Scace participated in some of the hottest struggles of the war. Many a gray-haired veteran to-day recalls the scenes of Hatcher's Run, the fall of Petersburg and the battle of Sailor's Creek.

After his honorable discharge, June 4, 1865, Mr. Scace returned to Albany and settled down once again to his business and social interests. He has resided in the city ever since, It would seem that now, of all times, his peace and happiness would have been uninterrupted. Such was not to be the case, for four years ago, while engaged in superintending the raising of the immense smokestack of the Albany Electric power house, the lever of a loosened windlass struck him a heavy blow across the back. The effect of the blow was not at first apparent, he being able to leave his bed in a few days. But the worst was to follow, for without warning he was seized with sciatic rheumatism in all its virulence. Untold agony followed.

Said Mr. Scace, "I could not sleep for the pain. No one will know the tortures the rheumatism gave me. I don't know how I lived during those days. I became little more than skin and bones, and it seemed like life didn't have anything but suffering in it. Cures? I tried every so-called rheumatic cure that was ever invented. I gave all of them a good trial before I stopped taking them. My friends and neighbors recommended remedy after remedy that they heard of, but my rheumatism went on just the same. Well, after I had almost had the life tortured out of me, I came across a newspaper account of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and I thought I might as well add another name to the list as not, so I ordered some of my druggist.

"I tell you, I was glad in those days to hear of anything that could give me any hope at all. Yes, I got them, and before I had taken two boxes that pain began to leave me. Why, I couldn't understand it. I couldn't imagine myself being cured. But before I had taken a half-dozen of those boxes I was cured. The suffering which had made my life almost unbearable for so long had disappeared. I was a new man.

"I began to get strong. I picked up in flesh, and I went back to my business with all the vigor and vim of a young man. I think everyone who knows me will tell you what it did for me. Pink Pills is the grandest medicine ever discovered, and if my recommendation will do it any good I want you to use it. I hope others will hear of it and be benefited as I have been. Everyone should hear of it. I can't say too much for them," Mr. Scace exclaimed enthusiastically in conclusion.

This is but one of the many cases in which Pink Pills have taken such a beneficent part in the history of humanity.

Mr. Scace is now enjoying the fruits of an unusually large business, managed solely by himself, and covering almost the entire eastern portion of the State. Mr. Scace is also an ivory carver of marked ability, which he follows solely for his own pleasure. Many little trinkets, carved by the light of the camp-fire, attest his skill in this direction.

Far from being solicited to recommend the curative which had taken such a load of misery from his life, in his gratitude his praise for it is unstinted and unceasing. And from his own statements one may easily see that when he does cease to sing its virtues, it will be to answer the last mustering in.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills contain, in a condensed form, all the elements necessary to give new life and richness to the blood and restore shattered nerves. They are an unfailing specific for such diseases as locomotor ataxia, partial paralysis, St. Vitus' dance, sciatica, neuralgia, rheumatism, nervous headache, the after effect of la grippe, palpitation of the heart, pale and sallow complexions, all forms of weakness either in male or female. Pink Pills are sold by all dealers, or will be sent post paid on receipt of price, 50 cents a box, or six boxes for $2.50 (they are never sold in bulk or by the 100) by addressing Dr. Williams' Medicine Company, Schenectady, N.Y.

PESTS OF CANARIES.

Canary birds are often tormented with little pests that are hard to detect, says Chambers' Journal. The insects that make themselves most objectionable are little red mites. They come out to worry him at night and leave him irritated all over, while they retreat to the cracks of the cage in the day time. The insect powder does no good, because it is not long enough on the skin to kill them if they were there, which is doubtful, for, as I said, they are nocturnal.

Still, you may powder him well, especially under his wings, with pyrethrum powder; then wrap him in a handkerchief and hold him for a quarter of an hour until the powder has time to work. Then give him a clean new cage and have the old one either dipped in boiling water for several minutes or baked in the oven. Nothing short of this will destroy the horrors. To know if they cause the irritation cover the cage at night with a white cloth, and if there are any about you will see them, like little red specks, in the morning.

THE MUD WASP.

For centuries the mud wasp has built its cells of soft mud, says the Popular Science News. In the bottom of these cells the female lays its minute eggs, building its mud home just the size that the young will be when grown. Before closing its mud-walled cell the wasp catches a suitable sized spider, injects into its body a fluid that causes it to remain torpid through the winter, until with the warmth of returning spring the young wasp grows and consumes the spider for food, thus gaining strength to break the mud walls and emerge into the outer world a full-winged insect. Yet no mud wasp from the beginning has ever seen its young.

POKER JACK TANNER.

Candidate Selected by the Illinois Republicans For Governor.

SENTENCED TO HANG.

Got a New Trial and Was Acquitted ---Then He Became Sheriff.

Arthur H. Lewis says in the New York Journal: 'What Tom Platt is to the party in New York John R. Tanner is to the Republican machine in Illinois.' He holds the present party destinies in the hollow of his hand.

Tanner's convention selection to lead the Republican ticket in a run for the governorship represents in its way a mistake of Kohlsaat. Had that volatile editor let Tanner alone he might never have been nominated. But Kohlsaat, leaving cakes to burn in his ovens, flew to the columns of his paper and called Tanner an "unlettered ass" and an "uncultured boor," and for a time continued it by declamatory concerning Tanner in a kindred burning fashion.

This Kohlsaat excitement brought to the shoulder of Tanner's canvass Medill, with his paper, as well as that other giant of the journals, William Penn Nixon. It also sorely aggrieved Tanner, who made up his mind to win, cost what it might, befall whatever would.

About this time, too—this was two months ago—Mark Hanna broke into the affairs of Kohlsaat with the information that his war on Tanner was killing McKinley in Illinois. The McKinley syndicate had a prior claim on Kohlsaat; the claim in this instance that he be quiet.

"You are killing McKinley," whispered Hanna.

And Kohlsaat, with ashen face, was dumb. He repaired again to his cakes and his ovens, and no more named Tanner in his excellent journal.

But it was too late. Tanner—that Western Machiavelli—had received too much impetus, and he was made the choice of the convention to be next governor of Illinois, as all the world well knows.

Tanner is now 55 years of age. He is well formed, wiry physically, looks fair, dresses to the point which dodges comment, has all his hair, shaves off his beard and garnishes his countenance with a mustache; the latter being voluminous and drooping, and of the sort which goes with a faro game.

In his nature Tanner is strong, creeping, insidious as a grapevine. Once his tendrils fasten, nothing tears him free. To bring him down one must lay the ax on what he clings to.

He has, too, the stealth and wisdom of a serpent, is capable of concealment and poison. With neither pocketbook nor pedigree, utterly uneducated, with the handicap of a rustic origin, Tanner has become respectable, even as a rattlesnake is respectable. He fangs his foes to death politically, and is no laughing matter.

When Garfield was president he said that its chief joy for him was fruit of the fact that his mother had lived to see his White House elevation. One will recall that the good old lady sat back of him as Garfield took his oath of office, and that his first act following the words that commissioned him president was to turn and kiss her proud old face.

Should Tanner become governor he will have no such sweet experience. His youth is black with sorrow and drips sadness like a dew. His mother is not only dead, but Tanner neither knows when nor how. This is Tanner's life story, bluntly told.

Tanner was born in Warwick county, Ind., Lincoln's boyhood home, in 1841. The Tanner family had a census of five—father, mother and three children. There was an older brother, Mack. John R. was the second son. There was a sister, who went to obscurity and death with her mother.

It was a few years prior to the civil war when the Tanner family removed to Missouri, and they would seem to have set up their lares and penates in a hotbed of secession. When the war broke the Tanner household, man and woman, boys and girl, was seized on, as of Union sympathies. The two boys and the father were hurried South to rebel prisons. The mother and daughter forever disappeared, and till this day John Tanner has never had trace nor trail of them. Not one word floated back from the black past to tell of the grim tragedy of their taking off.

Tanner went through the war a private and came out at the age of 25, knowing a good deal about war and men, and little about books. He could shoot better than he could read. It would seem, too, that his moral nature was at that time as backward as his book lore.

Coming from the civil war, Tanner settled in Clay county, in swamps of lower Illinois. He became a sawmill owner and made boards of the timber, and moderate money of the people round about. He developed a taste to hunt, and enlisting a pack of hounds, he chased his prototype, the fox. It was then, too, he grew skilful as a fiend at the relaxation known as draw poker, and was better acquainted with the local value of "a flush," or a "full" than any who met him across the table. The neighbors then bestowed upon him the nom de guerre of "Poker Jack Tanner," for the same reason, doubtless, that men set up signs marked "Danger" where ice is weak. To this day Tanner is hailed as "Poker Jack" in Illinois.

Tanner, like others of the Illinois peasantry, worked his poll tax by plowing and shovelling the turnpike. One day, while so engaged, a fellow-man, also obliterating his poll tax, had an affray with Tanner. The latter suddenly smote the other with his shovel, and with such verve and sincerity that the victim fell dead in his tracks, thrust into eternity in a moment.

Tanner fled from an indictment for murder in the first degree. The authorities posted bills offering great riches to any who would capture him. Tanner's brother rode about nights fraternally tearing down the bills. At last Tanner came back, was tried and convicted and sentenced to hang. He got a new trial and was acquitted.

Then Tanner became sheriff himself and did what hanging there was to do in that region. This is not a pleasant assignment, but it is better than being hanged oneself.

From sheriff Tanner began to spread as a vine of politics throughout the state. At first he fought with Cullom. Then they made up, and Tanner became, as it were, the architect of Cullom, and constructed him into the senate. He has kept Cullom there ever since; on days, too, when Cullom could do naught for himself.

In 1880 Tanner became a state senator. Later Cullom caused him to be made United States marshal for Southern Illinois, under Arthur. In 1886 Tanner succeeded as state treasurer, and is said to have made $100,000 loaning the state's money. He loaned some of it, by the way, to an eminent journalist in Chicago; no; Kohlsaat, be it known.

In 1892 Harrison, yielding to a Cullom hunch, named Tanner sub-treasurer at Chicago. He was also chairman of the state Republican committee, and as such originated an ingenious and gratifying poster banner: John Hopkins, mayor of Chicago, and was therefore sued by that unworthy for $50,000. It was a waterhaul. Hopkins took nothing from the litigation.

Within a year Tanner gave significant proof of his power. They started hastily to arrange an investigation of the state treasury at Springfield. Tanner had personal as well as political reasons for distrusting the upcome of such a ceremony. He abode in Chicago at the time, and, chartering a special engine, he was instantly and betimes at the state capital. Once there he crushed the proposed investigation like an eggshell.

Tanner has been married; his wife is now dead. He has two children, a son, "Mack," just graduated at the Chicago university, and a daughter, Lulu, wedded to one Barnes.

Tanner never made a speech; can't write or speak ten words of grammatical English, and spells worse than did Andrew Jackson or does Jerry Simpson. The Democrats will name Altgeld against him and Tanner will have to fight for his political life.

Tanner absolutely has the Republican party of Illinois treed and in his power. If the delegation votes for McKinley at St. Louis, it will be because Tanner is willing and Cullom is willing. It will mean that Kohlsaat will support Tanner for governor and Cullom have a cabinet place, when McKinley becomes king.

NAVAL DISCIPLINE.

As an illustration of the strictness of the discipline on board an American man-of-war, which makes the commanding officer an absolute autocrat, from whose authority there is no appeal, the following story is told, says the Philadelphia Times: "Aboard one of the vessels lying in Hampton roads—it will be unfair to name which one—is a cadet who comes of a very distinguished family. He has but recently graduated from the Annapolis academy. There was a charming society woman staying at Old Point Comfort, who was well acquainted with the young fellow's mother and desired to send him a message.

"Meeting the captain of the boat in the corridor of Chamberlin's hotel, she said: 'Oh, captain, I am so glad to see you. I wish to send a message to young Blank, who is aboard your vessel, and I would be so much obliged if you would convey it to him.' Said the captain, gravely, with a slight inclination of his body and with just a tinge of hauteur: 'Madam, I will see that he gets it.' There was that in his manner which at once left the impression that an impropriety had been committed, and the lady was almost tearful in her beseechment that she should be told what wrong she had done. Under pressure the gallant mariner finally said: 'Madam, if I came to your house, and having rung the bell, should summon your husband to the doorstep and then should ask him to take from me a message to your cook, I would be guilty of exactly what you have done in the ethics of the navy.'

"Naturally there was a profuse apology, but the gentleman in the son of Neptune showed itself when he said, with a polite bow: 'Madam, where no offense is intended none can be committed. Let me have your note and I will see that it is delivered.' It was subsequently handed to the coxswain of the captain's launch and through that humble medium ship committed to the young cadet. To some people that may sound like unnecessarily strict regimeu, but it is to the observance of such small things that is due the marvelous discipline which is discovered on the vessels which fly the flag of the American navy. Thre cheers for the red, white and blue!"

APPLAUDED THE PRAYER.

The fact that short prayers are likely to be well received by members of a political assembly was graphically illustrated at the Republican convention of Illinois in 1878, says the Sioux City Tribune. The Rev. Robert Nourse, then pastor of the Congregational church in Springfield, had been invited to make the opening prayer, and the temporary chairman, Col. Babcock, as he announced that the clergyman would "invoke the divine blessing," whispered to him to "cut it short."

The injunction was obeyed to the very letter, for the prayer was substantially (if not literally) as follows:

"O Lord God of nations, we are met to nominate officers for our state. Give us wisdom that we may nominate the best men; when we have done that, grant that they may be elected, and when elected make them true to their trust. Amen."

The delegates who had been composing themselves for a prayer of the usual proportions were taken by surprise. The pith and logical point of the prayer was recognized; as the last word was uttered, the convention broke out in a whirlwind of applause, which continued for some minutes.

NATURALLY SURPRISED.

Tit Bits: "I say," said the regular customer, as he stopped at the restaurant cashier's box to pay for the dinner he had had, "where did you get that beef you are serving today?"

"What's the matter with it?" aggressively asked the cashier, who scented another row.

"Oh, there's nothing the matter with it; that's why I asked."

WOMEN DISCOURAGED.

GOOD AND SUFFICIENT REASONS FOR THE BLUES.

Doctors Fail to Understand Symptoms That Are Danger Signals.

A marked trait in woman's character is to place implicit confidence in her physician.

A man must work entirely from theory in the treatment of female diseases, for unfortunately facts based upon actual knowledge, belong to the female sex alone. Many women who periodically suffer with attacks of faintness, dizziness, extreme lassitude, "don't care" or want-to-be-left-alone feeling, do not at first realize that these are the infallible symptoms of womb trouble and the forerunners of great suffering.

Soon they grow to feel that the doctor does not understand their case. Then they remember that "a woman best understands a woman's ills," and turn to Mrs. Pinkham.

The following letter is but one positive illustration of this fact:—

"Four years ago I began to suffer with great weakness of the generative organs. My womb was prolapsed; I suffered with continual backache and all the other pains that accompany that weakness. I tried doctor after doctor, had operations. The final operation after which I became a total wreck, was scraping of the womb. A friend, one day, recommended to my husband your Compound. He bought me a bottle. The relief I experienced after taking it, was wonderful. I continued its use, and I am glad to say my recovery is a perfect surprise to everybody that knows me."—Mrs. B. HAREM AFLOAT.

Lots of Trouble When Seasickness Came.

From "A Wandering Scholar in the Levant," Hogarth: A dirtier and more cockroach-infested craft I never sailed upon than that Levantine coaster, peace to her ribs!—they are whitening now on the Syrian coast, where she was quietly aground one night without loss to life and decently insured. The officers were Scotch and the crew Greek, and the latter understood the former according to the vitriolic expletives. It might be said that the ship was worked wholly by profanity. The captain, meeting a friend in Iskederun, looked on the Samian wine till he took a fever, and we did without him for the rest of the voyage; the cook, objecting to a Jew who was singing near his galley, sliced him from eye to chin, and had to be put in irons; and who after that event cooked our greasy dinner I dared not inquire. Many are the ridiculous memories that revive with the name of that disreputable tub that scavenged along the Levantine coasts, shipping contraband where she could not get licensed cargo, and defying pilots and the rules of ports; but none funnier than of a certain squally night on which we ran out of Iskenderun, the whole sea red in the reflected light of a forest fire.

We were carrying on the quarter deck a pasha's harem, come from the interior, and probably new to the sea; and as the ship pitched and rolled, and wives and children and slaves fell very sick, the oldest and stoutest duenna of them all, started up unveiled and half clad, rushed to the side and began to climb the rail, with the evident purpose of leaping out of the accursed ship somehow and somewhither. But the old Scotch mate was too quick for her. In an instant he had gripped her waist, and for five minutes there was a Homeric battle, he cursing gutterally as he held on like grim death, she backing out behind, twining her disengaged hand in his hair, and defaming his maternal ancestors to the tenth generation. The harem shrieked at the awful spectacle of their comrade in the grasp of a man, but there was none to help, for the pasha was lying abject in his berth below, and we enjoyed the scene far too keenly to cut it short. At the last she succumbed, exhausted, and the old Scot bore her back like a sack to her bed.

PUSSY EN ROUTE.

When Royal Blue express train No. 511 rolled into Camden station from New York, a few minutes before 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon, Conductor Bennett was surprised to notice a feline passenger he had put off the train at Wilmington, Del., and which was (water-soaked, slowly crawl out between a couple of the vestibuled cars, shake itself, and walk proudly up and down the platform, says the Baltimore American. It was a remarkably pretty black cat, and it got on the train at Philadelphia. Pussy's objective point must have been Washington; for as soon as the train moved out of Camden station, Officer Wingate saw the cat slyly curl itself up under one of the trucks of a passenger coach, and wink one eye, as the train pulled out of the long shed.

After being put off the train at Wilmington, the cat crawled along the trucks to the engine, and found a warm place on the tender. There is where it got its drenching, for all express trains on the road take water while in motion at a point between Wilmington and Singerly. The cat seemed attached to the train, and it was all the engineer could do to put it off the tender at Camden station.

CONEY ISLAND CAMELS.

A caravan of eighteen camels, each carrying a huge pack and attended by a native Egyptian runner, wended its way through New York last week, says the New York Journal. These curious "ships of the desert" have cast anchor at Coney Island, where they are to remain throughout the summer. The community is the largest of its kind ever seen in New York. It is intended to lend an atmosphere of realism to the new Midway now in course of construction.

The newcomers are particularly gentle and mild of eye. They come from Cape Town, South Africa, and the journey from their native home to the foot of West Eighth street took thirty-three days. They may be seen every morning stretched out in a long line, caravan fashion, marching across the sandy desert which separates Coney Island from the music pavilion at Brighton beach. The caravan is led by a fine looking Egyptian named "Holy Moses." The leader has a funny little black runner whose name is "Moses," and who trots along shouting curious Egyptian words of encouragement.

The Cairo street along which this caravan is to be established will be over 300 feet long, and quite as narrow, and crooked as could be desired. Besides the camels, the new Midway may boast of two theatres in which Turkish performances will be given.

The camels will probably be as badly overloaded as the trolley cars which run to the island, and will no doubt prove to be quite as uncomfortable. An ordinary camel will carry eight persons with entire safety, if not comfort, to its passengers. They will be decorated with the bright Egyptian colors, and each will carry a bell. At present they appear to be in a remarkably bad state of repair. Great tufts of camel's hair are missing from their backs in the places where they would be most likely to add to the comfort of camel horseback riding.

"THOUGHTLESS FOLKS HAVE THE HARDEST WORK," BUT QUICK-WITTED PEOPLE USE

SAPOLIO

ABLAZE WITH DIAMONDS.

A good picture of the late shah of Persia shows him in full jewelled array, when he wore diamonds estimated in value at about $6,000,000. Instead of medals he wore diamonds on his chest to commemorate the battles he fought, and his scimiter was a flash of light from hilt to the end of the scabbard, says the New York Sun. The latter was of gold completely encrusted with diamonds said to be worth $500,000. The stones in his shoulder straps weighed more than 100 carats. The sunburs; pendant from his neck was a fortune in itself, and the aigrette in his cap was scarcely less splendid. His shoulder belt was studded with large diamonds set in clusters of smaller stones. The large diamonds he wore were for the most part only half cut; that is, they had facets only on the upper sides, the lower sides being left in the rough.

and all wasting diseases, should write to me for advice.

I have been a close student for many years of the subject of weakness in men, the fact is, I was a sufferer myself. Too bashful to seek the aid of older men or reputable physicians, I investigated the subject deeply and discovered a simple but most remarkably successful Remedy that completely cured me, and fully enlarged me from a shrunken, stunted condition to natural size and strength. I want every young or old man to know about it. I take a personal interest in each case, and no one need hesitate to write me, as all communications are held strictly confidential. I send the recipe of this remedy absolutely free of cost. Do not put off, but write me fully at once, you will always bless the day you did so. Address,

HE HAD A SINECURE.

Boston Transcript: "It beats all," exclaimed Mrs. Clovertop, who had just returned from a visit to the city; "it beats all how some folks git along in this world. There's Harry Slavers, for instance. You know Harry. When he was to home here he never was no good at real work. He'd go dawdlin' about all day long starin' into a book, and when he wasn't readin' he'd be scribblin' stuff for the papers and magazines. I never saw the like of him, and I always said he'd never amount to nothin'.

"But, law, it does seem as though the lazier and the good-for-nothin'er some folks are the easier they slide through the world. When I was in the city I called on Harry. I always kinder liked Harry, in spite of his shiftlessness. Well, what do you think! Harry's editor of a paper down there, and they do say he gets pretty good wages, too."

"But for my part, I can't see how folks can pay a man for doin' jes' nothin' at all.

"Harry has a nice room full o' books and things and a big desk with a big krinkly kiver that shuts up as cute as you please when he ain't usin' it, and there he sits all day as grand as a lord, receivin' callers.

"Folks are all the time comin' in to tell him what's goin' on, and they tell him what side to take on all kinds o' questions, and what ought to go into the paper and what oughtn't! and, more than that, they bring in stuff already written—enough in one day, sometimes, to fill his paper for a week.

"And they tell him just how to run his paper; so you see he don't have to bother his head a bit about it.

"I never did see so much luck. I told Harry he ought to bless his stars, for I never did see anybody who got a livin' half so easy.

"Harry jes' smiled and said: 'Think so?' Mrs. Cloverton?' Jest in his quiet way, you know. 'Think so!' said I; 'well, I should think I did.'

"But do you know, I don't b'lieve he haf appreciates his good fortune. Some folks, you know, never are satisfied."

A. L. Wooster, a prominent citizen of Osseo, Mich., after suffering excruciatingly from piles for twenty years, was cured in a short time by using DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve, an absolute cure for all skin diseases. More of this preparation is used than all others combined. S. P. Boyce.

Science and Invention.

It is reported that Secretary Herbert has written to the chairman of the senate committee on naval affairs opposing the establishment by the government of an armor-plate foundry at Washington for the following reasons: First. It would be necessary to haul from long distances and at considerable expense the necessary coal, iron ore or crude iron and other materials. Second, an establishment large enough to handle the heaviest class of plate would have an output of a much greater quantity of armor than the government would be likely to need. Third, workers in steel of sufficient knowledge and skill to be employed in the manufacture of armor plates receive very high wages and it would not be practical to employ such men when armor is to be made and discharge them when their services are no longer needed. Fourth, to keep the plant in order, merely, would require the constant maintenance in the pay of the government of a considerable force of skilled mechanics.

Admitting the first reason to be sound, as it undoubtedly is, why shouldn't our uncle with the starry coat and striped pants cast his eye over the catalogue of advantages which Duluth affords as a site for such a plant? It may confidently be asserted that no other place for such an enterprise is more conveniently situated than the Zenith City. In commenting upon the second and third objections advanced by the secretary it might be said that the object of such a plant is not only to secure a temporary economy, but to insure the honest manufacture of the plate required and to place an establishment under the control of the government, which would protect it from the greed of private corporations in emergencies and times of national distress. The late disclosures in regard to the armor-plate frauds of a noted private corporation are alone a sufficient argument for the establishing of a government plant. If the time ever comes when unfortunately the nation will have to make use of the armor plates in her defense, she must rely upon their efficiency and it will be no time then to test them and ferret out frauds and make repairs. It is also probable that such a plant could be used for many purposes by the government other than for manufacturing armor plate.

The May number of the Engineering Magazine is filled with valuable matter. Among its pages will be found a remarkably interesting description of the coke industry, illustrated. Other articles which claim the attention of the scientist are: "The Horseless Carriage Problem," "Points in the Selection of Steam Engines," "Are British Railroads Good Investments?" and "Machine Shop Economics." Perhaps no other magazine of general scientific subjects is so complete or could be so cordially recommended to the reading and thinking public as the Engineering Magazine.

Friedrich Lehner, of Zurich, Switzerland, has just patented in the United States a process of making artificial silk. Silk worms, hitherto pampered in the luxury of finest mulberry trees, will now have to come down and root for a living. Lehner's artificial silk, which is said to very closely resemble the natural article, is made according to the process consisting substantially of the following steps: First, preparing two solutions of, firstly, silk waste digested with caustic alkali or a solution of copper or a copper salt in ammonia, precipitated from such solution and finally dissolved in a concentrated acetic acid; secondly, a substance containing cellulose macerated with a solution of copper or copper salt in ammonia, and nitrated and then partially denitrated, mixing the two solutions thus formed and causing the said mixture to pass through a congealed solution or bath, whereby a thread is formed which is drawn out and spun. The patent covers the process more in detail and with a number of minor variations. Patents have also been secured by Mr. Lehner in Switzerland, Austria-Hungary, England and Italy, and applications filed in other places.

THE NATIONAL GUARD.

The coming month will be a lively one in military circles, for, beginning with Monday and continuing until after camp is over, the Duluth battalion will be kept on the move nearly all the time. Monday the annual inspection begins, and that most trying ordeal will continue until Thursday night. During this week the armories have been lively scenes, for, in addition to the ordinary drills, there was someone around almost any time putting the finishing touches to his gun and other accoutrements, until every touch of metal shone as bright as a new dollar.

* * *

It is always an exciting time just before inspection, particularly with recruits who have never passed an inspection before. The older ones work just as hard, for they know that no blemish will escape the eagle eye of the inspector. But the new ones are in a stew of nervousness for fear that some oversight will leave a speck of rust in the gun, a tarnished spot on the brasses or a dull and worn spot on the black leather belts, any of which is popularly supposed to be a terrific shock to the inspector if perchance he should run across them.

* * *

The inspection will begin Monday night at the armory on Michigan street with Company A. Tuesday night H will be inspected at its quarters in West Duluth, and Wednesday and Thursday evenings Companies C and G will undergo the ordeal. The companies are to inspect about sixty men apiece, and of course there is a strong rivalry to see which can get the most men out and present the best average, and this spirit of competition should result in some very good averages. The inspecting officer is Lieut. A. B. Johnson, of the Seventh U. S. infantry, who was detailed two years ago as inspector of Minnesota troops for two years. He is living in St. Paul, and during this service he is not attached to his regiment.

* * *

Friday evening, May 15, there will be a meeting of the commissioned officers of the battalion for the purpose of choosing a battalion adjutant and of talking over matters of general interest. The adjutant will be a lieutenant chosen from among the officers of the four companies, and his promotion will create a vacancy. At this meeting the officers will select time and place for holding battalion drills, which will be held every week from inspection to camp. Later these, with the officers of their lines, in all numbering thirty of the brainy and leading business men of the valley, spent the day discussing projects and formulating plans for a combination of interests which will bring success out of their desires. The plan they will promulgate will be to ask Polk county to bond itself in a sum possibly as great as $200,000, for which it will receive stock of the road in the same amount. This sum will be used to build the stretch of road through the timber south of the Red Lake reservation from Polk county on the east to Deer river. This will then leave the three roads to work out their own salvation as to grading through the valley country, and the result will certainly be a success unless the present temper of the farmers is cooled very materially.

* * *

Inspection over, then comes the preparations for camp, of which the battalion drill is one. The companies are all working hard, with the intention of taking big companies to camp at Lake City. The date now set for the Third regiment's encampment is June 23 to 30. The officers of the battalion have asked that it be set a week or so earlier, as the present dates would make it hard for guardsmen employed in offices. Their work is especially rushing about the first of each month, and under the dates now set they could not get back until after the first, which might annoy the employers.

* * *

Several of the new uniforms for Company G have arrived, and the new fatigue caps will be here the first part of next week.

First Sergt. W. C. Johnson, of G, is back from New York, where he has been recuperating from a siege of typhoid.

Sergt. Brockerhurst, of A, is back with his company after an absence of six months.

BLUE GRASS ORIGIN.

"I notice by the papers that somebody in the south part of the state wants to know where blue grass first started," said Professor John Collett, ex-state geologist, to the Indianapolis Journal.

"A great many people contend that it was first found in Kentucky, but this is not so. Blue grass is a native of the Wabash valley in Indiana. It was found by William Henry Harrison's troops during this solemn march to Tippecanoe in 1811. Harrison gathered a small army at Clio Falls and started north. At Vincennes the gallant heroes realized that they could not go 200 miles up the Wabash without feed for their horses. Gen. Harrisson had two cribs of corn at Terre Haute and persuaded the men to go on. As they came on with hungry horses and scant feed they found the ground covered with blue grass. Six miles west of Newport, on the Collett farm was found a bountiful supply of blue grass. Some places in the bottom it was growing three feet high and such feed had never been heard of by the Kentucky soldiers. At State Line City more blue grass was found and from there to Tippecanoe, the whole line of march was covered with blue grass. The seed was carried back to Kentucky and sown there, but they could not make it thrive alone by the warm soil and it had to be sown with oats and rye. Mr. Sandusky, the father of the present family of that name, told me in an early day that no blue grass grew in Kentucky until after it was imported from Indiana. Tom Downing, of Terre Haute, was an ardent admirer of Henry Clay, and once went to visit him at his home near Ashland, Ky. After seeing the fine farm, well set in blue grass, Downing suggested that Mr. Clay let him have some of the seed to take back to Indiana.

"'Tom, don't make a fool of yourself,' said Clay, 'the grandsire of Kentucky blue grass is growing around your house and in the fence corners of your fields. We got the seed from Terre Haute and the Middle Wabash, and after a hard struggle got it to grow here in its present luxuriousness.'"

TOBACCO-TWISTED NERVES.

The Unavoidable Result of the Continued Use of Tobacco.

Is There a Sure, Easy and Quick Way of Obtaining Permanent Relief From the Habit?

Millions of men think they need stimulants, because their nerves are set on fire by tobacco. The persistent abuse to which the tobacco-user subjects his nerves cannot possibly fail to make weak the strongest man. Chewing and smoking destroy manhood and nerve power. What you call a habit is a nervous disease.

Tobacco in the majority of cases deadens the feelings. You may not think tobacco hurts you, but how are you ever going to tell how much better you would feel without it, unless you follow the advice of Postmaster Holbrook.

CURED 49 CASES OUT OF 50.

Holbrook, Nev., June 13.

Gentleman—The effects of No-To-Bac are truly wonderful. I had used tobacco for forty-three years, a pound plug a week. I used two boxes of No-To-Bac and have had no desire for tobacco since. I gave two boxes of No-To-Bac to a man named West who had used tobacco for forty-seven years, and two boxes to Mr. Whiteman, and neither of them have used tobacco since and say they have no desire for it. Over fifty that I know of have used No-To-Bac through my influence, and I only know of one case where it did not cure, and then it was the fault of the patient.

I was 61 years old last week. I have gained seventeen pounds in flesh since I quit the use of tobacco. You can use this letter or any part of it, as you wish.

Yours respectfully,

C. E. Holbrook, P. M.

You say it is wonderful. Indeed, it is. No-To-Bac cured over 300,000 cases just as bad. You can be made well and strong by No-To-Bac. Your own druggist guarantees a cure. Get our booklet, "Don't Tobacco Spit and Smoke Your Life Away," written guarantee of cure and free sample mailed for the asking. Address the Sterling Remedy company, Chicago or New York.

HINES IS HUSTLING.

The Railroad Promoter Working Like a Trojan.

A Crookston dispatch of May 7 says: The indomitable D. W. Hines, president of the Farmers' railroad, is on the warpath again. In fact, he has not had his war paint off since he started the project of a Duluth connection with the Red River valley whereby the farmers could have 3 cents a bushel on all the wheat they have to ship to market. He appeared here today wearing a brand new hat in place of the winter cap which has become famous from Portal, N. D., to Cal Barlee's office in Wall street, and it covered the usual amount of active gray matter. Mr. Hines came not alone. With him were Vice President R. S. Munger, of Duluth, Judge Gundeland, of Warren, Carl Hendrickson, of Grafton, and, in fact, the entire directorate of the Duluth & North Dakota railway.

Here they met the officers and directors of two other railroad projects which contemplate the building of lines through Polk county and thence to Duluth. The other lines are the Crookston, Rainy Lake & Pacific and the North Dakota & Minnesota Central railroads, each of which has a Steenerson for a president. These, with the directors of their lines, in all numbering thirty of the brainy and leading business men of the valley, spent the day discussing projects and formulating plans for a combination of interests which will bring success out of their desires. The plan they will promulgate will be to ask Polk county to bond itself in a sum possibly as great as $200,000, for which it will receive stock of the road in the same amount. This sum will be used to build the stretch of road through the timber south of the Red Lake reservation from Polk county on the east to Deer river. This will then leave the three roads to work out their own salvation as to grading through the valley country, and the result will certainly be a success unless the present temper of the farmers is cooled very materially.

One proposition which is contingent upon the bonds being placed in escrow is that the reduction in the carrying charge on wheat shall be 3 cents per bushel to Lake Superior. This on the crop of 1895 would be nearly $2,000,000, and is a showing which catches the farmers. They are willingly subscribing for a $100 share of stock for each quarter section of land they own, and this will place the road-bed for the ties and iron. The money for this is already promised when the grade is ready for it, and thus it is believed that the Red River valley is to be brought into such rail conection with the markets as shall enhance the value of every acre of land which is cultivated therein, so that the subscribers to this fund will reap one hundred fold for their sowing.

THE MESABA RANGE.

Surveying a Spur to the Pettit Property.

The Duluth, Missabe & Northern railway has a crew of engineers at work laying out a spur from McKinley to the Pettit property adjoining the old McKinley mine, says the Mesaba Range. This is the property upon which an option was given to Eastern furnacemen last winter, but the option has expired and Capt. Harry Roberts has decided to work the property himself. He will begin active operations as soon as the spur is completed. Explorations during the winter have shown up quite a large body of ore of good quality.

E. C. Gridley, who is interested in the Kanawha mine, says the report to the effect that the property is to be operated this year is somewhat premature. Arrangements have been made with Mr. Darwin to do the mining in case the ore can be sold, but no sales has yet been made. Consequently the matter is uncertain as yet.

IT MIGHT BE THE GLASS.

Chicago Post: "Is Mme. DeCollette, the burlesque actress, as immodest as they say she is?"

"Really, I don't know! Why, you saw her last night, didn't you?"

"Oh, yes, but I'm not quite sure whether she was immodestly dressed or I had an X-ray opera glass."

HER CURIOUS NEIGHBORS.

Chicago Tribune: Agent—Can I put a burglar alarm in your house?

Lady—We don't need it.

Agent—But—

Lady—No, I mean it. The family across the street watches the place so closely that even a burglar couldn't get in without being seen!

OSTRICH

A Farm of the Big Birds to Be Seen in Pomona California.

Big Chickens That Are Worth Fully $500 to the Owner.

Anecdotes of Life on an Ostrich Farm in America.

An undoubted and experienced authority concerning ostrich farming, and the care of ostriches in Southern California, is Henry E. Fuller, of Los Angeles. He was a manager of the pioneer ostrich farm in Los Angeles county for eight years, and has been to South Africa purposely to study the big birds there. Your correspondent had a chat with Mr. Fuller at the Tonner Ostrich farm in Pomona valley the other day. Men were then getting the hens ready for the annual plucking of plumes, says the Boston Transcript.

"I had to quit ostrich farming myself," said Mr. Fuller, "because I was actually afraid to be about the birds as much as the work demanded. The craziest, meanest mule that ever existed is a complacent, good-natured beast by the side of a mean ostrich. I have had my leg broken once, and have been black and blue and sore in bed for days at a time, as a result of the work of plucking an ostrich hen. In one season two of my strongest and agile men had bones broken by unruly ostriches, that almost kicked the daylights out of the poor fellows. I have seen strong wooden fences kicked so hard by mad ostriches that you would believe the dents and cracks had been made by a man with a big hammer. The ostrich can kick any way, and there is no dodging the kicks. He kicks from front, rear and side, it is wonderful how fast so strong a bird can put them in, too."

"But can't you get the birds so tamed and attached to you that they will permit you to use them at will?"

"I used to think that, but it can't be done. The ostrich has the smallest stock of brains of any beast or bird, except, perhaps, the giraffe. I have tried for months, by the most patient work, the kindest treatment and the best care, to get an ostrich attached to me, but it was no use. The bird would turn on me and kick, the very first opportunity. The hens do not have brain power enough to know anyone from day to day. My workmen have all tried to tame ostriches, but they gave it up long ago. With the danger, so much patience and constant watchfulness must be exercised, day and night, on a large ostrich farm, that we have to pay first-class wages. Nearly every man who knows how to care for and pluck an ostrich in Southern California gets $80 to $100 a month. I have often hired a big, bold fellow to work on our Anaheim farm among the ostriches, and have had him quit work in a day or two, because he was too scared to risk his bones and flesh among the birds. It is queer that the ostrich is as mild as a dove so far as using his beak for fighting is concerned. Most people from the East are afraid that the ostriches will hurt them as they extend their long fuzzy necks and great beaks over the fences of the farms, but I never heard of any harm from an ostrich's beak. These birds are the boss kickers, and confine their belligerent operations to their legs and great, cruel claws.

ARE VEGETARIANS.

"Ostriches are strict vegetarians. We feed them grain and vegetables of all kinds—corn, cabbage, alfalfa and the like. The ostrich, as he goes on his graceful, undulating gallop across the field, is a thing of beauty, but I can't say that I exactly like all his ways. I have seen ostriches eat whole oranges right down at a gulp as fast as they could get their beaks upon the fruit. A few years ago an old gentleman from New York took his watch out to look at it while his family were watching some ostriches in the pen near at hand. The watch was not attached to any chain and in a second an old hen which saw the shining timepiece had shot her beak over the railing, and had the watch out of the old man's hand and down her throat. You never saw a more astonished man in all you life than that man, as he looked up and saw the watch going into the ostrich's mouth. Fortunately the watch was a cheap silver one. It would have taken about $500 in gold to induce me to kill that hen in order to restore the watch to the rightful owner. The watch was never recovered.

"But for fighting, I suppose there is nothing in natural history that comes anywhere near the ostrich. Our birds have a fight as regular as food is served to them, and once a day, all the year round, they have a big row of some kind, that, for a few seconds, seems business. In my several years' experience, I have never lost but two birds from injuries inflicted by other birds. Those that died were killed by kicks in the breast and broken legs."

Questions as to the domestic habits of these untamable African birds brought out the following: About the first of February the males begin to run around the fence of the inclosure trying to get out. Finding that they cannot escape to broader fields, each finally selects within the corral a spot which suits his artistic taste, and digs a wide, shallow hole in the sand; around this he waits until a hen condescends to choose him for her mate—woman's rights, pure and simple. After the marriage is once made there is no divorce or desertion on either side, two mates stick to each other until the close of the breeding season. The hens sometimes begin to lay when two and a half years old, though they do not get their full growth until four years of age, and the males a year later. A good hen will lay three nests of eggs a year—from thirty to sixty eggs in all.

"Are the eggs good to eat?"

"Fully as good as a chicken's egg—in fact, the flavor is more delicate. My wife made two large omelets for our family from one egg. I once gave an egg to a Pomona boardinghouse keeper, and the twenty boarders who ate of the omelet she made thought they were eating ordinary hens' eggs. That reminds me of another time when a bird ran against a post with such force as to kill it instantly. The hips were dressed and served as venison by the same lady, and her boarders all praised the meat.

"But to return to the eggs. I had one once which weighed four pounds, four ounces, but the average weight of an ostrich egg is from two and a half to three pounds—equal, as you see, to twenty-five or thirty common hens' eggs. They are too precious to use for eating, but so far as fitness goes they are good for all purposes the same as other eggs, except for clearing coffee; they make a regular mess of that."

HATCHING THE EGGS.

The hatching of the egg is done by incubators, which method, the breeders find, much more reliable than allowing the hens to "sit." In these machines the eggs rest on a layer of moist sand, and the heat from a lamp is so regulated and deflected as to keep the tops of the eggs constantly at 101 degrees Fahrenheit. They must be turned twice a day. The period of incubation is forty days.

The young when coming out of the shell do not eat until they are about five days old; then they begin to devour vegetables, and they never suffer from indigestion or lack of appetite during the rest of their natural days.

The birds that stocked the first Southern California ostrich farm were brought from the Cape of Good Hope in 1883 by E. J. Johnson, who is still the most important ostrich plume seller in this region. He bought and brought twenty-three birds to this section for about $25,000. He had many things to contend with and to learn while pioneering in a new climate and region, but has doubled his wealth by his investment, and is now doing far better in the way of getting money out of ostriches than ever before.

"Yes, indeed, the ostriches have fared well here," said Mr. Johnson, yesterday. "The old, original birds have grown fat, and are apparently as strong as ever. The breeding birds, you see, are kept paired in corrals of an acre in extent; those of one or two years are in a flock, on the mesa, while the small chicks are allowed to run with the other dooryard fowls—a curious combination, by the way.

"I now have forty-six birds here—four pairs of imported breeding birds, which I value at $750 per pair; twenty-two birds from two to four years old, designated 'feather birds,' and valued at from $200 to $300 each; the remaining sixteen are under nine months old, and are worth from $40 to $75 each."

A full grown ostrich weighs about 300 pounds, and when stretching its neck stands over eight feet from the ground. As to its other characteristics, you can see them at a glance. The legs are always bare; the neck is covered with only a slight fuzz. The male birds are the black ones with white feathers in the wings and tail; the female is drab; the feathers of both are equally valuable, as they are almost all dyed before being put on the market. The only feathers sold with their natural colors are the white and the black-and-white found on the male.

VALUABLE FEATHERS.

All the valuable feathers are found on the wings and tail. The third plucking is usually very good, and there is commonly realized about $100 per bird at each plucking.

Good ostrich plumes cost $8 or $10 apiece, and even more for some fancy grades. The saleswoman at the Santa Monica farm spoke of having sold a feather for $50, "and that was cheap, too," she added.

The long white feathers on the wings bring the highest prices, either dyed or in their natural color. There are no long black plumes on the birds; they are made by dyeing the white ones.

All the ostrich plumes of commerce are really double plumes, made by uniting two of the natural feathers. The stems are pared down and the two are sewed together back to back. The heavy double plumes thus made are dyed in any and all colors—appropriate or outlandish, even yellow, blue and green—to suit the taste of the feminine public. The market at present for ostrich feathers is good, and all the ostrich farmers in Southern California feel prosperous. The craze for feather boas and other ornaments in the feminine attire have caused a demand for the products of the ostrich farms far in excess of the supply. But there is an insecurity about the ostrich plume market. A man who has made a good fortune in breeding ostriches recently remarked: "It is the fast women who kill this business. They are quick to follow the prevailing style, and whenever the plumes get too conspicuous among that class, they suddenly go out of fashion in good circles." It is safe, however, to predict that there will always be some market for good ostrich plumes.

YOUNG BIRDS.

An ostrich chick, 3 months old, stands between three and four feet high. From that period in life it grows very fast. The female does not mature until 4 years old nor the male until 5. The color of the young birds is brown, in general effect, and the hen retains that hue. As the cock nears maturity, he turns a deep, glossy black, and gets a row of pure white plumes among those of jet. Down the front of each leg is a stripe of vivid red, and a ring of the same color surrounds the big, naked eyeball, and the creature a peculiar rakish and dissipated appearance. The cock is at times very ugly to manage, and the hens, too, must be carefully handled. They particularly dislike strangers, and visitors are always cautioned to keep a long way from the paddock.

There are many curious facts about the manner of mating among ostriches, and, especially, concerning the part the cock takes in the domestic economy of the pair. The keepers on the farm watch daily for signs of the mating of the big birds, and as fast as the hens and cocks mate they are confined in enclosures each pair by itself. Just after the rainy season sets in the hens begin to lay. The nest is a most primitive arrangement—merely an excavation, about three feet across, scratched in the sandy soil. Every other day an egg is deposited in the nest until the hen is satisfied with the number. Then the cock turns too and does the principal part of the sitting. Every afternoon, between 3 and 5 o'clock, he relieves the hen, and does not quit the nest until about 8 o'clock the next morning, thereby giving the female only the short daylight watch. The hen will generally lay thirty eggs before resting, and they are removed by stealth to the incubators as soon as laid. After an interval of six weeks, she resumes her work. The ostrich farmer can count upon three periods of productiveness in a year, and an aggregate of seventy-five to ninety eggs from each hen. In California the eggs hatch in forty days—two days sooner than in Africa. The unmated birds are allowed to herd, and are known as the "feather troop."

PLUCKING SEASON.

Once every ten months the plucking season takes place. It is a difficult operation and requires experience and care to perform it well without injury to his lordship the male ostrich. There are instances of the birds having bled to death by plucking large feathers from the underwings, where the arteries run close to the surface of the skin. The chick is first plucked when it is six months old. The feathers are of inferior quality, and are used to make dusters. When the chick is a year old its feathers can be used for trimming. At 2 years a good plume can be obtained, and after that the bird is a regular producer of fine plumes. As a rule each wing furnishes about 100 plumes, while about 120 are obtainable from the tail, making more than 300 feathers to each bird. The tail feathers are termed "boos" among ostrich breeders.

The ugliest mood exhibited in the great cocks in the "feather troop" is when they are prepared for the plucking. Each is cajoled into an enclosure by temptingly orange or sweetmeat, and then suddenly from behind they are blindfolded by forcing linen bags over their heads. In a moment they are in open rebellion, and woe to him who is so careless as to get within kicking distance of the awful feet of the ostriches. The cock kicks forward and backward several hundred times a minute, and only the strongest timbers can endure the tremendous blows from his stubby hoofs. He makes a roaring sound that may be heard a quarter of a mile away, while he throws himself from side to side in impotent rage. Often it is a full hour before a male ostrich, especially one that is breeding, can be calmed so as to be led blindfolded to the plucking enclosure.

The place of plucking the feathers is a narrow and strong wooden affair, built on the principle of chutes in cattle pens, where the beasts must walk in single file. The sides are so low that the men who gather the harvest of feathers may work easy and at the same time with no risk of their lives. The plumes are snipped off with long surgical scissors. If blood flows or if any fluid starts from the stub-end, the alum water is quickly applied. The stub of each quill is allowed to remain until the juices have been diverted into other growing feathers. The stub then becomes transparent to the eye and is pulled out. After the ostrich has been plucked its thigh is marked with paint; also after the stub has been pulled out. Thus it requires but a glance from the ostrich farmer to learn the condition of any bird in his flock.

AN OSTRICH FENCE.

Ostriches cannot get under or over a railing four feet high; this is, therefore, all the fence really necessary to keep them confined. When a troop of ostriches sleep there is always one on the watch; when the head of one watcher sinks to rest another immediately pops up on guard. The old birds often make a loud, roaring sound, which can be heard for miles on a still evening. The birds sleep in a sitting posture, the body resting on two callous spots, one on the breast and the other under the tail. It is believed that the average life of an ostrich is forty years, and that they sometimes reach the age of 100 years.

SIMULATE DEATH.

Indian Fakirs Are Assisted By Hypnotism.

Dr. Kuhn has had occasion to observe two cases, the genuineness of which he had no reason to doubt, says the New York Medical Journal. One of the fakirs in question had been interred for six weeks and the other for ten days. The fakirs, who are hysterical to the highest degree, possess the faculty of producing artificially a condition identical with cataleptic ecstasy. They use all possible means, such as mortification of the body by a special diet, the internal employment of different plants known only to themselves, and the adoption of a peculiar posture of the body for many hours. When they have practiced this for a sufficient length of time, they assume one of the postures prescribed by the sacred books of the Indians and fall into a hypnotic condition induced by looking fixedly at the end of the nose. Hasheesh is still made use of by them to diminish the respiratory force, for this hypnotic, when associated with other plants and employed in a peculiar manner, makes up for the loss of air and nourishment.

The fakirs have hallucinations when hypnosis begins; they hear certain sounds, see angels, and their faces express a feeling of happiness. But, little by little, consciousness disappears and the body acquires a peculiar rigidity. This is evidently, says the writer, a matter of self-hypnotism in hysterical persons who are sufficiently predisposed to it. This lethargy is looked upon by people as death, and when the subjects are aroused it is God who has brought them to life. In Greek or Roman literature, says the writer, we may find accounts of persons who have died and resurrected again to earth.

There is nothing astonishing in these facts, for Bouchot, in his treatise on the signs which enable us to recognize real death, reported the case of a woman who had been disinterred in order that a friend might look at her again. She was found to be alive and lived for many years afterward. Also in the department of the north there was a case reported of a girl who had remained in a lethargic condition for several years. She had fallen into this condition on hearing that she was to be arrested for having committed a crime.

THE OLDEST OBELISK.

The oldest of all the obelisks is the beautiful one of rosy granite which stands alone among the green fields on the banks of the Nile not far from Cairo, says the Pall Mall Gazette. It is the gravestone of a great city which has vanished and left only this relic behind. That city was Bethshemes of Scriptures, the famous On, which is memorable to all Bible readers as the residence of the priest of On, Potipherah, whose daughter, Asenath, Joseph married. The Greeks called it Heliopolis, the city of the sun, because there the worship of the sun had its chief center and its most sacred shrine. It was the seat of the most ancient university of the world, to which youthful students came from all parts of the world to learn the occult wisdom which the priests of On alone could teach.

Thales, Solon, Sudoxus, Pythagoras and Plato, all studied there; perhaps Moses, too. It was also the birthplace of the sacred literature of Egypt, where were written on papyrus leaves the original chapters of the oldest book in the world, generally known as "The Book of the Dead," giving a most striking account of the conflicts and triumphs of the life after death, a whole copy or fragment of which every Egyptian, rich or poor, wished to have buried with him in his coffin, and portions of which are found inscribed on every mummy case and on the walls of every tomb.

In front of one of the principal temples of the sun, in this magnificent city, stood, along with a companion long since destroyed, the solitary obelisk which we now behold on the spot. It alone has survived the wreck of all the glory of the place. It was constructed by Usertesen I. who is supposed to have reigned 2800 B. C., and has outlived all the dynastic changes of the land still stands where it originally stood nearly forty-seven centuries ago. What appears of its shaft above ground is sixty-eight feet in height, but its base is buried in the mud of the Nile, and year after year the inundation of the river deposits its film of soil around its foot and buries it still deeper in its sacred grave.

ARE VEGETARIANS.

We never seem to realize that a large proportion of the inhabitants of this country are practically vegetarians at the present moment, says the Westminster Review. It is true that they are compulsorily so, but the fact remains. How much meat can an agricultural laborer's family have out of a wage of 15 shillings a week? If a small quantity of salt pork be occasionally eaten, it is of value chiefly as respiratory food. Yet our laborers, who have subsisted on this diet for generations, are strong. In other European countries the peasantry are still more evidently vegetarians for all practical purposes. Even in Russia, according to Prince Krapotkin, the peasant gets only corn, and not enough of that sometimes. Yet the Russian peasant is not wanting in vigor. The evidence is the same as we glance at non-European races.

The hardy Arab or Soudanse is satisfied with his dates, the Zulu with "mealies," the Hindu with grains and pulse. The Japanese have a similar diet, varied occasionally with fish. Stanley says of the Waganda: "With the banana plant he is happy, fat and thriving. Without it he is as famished, disconsolate, woe-begone wretch." The Jats of Rajpootana are described as "a very intelligent, fine race, while both men and women attain great age. As a rule, the lower classes do not eat meat." These instances, which might be multiplied, are quoted to show that vegetarianism is the ordinary practice of numerous races which are not among the lowest, and which show no sign of race deterioration. In face of these facts, the mere random assertion sometimes made that vegetarians are subject to "poorness of blood" must be taken for what it is worth. Errors, both of diet and hygiene, may be committed by vegetarians as well as by other people.

NOT A LOTTERY HEREAFTER.

Chicago Tribune: "Now, then," exclaimed the businesslike inventor, as he grasped his hat and placed carefully in his pocket his latest improved X ray apparatus, warranted to enable the operator to see through a 6-inch plank, "I am ready."

"Where are you going, dear?" asked his wife.

"I am going," he rejoined, "to attend an auction sale of unclaimed express packages."

HIGH SCHOOL NOTES.

Judges' Decision on the Prize Poem and Stories.

The high school work has gone on about as usual this week, though the warm weather has made it extremely difficult to remain indoors. Instead of the regular laboratory work, the botany classes have made several excursions.

The senior class has already begun to practice the songs for commencement week, and the music promises to be excellent.

The regular rehearsal of the Banjo club was held on Wednesday, and on Friday the practice of the musical society.

Thursday morning, at chapel exercises, special music was rendered by a girls' quartet.

The decision of the judges in regard to the prize stories and poem, written for the Zenith, was handed in this week. Miss Jennie Fawcett wrote the first prize story, and Herbert Gaskill, the second. The prize poem was written by Miss Gertrude Kennebrook. The first prize story and the prize poem will be published in the Zenith, which is now in the printer's hands.

On Wdnesday the freshmen and juniors played a baseball game, resulting in a score of 31 to 7 in favor of the juniors.

Saturday the sophomores and juniors played a game.

An excellent program was rendered on Friday at the Olympic society. It was as follows:

Piano solo ..... Hilda Willoughby
Essay describing the following tableaux:
Part I ..... Annie Robinson
Part II ..... Olive Kemp
(a) "Our Motto" .....
(b) "Classes" .....
(c) "Obedient to the Law" .....
Tumbler solo ..... William Benson
Tableaux:
(a) "Graces" and "Fates" .....
(b) "Music" .....
(c) "Hope and Death" .....
(d) "Grecian Art" .....
'Cello solo ..... Virgin Wilcutts
Dramatic selections ..... Mr. Penner
Tableaux:
(a) "La Tosca" .....
(b) "The Dream" .....

(e) "Pandora" .....
(f) "Garden of the Hesperides" .....
(g) "Grecian Art" .....
(h) "Dante Mourning for Beatrice" ...
(i) "For-get-me-not" .....

The program was in charge of the sophomore class and reflected great credit upon the program committee, especially Miss India Wilcutts, who had charge of the tableaux. The grouping and draping were very artistic. The boys, also, contributed much to the success of the program, working early and late in arranging the stage apparatus.

The next program will be a freshman program, and they will try to prove the old saying: "All are not freshmen who are green."

THEY GOT THEIR BEER.

Every builder in this city knows that when the timbers of a new structure have been completed the carpenters tack up a fir tree to notify the owner that unless a keg of beer is forthcoming they will loaf in doing the rest of the work, says the New York Sun. The custom is observed so strictly by carpenters that sometimes it causes trouble, especially if the owner happens to be a Prohibitionist.

That is just what happened in the town of Nyatk recently, and the good people of the place have not yet got over the shock to their moral teachings which resulted from a strict adherence to the rule. The custom is called "topping the building."

All Nyack was shocked—all religious Nyack, that is—when it woke up one morning not long ago, and saw a fine evergreen nailed to the apex of the roof timbers of the new church building there.

The building of the church was under the personal direction of the clergyman of the parish. The evergreen was a notice to him that he must furnish the customary keg of beer.

Would the clergyman do it? Would the carpenters get their beer? Those were the questions that every one was asking. Finally the clergyman noticed that the work on the church was not progressing as it should. He spoke to the contractor. That individual pointed to the fir tree on the roof and said that nothing could be done until the carpenters got their beer.

At last the minister gave in. He produced $5 and gave it to the men to buy what they wished with it. They promptly bought beer and brought it to the church, where they drank it. After that work on the church progressed rapidly until it was completed.

THE WORLD OF FASHION.

Even the tailor-made young person of athletic tastes and attire imitating masculine modes must waver in her allegiance to "union" suits and divided skirts when she looks upon the underwear provided for her frivolously feminine sister, says the New York Journal. The sight of yards of lace and ribbon, of muslin, lawns, silks and dimities made into the most graceful "confections" is enough to cause the most stoical woman to forswear her severely plain undergarments.

The tendency of the spring styles in underclothes is toward the expansive. The average width of the skirt ruffle is seven yards. Drawers have at least a couple of yards of material gathered into each leg. Nigh. gowns contain yards upon yards of nainsook, lawn or dimity. Even in the once smooth-fitting corset cover disdains to be nigh: any longer, and is gathered at the top and at the waist.

A FRENCH CHEMISE.

One of the most novel garments shown is the short French chemise. It might, with equal reason, be called the long French corset cover. It extends about twenty inches below the waist line. It will be popular only among the sylph-like sisterhood, for it adds to the size of the hips without acting really as a skirt—a thing which the stout woman could not tolerate.

"Ribbon-tie drawers" are another novelty. They probably receive their name from the fact that they are the garments absolutely unlikely to be worn by the bicyclists. They contain more material than the old-fashioned skirt. They have the usual deep yoke band and the spreading leg. The trimming, which begins much higher up than is customary, consists of an accordion-plaited ... ", which contains an immense quantity of the finest mull or nainsook. A couple of additional short ruffles are put on at the bottom beneath the deep ruffle.

As for the sewing on the French underwear, it is positively a work of art. Machine stitching is, of course, rabooed, but the hand work is much more exquisite than it has ever been before. Seams are not made in the old clumsy style, but wherever a joining is necessary it is effected by means of very narrow beading. The soft material is rolled and is "whipped" on to the beading. The effect is that of drawnwork or hemstitched seams, and is remarkably dainty.

A BRIDAL SET.

An exquisite bridal set recently displayed showed six pieces—night gown, drawers, long and short chemise, underwaist and skirt. The material was the sheerest of French nainsook, and the trimmings Valenciennes lace and narrow, pale pink ribbon. The night gown was made with a blouse front—an effect produced by a full gathering at the neck and a drawing string at the waist. Vertical lines of insertion trimmed the blouse front. The puffed sleeves, which ended at the elbow, were trimmed with horizontal lines of the insertion and with deep lace frills. The wide sailor collar was similarly decorated.

The short chemise, made with a square, low neck, had the fullness gathered in by a ribbon drawing string at the waist. Instead of sleeves, epaulets of nainsook, insertion and lace stood out over the shoulders. The drawers were not only trimmed with a ruffle about the bottom, but were slashed half way up the side to admit an extra amount of fullness. Ribbon bows trimmed them on the side.

The chemise proper and the corset cover were made of alternate lines of nainsook and of Valenciennes insertion, arranged horizontally. The chemise boasted a deep ruffle of lace at the foot, while lace frills and ribbon bows decorated all the necks and sleeves with almost reckless profusion. The skirt, which was three yards wide itself, was trimmed with a deep flounce of nainsook and insertion eight yards wide. Dust ruffles of lace beneath this deep flounce added to the ballet-like effect of the garment.

SILK SKIRT.

The silk skirt which accompanied this set was of white brocade, the pattern chosen being the daisy. Nowadays silk wedding petticoats are all brocaded in the bride's favorite flower. She may guide to the altar in a lily-patterned affair, or in one blooming with roses. The lace which trims the skirt must, if possible, repeat this flower design. In this case the ruffles on the bridal petticoat were six, although not all of them appeared upon the surface. There was a ruffle of lace about two inches wide on the inside of the skirt at the bottom, and a similar one on the outside. A deep, accordion-plaited ruffle of white taffeta gave the proper flare to the deep lace ruffle which fell over it. Above that a second lace ruffle was festooned and caught here and there with ribbon bows.

Brides are not the only persons who array themselves in gorgeous skirts. Brocaded silk ones, with as great a multiplicity of ruffles as the bridal petticoats boast, are favorites. Black lace ruffles in fan shapes trim them. Sometimes butterflies of lace are fastened with the wings overlapping. Besides the gores at the waist-line and the fullness given by the flounces, many of the skirts have gores inserted into their back breadths to increase the flare.

Yet there are things for the woman who does not happen to carry the purse of Fortunatus. There are dainty Empire nightgowns of lawn and fine embroidery; there are simple little corset covers with the same Empire effect in front. There are the plainer things from France—gowns, skirts and drawers, trimmed with durable, solid hand embroidery—and there are pretty garments untrimmed except by narrow bands of beading through which ribbons are run, and tiny ruffles of half-inch-wide Valenciennes.

ATTRACTIVE MODES.

Styles in Dress Were Never Prettier.

Fashions in dress are never so fascinating or quite so tantalizing as they are at this time of year when with the first premonition of summer they blossom out like flowers in such rapid succession that any satisfactory selection amid so many pretty styles seems to be a difficult task. This season surpasses all others in the variety of modes and all their elegant accessories, which are certainly the dominating feature of the present fashions, and we can only wonder what will come next and tentatively consider each new suggestion as it may apply to our special needs. Individuality in dress has a wide field in the midst of all this profusion, and the woman who is fortunate enough to possess good taste can surely make a fashionable as well as artistic success of her summer outfit. With the diminished sleeve, which is the most marked characteristic of the spring fashions, and the moderately full skirts exaggeration seems to have ceased, and the outlines of fashion were never prettier than they are now. The best fitting skirts are cut without the godet effect in front, fit closely around the hips, with all the fullness at the back either gathered or laid in three-box plaits at the waist, and flare out prettily all around the bottom.

THE NEW SLEEVES.

The new sleeve shows unlimited variety, and may be exactly what the wearer or the dressmaker chooses to have it, either small or medium large, whichever is most becoming. Besides being small, it is very much elongated by points at the wrist and frills of lace falling over the hand. The close sleeve is seen much more in some especial styles of gown than it is in others; for example, the Louis XV coats have quite large sleeves, but they are cut in such a way as to fit the forearm closely with the fullness distinctly in the upper part. Length and not width seems to be the aim in all sleeves, and they vary in design and size according to fancy. The prettiest close-fitting sleeves are seen in the thin dresses, where they are trimmed around with insertions of lace or embroidery the entire length, and lace-edged ruffles or pointed epaulets of the material fall over the top. Twisted bows of satin ribbon or black velvet are a pretty finish for the shoulder. Modified examples of the old-time bishop sleeve are also very popular for thin gowns.

The Parisian fashion budgets do not reveal anything new in the way of materials, despite the fact that the opening of the horse show early in April is the signal for the first grand parade of spring fashions. Mohairs, fine faced cloth and canvas lead among the plainer gowns, and moire is added to the list of fashionable silks, which are all a combination of either moire, caine or glace. "Velouttine" is one of the new watered silks which look like velvet, and is used chiefly for dinner and evening dresses. The craze for tulle, which began in Paris last year, has broken out with renewed vigor here, and it seems to increase as the season advances. Wille it is employed for entire dresses, evening sleeves, and all sorts of neck ruches, its greatest field of usefulness is in millinery, where two or three contrasting colors are plaited on one hat, dark blue over pale green, twisted together in soft fluffy puffs around the crown being a favorite combination.

GREEN IS FASHIONABLE.

Green, in the bright shades of the foliage, is one of the most fashionable colors, as it always is in the spring, and a navy blue gown, with a touch of bright green on the bodice, is one of the desirable fancies of fashion. Fancy dress goods in silk and wool are a mixture of green with various shades of blue, brown, or rose color; green flowered silks are very much worn, and apple-green satin, with a trimming of white chiffon, makes a very fashionable evening dress. Pink is next in favor, and it is presented in every imaginable shade, from the palest flesh color to the deepest rose, with all the varying tints of mauve and purple between. Pink, green and mauve are the most desirable colors for use under grass linen gowns, but one of the prettiest dresses of this kind is of cream grass lawn made over white satin. Narrow frills of lace trim the skirt, and the puffed elbow sleeves have crosswise insertions of lace with narrow lace on either edge. Insertions are set in the waist, back and front, to form a yoke, and white satin ribbon finishes the neck and belt, while the whole effect is made very striking by a jaunty cape of white satin covered with black net and trimmed with the net ruches. Grass lawns or batistes are certainly the leading materials this season for thin gowns, and a rather novel idea is to make them up over silk of the same color, or with a lining of the same lawn in a less expensive quality.

Black and white striped silk is used for vests and collars, and plain black satin decorated with the ecru embroidery is also very effective and not so common as the contrast of color. Ecru batiste dotted with black makes very stylish dresses, and the black satin finish is the proper thing. Very serviceable summer gowns are made of finely checked taffeta silks of three or four colors, with plain skirts and simple full waists, with a deep fancy collar of narrow lace insertion, and white batiste for their only decoration. Black and white striped silks, with a belt and bow of orange velvet and a fichu of embroidered muslin, are very pretty, and the flowered silks are used for entire gowns, with a lace vest and collar, and a ribbon belt for the trimming. They are not expensive dresses, because the material is dressy and it needs very little decoration. One rather novel combination seen among the new gowns is a white pique skirt and white linen blouse, trimmed crosswise with lace insertions and finished with a ribbon belt and collar.

SOME SPECIAL GOWNS.

First among the wool and silk gowns is one of fawn-colored finely twilled cloth, with a wide vest and wrinkled sleeves of china brocade, patterned with cream satin stripe, green leaves and pink rosebuds, outlined each side with a jabot of fine white lace. Another gown of reseda ribbed cloth is trimmed with straps of white cloth braided with green and gold. These appear on the skirt, extend out on the shoulders from the high plaited collar and trim the sleeves. The revers are of white cloth, and narrow straps of black satin ribbon, fastened with Strass buttons, cross over the white mousseline de soie vest. Sicilian alpaca in fawn color forms another gown, which has a wide belt and collar of shot silk decked with a bow and rhinestone buckle and guipure lace. A novel gown of silk for more dressy occasions shows a bouave effect of black velvet edged around with a band of inch-wide white ribbon embroidered in pinks and greens. The lace is arranged in fanlike frills on either side, and cuffs of black velvet and a deep frill of lace finish the sleeves.

Grass lawn embroidered with baby ribbons, which form the petals of the flowers, and gold thread in Louis Seize designs is one of the latest novelties, and is used for the entire waist of the shot-glace silk gown, with frills of chiffon over the shoulders. The sleeves are of silk, and the skirt hangs in plaits below the hips, where it is headed with a band of grass lawn embroidery. Another dress of mastic-colored canvas has an under bodice of mauve, shot-brocaded taffeta, which forms the sleeves. The bolero front is lined with the silk, caught together with a Strass buckle, and bordered around the edge with black velvet, embroidered with colored stones. The skirt is cut in tabs, edged around with narrow black velvet ribbon, and these fall over a skirt of the brocaded taffeta. Very many of the latest gowns have this jacket effect, either carried out in the trimming or with a real bolero of the same material as the skirt. Eton jackets with sleeves are the waist of some of the new canvas dresses.

FANCY BLOUSE WAISTS.

However, the fancy blouse waist is quite as much worn as the coat; it is too convenient and comfortable to be discarded rashly, and, despite all the predictions to the contrary, these waists flourish in greater variety than ever. Sheer batiste waists, lined with silk and trimmed with lace, are almost as numerous in the shops as the old-fashioned shirt waist, which has expanded in beauty from year to year, until now it has become a very conspicuous part of the summer fashions. Colored batistes in pink, blue and yellow, patterned with fine black dots, make the daintiest shirt waists, and ecru linen collars and cuffs give them a very novel effect. Plain batistes in all the pretty light shades are made with the frills of the same down the front, edged with narrow black lace. Other waists have collars, cuffs, box plaits and a narrow band of tucks inserted on either side of the front, made of some contrasting color of the same material. A cream-white batiste, with pale blue, is very pretty. And the daintiest white waists are made of French muslin, trimmed with bands of white embroidery and finished with the linen collar and cuffs, which are adjustable. One batiste waist has a wide collar of batiste, trimmed across with frills of yellow Valenciennes lace about an inch wide. It forms a yoke and points on the sleeves and is exactly the same in the back. Ribbon collar, belt and bows on the shoulder make it very dressy. Another waist has a yoke back and front formed of three bands of finely tucked batiste, left with an inch frill on one edge, which is narrowly hemmed and trimmed with lace.

IN PARIS SHOPS.

Pretty Suggestions For Seasonable French Modes.

Nina Goodwin in one of her charming fashion discourses to the New York Journal, writes from Paris, as follows:

"Over the chocolate pot" is as favorite a saying here now as "over the tea cup" in America. The chocolate festival begins at 3 o'clock and lasts until 6, or time to dress for dinner. The fashions in "chocolate afternoons" change, and not to be in the newest chocolate fashion argues poorly for yourself and your position in society.

The chocolate afternoon has two distinct sides. One is the fashionable equipment of the table and the way of serving the delicate fluids, and the other is the dress of the hostess and her guests.

The latest in chocolate cups is small and delicate, and the service is costlier and more ponderous than for tea. Large chocolate samovars are provided as for tea, and the business of serving chocolate is gone into, not lightly, but in great state.

For gowns I have seen many pretty ones. The pale green at springtime is always most popular. With a pale green silk house jacket, belted with silver or gold, and with small, shining ornaments scattered upon it, any woman is fit for the chocolate table. Inside these loose negligees there is a very nice, tight lining that insures a good fit.

WELL DRESSED HOSTESS.

Over the chocolate boiler I saw a delightful hostess the other day, whose bodice proper was a pale yellow silk, girt with a narrow belt of medallions in all colors. Over the shoulders fell a yoke and epaulette arrangement of silver cloth, touched with deep orange embroidery. The edges were bordered with Russian sable and over the shoulder ran the fluffiest ruffle of chiffon, touched with silver like the yoke. The skirt was orange brocade, with cobwebs of pale yellow traced all over it, while the front burst full and plain, of pale yellow silk. Gowns are lighter and have a more festive look, now that the heavy velvets and fur trimmings have been replaced by the summer silks and gauzy materials.

There was a charming green gown worn the other evening at one of the more festive dances given by the American Dancing class. The wearer was a tall brunette from California.

There was something so chic and yet so very simple about this green gown. It was made of taffeta silk, with an old-fashioned design of pale pink roses in a running blue. The skirt was very full, and all the godets at the back, on each side of the front of the skirt were panels of very full green tulle, caught down by straps of the green silk and big buttons of emeralds and rhinestones. The fluffy heading of the tulle was drawn through the straps and allowed to flare. The bodice was tight-fitting and was cut round at the waist line with narrow straps over the shoulders.

LOTS OF TULLE.

There was a great profusion of the green tulle on the waist, for the sleeves of the tulle were very full and fluffy, and from the sleeves the tulle was draped over the top of the bodice to form a berthe. The ends of the tulle were carried down the front of the bodice to form a full vest, that was strapped across with narrow tabs of silk and rhinestones and emerald buttons.

Around the bottom of the waist were full pointed basques of the tulle, headed with a narrow belt of green and gold passementerie.

Another handsome gown worn by an older woman, one of the chaperons, was of yellow chiffon and mahogany satin. The yellow chiffon covered very fully a tight-fitting bodice of yellow satin. At the waist line the fulness was held in by a band of gold passementerie, and from the chiffon flared in full, short basques. There were very full elbow sleeves of the chiffon, and for a finish at the neck of the bodice was a band of the passementerie.

The skirt of this gown was of rich mahogany satin, with all the godets at the back. At a French ball the other evening I saw an American woman whose gown had a full godet skirt of white silk, with a design in rose-colored camellias between stripes of pale green. The bodice was of rose tulle, very full, filled in with a narrow rose satin belt, and a "Strauss buckle" at the front. The sleeves were made of a flounce of rich old English lace, which so that they kept their shape well. At the elbow the sleeves were confined with satin ribbon bows, and below this the lace fell in a full frill nearly to the wrist. A bunch of black ostrich tips at the right shoulder and a big fan of black plumes that this woman carried in her hand gave quite a touch of dark to this costume.

IN BLACK AND WHITE.

The most striking gown at this same ball was a black and white costume. The skirt, of white satin, was very full, and different from anything I have ever seen. It was cut so that at the left side there was quite a bit of fulness just where the front gore joined the plain side gore.

This fulness extended down several inches from the waist, and where it stopped there was a cascade of black chiffon. The waist was of black satin, with very full pointed basques, and a wide vest of gathered black chiffon. The elbow sleeves were of brocaded black and white satin in a striking design.

Broad bretelles of embroidered mousseline de soie, over white satin, and a band of the same at the top of the vest, gave the finish to the neck of this costume. From the end of the left bretelle there was a full bow of the mousseline de soie, with long ends.

The French couturiers have already begun to look forward to and plan the gowns for the three coming events—the garnishing day at the Salon, the coronation of the czar and the grand prix.

It is a most remarkable thing how American gowns are noticed here and talked about. "An American order" is repeated and respected more than though it were a royal one. A Parisian modiste explained it to me this way:

"You see," said she in her broken English, "we are obliged to make the gowns of the English people, the Londoners and the Liverpool ladies, because they must come to us for the Paris touch. We make a great many for the royal ladies of Wales. But when it comes to the American ladies, they need no order of us unless they want to. Their own modistes are so clever, so chic, so ingenious, so tasteful and so inventive that no American woman need ever buy a dress of us. The reason they do buy is because they like the flavor of a French combination now and then."

Then this modiste went on to tell me of a recent American order.

A CORONATION GOWN.

"I am getting a dress ready for the Russian coronation," said she. "And it is for one of your great belles. This is Miss Fair, of New York or California, I do not know which you call her, as we have both addresses on our books; and also a Newport one.

"This dress we are to send to Russia to the Hotel X, for Miss Fair to find on her arrival there in May. It is a gown to be worn at Moscow during coronation ceremonies. It is a dull purple velvet of a shade too deep to show royal lights. It is lined with lavender. The waist is trimmed with pearls, and there are light lapels of white satin and lavender satin laid one over the other. It is a heavy dress and not one that we would make for any except very imposing ceremonies.

"For a dinner gown, probably for the czar's banquet in the evening, we are to send a white chiffon, made over white satin. It looks like a simple gown, but it is very elaborate. There are sleeves of violets, and the bodice has a yoke covered with these flowers. They are of silk, embroidered on the tulle.

"We did them by throwing a bunch of violets upon a tulle bodice and copying them as they fell. This is very lovely in effect, and is to be worn with pearls looped over the corsage. The sleeves are very full and are made puffy by being caught up to the elbow in round effect. With a gown we always send recommendations for a head dress. With this we shall advise a tiara of pearls with natural violets bunched at the left side. This is a style of head dress made popular by the young czarina; and, of course, it will be imitated in Russia during the coronation festival.

"We are sending many cloaks up there and a great many gowns for dancing."

REDFERN'S OFFERINGS.

More Notes About Tailor Made Gowns.

When the tailor-made gown came in, I dare not think how many years ago, no one could have predicted that, as the Americans say, "it had come to stay," but at all events 1896 still finds us the humble slaves of this form of costume.

Whether it be this style of costume or the more fanciful gown, gay with shot silk and displaying the charms of the new canvas and alpaca, you will be sure to meet with them in the Redfern salons on Fifth avenue, where, to be paradoxical, the latest is always the soonest, and the moment a new style comes in and becomes recognized as "chic" it duly puts in an appearance.

While conducting you through this well-known establishment, I beg you to pause before that charming model by the farther window—"smart" is written on its every detail. It is made of biscuit-colored faced cloth, trimmed and piped, with a turquoise blue waistcoat; the front of the bodice is traced with gold braid, the sleeves, you notice, in this elegant dress are quite moderate in size. A little way off you see a delightful little yachting coat in brilliant scarlet cloth; this is made in the shape of a zouave in the front and an Eton coat at the back, a gold clasp holds it in place, while gold "mess" buttons adorn the edges. Does not this "catch your eye" and make you covetous? But alas, this garment you could not have for any consideration, as it has been specially designed for one of New York's fashion leaders and is to be worn over a white silk shirt and linen skirt.

"A GOOD THING."

Do you want me, in the sporting phrase, "to put you on to a good thing," or under the present circumstances to put a good thing on to you? Then let me draw your attention to a very attractive costume:

It is made of a crushed strawberry color of alpaca, the bodice is open down each side and shows white satin underneath, which is strapped with black satin; the "gigot" sleeves are moderately large for the present fashion, while the skirt is very full and void of trimming; cream lace droops prettily over the black satin collar. A remarkably serviceable dress is this and smart enough for afternoon street wear. The hat destined to be worn with it is a coarse fancy straw, trimmed with black and white striped ribbon bows, lace and dull pink roses.

If I have not entirely overtaxed your patience, bear with me a little longer while I point out to you another costume, says the Boston Beacon's fashion editress. One which is a typical Redfern gown, showing in this case a handsome design of braiding, for which this firm is so famous.

HYACINTH GREY.

The colors used in this creation comprise a delicate tone of hyacinth grey, which contrasts very artistically with the lemon silk introduced into the vest; the skirt is slightly narrower than the usual width, while the sleeves are a very important feature, being entirely original. They are fully puffed at the shoulder, from whence they are wrinkled like a long suede glove down to the wrist; the epaulets and corsage are embroidered in oxydized braid on a ground of white satin. A "chic" little boat-shaped hat in grey, trimmed with fine lace and yellow roses, and a shot grey parasol with chiffon frills, helps to set off to still further advantage a "get-up" that is eminently becoming and elegant.

A goodly show of box-cloth capes in all the newest designs I had the pleasure of admiring a day or so ago, and it seems to me to be absolutely necessary for every one to become, if she is not already so, the happy possessor of one of these.

HANDKERCHIEFS.

Exquisite in Texture and High in Price.

It was evident to everyone in the store that she belonged to the old school, says the New York Sun. Her corkscrew curls bobbed out from a straw poke not unlike a Salvation Army lass' bonnet in shape, and she was in high delight as she leaned over the handkerchief counter. She was in a store where nothing is sold except imported gloves, veils, hosiery, handkerchiefs, and such accessories, so dear to a dainty woman's heart. Presently, as a young matron joined her, the little old lady exclaimed:

"Look what I've run across, my dear. Why these handkerchiefs carry me back full forty years. I haven't seen anything like them since I was a girl, and I'm going to treat myself."

"These are the latest designs," said the manager of the store. "The linen is all woven by hand. No machinery has yet been invented that can weave linen as fine as that used in those handkerchiefs."

"You can't tell me anything about linen, young man," said the little old lady severely. "I can see the women who wove this material throwing the shuttles with their old wrinkled hands now. I know all about that fine linen and I also know how to weave it myself and have learned from sad experience that linen handkerchiefs as fine as these can't be picked up every day. You can't tell me anything about the texture of the goods, but you might give me a few points on style."

VERY NARROW HEMS.

"Certainly," he replied. "I'm just home from Paris, so I ought to be well up. A French woman considers the handkerchief a very important item of the toilet. The novelties all have very narrow hems, not more than a quarter of an inch, and those trimmed with lace have no hems at all. Colors are quite the go this season. These plain white ones with the solid-colored hems are very chic with morning gowns. They have an escutcheon in the corner for the monogram, and that matches the border. This style retails at $2.50 each.

"This style, with an embroidered scalloped edge, is very popular. It has a band of colored linen woven in about a quarter of an inch from the edge, and this is embroidered in tiny dots. The colors are the daintiest shades of lilac, green, blue, rose and yellow. The price is $9 each, and they aren't nearly as beautiful as those others. You see, they are of the white linen and have the real Valenciennes lace hemstitched on. A garland of open-work violets run all the way round. On some the flowers are blue, on others pink, on still others lilac, and none is prettier than the pure white. When washed they look almost like air, they are so fine. Wear well? Why, I should say so. A handkerchief like this wears for years and it is like investing in a piece rare lace to purchase one. Handkerchiefs of this style cost $10 each, and they have gone like hot cakes. The plain white ones with the real Val edge are popular, too. They have an escutcheon for the initials and cost only $6 apiece. Now, if you want something very handsome, a pure white handkerchief with a real lace edge, put on with a border of fine drawn work is the thing. It has two other rows of drawn work and on each side of the center is a tracery of forget-me-nots. This design has the drawn work in colors.

DELICATE TONES.

"Every one in Paris is going wild over the tone handkerchiefs just now. The linen thread is dyed in fast colors before it is woven, and it is marvelous to see what delicate tones are obtained. The pale grays, blues and greens and dainty shades of rose, lavender and yellow are most in demand. Some of the handkerchiefs are perfectly plain with the narrow hem, some are edged with real lace, while others are embroidered. One of the prettiest has a plain edge and a garland of true lovers' knots in delicate tracery; another, of pale rose, has a bow knot in one corner and garlands of forget-me-nots in the other corners. These vary in price from $3 to $6 each, and look like cobwebs. They are all of exquisite texture, and yet stand more real wear and tear than a coarser linen."

"Right you are," answered the old lady, "and if I can't wear an old-fashioned flower garden of roses and violets and lilacs on my spring bonnet on account of my age, I can have some real old-time linen handkerchiefs, even if the styles are the newest out in gay Paris. I'll take this half dozen that I've laid aside and consider that I have a rare bargain, even if they do cost me $50."

IN VANITY FAIR.

Fashion Chit Chat From the Boston Beacon.

Enough has been written about the shirt waist already to fill a volume. They are made this year invariably with the full bishop sleeve and finished with a cuff fully an inch narrower than last year, a cuff only three inches wide and made for link buttons. The fronts are full and the hem is narrow and plain for four stands. The pearl studs simulating common shirt buttons are also popular.

Neckties are more quiet in tone, the black satin stock tie being the winner in popularity. Inch-wide ties of colored linen are seen with the percale shirt waists. The linen front sleeves are quite an innovation, being a strip two inches wide that fastens on the collar button at the top and at the belt at the waist line. These are easily laundered, and with the addition of clean collars and cuffs, freshen up an already soiled shirt waist. The high rolled-over linen collar, known as the "Harvard," is the correct thing to wear with the shirt waists. To the possessor of a short neck this collar is quite impossible. In place of it a stand-up collar with sharp points turned in front may be very acceptably substituted.

The lingerie belt this year is unusually attractive, the false collarettes and effects of silk, lace and chiffon proving a boon to the woman with only one "dress-up" costume. By the skillful arrangement of a bit of ribbon or a jabot of lace she can completely transform an ordinary gown. Little turn-over collars of lace are made on a ribbon band. The lace runs across the front and as far back as just under the ears, where it stops, an immense bow of the ribbon fastening it at the back. These ribbon garnitures are made mostly of the china or Dresden ribbons six or eight inches wide. Some of the bows are enormous and hang well down between the shoulders. The rhinestone buckle, so popular last season on these collars, has been entirely superseded by small slides of gold. Buttons, too, which came in with such a blare of trumpets last spring, are used sparingly upon new costumes.

Two, one on either side, are frequently used as ornaments on the boas of chiffon so popular. These are really ruches of box plaits finished in front with short stoles. The Elizabethan ruche threatens us with all its old sixteenth century stiffness and immovability. But most women nowadays prefer to be comfortable, and so they will probably choose something softer.

Tea gowns, indeed! Now, what use has the average woman for a tea gown? A nice little crisp lawn wrapper, for breakfast on the "late" morning, or for loafing day, is all very well. And then a tidy, trim house dress, and a pretty little afternoon home gown, fully cover the needs of almost any woman. It is only in novels and pictures that you find lovely ladies lounging on cushions and things wearing "creations." Or on the stage. Bernhardt in "Magda," for instance. But you don't need anything of the sort. Yet these useless, unwashable affairs, picturesque and alluring, at the same price as a nice useful bath robe almost, are enough to make a woman hesitate—to make her say, "maybe George would like it." And to remember that a woman ought, after all, to make herself look pretty in her own home; that it does not cost so very much; that, if she should happen to be ill, it would be "just the thing" to wear when she was getting better; that just the lace on it is worth more than the whole price of the garment; that the ribbon will come off, when the garment is worn, and serve on something else; that the material is good, and that she can make a jacket of it afterwards, or use the silk for facings; that a garment, all the material of which will serve several times, cannot be called really extravagant; and—that—well—it's so becoming—and so—so pretty—and—all that, you know how it ends.

It is true that a large woman ought to keep to dark colors, and these taffetas and satins, and stripes and ginghams are all meant for slight women. As for fluffy things, organdies and so on, the big woman who puts herself into them is simply mad. But it is hard on the big woman: it is enough to make her cry right there, looking into the shop window, to think of the things she cannot wear. One would almost forgive her for getting desperate and buying even a rose-color Dresden silk. Yes. To be made up with ruffles of pale blue organdie, trimmed at the edge with tiny rows of white lace, drawn full. The skirt to be very full and swirly. And a round waist. That is settled. That is, round in front, but at the sides and back a ripply little over-tail frill. Isn't that a beautiful dream? And yet, why should the thin folk have all the fun?

TIED HER SHOESTRING.

She was pretty and pert, and as the theater train swayed around the high curves of Harlem, four men in dress suits glanced at her approvingly, says the New York Herald. All at once she made a discovery, and her manner let everyone into her secret. One of her shoes was unlaced. At first she made a show of stooping to tie it up, but she was not comfortably adjusted for lacing her own shoes. In fact, it was a physical impossibility. The four young men in dress suits saw it, and soon were discussing the young woman's dilemma.

"I'll make a bluff at it, anyway," said one of them, as the train left the Fiftieth Street station. Whereupon, to the delight of his companions and the astonishment of those who didn't observed the situation, he arose and, kneeling deliberately at the feet of the fair one, he raised his hat politely and said:

"May I have the?" etc.

Her red lips parted, showing two rows of pearly teeth, while a faint color mounted to her cheeks.

"If you will be so kind," she said.

It was a mighty pretty foot, and none too quickly the job was done neatly and deftly. The pretty woman thanked him and he retired to his seat. He was plainly inclined to plume himself in the eyes of his companions, who made various remarks about "having her on the string," etc., all of which was heard by her, which was evidently intended. At the Forty-second Street station she arose and, pausing a moment before the young man as she passed, sweetly inquired:

"May I ask where your store is?"

And then she vanished.

NERVE RESTORER.

A Natural Remedy for Diseases of the Nervous System---Fifteen Years An Invalid.

J. W. Draper, of Gainsboro, Tenn., writes: "For fifteen years previous to our marriage my wife had been a constant sufferer, never able to do the slightest work. Many times, when she attempted to do some little thing, she was compelled to take her bed. When we were married the doctor said she could not live six months. Her nervous system was deranged from the drugs and strong medicines she had been obliged to take; but, notwithstanding all this, after a course of Pe-ru-na, she has wonderfully improved until now she is the very picture of health, doing her own housework and cooking for several boarders besides."

Pe-ru-na is a natural and efficient nerve tonic. It strengthens and restores the activity of every nerve in the body. Through the use of Pe-ru-na the weakened or overworked nerves resume their natural strength and the blood vessels begin at once to regulate the flow according to nature's laws. Congestions immediately disappear. It is through its operation upon the nervous system that Pe-ru-na has attained such a world-wide reputation as a sure and reliable catarrh cure.

EXPLODED

Horrible Steamboat Accident on the Mississippi River Last Night.

Steamer Harry Brown's Boilers Explode Killing a Number of People.

Boat Sinks Almost Instantly Survivors Are Landed at Vicksburg.

Vicksburg, Miss., May 11.—The large tow-boat Harry Brown, up-bound, exploded her boilers twenty-five miles below this city at 11:30 last night and she was a complete wreck in less than a moment, sank out of sight. Eleven lives, all white, were lost. Three were recovered.

The tow-boat Wash Honshell brought the bodies and the survivors to this city, arriving at 6 a. m. Capt. John Kaine, master; Dennis J. Lomey, second engineer, and Dan Kaine, pilot, who were injured, are in the hospital. Pilot Norman, Derby Fitzmorris, first mate, and First Engineer William Dougherty were lost. The latter's body was recovered.

The Harry Brown was owned by W. H. Brown and company, the extensive coal operators of this city, and was one of the largest tow-boats in the country. It was valued at $50,000 and was not insured. The Associated Press dispatch from Vicksburg was the first intelligence Capt. Sam Brown had of the explosion.

A short time later he received a telegram stating that the explosion had completely destroyed the boat, killing three men instantly, and injuring a number of others. Several of the crew were missing. The Brown had a crew of twenty-eight persons, as follows: Capt. John Kaine, Pittsburg; First Engineer William Dougherty, Second Engineer Dennis Storey, Cairo; Mate "Dad" Fitzmorris, Louisville; Steward Frank A. Bryan, Cincinnati; Pilots Norman Dravo, Pittsburg; Daniel Kaines, Louisville; Fireman Patrick Kaneff, John Joyce, James Sheehan, Thomas Judge, all of Pittsburg.

There were also on board two cabin boys and a chambermaid from Pittsburg, four firemen and a number of roustabouts whose names are unknown.

ANOTHER STORY.

Told By the Survivors at Vicksburg.

Vicksburg, Miss., May 11.—The tow-boat Wash Honshell arrived here this morning with the survivors of the crew of the tow-boat Harry Brown, which exploded her boilers and sank twenty-five miles below this city last night at 11 o'clock. The Brown was bound west with a tow of empties and when the explosion occurred she broke in two. Of her crew of forty-two men, three are dead; eight missing and the captain and four others are badly injured.

The Honshell picked up and landed the tow. The wounded are at the hospital. Many were slightly hurt. The chief engineer and head pilot are missing.

ADDICKS CONTROLS.

Delaware Republican State Convention Tomorrow.

Dover, Del., May 11.—The Republican state convention, for the selection of delegates to the national convention at St. Louis will meet here tomorrow. It will be controlled by the friends of J. Edward Addicks, who have at least 101 of the 160 delegates composing the convention. The convention will choose delegates to the national convention and adopt a platform.

Mr. Addicks will head the delegation to St. Louis, and two of the others will be J. Frank Allee, of Dover, and Dr. Hiram R. Burton, of Lewes. The delegation will not be instructed. Mr. Addicks believes that the six votes of the delegates should be held in reserve, so as to go to the winner when the decisive time comes, and his views will probably be adopted.

TWO DROWNED.

Fishing Casualty in Bingham Lake Yesterday.

St. Paul, May 11.—A special to the Dispatch from Mountain Lake, Minn., says: While out fishing in Bingham lake yesterday, H. Dickman and Jacob Epp were drowned. Their boat sprang a leak when 200 yards from the shore, and sunk in fifteen feet of water. Epp could have gotten ashore, but was drowned in an attempt to save his companion.

FOREST FIRE LOSSES.

Egg Harbor City, N. J., May 11.—Forest fires continue to burn in this vicinity, notwithstanding the efforts of the farmers to check them. The weather has nearly prostrated the farmers, and it is feared they will not be able to check the flames unless it rains. Thousands of acres of timber have been destroyed, and the loss will be $100,000.

DISTINGUISHED ARRIVALS.

New York, May 11.—Among the passengers arriving by the steamer Wilhelm II from Genoa today were Dona Elvira de Bourbona infanta of Spain, Sir William Gordon Cummings and Lady Cummings, and W. W. P. Longfellow, of Cambridge, Mass.

THE COTTON AREA.

Washington, May 11.—The proportion of contemplated cotton area already planted on the first of May was 87.9 per cent. Average for the country is 114.8.

SENATOR WALLACE WORSE.

New York, May 11.—The condition of ex-United States Senator William A. Wallace was reported as extremely critical today. He is still unconscious.

METHODIST DOINGS.

Cleveland Conference Busy at Its Work.

Cleveland, May 11.—Bishop Waldon presided this morning at the opening of the Methodist Episcopal general conference. The first business of the day was the introduction of a resolution which provided that all future sessions of the conference be held in church buildings, if possible, and that the committee on entertainment for 1896 be so instructed. It was promptly laid on the table.

Another resolution provided that the delegates, being appreciative of the manner in which they are being entertained in this city, that all cities making a bid for the conference should have it followed with a guarantee of as good treatment and under the same system and method. It was adopted.

A resolution to prevent a duplication of studies in the church school and public schools in the South was read, but referred to the committee on freedman's aid. Rev. B. F. Witherspoon, of Southern California, presented a resolution declaring that color and caste do not enter into the conference, and further declaring that the election of a bishop of African descent should be viewed solely in the light of ability and without regard to color. It was presented for adoption, but the conference referred it to the committee on episcopacy.

The first formal application for the conference of 1900 was presented by Saratoga Springs, N. Y., and was referred to the committee on entertainment. The committee on freedman's aid made its first report on a petition from the Delaware conference to change the name to Southern Educational society. The Upper Mississippi conference protested against this. The report of the committee was in favor of retaining the name as it is now. The question was debated at some length and various motions were made to refer or postpone, but all were defeated and the report was adopted.

JACKSON'S TRIAL.

Attorneys Are Making the Closing Arguments.

Newport, Ky., May 11.—At 10:30 today the argument in the Scott Jackson case began. It has been arranged that Col. Nelson shall speak first, Crawford next and Lockhart shall close. Attorney Nelson, after a very plain and touching story of the crime, took up the testimony of Jackson, comparing it with the opposing testimony of the commonwealth's witnesses, as to his movements on Friday and Saturday, and asking the jury if it was likely that all these disinterested witnesses for the prosecution would deliberately perjure themselves and the truth be told only by Jackson, whose interest in the trial is supreme.

Col. Nelson has no limit to his argument, except such as he may set and will likely occupy the whole day.

COMPLETE FAILURE.

Milwaukee Street Car Strike is Knocked Out.

Milwaukee, May 11.—The street railway company is running an increased number of cars on every line today, and there is absolutely no disturbance. The strike is practically over, and the strikers themselves admit that their only hope lies in the direction of inducing the public to refuse to patronize the cars.

Cabs and busses will be operated for the purpose of giving the sympathizers with the strikers an opportunity to make a practical display of their feelings, but this is simply the fag end of the fight, and in a few days the railway company will be running its business as completely as though there had never been any trouble.

CARPENTERS' STRIKE.

Detroit Artisan Demand an 8-Hour Day.

Detroit, May 11.—Over 500 union carpenters assembled in Central Labor union hall this morning instead of going to work. The strike is in accordance with the action of last Friday when it was unanimously determined to strike for eight hours a day at 25 cents per hour. The bosses are willing to make a minimum wage of 20 cents an hour and promise to concede the eight hour day Jan. 1 next. At this morning's meeting addresses were made by leaders of the craft.

A motion to permit employes of contractors who might yield the eight hour day to return to work was defeated. There are many non-union carpenters in the city, although the best workmen are generally included in the unions, which have upwards of 1000 members.

RACES AT TOLEDO.

International Yachting to Take Place There.

Toledo, Ohio, May 11.—Toledo has been selected as the point for the international yacht race between the Lake Michigan Yachting club, of Chicago, and the Royal Canadian club, of Toronto. The championship will go to the winner of these five races, to be sailed Aug. 24 and succeeding days.

The city of Toledo puts up $1500 in gold for the winner. The event excites great interest here, and Toledo will hold high festival on the occasion which will attract yachting men from all over North America.

APPROVED

Admiral Navarro Has Signed the Competitor Crew Death Sentences.

But the Matter Has Been Referred to the Madrid Tribunal.

Two Other American Citizens Have Been Captured in Cuba.

Havana, May 11.—It was definitely announced today that on the day that the men captured on board the Competitor were tried, Friday last, Admiral Navarro, in conformity with the petition of the prosecutor and sentence of the naval tribunal, approved and signed the sentences of death imposed upon the filibusterers, Alfredo Laborde, Dr. Elias Bedia, William Gildea, John Milton and Teodoro Mata. The announcement is supplemented by the statement that, in view of high state considerations, the cases of the filibusterers have been referred for final decision to the supreme tribunal of war and marine. Two alleged filibusterers, both citizens of the United States, and said to have formed part of the Competitor expedition, have arrived here in custody from Bahia Hondo. They were captured by the local guerrillas of Palma some time after landing. The steamer Trivon has brought here a small boat which was found abandoned on the coast by the mayor of Barraces. The boat is believed to have belonged to a small expedition which has landed in the vicinity of the spot where the Competitor was sighted and captured.

EXECUTION POSTPONED.

Until United States Can Examine the Case.

Washington, May 11.—In the Competitor case it can be authoritatively stated that, at the request of the United States, the Spanish government will postpone execution of the death sentences upon American citizens until the views of the United States respecting the application to their cases of the treaty of 1795 and the protocol of 1877 can be presented and considered.

The announcement of the postponement of the executions means a delay of some weeks at least, and that the matter will be taken up by the diplomatic representatives of the United States and Spain and made the subject of the exchange of correspondence on the interpretation to be given the treaty provisions between the two nations. Meanwhile the effect will be to allay popular excitement both here and in Spain.

The action of the state department in insisting upon a retrial, at least, of the American prisoners, is evidently in answer to the contention of the court martial that the Cushing protocol of 1877 did not apply to the present case. The court held that it applied only to American citizens resident in Spain or the Spanish dominions, and, as the captives from the Competitor were not in any sense residents of Cuba, decided that they could not claim any of the privileges accorded by the protocol.

In the opinion of the state department this was an extremely narrow and illiberal construction to place upon the protocol, but while not accepting this construction, the department guarded against an adverse decision on the protocol by recurring to the ancient treaty of 1795, on the ground that if the prisoners' case was not covered by the protocol, they certainly could invoke the measure of protection afforded by the earlier treaty. While this treaty is not by any means generous in the matter of privileges held out to American prisoners, it still contains some guarantees of great value to them in just such cases as that which has now arisen.

The section of the treaty applying to the case, in the judgment of the state department, is article VII, which reads as follows: "And it is agreed that the subjects and citizens of each of the contracting parties, their vessels or effects, shall not be liable to any embargo or detention on the part of the other for any military expedition or public or private purpose whatever, and in all cases of seizure, detention or arrest for debts contracted or offenses committed by any citizen of the one party within the jurisdiction of the other, the same shall be made and prosecuted by order and authority of law only, and according to the regular course of proceedings usual in such cases. The citizens and subjects of both parties shall be allowed to employ such advocates, solicitors and notaries, agents and factors as they may judge proper in all their affairs and in all their trials at law in which they may be concerned before the tribunals of the other party; and such agents shall have free access to be present at the proceedings in such cases and at the taking of all examinations and evidence which may be exhibited in the said trials."

The contention of the state department is that, irrespective of the Cushing protocol of 1877, this treaty gives the American prisoners certain privileges that were withheld from them by the Spanish court martial. Notably, they were obliged to rest their defense in the hands of a Spanish officer, detailed for the purpose, and one in all probability not particularly anxious to clear his clients, and were prevented from selecting their own counsel, as guaranteed by the treaty. Also, it is said that the prisoners were not accorded an opportunity to procure testimony in their own behalf. This is one of the privileges inseparable from a lawful and regular conduct of the prosecution.

Altogether the indications are that the state department is preparing to make a strong legal defense against the execution of the death penalty in the case of the American prisoners.

KANSAS CATTLE EXPORTS.

Topeka, Kas., May 11.—The cattlemen of Central Kansas have organized for the shipment of fat cattle direct to Liverpool and will soon send the first shipment south via Galveston. The difference in prices between 4 cents at Kansas City and 11 cents at Liverpool they say, will justify them in this movement.

LINCOLN

The Missing Part of His Duel With Shields Is Supplied.

They Never Fought But Shields Finally Listened to Reason.

Interesting Story of Eye Witness of the Historic Event.

Kansas City, Mo., May 11.—The Journal this morning prints the following from its Topeka, Kan., correspondent: William G. Souther, who claims to have been an eye-witness of the historic duel between Abraham Lincoln and Gen. James Shields, has related to a Journal correspondent what is purported to be the missing data of that event. Heretofore but meager details of what actually took place when the duelling party crossed the Mississippi river have been published, and Souther now fills in that most important part of the day's proceedings:

Souther, who is 73 years old, has for the past eighteen years been a clerk in the office of the auditor of the Santa Fe railway system in this city, though the greater portion of his life has been spent as a printer and newspaper man. Up to the time of the arrival of the duelling party at the Alton ferry the story he tells is very similar to the ones heretofore printed, but from there it differs widely. Souther relates that in order to witness the duel he agreed to drive the horses which propelled the ferry boat carrying the distinguished party.

"Arriving on the opposite shore," says Souther, "which was a wilderness of timber, a spot partly cleared was selected as the battle ground. Shields took a seat on a fallen log on one side of the clearing and Lincoln seated himself on another at the opposite side. The seconds then proceeded to cut a pole about twelve feet long, and the stakes were crotched in the end. The stakes were driven in the ground and the pole laid across the crotches, so that it rested about three feet above the ground. The men were to stand on either side of this pole and fight across it. A line was drawn on the ground on both sides three feet from the pole, with the understanding that if either combatant stepped back across his own line it was to be considered a give up of the fight.

"After all these arrangements had been completed the seconds rejoined their principals at the different sides of the clearing and commenced to talk in low tones. Along with the Shields party was Dr. T. M. Hope, of Alton. He was very much opposed to the duel and reasoned with Shields for a long time. As a result of his talk several notes were passed between the seconds. Lincoln remained firm and said Shields must withdraw his first note, and ask him whether or not he was author of the poem in the Journal. When that was done he said he was ready to treat with the other side.

"Shields was inflexible, and finally Dr. Hope got mad at him. He said Shields was bringing the Democratic party of Illinois and himself into ridicule and contempt by his folly. Finally he sprang to his feet, faced the stubborn little Irishman and blurted out: 'Jimmie, you little whipper snapper, if you don't settle this I'll take you across my knee and spank you.' This was too much for Shields, and he yielded. A note was solemnly prepared and sent across to Lincoln, which inquired if he was the author of the poem in question. Lincoln wrote a formal reply, in which he said that he was not, and then mutual explanations and apologies followed.

"I watched Lincoln closely as he sat on his log awaiting the signal to fight. His face was grave and serious. I could discern nothing suggestive of 'Old Abe' as we knew him. I never knew him to go so long before without making a joke, and I began to believe he was getting frightened. But presently he reached over and picked up one of the swords, which he drew from its scabbard. Then he felt along the edge of the weapon with his thumb, like a barber feels the edge of his razor, stretched himself to his full height, stretched out his long arms and clipped off a twig from a tree above his head with the sword.

"There was not another man of us who could have reached anywhere near that twig, and the absurdity of that long-reaching fellow fighting with cavalry sabres with Shields, who could walk under his arm, came pretty near making me howl with laughter. After Lincoln had cut off the twig he returned the sword to the scabbard with a sigh and sat down, but I detected the gleam in his eye which was always the forerunner of one of his inimical yarns and fully expected him to tell a side-splitter there in the shadow of the grave; Shields' grave.

"After things had been adjusted at the duelling ground we returned to the ferry boat, everybody chatting in the most friendly manner possible."

Washington, May 11.—The statue of Maj. Gen. Winfield Scott Hancock will be unveiled tomorrow at 3 o'clock in the afternoon, and will be made the occasion of an imposing military demonstration. The date selected is the anniversary of the battle of Spottsylvania, Va., when Hancock's brigade gained its brilliant victory in that portion of the field known as "the angle." Brooke, commanding the military department of Dakota, with headquarters at St. Paul, will have command of the military escort. All the available troops in this vicinity will be ordered out, including the artillery at Washington barracks, the cavalry at Fort Myer, the marine from the barracks, a battalion of sailors from the navy yard and the National Guard of the District of Columbia. burg, just before he was severely wounded. The gigantic figure sits firmly in the saddle, the steed is slightly checked and the whole statue gives the impression of reserve force. The artist is H. J. Ellicott, of this city, whose design was chosen in a competition held two years ago. The pedestal is of red granite. It is plain with the exception of two carved shields, one at each end. The statue cost $49,000. It was been erected under direction of a national commission appointed by congress, consisting of Secretary of War Lamont, Senators Mills, of Texas, and Cockerell, of Missouri. The money for the monument was appropriated by congress.

PUGILISTIC EVENTS.

San Francisco to Have a Fistic Carnival.

San Francisco, May 11.—The National Athletic club has all but arranged the biggest pugilistic tournament ever held in this city. If the program is carried out it will include four set-tos between eight of the prominent fighters in this part of the world at present. The program, as planned, is to consist of 10-round bouts between Sharkey and Tom Williams, of Salt Lake; Danny Needham and Billy Gallagher; Patsy Corrigan, the Australian cyclone, and Billy Smith, the Australian; and Arthur Walker and Fred Muller, of the San Francisco Athletic club.

The contests are virtually settled and it is expected that all the men will sign articles today. A match is contemplated between Dal Hawkins and Owen Zeigler, but as he weighs 138 pounds and Hawkins only 130, the latter refuses to concede so much weight and will not fight unless Zeigler trains down. This he refuses to do.

COMBINE

Railway Employes Hold an Important Meeting in St. Louis.

Better Class of Railway Societies Seek to Amalgamate Six Orders.

Even the Brotherhood of Engineers Is Said to Be a Member.

St. Louis, May 11.—One of the most important meetings of railway employes ever held took place at the headquarters of the Order of Railway Conductors on Market street, near Seventeenth street. It represented officially six national orders and brotherhoods. In fact they may be called international, as the membership of each includes men employed on lines of Canada and Mexico.

F. P. Sargent, grand master of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen, accompanied by Frank W. Arnold, grand secretary and treasurer of the order, came from Peoria, Ill., to attend the meeting. Patrick H. Morrissey, of Galesburg, Ill., grand master of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen, was there, as was also E. E. Clark, grand chief conductor of the Order of Railway Conductors. Grand Master Arthur of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, was unable to come, but was represented officially, as were the chief officers of the Switchmen's Union of North America and the Order of Railroad Telegraphers and members of the grand lodge of each of the six orders attended the convention. There were some 600 present.

The chief result of the convention was the adoption of a resolution to form a federation of the six orders named. The movement had no opposition whatever, every speaker favoring the federation, and every man present voted for it. The only difference of opinion was on the question of admitting the American Railway union. As first submitted, the proposition included Eugene V. Debs' order, but an amendment to strike it out was carried with only two or three dissenting votes. The officers of the grand lodges of the six orders represented at the meeting were authorized and instructed to formulate a plan for uniting the six under a general council, similar to the governing body of the Federation of Labor.

The convention adopted resolutions favoring arbitration and appeals from decisions of the federal court, after which the convention adjourned sine die.

ANOTHER COMBINE.

Knights of Labor and the Federation of Labor.

New York, May 11.—The Herald this morning says: A long step toward a permanent union between the American Federation of Labor and the Knights of Labor, which together control about 2,000,000 organized workingmen, was taken at last night's meeting of the Central Labor union, which is a purely local body, unattached to either, but containing unions which owe allegiance to both. A letter was received by Samuel Gompers, president of the Federation asking the Central Labor union to sink all differences and join the federation.

When the letter was read Charles W. Headley, of the Electrical Workers' union, a Knight of Labor, warmly endorsed it. The only opposition to Gompers' proposition was Joly, delegate of the Brewers' union, a Knight of Labor, who had a grievance because the Federation once opposed a boycott by the Knights of Labor on a brewery in Washington. A motion by James C. Edward, a third Knight of Labor, to refer President Gompers' request to affiliated unions for a vote was carried by a large majority.

CHIEF ARTHUR'S MOVEMENTS.

Buffalo, May 11.—P. M. Arthur, grand chief of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, left here today for Ottawa, Ont., where he will attend the biennial convention of the Brotherhood this week. Between 400 and 500 delegates will be present. Several engineers from Ohio, Northwestern Pennsylvania and Western New York accompanied Chief Arthur on his journey to Ottawa.

M'KINLEY'S HOME.

He Will Not Live Anywhere But in Canton.

Canton, Ohio, May 11.—For several weeks rumors have been circulated that when Governor McKinley was nominated at St. Louis he would take up his residence at Cleveland. On account of these rumors several prominent men made direct inquiry. One of these said to the Repository reporter that he had been assured that there was not the slightest possibility of such an event. He said that Governor McKinley had in no wise changed his plans or ever had any intention of leaving his home city during the months of the campaign in the event of his nomination.

A gentleman from Cleveland says that every inducement had been made by friends of Governor McKinley in Cleveland to induce him to take up his residence in that city after retiring from the governor's office, and that it had been argued to him that Cleveland is a more acceptable place for the political campaign and might be more convenient to him in many ways. Governor McKinley did not agree with the proposition in any respect, and answered that no matter what the argument might be, nothing could induce him after leaving Columbus to make his home in any place but Canton.

SHOT AT A DANCE.

Independence, Kas., May 11.—Near Elgin, Indian territory, at a dance, Sam McGee shot and killed George Smith, aged 19 years, as the result of an old feud. The men had come to the town with cattle and had been drinking. They quarreled and McGee began shooting at Smith. His aim was poor and Smith taunted him for displaying such miserable marksmanship. McGee then taking deliberate aim landed a bullet in Smith's liver, from which he died in a few hours. McGee surrendered.

SHOOTING FOR A TROPHY.

The Interstate Military Encampment at Savannah.

Savannah, Ga., May 11.—The Military Interstate association of Savannah, Ga., will hold its first meeting for five days, beginning today. The exercises will include military drills of different kinds for cavalry, artillery and infantry, contests for rifle, carbine and pistol, and cavalry exercises in the school of the trooper, mounted, such as riding at heads, rings, etc. The purpose is to test the usefulness and efficiency for active service of those taking part in it, and the exercises are to be of a practical nature. The management is in the hands of leading military men and citizens of Savannah. The ground for maneuvers is a park near the center of the city, and is well adapted to the purpose. The arrangements for rifle firing are of the most complete character. The Avondale rifle range, near the city, is pronounced one of the finest ranges in the country. It has recently been finished and is thoroughly equipped with all modern appliances to insure safety and rapidity and accuracy of fire.

Commander Edward Karow.

The crack companies of the country will take part, such as the Thurston Rifles, of Omaha; the Morton Cadets, Emmett Guards and National Fencibles, of Washington; the Governor's Guards, of Memphis; the Pelerin Zouave, of Little Rock. The arrangements for the encampment are under the supervision of Maj. Edward Karow, commander of the encampment. The major is one of the most popular military men in the state. The team shooting will be the feature of the marksmanship contests. The prize for the team of twelve contests is the De Renne trophy, one of the most beautiful works of art ever offered in such contests.

The program calls for an interstate prize drill, with a first prize of $2500 in the first class and $1000 in the second class; college cadet prize drill, with prize of $500; interstate cavalry tilt, with prize of $110. In the De Renne trophy shoot the distances will be 200, 300 and 500 yards.

WEST END

Storm Last Night Caused Considerable Damage to Street Paving.

The Basement of One Store Was Filled With Water.

Three Deaths Reported Saturday and Yesterday---Other News.

The storm broke over West Duluth with great violence last night and the rain fell in torrents. The water flooded the streets in many places and caused much damage. The greatest damage was probably done on Eighth avenue and Grand, near their intersection. On Eighth avenue from Main street to the railway track the paving is torn out and distributed in piles along the sides of the street. Some of the planking is even torn up, and the avenue looks as if it had experienced the force of a first class cyclone. The basement of Isaacson & Kauppi's store is full of water, which even ran in upon the floor of the store. A number of other streets will require considerable repairs by the street commissioner's force.

The passenger train on the Mesaba road was delayed a hour this morning on account of a wash out of the roadbed on the hillside, east of Central avenue.

THREE DEATHS REPORTED.

Three deaths occurred in West Duluth on Saturday night and Sunday. John Peterson, aged 50 years, passed away on Saturday night of pneumonia. He leaves a wife and one daughter.

James Walle, aged 72, the father of Mrs. E. E Kelso, wife of Officer Kelso, also passed away yesterday. The remains will be taken to Missouri for interment.

Birdie Youngs, the 7-year-old daughter of Charles Youngs, died yesterday of scarlet fever. This is the family which has been sorely afflicted with the disease, all of the children having been taken down with it. Two of the children are still sick with the fever.

SAWMILL MEN MEET.

ESKIMO WOLF TRAPPING.

Field and Stream tells of a curious way by which Eskimos catch wolves. They plant a stake in the ice, with a sharp piece of flint on the end, which is wrapped with seal or other blubber. Along come the wolves and go to licking the frozen blubber. After a while they get down to the flint and cut their tongues on it. Being ravenously hungry, when they taste the warm blood they fall to and chew the life out of one another.

The familiar trick of putting a bent piece of sharpened whalebone into a ball of blubber, which is released by the heat of the animal's stomach and results in the death of the animal, is much less effective than the flint stake, because nearly the whole pack of wolves are killed by the latter device.

A PRACTICAL ARGUMENT.

Detroit Free Press: The affection of the young mother shown in her eyes as she leaned her head against his coat collar and said:

"William, dear—"

"What is it?"

"I have never tried to interfere in your politics or religion, have I?"

"Not in the least."

"So you wouldn't take it amiss if I were to suggest, just this once, the way I think you ought to vote, would you?"

"Of course not. What problem in political economy have you been worrying your head over this time?"

"Finance."

"You don't mean it!"

"Yes. I was thinking of the coinage question this morning, and I want you to vote for silver."

"What on earth do you want me to do that for?"

"Because silver dollars wouldn't be so easy for the baby to swallow."

A man's health is the rope by which he climbs to success. If he can keep his health, he will go on to success. Yet his health is the very thing he neglects more than anything else. It is easier to keep health than it is to regain it. When a man feels himself running down, when he realizes a loss of vitality and energy, he must call a halt. The strands of his rope are parting rapidly. Doctor Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery has helped thousands of men in just this condition. It makes health, it makes pure, rich blood, it forces out impurities and kills germs. It doesn't make any difference what name you call your trouble by—dyspepsia—kidney disease—rheumatism—consumption—skin disease, the "Golden Medical Discovery" will cure it absolutely. None of these diseases can retain hold on the body when it is full of rich, pure blood.

THE SILVER STATUE.

Montana's Costly Work of Art is Here Today.

The great Montana silver statue arrived today and is on exhibition at I. Freimuta's store. It is located on the third floor, and everybody is free to go in and look at it. This is the statue for which Ada Reham posed, and it was one of the sights of the World's fair. It was to be seen in the Montana state building, and was surrounded by a curious and admiring throng throughout the whole day. It was truly a remarkable sight, the first attempt ever made to cast in one solid piece a mass of silver nine feet high, in the hardest of all known metals to make a casting with. It was interesting alike to all, for a combination of so much wealth, skill and beauty and perfection of form and design is rarely to be met with. Montanas enterprise in melting up a fortune has caused wide-spread interest, proving a valuable advertisement for the state wherever the beautiful and wonderful statue goes.

The statue is a remarkable piece of work. It represents "Justice," and is of an exquisite design. It contains 9706 ounces of pure silver, valued at $64,000, and the pedestal is of gold, worth $228,000.

Mr. Freimuth has shown great enterprise in securing the statue for exhibition here. A large crowd has been surging into the store today to see it. It will be on exhibition two weeks.

A Diseased Cow.

The health department received notice today that a cow belonging to Gust Peterson, of Nineteenth avenue east and Fifteenth street, was suffering with a disease, which Inspector Nesbit found, on examination, to be pleurisy. This disorder, while not itself contagious, is apt to develop into the dreaded pleuro-pneumonia. The inspector at once had the animal isolated and ordered that its milk be not used.

Wheat Opened Firm But Quickly Became Weak and Sold Down.

The Opening Strength Due to More Stories About Chinch Bugs.

Reports That Kansas Will Have a Big Yield of Wheat.

Wheat started out a little higher today, but the strength was shortlived and the market soon became weak and dull. Trading was light throughout the session. The opening firmness was due to more stories about the prevalence of chinch bugs and lack of rain in the wheat states generally. The local bulls derived some encouragement from the statements of Dr. Lancaster, of Fisher, Minn., who was on the floor today and asserted that it will no be possible, owing to the delay caused by the recent heavy rains to get more than 75 to 80 per cent of last year's acreage sown in wheat this year. Many farmers in the Red River valley, he said, who had crops last year of 10,000 to 20,000 bus of wheat, have not done any seeding yet. On the other hand, he expressed the belief that the acreage of barley and flax will be larger than last year.

July opened ⅝c higher at 64c, quickly declined to 63¾c and during the next hour sold down to 63¼c. It reacted ⅛c, but before noon had sagged off to 63c, or 1c below the opening. Later it touched 62⅝c, with the last sale at 63c. The mills bought 30,000 bus to arrive at ⅛c under July, and the shippers took 45,000 bus at ⅛c under July. The close was ⅜c lower than Saturday for cash stuff, and ⅝c lower for futures. Duluth and Minneapolis reported receipts of 379 cars of wheat, compared with 479 a week ago, and 237 cars on the corresponding day last year.

The ill effect of the unusually hot and dry weather was conveyed from the country in the mail which the Chicago commission houses had received and digested previous to the opening, and there was no appearance on the weather map of general rains having fallen in the winter wheat country since Saturday, and this caused the strength at the opening. The impression had gained ground in the meantime also that the wheat prospect in Kansas had decidedly deteriorated. Capt. Phillips, who returned to Chicago this morning from Kansas, where he owns large farms and who is one of the heaviest traders on the Chicago 'change, stated that from his observations Kansas would raise the biggest yield of wheat to the acre ever produced in the state, from the present appearances of it, and much of the crop had not been damaged in any way. Of course, the speculator referred to is so invetereate a bear that many believe he would not put his spectacles on if he thought there were chinch bugs around. The closing prices on the Duluth board were as follows:

Wheat—No. 1 hard, cash, 63½c; May, 63¾c; July, 64¼c. No. 1 northern, cash, 62¾c; May, 63¾c bid; June, 62¾c; July, 63c asked; September, 62¾c. No. 2 northern, cash, 59@59c. No. 3, 57½@58½c. GOSSIP.

Received over private wire of B. E. Baker, grain and stock broker, room 107 Chamber of Commerce and 207 Board of Trade.

Chicago, May 11.—There was enough bull enthusiasm this morning to open the wheat market ½c higher, but the weather map showed signs of a break-up in the drought in the Southwest, and local traders took readily to the bear side. The market closes about ¾c lower, but good buying was encountered on the down turn and offerings were comparatively light. Outside buyers were in evidence, but not prominent, as many are holding off waiting for the government report. The most reliable tips are that it will show a condition of about 79 per cent, about two points better than last month. Should this be the case, it ought to indicate a bull market. The Canadian crop report came at the close and was decidedly an argument in favor of higher prices. It will take good soaking rains to be of any benefit in the Southwest.

Corn and oats steady. The receipts are light but fully equal to the demand. Some realizing in oats.

Provisions—The market showed better trade today at better prices and not so much lard pressing on the market. Shorts were the best buyers.

Puts, July wheat, 62¼c.
Calls, July wheat, 64⅝c.

NEW YORK STOCKS.

Market Was Heavy and Lower Today.

New York, May 11.—The stock market opened weak and lower with sharp recessions in the leading shares. The market was adversely influenced by expectations of repeated heavy gold exports and the conspicuous declines in the prices for Americans abroad accompanied by sales for their account. Southern preferred receded 1¾ per cent, Chicago Gas and Louisville and Nashville 1¼, Sugar 1¼, Leather preferred and Missouri Pacific and St. Paul 1, Burlington, Rock Island and Tennessee Coal ¾ per cent.

The market suffered slightly after 10:15 but the improvements was of brief duration, a general reaction ensuing on the announcement of an engagement of $1,000,000 gold for export tomorrow and on liberal offerings by the traders on the assumption that the Cuban difficulties were assuming gravity. The distribution of lending was very great with spurts of animation at intervals. The market at 11 o'clock was very quiet, but with the selling movement unimpeded.

The market was unchanged in general characteristics during the second hour. Prices continued to sag, although some decrease was noted in the volume of offerings. The railroad list bore the brunt of the selling, with Louisville & Nashville and the grangers most prominent in the recession. Tobacco was a notable exception to the general trend of prices, rallying 1¼ per cent to 65¾. The sales to noon were 91,800 shares.

THE DULUTH & WINNIPEG.

Attorney General Childs says, in an interview published in a St. Paul paper, that he is not satisfied with Judge Nelson's decision denying the state the right to interfere with the sale of the Duluth & Winnipeg road, and that he will probably take an appeal to the United States court of appeals. This is the ostensible reason which he offers for trying to prevent the sale of the road:

"In view of facts which have come to my knowledge in the matter I do not wish to see the court made the instrument of carrying out the proposed scheme. I feel it is my duty, as the legal representative of the people, to prevent this so-called sale. If it does go on and new stock is issued in lieu of the old stock, it will be a very serious question whether this new stock would not be an indebtedness of the new company, so that it may base its rates for passenger and freight tariffs upon it.

"To put it plainly, the company might raise the transportation rates much higher than they are now. This, of course, would be detrimental to the public. The interests of the public demand the lowest possible rates consistent with the amount of capital invested. We do not want any watered stock proposition."

The attorney general's explanation can hardly be satisfactory to the people of St. Louis and Itasca counties, who are particularly interested in seeing the road rescued from the muddle in which its affairs are at present. The people of these counties do not thank Mr. Childs for his interference, because they are satisfied that their interests will be promoted by the sale ordered by the court being carried out and the actual ownership of the road vested in strong hands, so that the work of extending it to the Red River valley may be proceeded with at an early date. Nor will the people of the western country through which the road will be extended thank Mr. Childs for interposing an opposition which may delay this extension. They have been waiting anxiously for years for the building of this road, which will give them direct connection with Duluth and furnish competition with the Great Northern road. The people of Duluth have also awaited patiently the construction of this line and its connection with the Canadian Pacific railway at the international boundary, which would give a direct line between Duluth and Winnipeg and divert to this port much of the Manitoba business which now goes by way of Port Arthur. It would likewise result in giving Duluth another through line to the Pacific coast, and there is little doubt that Canadian Pacific transcontinental trains would adopt this route in preference to the circuitous route around the north shore of Lake Superior. Mr. Childs' interference with the consummation of these hopes is therefore not received with favor.

The plea that he interferes because the company might base its passenger and freight tariffs upon the new stock to be issued after the sale and reorganization and might raise the transportation rates much higher than they are now is utterly absurd. The rates will be kept down by the power of competition. The road now runs only to Deer River in Itasca county. It is so badly involved financially that its extension is an impossibility. If the road should be sold and President Van Horne and others connected with the Canadian Pacific should buy it, there would be no question as to the future of the road. Its early extension would be assured, and all the residents of Northern Minnesota would be benefited. Mr. Childs need not worry about the transportation charges. What worries the people most interested is that his unwise interference will delay the building of the road another year. It may be that Mr. Childs' intentions are all right and that his present attitude is due simply to an error of judgment, but there are people here who do not talk so mildly about his conduct and do not hold him innocent of a direct attempt to aid the plans of President James J. Hill, of the Great Northern, who has been the persistent enemy of the Duluth & Winnipeg and has steadily fought every effort to put it on a good financial footing and secure its completion.

The people of Duluth are in favor of the sale proceeding. The people of the Red River valley are anxious to have the road rescued from its financial difficulties so that it may be completed. If Mr. Childs is desirous of serving the interests of the people he will at once acquiesce in Judge Nelson's decision and let the sale proceed without further interference.

AN IMPORTANT ENTERPRISE.

Those who have derided the idea of a railroad from Winnipeg to Hudson Bay may soon have good cause to change their attitude There are strong indications that the road is actually to be constructed. For many years Hugh Sutherland, of Winnipeg, has worked unceasingly in behalf of this project. He has devoted the best years of his life to its promotion, and several times when success seemed to be in sight circumstances have arisen to prevent the carrying out of his plans. He had to meet very strong prejudice. The feasibility of navigating Hudson bay and straits was the great bugbear which he first encountered. Despite the fact that for several hundred years the old wooden vessels of the Hudson's Bay company had sailed between England and the trading posts on the bay and had met with but few mishaps, there were many who scouted the idea of the modern and much stronger vessels, built with especial view to combatting ice, navigating the bay and straits. Mr. Sutherland finally succeeded in inducing the Canadian government to send an expedition to Hudson bay to settle this point, and it was found that the bay and straits are navigable at least seven months in the year. Then he met the determined opposition of the Canadian Pacific railway people when he entered the money markets. Their emissaries in London defeated nearly all his attempts to secure capital. Once he did make arrangements, and forty miles of the road were built out of Winnipeg. But the British capitalists who had promised their financial backing to the enterprise were induced by Canadian Pacific influence to abandon it, and the work of construction ceased.

But Mr. Sutherland has never despaired of ultimate success. The reverses which he met seemed but to increase his determination that the road should be built, and he went steadily ahead with that purpose in view when men of weaker resolve and poorer courage would have quit in disgust. In Sir Charles Tupper, who is now premier of Canada, Mr. Sutherland always had a staunch friend. When Sir Charles was a member of the Macdonald ministry, he was chiefly instrumental in securing for Mr. Sutherland, in the name of the Winnipeg & Hudson Bay Railway and Navigation company, aid from the government to the extent of several thousands of acres per mile as a land grant. He added the scheme as far as he could, and now that he has become the head of the government he has shown his abiding faith in the enterprise by pledging the support of his government to the construction of the road. A Winnipeg dispatch says that a delegation from all parts of the Canadian Northwest waited on the premier in that city on Saturday and received definite assurances that the government would undertake the construction of the Hudson bay road, and as to Sir Charles was due mainly the construction of the Canadian Pacific railroad, from ocean to ocean, an undertaking so colossal that no other statesman had the courage to attempt it, his assurance is accepted by the people.

Sir Charles said he was convinced, after careful investigation, that the enterprise would be profitable from its inception. Nature, he declared, had intended Hudson bay as the outlet for the grain exports of the Canadian West and Northwestern states to the European markets. For Manitoba, he added, the Hudson bay route was rapidly becoming an absolute necessity, for with the country's rapid growth the Canadian Pacific railway, big as it is, would soon be unable to carry all the grain to market. For Great Britain, he pointed out, a Hudson bay route would be of the greatest importance, for in the event of war with the United States troops from England could be brought into Canada safely and quickly. England, he said, appreciated this and would readily supply the necessary capital. If the Conservatives win in the approaching elections in the Dominion, as seems quite probable, there is no doubt that the government will carry out the promise which Sir Charles has made, and the close of the present century may witness the running of through trains from Winnipeg to Hudson bay.

A Washington dispatch says that Senator Nelson and Congressman Towne are having a pretty fight over land bills introduced by them. Each introduced substantially the same measure for the relief of those persons who settled on and made final proof between Aug. 15, 1887, and Jan. 1, 1889, on the so-called Northern Pacific indemnity belt under pre-emption and homestead laws. The Nelson bill passed the senate, but in the house Mr. Towne succeeded in substituting his bill. When it went back to the senate Mr. Nelson opposed the adoption of the house amendments, and now the dispute has gone to a conference committee. Mr. Towne sent both bills to the people affected, and they reported that the Towne bill suited them best, and this was why he substituted it for the Nelson bill in the house.

The suggestion of some of the McKinley men that Tom Reed should be given the second place on the ticket does not meet with favor from Mr. Reed or his friends. Indeed, it is stated very positively by Washington correspondents that if he is not nominated for first place at St. Louis he will never again be a candidate for any position within the gift of the people. In spite of all the denials which have been made, if he is defeated at St. Louis he will retire from political life altogether. He will finish his term as speaker and then enter upon the practice of law in New York city. This is the desire of Mrs. Reed, and it is the practical determination of the speaker himself, who regards his political career as ended.

The Atlanta Constitution makes the following point which is interesting to Democrats: "The states that demand the gold standard have not given a Democratic majority in a presidential year within the memory of men 50 years old, while the states that will demand the free coinage of both gold and silver have given unbroken Democratic majorities for thirty years. The question arises whether the Chicago convention proposes to accede to the demand of a faction of the party that is powerless to help the organization at the ballot box, or whether it proposes to satisfy the just demands of the voters whose support of the party gives it all the strength it has in the electoral college."

The Herald is pleased to notice that the county commissioners awarded the contract for building the steel bridge at Short Line Park to a local concern. As was suggested in these columns a few days ago, the way to build up home industries is to patronize them. It is the desire of every Duluthian that this city should become the seat of a large iron and steel manufacturing industry, and in awarding this contract to a local firm which is endeavoring to obtain a foothold in this line of business, the county board has given evidence of its intention to do all within its power to bring about this result.

H. W. Hawley, formerly owner of the Denver Times, once partner with H. H. Kohlsaat in the ownership of the Chicago Times-Herald and now publisher of the San Francisco Examiner, is reported in an interview as saying: "As for the newspapers in the towns and cities of the Middle West, those occupying the evening field now have as a rule a larger circulation, more influence and are more profitable than the morning papers. It is so in Minnesota, Iowa and Missouri, with scarcely an exception. I am informed it is true of many other states.

The Minneapolis papers are indulging in considerable jubilation over the fact that world has just been received from the assistant postmaster general that within a few days the Minneapolis office will be supplied with one of the latest patented stamp cancelling machines. All the large cities have been provided with these machines for some time past. The Duluth postoffice has had one for a year and a half, and it is possible that the business in the Minneapolis office has now reached proportions which will necessitate the use of one.

The St. Cloud Journal-Press published on Saturday Secretary Carlisle's speech at Chicago in favor of the single gold standard and several other articles denouncing bimetallism and favoring the goldbug cause. They are "plate" articles furnished free to newspapers by the "Sound Money league" of New York, an offshoot of the Democratic Tariff Reform league. Yet the Journal-Press claims to be a Republican paper.

Boies and free silver are sweeping all before them in the Democratic state convention in Iowa. Fifty counties out of ninety-nine have instructed for Boies and free silver. The total number of silver delegates is now 400; gold, 100. Returns from Dubuque county, always the strongest gold county in the state, show that silver carried in all the primaries but one.

If it should be decided to take the Republican vice presidential candidate from the South, the man who deserves the second place on the ticket is Henry Clay Evans, of Tennessee. He made a winning fight for governor when hope of Republican success in the South was at a low ebb, but he was counted out of his victory.

Mr. Lee continues to gain in strength in all parts of the state. The fact that he is the anti-machine candidate and is disliked and feared by the Merriam-Bixby gang adds strength to his candidacy everywhere. St. Louis county Republicans will aid in downing the Merriam machine.

The Washington Post suggests that perhaps Mr. Cleveland will make the race this year, provided there is a general understanding that he is to have the nomination again in 1900.

Matt Quay has quit fighting McKinley and thinks it would be well to nominate him by acclamation at St. Louis.

The heated spell has ended. It was unprecedented in Duluth in May, and even a northeaster is preferable.

The Kansas City World thinks Mr. Clarkson is a political hoodoo.

Who will be the tail to McKinley's kite?

THE ROUNDER.

Last summer the Rounder took occasion to make a few remarks on the bloomer question. The festive bloomer had not yet appeared, nor did it afterward in any large proportions. By that the Rounder refers to number and not to size. This year, it is said, they are more numerous, but they are so well disguised with modest skirts that the average beholder is not aware of their number. Speaking of bicycle costumes, however, there were a good many wheels out yesterday, and many of them had costumes riding them with people inside.

One costume passed which took the Rounder's breath away. The shortest way to describe it briefly is to begin at the top, where a sailor hat was jauntily placed on the side of a pretty head. Then came a shirt waist, next a skirt. After that there was quite a way for the eye to travel before the pedals were reached, which was filled up by a twinkling pair of black stockings. Altogether it made a very striking costume, and the Rounder paused on the edge of the sidewalk to catch his breath.

* * *

The human swine who covers a car floor with tobacco juice expectorated from the same sewer through which he receives the food which an inscrutable providence allows him to procure has been touched up often enough, but he is always in evidence. Yesterday he sat near the Rounder in the grand stand at the ball park. The seats are closed; that is, there are no spaces as there are in circus benches through which the tobacco chewer can disgorge the nauseating cargo from his mouth. The individual in question sat well up towards the top, and during the game he continually ejected filth from his mouth upon the seats below him, blissfully careless whether anyone desired to use the seats or whether those who sat around objected to having their clothes drenched. It makes one shudder to think what might happen to this fiend if the punishment were made to fit the crime.

* * *

A few minutes before darkness and rain closed down last evening, about the time the sun was sinking behind the clouds in the west, there was an inexpressible combination of cloud effects. There was just enough of the sun's rays left to cast a reddish tinge over a portion of the clouds, and the remainder torn and tumbled in picturesque confusion over the skies, bore in their corners and crevices some of the most delicate shades of coloring, in which a rich purple was a prominent ingredient. The shadow on the lake, which was unruffled by the slightest breeze, was full of vague suggestions.

Shortly after that it didn't do a thing but rain pitchforks.

* * *

"Say," said a contemplative marine barnacle to the Rounder, "did you notice anything about the vessel movement at this end of the lake last Thursday? Well, between the two midnights there were forty-three arrivals which according to my list (the tallest had been figuring for a couple of hours) would round up a marine procession 10,750 feet long, or about two miles. This aggregation of great lakes' monsters were worth, according to insurance valuation, the comfortable sum of $4,122,000, and everyone who isn't a measly idiot knows that insurance rating does not represent full value. Exclusive of their cargoes their net tonnage was 49,553 tons. The departing list was nearly as big and I think that the actual value of the day's doings, arrivals and departures, and cargo will be not far from $15,000,000. That crowds the ocean ports pretty hard, doesn't it? said the man of lignum, and the Rounder is inclined to that belief.

RIGHT THE WRONG.

Hibbing News: Let us make an effort to get all that rightfully belongs to us in the way of taxes upon the railroad and mineral lands within the state, and especially in the county of St. Louis, which is now being deprived of a large portion of the mineral wealth by reason of the iniquitous tax law now in operation which wrongfully diverts hundreds of thousands of dollars from this county to enrich other portions of the state which are in no way entitled to it. The 1 cent per ton tax on the output of our iron mines, all of which are in St. Louis county, made in lieu of other taxes now going to the state is a steal pure and simple from St. Louis county. The question of righting this monstrous wrong should be made the issue in the election of state representatives from this county in the future. Let us select men who stand right on this question, men who will faithfully represent the interests of their constituency instead of those of the corporations.

LEE THE RIGHT MAN.

Wadena Journal: Some of our leading Republicans favor Mr. Clapp, other Republicans wish to see Governor Clough renominated, while many Republicans are inclined to William E. Lee. The Journal, while ready to heartily support the Republican nominee, is not the representative of any clique, but has its own opinion upon the choice of a candidate and also upon the wish of the people, and these point strongly toward William E. Lee as the right man.

MEANS CLOUGH'S DEFEAT.

Morris Sun: This is an anti-Clough move, and it means his defeat for anyone who says the committee of 100 cannot now control Hennepin county, either does not know what he is talking about or simply does not tell the truth. That list of names contained the leading and most influential Republicans of Hennepin, and they are determined to have a full and fair expression as far as Clough's candidacy is concerned, and will not permit the field to be so manipulated by the machine that it will be used against itself.

NO DOUBT ABOUT IT.

Two Harbors Iron News: Mr. Towne will be renominated by acclamation if the meager minority don't act foolish. We even doubt if a Democrat can be found to oppose his re-election.

IS WELL SATISFIED.

St. Cloud Journal-Press: "Governor" William E. Lee returned from Duluth last evening and left on the noon train for Sauk Center. Mr. Lee expressed himself as well satisfied with the situation at the head of the lakes, and feels confident of receiving St. Louis county's vote in the convention.

QUAY HIMSELF AGAIN.

Chicago Times-Herald: If Senator Quay has expressed himself as reported from Washington yesterday, in the matter of the St. Louis nomination for the presidency, that able Republican leader is keeping a cool head when some of his associates have lost theirs completely.

* * * Senator Quay's diagnosis of the situation and skillful prescription for dealing with it will tend to allay animosity, bring recalcitrant leaders to their senses, and incline the Republicans of the country more than ever to the belief that he is, as we have often said, a field marshal among political generals, the greatest indeed, of his time. If he failed in this emergency it would be the first time in a long and active career of leadership, when, having ascertained to his own satisfaction what the people wanted, he did not follow their wishes, even if it were necessary to rectify his own ragument. Herein is the highest quality of the school of leadership in which he was trained and of whose results he is the most conspicuous exemplar.

DOES NOT LIKE McKINLEY.

New York Evening Post (Ind.): McKinley never knew a doubt, or read a book or weighed an argument, has always been radiant with the courage of fools, and is today the great, typical, blind tariff fanatic. It is not simply that chance gave his name to the last high tariff bill. He is, in his own person and by consistent word and deed, such a sublimation and quintessence of unreasoning stupidity in economics that his apotheosis, at the hands of unreasoning stupidity, was inevitable.

HAS TUMBLED AT LAST.

Long Prairie Leader: The Pioneer Press is getting ready to climb onto the Lee band wagon. Up to last week nothing but Clough clippings from the country press were to be seen in the P. P., but since then Lee matter has been showing up quite conspicuously. The old girl has evidently tumbled to the fact that the Todd county man is somewhat in the race.

The Great Bargain Chain

Of positive money saving has been forged link by link, as illustrated by this list, made up for Tuesday's trade. It isn't how much we can get for a thing, but how little we can afford to sell it for. That's a governing principle which controls us in marking the prices in every department. It's the secret of the phenomenally low prices which will be found in the following.

THE DAKOTAS.

NORTH DAKOTA.

Myron R. Kent, the murderer who is under sentence of death at Fargo, has received news of the death of his father, from a broken heart.

At Casselton on Sunday burglars entered the store of C. M. Fisher, opened the safe, pried out a small deposit chest and decamped with it. There was a certificate of deposit on both banks here for about $1000, school order of district 17, Cass county, several notes and deeds and other papers. No clue.

At Willow City William Holz's house was struck by lightning Sunday evening. The interior of the house was badly wrecked. A bed on which a child was sleeping was entirely destroyed, but the child was unhurt.

SOUTH DAKOTA.

President McLouth, of Brookings, has turned over all keys to the vice president and the whole control of the institution is now in the hands of the governor's board. Secretary Sanborn turned over all the books to the new secretary and all things are once more in running order. The two professors ousted will undoubtedly give up their places, but men will sue the state for unfilled contracts, and the outcome is still to be learned.

Advices received at Huron from Carthage, Miss., state that the present condition of Cora Belle Fellows, who married Chaska, a Sioux Indian, while a teacher on the reservation a few years ago. The affair caused a sensation, Miss Fellows being a Washington city belle and highly connected and educated. Following the marriage, the pair was on exhibition in various museums, and in that way accumulated quite a fortune. On their last visit here Chaska and his wife wore the clothes, diamonds and jewelry. All these, together with the money which Chaska himself, have gone, and the former belle of Washington society lives near Carthage, Mo., a deserted and destitute woman with three children dependent upon her for care and support. Chaska deserted his wife and married a squaw.

SUCH MEN ARE SCARCE.

Brainerd Dispatch: The Sixth Minnesota district has a member in congress who would rather stay in Washington and work than adjourn and enjoy the summer in a cool and quiet way. These men are few and Mr. Towne is one of them.

SENATE SHOULD ASSENT.

Moorhead Independent: The house of representatives has finally passed a bankruptcy bill. The measure as passed, is based upon the Torrey bill, which has been before congress many years, and provides for both voluntary and involuntary bankruptcy. It is a good law and the senate should not hesitate to give its assent.

THE ICONOCLAST.

(And now the iconoclast claims that Mary's lamb really belonged to Lucy.—Exchange.)

If it's true that Mary's lamb
Was the lamb of Lucy,
P'raps the goose that saved old Rome
Was a Grecian goosey;
P'raps the apple shot by Tell
Was a ripe cucumber;
P'raps the ark that Noah sailed
Wasn't made of lumber;
P'raps the hatchet used by George
Was a butcher's cleaver;
P'raps the noble Winkelreid
Was a base deceiver;
P'raps the fiddle Nero played
Was a hurdy gurdy;
P'raps the bird that fed Elish
Was some other birdy;
P'raps the deck the boy stood on
Never was in danger;
P'raps the wolf ate Ridinghood
S'posing her a stranger;
P'raps—but why extend the line?
Is there any goosie
B'lieves that Mary's faithful lamb
Ever followed Lucy?

QUIET CRITICISM.

Washington Star: She is a quiet little woman who does not make any pretense to exceptional cleverness.

"I'm afraid," her husband said, "that you haven't a very keen sense of humor."

"Perhaps I haven't," she answered, "but still it's better than to have too keen a sense of humor. Some people become so expert that they can see a joke when there isn't any."

MATRIMONIAL ITEM.

Texas Siftings: In a San Antonio, Tex., drawing room a lady was narrating her sad experience.

"Imagine the frightful position in which I am placed. My husband went North and now it is almost three years since I had a line from him."

"Horrible!" groaned the chorus.

"Yes, but that ain't the worst. He is likely to turn up here in town any day and head me off from getting a divorce for desertion."

INFANT'S BODY FOUND.

Two Boys Discovered it in Miller's Creek.

The dead body of a new-born infant greeted the startled eyes of two boys who had dragged the sack in which it was contained from the waters of Miller's creek yesterday forenoon. The finders of this evidence of what may possibly be murder are Willie Swan and George Sophy, lads of 12 years of age. While playing along the margin of the creek their attention was attracted by a mysterious looking bundle that had lodged against some pieces of driftwood. On fishing it out of the water and undoing the outer wrapping, the form of a male child, in an advanced stage of decomposition, was disclosed. The police were notified and the corpse was taken to Durkan's morgue, where it was viewed by Deputy Coroner Stocker. The police took charge of the rags in which the body was wrapped, together with the sack, and the detectives at once started to work on the case.

The Pavilion Concerts.

The hot weather yesterday drove many sweltering folks to the Pavilion, where they were fanned by the cool breeze that sport in that elevated locality and their sympanums were tickled with music from the band. In this charming place, the citizen is lifted in more senses than one from the hot city and the cares of business, and the notes of the music drive from the weary brain the thought of other notes, that dog him on secular days. He forgets quotations on wheat and the downward dip of stocks, and the tramp of the bill collector is lost in the tread of Hiawatha, who traveled this way and haunted these shores in poesy long ago.

The City band, under the able leadership of Professor Meier, renders the most difficult selections in a manner to please the most fastidious, and the variety of its repertoire is calculated to please all tastes.

LONG MARRIED LIFE.

Golden Wedding of Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Luce.

Papers have been received here announcing the golden wedding celebration of Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Luce, of Kingsville, Ohio, whom all old settlers in Duluth will remember well for they resided here many years ago. A reception was held at their home on Thursday, April 30, at the fiftieth anniversary of their marriage and the people of their town, Ashtabula and other places called upon and congratulated them.

Mr. Luce was born Oct. 16, 1819, and spent most of his early life in Kingsville, the place of his birth. In 1857, together with his family and brother, Orlando, he moved to Superior, Wis., later going to the place which is now Duluth, but his family and two others were the only people here then. In 1861 he was appointed receiver of the United States land office here by President Lincoln, and served eight years. Luke Marvin was register at that time. Later on when a municipal government was organized he was elected to the council and was president of it for several terms. In 1872 he was elected mayor of the city, but resigned a year later and returned to Kingsville and has ever since resided there. Harriet A. Wood, whom he married April 30, 1846, was born June 24, 1819. They have had two children, both daughters, one dying in infancy and the other being Mrs. Kate Cooney, who resides with Mr. and Mrs. Luce.

A WORN-OUT FAD.

"Spring Medicines," "Blood-Purifiers" and "Tonics" an Old-Fashioned Idea.

Pure blood, strong nerves and muscles, firm healthy flesh can only come from wholesome food well digested. "Blood purifiers" and "nerve tonics" do not reach the cause of the mischief. The stomach is the point to be looked after. The safest and surest way to cure any form of indigestion is to take after each meal some harmless preparation which will of itself digest food. There is an excellent preparation of this kind composed of vegetable essences, pure pepsin, Golden Seal and fruit salts, sold by druggists under the name of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets, and these tablets taken after meals assist digestion wonderfully because they will digest the food promptly before it has time to ferment and sour, and the weak stomach relieved and assisted in this way soon becomes strong and vigorous again.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are superior to any secret patent medicines, because you know what you are taking into your stomach. They are sold by druggists everywhere at 50 cents per package.

Write Stuart company, Marshall, Mich., for book on stomach diseases.

DISFIGURED FOR LIFE.

Hattie Richardson Bitten By a Dog.

The following dispatch from Albany, N. Y., will be of interest here, where the lady has many acquaintances: Mrs. Emmet Drew, known on the stage as Hattie Richardson, who is a leading singer in the Wilbur Opera company now playing in Troy, was disfigured for life yesterday by a St. Bernard dog. The dog was on the stage at rehearsal, and Mrs. Drew yelled in his ear. The dog bit into her cheek and held on until beaten off by the woman's husband. Three of the women on the stage at the time fainted at the sight. The woman's face was terribly lacerated.

A BRIGHT DOUBLE EAGLE

Is a pleasant object to contemplate, particularly if one happens to be its proprietor. But the hue of that justly esteemed coin is not provocative of admiration when visible in one's complexion. This indication of biliousness, as well as discomfort in the vicinity of the liver, fur upon the tongue, sick headache, sourness of the breath, nausea, constipation and dyspepsia are speedily remediable with the never failing aid of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, the finest alterative, carminative and corrective in existence. As a preventive and remedy for malarial complaints it is also thoroughly reliable. They whose sedentary pursuits tend to impair the active discharge of active digestion and bilious secretion never seek its help in vain. It is a capital appetizer and promoter of nerve quietude.

ON THE MESABA RANGE.

Four Steam Shovels Working at the Mahoning.

Four steam shovels are now in operation at the Mahoning in stripping and mining, says the Hibbing News. The two 60-ton Bucyrus shovels are placed at opposite ends of the pit and are worked alternately in courses on either side of the pit. But it is not the intention of the management to work both at once. Sixty-six cars were loaded before dinner last Saturday.

The Sellers is sending out its regular quota of about 350 tons per day.

A few more men have been put to work at the Sellers mine for surface work.

The water in the No. 2 shaft at the Hull is now under control again and the work of sinking is again commenced.

Operations have been resumed at the Burt mine at Hibbing, and shipping will be commenced next week in earnest. At present the ore will be loaded direct from the shafts instead of the stockpiles.

Last week the News mentioned the discovery of an extensive body of ore in section 28-58-20, by E. J. Longyear. At that time the drill was down 190 feet in fine ore. On Wednesday night of this week Mr. Longyear reports a depth of 225 feet in ore, and the end is not yet.

Capt. Mallman is opening up a fine body of ore on the Samuel P. Snyder property which is now known as the Arcturus mine, and is being explored by the Arcturus Mining company. Some ten pits are down on this property and iron has been found in each of them. The ore is said to be of good quality and is found to be 150 feet in depth in places. This property is located west of the Mesabi chief about two miles east of the Diamond mine in Itasca county.

At the Commodore the work of pumping out the old workings and cleaning up underground is practically complete, and shipments from No. 1 shaft on a small scale, commenced on Monday, says the Virginia Enterprise. Capt. J. H. Pearce under whose able supervision the first work on this property was done, has again succeeded to the charge of the property, assuming the duties on Wednesday. An immense body of high grade ore has been proven on this property, and it is rumored that active and aggressive operation will mark the history of this mine from now on.

At the Franklin group, approximately the same force is kept, the pay roll containing about 500 names and some 1500 tons of ore is being mined daily. Shipments from shaft at the Franklin and Bessemer are being made, and at No. 1 stockpile Franklin, the Giant Vulcan shovel is employed in loading, the total daily shipments from the properties being about 2500 tons.

On Wednesday morning the Auburn was closed down, throwing about one hundred men out of employment. This move came very unexpectedly, and the cause is unknown. The Auburn has some 50,000 tons in stockpile and has been put in shape for a good season's work.

A visit to the Norman found some seventy-five men employed, and work progressing nicely. Some fifteen cars daily are being shipped, direct from shaft and the force and shipments are being gradually increased.

The Duke & Stratton company now have two shovels at work on the Lone Jack stripping, one being employed in removing rock from the north side of the cut, the other being used in cleaning the ore on the south side of the property. This company is increasing its force slightly as the work opens up.

Glen. W. Scott has been doing some successful exploring on the southeast of the southwest of 4-58-17, on what was formerly known as the North Lincoln, but now comprises a portion of what is known as the Cleveland lands. The property lies just north of the Commodore, and five pits have been bedded in ore of an excellent quality, the ore being struck at depths varying in the different pits from sixteen to fifteen feet. The lands are held under lease by Frank Cox, of Duluth.

Shipments at the Oliver have been somewhat retarded on account of the chronic complaint of the lack of cars. This company now furnishes employment to about 100 men, two shovels being employed in loading ore, one on the north and the other on the south side of the Lone Jack.

Dr. Miles' Heart Cure Does It.

Mrs. Chas. La Point, a well-known resident of Denver, praises this wonderful remedy. Her testimony should convince all as to the worth of the New Heart Cure and Restorative Nervine. Her letter dated Sept. 11th, 1894, reads as follows:

MRS. LA POINT, 2137 Humboldt St.

"Typhoid fever left me with heart trouble of the most serious nature. Nothing the doctors gave had any effect. I had severe pains in the heart, and was unable to lie on my left side for more than three minutes at a time. My heart seemed to miss beats, and I had smothering spells, in which it seemed every breath would be my last. We accidently saw an advertisement of and Restorative Nervine, and purchased a bottle of each. After taking the remedies a week, I could be lifted in a chair and sit up an hour, and in a short time I was able to do light housework. I shall be ever grateful to you for your wonderful medicines. Truly they saved my life.

AMUSEMENTS.

"SINBAD."

The American Extravaganza company, which appears at the Lyceum in "Sinbad" tonight and tomorrow night it may not be generally known has been in existence for over twelve years, and has become the most important organization in its line in this country, if not in the world. It was organized early in 1886 by David Henderson, who was then lessee of the Chicago Opera house, which he retained until a few months ago when he took the latest addition to the theaters of Chicago, the Schiller. In 1887 Chicago was not the theatrical center it has since become, largely owing to David Henderson's work in that city. It was difficult at that time to obtain artists skilled in the various branches that make up extravaganza. Ballet masters and ballet dancers had to be imported. Good chorus singers were not obtainable. It was even hard to get people to fill the principal parts. In even the scenic and property departments skilled artists had to be imported. All these difficulties made it necessary to establish classes in dancing, singing, elocution and stage business, and soon out of the rank and file of the company a number of clever people were brought forth.

In connection with this Mr. Henderson projected the Chicago conservatory. The pupils of this school used originally to appear in the choruses and as supers in these extravaganzas, thus giving them a training which they could not otherwise have had. It is by this kind of work that the great organization has been built up, and thus in Henderson's company the most evenly balanced and thoroughly trained coterie of extravaganza artists is found. Among the most noted of the productions which have been talked of during the past ten years, coming from this source, have been the "Arabian Nights," "Crystal Slipper," "Bluebeard, Jr.," "Ali Baba," "Sinbad" and "Aladdin, Jr."

SHE LOVES CHILVERS.

Jeanette St. Henry to Marry Sinbad Company's Baritone.

The New York papers a few days ago contained accounts of the beginning of divorce suits by Jeanette St. Henry, the well know singer, who was here with Pauline Hall, and will be especially remembered for the charming manner in which she sang in the chess duet in "Doreas," and J. S. Hiller, her husband, musical director of the De Wolf Hopper company. The suits are given an added interest to Duluthians from the fact that Miss St. Henry admits that she is to marry Hugh Chilvers, who is the baritone of the "Sinbad" company, which appears here this evening. The case will be heard soon in San Francisco.

The New York World says: "Miss St. Henry and Mr. Hiller were married twelve years ago. For a time their married life was harmonious. Then discord began to intrude itself into the musician's family. False notes were frequent—in fact, both parties claim to be in possession of several, speaking from a chirographical standpoint. Last September Mrs. Hiller left her home. She says she was forced into the step by her husband's acts of unfaithfulness. He says that she was persuaded to leave by Hugh Chilvers, baritone in the Henderson Opera company, of Chicago.

"Out of consideration for her, Mr. Hiller says he brought suit for divorce on the ground of desertion. She began counter proceedings, naming Edith Yerrington Woodcock as co-respondent. vers will be married as soon as her divorce is granted, and Mr. Hiller is determined to make Miss Woodcock his wife when the courts set him free.

"Miss St. Henry, while speaking of her troubles, became almost hysterical in denunciation of her husband. 'What I have endured from him nobody knows,' she said. 'For years I condoned his offences. I sent him money every week to pay bills and found eventually that the bills were never settled. I stood between him and his father in England when the old gentleman threatened to disinherit him. Matthews got so bad finally that I had to leave him. My self-respect demanded that we should part.

"'Mr. Chilvers is a gentleman. He came to my assistance at a time when I had neither friends nor money. It is cruel to bring his name into this matter, but now that we have beentalked of so much we will undoubtedly marry when the divorce is granted.'

"'Mr. Hiller says his wife came under the influence of Chilvers, and that the one object of his life was to meet Chilvers face to face. He said that on many occasions he had stinted himself to send money to his wife; that he had taught her practically all she knows about music and the stage, and had secured her various remunerative engagements. He says he is educating Miss Woodcock for the higher branches of opera—she has played minor roles—and will make her his wife when he can do so. He has an income of $750 a year from an English estate, and draws $125 a week salary from the opera company."

THE BASEBALL GAMES.

Duluth Won Both From the Hibbing Boys.

The Duluth Baseball club opened its season Saturday and Sunday in a manner that was creditable in one way and not so particularly creditable in another. The Duluth club did some pretty playing, but it might have chosen a less easy prey to open the season with. The Hibbing club has some very fair players, and some who are not so good. The team work is not good, and the club's excellencies are all individual. It seems to be different with the Duluth club. Not only is it a good team throughout, but the general work of the players with each other is excellent. Jules Conrad pitched Saturday, and his work gave general satisfaction. The Hibbing team failed to earn a run. Saturday, while the Duluth club landed ten men safely on home base.

Yesterday's game was well attended, and the Duluth club did some capital playing in the first half of the game. The Hibbing club was defeated, but not whitewashed, the score being 11 to 4. Up to the fifth inning the score was 9 to 0 in favor of Duluth, and after that Duluth got two and the visitors four scores.

Both sides seemed to have a deadly cinch on flies. Anyone who batted the ball above the ground was out. Mike Day, for Duluth, made some very pretty catches in left field, and Conrad on first base made a beautiful catch, which looked like an impossibility. Duluth made several pretty double plays, and once, with three men on bases and no one out, a fair hit was caught by Fitch and thrown successively to second and first, retiring the visitors without a score.

Haben, who was with Grand Rapids last year, did some fair pitching, but he would be more interesting if he would drop his very tiresome grand stand twists. "Smith," who pitched for Duluth, was not in his usual form, and not only was he hit pretty hard in the latter part of the game, but he gave several batters first base on some very wild balls.

Next Saturday and Sunday the Duluth club will play the "Hamm's Export" nine, at the West End grounds, and they will meet at that time a club more worthy of their attention.

HOW DOES IT FEEL TO BE A MILLIONAIRE?

Was asked the other day of a rich man. "I never thought of that," he replied, "but now that you speak of it, I believe I am no better off, certainly no happier, than when I didn't have a dollar to my name and had to work from daylight to dark. I wore a blue suit of clothes then, and I only wear one suit now. I relished three meals a day then a good deal more than I do three meals a day now. I had fewer cares; I slept better, and I may add generally that I believe that I was far happier than I have been many times since I became a millionaire."

PROMPT TRAIN SERVICE.

During the month of April the passenger train movement on all divisions of the B. & O. system was remarkable for punctuality. The through express trains arrived at their respective destinations on schedule time 95 per cent of the time. This is a performance rarely equalled by roads operating as many trains as are run on the B. & O., and speaks well for the efficiency of the rank and file, as well as the officials of the operating department.

BICYCLING IN DULUTH.

A Few Suggestions That Should Be Heeded.

To the Editor of The Herald:

There can be no doubt that the bicycle has come to stay, and that it is not merely a plaything, but a means of transportation which we must take into account in municipal legislation. There must be 2000 or 3000 wheels owned in our city. Every rider will in the course of a week pass over London road, really the only street we have for cycling. It seems that the city might make an effort to keep this, our only road, in good condition. At present it is quite uneven, full of depressions and holes, and, what is far worse, for about half of its length covered with many small, sharp stones, which are ruinous to bikes. Systematic use of sprinkler and street roller could easily remedy the condition. Who is the alderman willing to earn the goodwill of the many riders by moving in the matter?

On the other hand, I believe that bicycling should be made the subject of certain police regulations. First of these is that every wheel should have a bell or whistle, and that no one rides after dusk without a lantern. The latter measure particularly would secure greater safety both to wheelers and other travelers. To require that every wheel should be provided with some kind of a brake would perhaps also be useful in our city with its hilly streets. Wheelman.

Duluth, May 8.

A FLORIDA FISH.

At Steve Melton's fish market yesterday morning was exhibited a fish that made minnows of the biggest bass and drum that were on sale, says the Florida Times-Union.

The fish was a rock groupher, weighed 700 pounds, and was eight feet long. It was struck in the channel opposite Mayport on Tuesday morning by the Comanche fishing out, and came to the surface "gilling" for air.

John Arnau, a Mayport fisherman, saw the monster and set out in a boat with a negro to capture it. He ran a rope through the gills and made it fast, but just at this time the stunned fish recovered his usual energy and made things warm. He plunged downward and set the little boat spinning like a cockleshell in a whirlwind.

Finally the fish made seaward for more room and deeper water. He set a pace that made the boat fairly skim the water.

Two miles below the bar, or at Burnside, he was conquered and landed. It took a mule to pull him out of the water.

The fish has a mouth big enough to hold the head of a man.

GREEN STONES.

Just now green stones are the fashion; of these, of course, first comes the emerald, for green diamonds and green sapphires are too rare and small for modern jewelry, says the Chicago Chronicle. Nothing can equal a really fine emerald—rich, dark, velvety and glossy—yet it is said that a flaw or fault almost always lies in the stone, and an emerald without a flaw is priceless. Next to emeralds come peridots, the French name for Indian chrysolite. These stones are particularly soft and they are difficult to cut and polish. Peridots are a clear, deep, leaf-green, showing almost yellow beside the blue tone of color of the emerald. Few peridots are now brought into the market and those sold are usually old stones recut and reset in modern fashion. The chrysoprase is pretty, but lacks depth of coloring. The reason the emeralds and peridots make lovely ornaments is that they can be set round with sparkling diamonds to show off their lovely coloring, but pale stones like the chrysoprase or beryl have to be set plain by themselves, as they will not bear contrast. About twenty years ago a fashion came in of setting peridots with enamel and surrounding them with pearls. This fashion now seems to have returned.

BUT HIS BROTHER DID.

Memphis Commercial Appeal: A young man had just bought an overcoat, a handsome, stylish garment. That evening it rained heavily. He was going out, and did not relish the thought of getting his new coat soaked. On the hat rack in the front hall hung a mackintosh belonging to his brother, and as the young man's eye fell on it he said to himself:

"Just the thing! John won't be going out, and I'll save my new coat as much damage as it would get in three weeks' wearing."

He slipped on the mackintosh, went out, and, on his return, found his brother in their room.

"Say, old man," said the borrower, "I used your mackintosh tonigh:."

"That was all righ:," said the brother, "I got along very well without it."

"You haven't been out this evening, have you?"

"Yes."

"Then what did you wear?"

"Your new overcoat."

ONE THING MORE NEEDED.

Capt. O'Neill, of the steamer India, says that he finds the rivers in good shape as regards accommodations, but thinks that there are actually too many lights. They are apt to prove confusing. What we want now, he remarked with a smile, is a barbed wire stretched in the narrow passages and let every vessel take the regulation side.

MARINE NOTES.

The Lake Carriers' association is urging Secretary Lamont to hurry the construction of the new lock on the Sault Ste. Marie. It is needed badly. Already this season eighty vessels have been detained awaiting an opportunity to pass through.

The tug Hibbard got out of drydock today and the North Land goes in tomorrow.

Saturday afternoon whaleback 137 was launched at the yards of the American Steel Barge company, in Superior, in presence of a large crowd. The launching went off smoothly. Her dimensions were given Saturday.

THE BOND BIDS.

They Will Be Opened By the Council Tonight.

Bids for the $250,000 and $100,000 issues of bonds, to take up the maturing temporary loan note bonds issued in 1893, and for the benefit of the general fund respectively, will be opened at the council meeting this evening. A number of bids have been received. In one of them, that of S. A. Kean, of Chicago, no check was enclosed. E. B. Underhill, of New York, is among those submitting sealed bids. W. J. Page & Co., of Cleveland, Ohio, and several New York bond buyers will be represented by agents who will transmit bids just before the sale.

The committee on auditing and finance has received, it is said, an answer to its communication to Judge Dillon in regard to an opinion on the validity of the proposed water bonds, which indicates a misunderstanding on the part of Judge Dillon as to who had been authorized to negotiate with him on the part of the city. This is owing, doubtless, to the fact that communications have probably been received in behalf of several bodies other than the council. The matter will be brought up at the meeting this evening.

Rev. Mr. Cook's Sermon.

Rev. Herman M. Cook, of Fargo, N. D., preached at the First Baptist church yesterday morning and evening. The subject of his remarks in the morning was "The Holy Spirit, the Comforter."

In the evening he discoursed entertainingly of the man spoken of in Scripture who, as he expressed it, "had more barns than brains," and who said unto his soul that he would enjoy the good things of life, receiving from his Lord a rebuke in those terrible words, "Thou fool; this night thy soul shall be required of thee."

The sermon was an eloquent plea for a higher life than the pursuit of mere physical comforts and money getting.

Eastern Star Meeting.

The annual meeting of the grand chapter of the Order of the Eastern Star of Minnesota will open here on Wednesday morning next at the Masonic Temple at 10 o'clock. About 150 women are expected to be in attendance. The work to be done is mostly of a business character, and no especial program has been laid out.

SHAKESPEARE A MASON.

Dr. Orville W. Owen, of Detroit, has sent out a little book addressed to the Masonic fraternity, says the Seymour Journal, of which he says: "In deciphering the Shakespearian plays (1623 folio edition) and other works of Bacon, for the preparation of 'Sir Francis Bacon's Cipher Story,' I have found unmistakable evidence that the author of them was not only a Mason of high degree, but that he placed in the plays a large portion of the Masonic ritual. Believing this to be of the greatest interest and importance to the brotherhood the following parts of the plays, with the places from which they come, are now given to the order. Understanding fully the obligations under which I rest as a Mason (of the seventh degree), I have taken pains to so hide the work that none but the brethren will understand. Francis Bacon, the author of the plays, was a Master Mason, and claims to have been Grand Master of the Orient and a Rosicrucian knight, and hidden within his works are directions by which it is not difficult to travel into Illyria.

MANY CIRCULARS.

Every man, woman and child in the United States should have received at least one circular in 1895, says the New York Press. At the convention of the National Distributars' association, held in Philadelphia recently, reports were read showing that nearly 65,000,000 circulars were distributed in the year by the members of this organization. Among the more serious subjects presented to the convention was one regarding the sale of letters by advertisers. At least thirty bureaus make a business of buying and selling letters, and the greatest amount of harm results from their labors. For example: A toy is advertised by some one. A loving mother sends for it in the name of her son, who, she thinks, will feel "big" as the result of receiving mail direct. This letter soon reaches a "letter broker," and this small boy is at once registered as a "cash buyer."

From that day to the day of his death he receives all manner of advertising relating to subjects of which the average small boy should have little or no knowledge. Some idea of the extent of this letter brokerage business may be gained from the fact that one concern in New York has a plant that cost over $100,000. Two hundred and fifty thousand dollars would not be taken by one Philadelphia letter broker for his list of names and correct addresses of the following interesting persons: Catarrh cases, 400,000; one-armed men, 85,000; one-legged men, 65,000; amateur detectives, 11,500; inventors, 7800; doctors (new), 22,000; hair dye men, 14,000; bald heads, 38,000; mineral water cranks, 17,000; dandruff cases, 12,000; preachers who peddle, 8500; bona fide agents, 45,000; outfit agents, 75,000.

THE HEARTLESS CREATURE.

Chicago Tribune: "You have no heart."

Pale but fearless she stood before him, and looked him squarely in the eye.

She was poor but proud. Adverse fortune had reduced her wardrobe to a calico basis driven her and her only surviving mother to the top flat of a Wabash avenue apartment house and hardened the lines about her still beautiful mouth. But it could not dim the unconquerable spirit that animated every fibre of the lissome form standing erect with unconscious grace and awaiting his answer.

"You have no heart," she repeated.

"No, miss," replied the butcher, "but we've got some mighty nice liver. Will that do just as well?"

WOLFISH

Old Story of Romulus and Remus Duplicated in India.

Children Stolen By Wolves and Reared By the Wild Beasts.

Some Grew to Manhood With Marked Signs of Animal Nature.

During my early Indian experiences, when I was still a "Griff," full of enthusiasm to learn all that was possible about the many strange and wonderful things the East has to unfold, I heard at a "chota hazari" table a conversation which greatly aroused my wonder and interest, says a writer in the Pall Mall Gazette. The matter discussed was wolf children—that is, children stolen when very young, suckled and fostered by wolves. At first I was incredulous, but after listening and asking some questions was soon convinced that the stories related were certainly true. However, there was more to learn, for none of those present had actually seen a wolf child, and all spoke simply from hearsay, which, however, was evidently well authenticated. After this I never lost an opportunity of acquiring from likely people additional knowledge on the subject. The natives themselves supplied me with some information, though it was hazy; still, they proved to me that there could be no possibility of doubt as to the existence of such beings.

A Jemadar told me that when he was a lad he remembered going with others to see a wolf child which had been netted. Some time after this, while staying at an up-country place called Shapoorcoundie, in East engal, it was my fortune to meet an old Anglo-Indian gentleman who had been in the Indian civil service upward of thirty years, and had traveled about most of that time, and from him I learned all I wanted to know of wolf children, for he not only knew of several cases, but had actually seen and examined near Agra a child which had been recovered from the wolves. This gentleman kindly gave me a detailed description of the boy, and thus enabled me to make pencil drawings. The story of Romulus and Remus, which all schoolboys and the vast majority of grown-up people regard as a myth, appears in a different light when one studies the question of wolf children and ascertains how it comes to pass that boys are found living on the very best terms with such treacherous and rapacious animals as wolves, sleeping with them in their den; sharing the raw flesh of deer and kids which the she wolf provides, and, in fact, leading in all essentials the actual life of a wolf.

A young she wolf has a litter of cubs, and after a time her instinct tells her that they will require flesh food. She steals out at night in quest of prey. Soon she espies a weak place in the fence (generally constructed of thatching grass and bamboos) which incloses the compound, or "ungah," of a native villager. She enters, doubtless in the hope of securing a kid, and, while prowling about inside, looks into a hut where a woman and infant are soundly sleeping. In a moment she has pounced upon the child and is out of reach before its cries can attract the villagers. Arriving safely at her den under the rocks she drops the little waif among her cubs. At this critical time the fate of the child hangs in the balance. Either it will be immediately torn to pieces and devoured or in a most wonderful way remain in the cave unharmed. In event of escape the fact may be accounted for in several ways. Perhaps the cubs are already gorged when the child is thrown before them, or are being supplied with solid food before their carnivorous instinct is awakened, so they amuse themselves by simply licking the sleek, oily body of the infant, and thus lie down in the nest, by degrees getting the odor of the wolf cubs, after which the mother wolf will not molest it. In a little time the infant begins to feel the pangs of hunger, and, hearing the cubs sucking, soon follows their example. Now the adoption is complete, all fear of harm to the child from wolves is gone, and the foster mother will guard and protect it as though it were of her own flesh and blood.

Of course many hundreds of unfortunate children are yearly taken by wolves throughout India, and in only very rare instances do they escape death. Late statistics published of the mortality from wild beasts and snakes in India show a total of 24,300 people during a year, out of which 218 fell victims to wolves alone. These, we may be certain, were nearly all little children from the fact that Indian wolves, though so strong and fleet, are great cowards, and will never approach, much less attack, adults. Moreover, wolves are not gregarious, only uniting in large troops in very cold climates to hunt, though when thus united and pressed with hunger, they will attack almost anything. In India I have never seen more than two or three wolves together.

Perhaps the following facts will show in a homely way how natural it is, under certain circumstances, for the she-wolf to adopt the child:

A gentleman of my acquaintance had a fox terrier which pupped on the same day that the kitchen cat kittened. Out of curiosity my friend exchanged two of the puppies for two kittens; they were held in the respective nests for a few minutes and then left. The result was that the cat reared the two puppies and the dog the two kittens. The fox terrier lived in the stable and, after her kind, would certainly worry any cat she could catch. Still, the two kittens grew up to be cats and she never thought of molesting them. In another case a young tabby cat had her first litter of kittens in a farm hay loft and, being over-anxious for her family, brought a young rat to them. The kittens, whose eyes were scarcely opened, were not ready for flesh food and the young rat remained with them unharmed until discovered by a stable boy. The matter was reported to the master, who gave orders that the young rat was not to be interfered with. So the rodent thrived well with its strange foster-mother, and, maturing much sooner than the kittens, would, on being disturbed, leave the nest and hide under some hay until the supposed danger had passed, when he would return and creep under the cat for warmth. The cat was seen on more than one occasion returning to her kittens with a newly-caught rat in her jaws.

Children recovered from wolves at various times have been identified by their parents through birthmarks and other means. I have never heard or read of a girl wolf-child having been found. The reason for this may be that they have soon broken down under the strain of so terrible an existence, and have perished in the jungle, where the stronger male child has survived. A little girl of 18 months was stolen from a Hindu's hut by a wolf not twenty yards from my bungalow and was never recovered.

The appearance of the wolf-child is forbidding, the features being coarse and brutalized and the expression sad, timid and anxious, without any signs of human intelligence. I believe that even after the unhappy creatures have been reclaimed and kindly treated none has ever been seen to smile. Their mode of progress is on all fours—not, as a rule, on the hands and feet, but on the knees and elbows. The reason the knees are used is to be accounted for by the fact that owing to the great length of the human leg and thigh in proportion to the length of the arms, the knee would naturally be brought to the ground, and the instep and top of toes would be used instead of the sole and heel of the almost inflexible foot. Why the elbow should be employed instead of the hand is less easy to understand, but probably it is better suited to give support to the head and fore part of the body.

One would naturally suppose, however, that by using his arms instead of his hands the head of the child must be brought very near to the ground, and the eyes, being directed downward, he would have difficulty in looking before him, and also that while traveling through the underwood and over rough ground the face would be torn by brambles and stones. The skin covering the knees and insteps, elbows and forearms, of course, grows very hard, horny and burnished from constant contact with the ground. The fact of the creatures traveling in this manner should prove interesting to naturalists, who affirm that, owing to his peculiar conformation, man is the only animal truly binanous and biped, and could not, if he wished, walk on all fours with any degree of comfort.

Children in all countries crawl before attaining strength for an upright position, and the wolf child, having only wolves and other jungle quadrupeds to set him an example, naturally copies their mode of locomotion, having to follow his foster mother and family through low jungle runs, caves and under brushwood which would not permit of an upright position. Old scars and scratches have been noticed on the legs and arms of some of these wolf children, which, from their appearance, would lead one to believe they had been inflicted at some time by the young wolves while either quarreling over their food or romping in play with their human foster brother.

WAITING FOR BUSINESS.

A New York paper says that "the days when you could open a bicycle store and wait for the people to come to you, with a fair prospect of their coming, have passed away—and they won't come back."

They won't come back, because they won't pay. There are a few lines of business in which by reason of etiquette the waiting plan is still pursued; but as for trade in any general sense, it isn't to be gotten in these days without advertising for it. Nor even then, unless the advertising possesses the power to arouse public interest and keep it on edge.

WAR TALK

Renewed Talk of War Between the United States and Spain.

In Case of Hostilities, English Sympathy Would Be With Spain.

A Madrid Newspaper Says Spanish Pride Would Brook No Insult.

London, May 11.—The Globe commenting upon the Cuban situation says: "It is impossible not to sympathize with the Spanish ministry, suddenly called to choose between the loss of Spain's best colony and a war with a great power. In the event of war, European sympathy will be wholly with Spain."

The St. James Gazette remarks: "There are conditions in both the United States and Spain which militate against a peaceful settlement. Americans are quite capable of doing more than talk when Cuba and the lives of Americans are concerned. Senor Canovas del Castillo will have to consider the effect which a surrender to the United States might have upon the stability of the monarchy. He may have to choose between a rupture with the United States and a revolution at home."

Continuing the Globe says: "The inaction of the American authorities in the Bermuda affair has caused much hesitation at Madrid. The Spaniards are apparently less accustomed than ourselves to the vagaries of the diplomacy of shirt sleeves. The recent developments of the Monroe doctrine find little favor abroad. Although the pretentious arrogance at Washington lately, betrays indications of spoiling for a fight, we believe the true explanation of the meddling policy is a determination to render American commerce paramount throughout the Western hemisphere."

SPANISH PRIDE.

Would Favor an Opening of Hostilities.

Madrid, May 11.—The Imparcial, referring editorially to the strained relations between the United States and Spain, says: "The United States intend to wear out the patience of Spain or themselves and declare war. It is preferable to hasten events, as the inferiority of Spain will increase with time."

Capt. Gen. Weyler has not yet replied to the command sent him to remit to the supreme court the cases of the men sentenced to death for taking part in the Competitor expedition.

WEYLER'S WAIL.

Complains of America's Interference in Cuba.

Madrid, May 11.—The Spanish premier, Senor Canovas del Castillo, and the United States minister to Spain, Hannis Taylor, had a conference today, the result of which is not known.

It is reported that Capt. Gen. Weyler has cabled the Spanish government that is is impossible for him to proceed with the war as he should, as the Spanish authorities at every moment are hampered by the "irritating meddling of America in Cuban affairs."

It is understood that the United States government has presented fresh claims for heavy indemnities through losses on sugar plantations belonging to Americans which have been burned by the insurgents. It is expected that these demands will lead to further complications.

ANSWER TOMORROW.

England Investigating the Competitor Seizure Case.

London, May 11.—J. J O'Kelly, Parnellite member of parliament for North Roscommon, asked the government in the house of commons today if representations had been made to Spain in order to obtain a commutation of the sentence of death imposed on William Gildea, described as a British subject, one of the men captured on board the American filibustering schooner Competitor, off the coast of Cuba.

Mr. Curzon, parliamentary secretary for the foreign office, said the matter had raised important questions of policy and international law, and he asked Mr. O'Kelly to repeat his question tomorrow.

ONE OF THE CONDEMNED

Lawrence, Kas., May 11.—Owen Milton, the young Kansan, who was on the Competitor and is among the Americans captured and condemned to death, is a nephew of G. B. Jones, proprietor of a dining hall of this city. Milton was born and raised near Vinland, eight miles south of Lawrence, in this county. He went from there about six years ago to Aurora, Ark., where his parents now reside. There he attended school and graduated. He was at the time of his capture, it is said, a special correspondent of the Key West Times-Union, and was acting for his paper in obtaining information for his paper.

GREATER NEW YORK.

Gov. Morton Signed the Bill This Morning.

Albany, N. Y., May 11.—Governor Morton signed the greater New York bill today.

FRENCH TROOPS INJURED.

Algiers, May 11.—A train loaded with troops destined for the Island of Madagascar, collided yesterday between Adelia and Vesoulbe-Iman with another train. Five officials were killed and three officers, thirty soldiers, and the crew of the train were injured.

TROOPS FOR AFRICA.

Simla, May 11.—In addition to the two infantry regiments ordered from India to Suakim for garrison duty, a regiment of cavalry, a mountain battery and a detachment of engineers will proceed, as soon as possible, to Africa.

RUSSIA'S EXPEDITION.

Finds Favor With Old King Menelik.

New York, May 11.—A dispatch to the Herald from St. Petersburg says: Gen. Shlehoff, head of the Russian Red Cross society, and leader of the expedition to Abyssinia, telegraphs saying that he and his party have been received with open arms, and that the Negus Menelik is making extensive preparations for their passage to Harrar. The Novoe Vremyia says that England's fears about Herat are unfounded. The Russian Red Cross expedition to Abyssinia left Odessa early in April.

This is the third Russian expedition to Abyssinia. The first, under the Cossack Ashinoff left in December, 1888, and ended by being shelled by the French at Sagallo. The second, which was called a scientific mission, left about eighteen months ago, and resulted in the arrival in St. Petersburg of a political embassy from the negus, with a special mission respecting the religion of the Russian church and the faith professed by the Abyssinians.

The present mission under the command of Gen. Shlehoff, assisted by several military officers consists of about eighty members, of which the medical staff numbers six doctors and twelve nurses. Of the other members of the expedition little is stated except that one is a priest who is taking 20,000 small crosses to distribute among the Abyssinians. It is expected in Russian official circles that this expedition will give Russia that footing in Abyssinia which she has been so patiently awaiting to obtain.

COTTON CROPS.

Some Damage By Weevil Reported in Texas.

Washington, May 11.—The cotton report to the department of agriculture for May relates to the progress of planting and the proposed or contemplated acreage. The proportion of the contemplated area already planted on May 1 was 87.9 per cent, which approximates very closely the breadth usually planted at that date, which is estimated at 88.2 per cent. The estimates for the several states are as follows:

Virginia, 20; North Carolina, 80; South Carolina, 90; Georgia, 90; Florida, 100; Alabama, 93; Mississippi, 92; Louisiana, 95; Texas, 85; Arkansas, 84; Tennessee, 73. The returns of correspondence in regard to contemplated acreage indicate a considerable increase over the area planted last year. The percentages by states are as follows: Virginia, 107; North Carolina, 117; South Carolina, 111; Georgia, 113; Alabama, 111; Louisiana, 109; Arkansas, 123; Florida, 143; Mississippi, 110; Texas, 115; Tennessee, 127; Indian territory, 150; Missouri, 141. The average for the country is 114.

Planting has been earlier than usual in most of the cotton states, but much complaint is made of drought in a large area in North and South Carolina, Georgia and Alabama retarding the germination of the seeds. In a few counties in Texas the Mexican weevil is reported as doing considerable damage. As a general thing the plant is said to be in good condition with favorable season.

NORTHERN PACIFIC.

A Petition to Further the Reorganization.

Washington, May 11.—Representative Hartman, of Montana, is circulating in the house a petition to the judiciary committee for an immediate report from that committee on the joint resolution to authorize the reorganization of the Northern Pacific Railway company. The judicial sale of the corporation, under the foreclosure proceedings, is to be made in June, and unless congress takes action before that proceeding, the reorganization of the company will have to be under a state charter.

Many members have signed the petition and it is expected that the sub-committee of the judicial committee which has the resolution in charge will report to the full committee tomorrow. The resolution, if adopted, will compel the company under its charter to sell all agricultural lands within a mile of the track at a price not exceeding $2.50 an acre, and forbids consolidation with any competing line.

TWO PEASANT TRAVELERS.

Two interesting peasant travelers arrived at Odessa a few days ago on board the Volunteer fleet steamer Kostroma, from Vladivostock, says the London News. By the wish of the "Mir" of a far-off village in Poltava, the two men were sent as pilgrims to visit other places and to learn better ways of governing their own village. After a short time one of the men returned to get permission and help from the "Mir" to extend his travels. It was impossible, he said, for him to settle down again quietly in the village after seeing something of the world, and he wished to visit Siberia, where, he had heard, "the people had land, and forests, and everything that God could give in riches and plenty."

In March, 1892, he left his village home and started on foot with 20 rubles in his pocket. He crossed the Ural, and wandered through the governments to Tobolsk, Tomsk, Jenisseisk and Irkutsk. He followed the course of the Amur, and traveled over Blagoveschtschensk to Vladivostock, where he arrived in 1895. During those three years he had fed upon nothing better than roots and herbs, and slept always in the open air.

In Vladivostock he met his friend, and countryman, who arrived there by a shorter route. The two, being wearied of their wandering life, resolved to return home, and, hearing that the Kostroma was in that port, they applied to the captain for permission to work their passage to Odessa. They were told that that was impossible, but the men, being determined to reach home, managed to stow themselves away on the ship. After three days they were discovered, and they were allowed to work and make themselves useful. Upon arriving at Odessa they were handed over to the policemaster, who gave them material assistance and sent them by train to their homes in Poltava. These poor travelers, ages are respectively 47 and 60 years.

A SUICIDE JOB.

San Francisco Argonaut: "Eddie" Farrell, a San Francisco politician, whose death was announced this week, was at one time employed in the mint. "a suicide job," he called it, "at $8 a day." He would enter a saloon and, after a simulated spell of coughing, would put his hand to his mouth and show to the astonished bystanders a small gold nugget. He always carried it with him. Then, with a sigh, he would remark: "My lungs are all coated with gold from working in the mint. It's a regular suicide job."

MENELIK

Negus, of Abyssinia, Makes a Promise to European Scientists.

When Peace Prevails They May Explore Axum Church Vaults.

Rich Biblical Treasures Are Expected to Be Discovered There.

King Menelik, of Abyssinia, has promised that as soon as peace is restored within his dominions, he will permit a commission of European scientists to make an exhaustive examination of the vaults of the cathedral church of Axum, where the monarchs of Ethiopia have been crowned from time immemorial, says the New York World. A widespread tradition of the Moslem world asserts that it is within the ancient vaults of this structure that the ark of the covenant is preserved, along with the tables of stone containing the ten commandments, and which Moses brought down from Mount Sinai.

The seven-branched candlestick of gold, which figured in the holy of holies of the temple of Solomon, at Jerusalem, is said to be preserved in these vaults, which are also known to contain a mass of ancient papyri and other manuscripts that are in an excellent state of preservation, but have never been translated or annotated.

In view of this promise of King Menelik to throw open to the scientific world the historical and Biblical treasures known to exist in the vaults of the cathedral of Axum, European archeologists are just now anxiously discussing the possibilities of such a search. Only a couple of years ago a Syriac manuscript dating back to the fourth century was unearthed in the convent of St. Catherine, on Mount Sinai, giving in the native language of Christ a relation of the Scriptures whose existence was never before suspected.

But here in the cathedral of Axum, a building of much greater mystery and interest, there is known to be a collection of ancient writings that has long excited the curiosity of scholars, and whose decipherment may produce far more valuable results.

It is no mere vague tradition handed down from father to son which has transmitted to generations of Abyssinians the story of how these priceless treasures came to repose in the cathedral of Axum. The story of their procurement by the rulers of the country and of their being deposited within these sacred vaults is specific, particular and detailed.

It is told how they were brought from Jerusalem to Abyssinia by the founder of the present reigning dynasty, the first of the emperors, Menelik, who was the son of King Solomon of Israel and of that Biblical queen of Sheba, who is on record as having carried on a very pronounced flirtation with the ruler of the Jews. This original Menelik is frequently ferred to in the Song of Solomon, to be found in the Protestant Bible.

Although as authentic history teaches, born after the return of his mother to her own dominion, he was brought up at the court of his father at Jerusalem. He remained there until the first destruction and sacking of Jerusalem and the pillage of the temple of Solomon by Shishak, king of Egypt.

Immediately before the destruction of the temple Menelik fled back to Abyssinia. He carried with him for safe-keeping the treasures of that structure, which were threatened with seizure and defilement.

It is positively asserted by Abyssinian tradition that he carried back with him the tables of stone, the ark of the covenant and the seven-branched candlestick. These he deposited in the interior of that huge granite pile which constitures the pedestal of the ancient Abyssinian temple of Axum, long ante-dating the Christian era, and where the rulers of Ethiopa have been crowned from the earliest times.

The present cathedral of Axum is alleged by a pious tradition of the people to have been designed by no less a personage than Saint Joseph, the husband of the Virgin Mary. It is a quadrilateral building of considerable height and grandeur.

It is built on the summit of a species of granite pyramid, the remnant of a heathen temple that formerly occupied this site. It is with in the interior of this pyramid that the vaults are situated which King Menelik has now promised to throw open to the inspection of European archeologists, and where Biblical treasures of untold value are almost certain to be found.

Not since Napoleon invaded Egypt, taking with him a corps of archeologists and orientalists, whose work there revealed for the first time the stupendous historical importance of that land of romance, has a disclosure of antiquities of equal magnitude been promised. The cathedral of Axum is but one of the repositories of Biblical treasures which Menelik offers to open up to the modern scientific world for investigation.

It is believed that he will open up for the first time the priceless treasures that have for thousands of years been jealously preserved on the holy island of Debra Sinan, located near the center of the great inland sea or lake of Zoul, in the southern portion of the kingdom of Shoah. This island is reputed sacred not only among the Abyssinians themselves, but also throughout the Moslem world, and it is to this probably that must be attributed the fact that, notwithstanding the innumerable wars that have raged in Abyssinia for at least 1800 years past, the sanctity of the island should never have been violated by either Christian or Infidel.

This island of Debra Sinan, the Abyssinian rendering of Mount Sinai, is inhabited and guarded entirely by monks, as ignorant and fanatic as are all the Abyssinian clergy, but who, when once they take up their residence on the island, are never permitted to leave it again. In fact, the soil of the island had never been trodden by the foot of any layman until two years ago, when Emperor Menelik himself, attended by a few of his principal ras or generals and escorted by a strongly armed bodyguard, crossed the waters of the lake and landed on its shores, the bodyguard remaining in the boats ready for emergency.

According to the dusky monarch's own account, the vaults of the monastery, which is of enormous size and built upon rock, are filled with papyri and parchments and books of every description. The books are believed to have been sent thither at the time of the Mohammedan invasion of Abyssinia, in the sixteenth century, but the parchments are declared to hail from the world-famed library of Alexandria, which was dispersed in the seventh century by the Mohammedan calif Omar.

The papyri evidently date from a much earlier era, and probably relate to that period when the emperors of Ethiopa ruled not only over Abyssinia, but also over Egypt, their domination of the latter country being pictured by many a sculpture and painting on the pyramids and temples of the land of the Nile.

No surprise has been excited in the European world by this generous offer of the present negus, who is known to be a man of progressive mind and enlightened methods. He is endeavoring to show by every means in his power that he is worthy of taking his place among the civilized monarchs of the Old World.

King Menelik of Abyssinia has applied for admission to the Postal union. He has accepted an honorary membership in nearly all of the leading geographical societies of Europe.

He has taken the necessary steps for the admission of his government into the association known as the Geneva convention, the object of which is to diminish as much as possible the horrors of warfare by caring for the sick and wounded and by refraining from the use of explosive bullets, nitro-glycerine bombs and other similar means of offense of a barbarous character. Since the crushing blow which Menelik inflicted upon the Italian army which sought to subjugate his country he has been curiously studied by the rulers of Europe.

Observers who have known and talked with Menelik have told their story, and the official transactions of his government have fairly reflected his ideas. As a result of this he has been found, not a barbarian, as his enemies had represented, but a man of education and enlightenment, a friend of progress and a ruler who well appreciates the value of Europe's good opinion.

BOYS VS. COLLEGES.

Some Boys Benefited, Others Are Unfitted.

Rev. Charles H. Parkhurst, D.D., in his paper to young men, in May Ladies' Home Journal, discusses "Shall We Send Our Boy to College?" answering the query with the assertion, "That depends a great deal on the boy." He announces himself to be a thorough believer in the college, but holds that "it might not be best for him (our boy) to go to college; it might not be best for the community that he should College can fit a man for life and, also, it can unfit him. There are styles of education that disqualify the student for doing what he is competent to do, without qualifying him to do that which he might like to do, but for which he lacks, and always will lack, the prerequisites. * * * As a general principle, the more a man knows the better, but so long as the present order of things continues a great amount of very ordinary work will require to be done; and ordinary people will do ordinary work better than extraordinary people will, and be a great deal more comfortable while doing it.

Hordes of both sees are entering college for the reason that they do not enjoy doing commonplace things. The result is that commonplace things are left undone, and uncommonplace things are still worse. Agriculture is the material basis of a nation's strength and prosperity. We could dispense with either lawyers, doctors or ministers better than we could with farmers. Probably we should not quarrel so much if there were fewer students of the law; should not be sick so much if there were fewer students of medicine, and should not be so wicked if there were fewer students of theology. All of these could contribute liberally to the ranks of the agriculturalists with advantage to the professions and to the grain and vegetable markets.

I am not disparaging anybody, neither am I saying that it would not be a good thing, in itself considered, if every one, however material or menial his occupation, could receive all that the finest school or college training could confer; but that is not practicable at present, and never will be till people get over thinking that there is a disgrace attaching to the doing of ordinary things."

JUST LIKE A MAN.

Harper's Bazar: Miss Newman—I don't ask special privileges, Mr. Jones. What I do ask is that you, for instance, a man, should treat me exactly as you would another man. Instead of taking small-talk and treating me like a thing to be protected and all that, assume toward me the attitude you do to Jack Cashly. Treat me like a good fellow—"

Mr. Jones (quickly)—Why, certainly, old chap. Lend me $10—will you?

Calls it Spite Work.

Daniel Skully, superintendent of a log drive on the Cloquet river, was arrested this morning charged with using dynamite to kill fish in that stream. The complaint was sworn out by Albert Free. Skully says that it is a piece of spite work; that he had been compelled to discharge Free for neglecting his work and that the latter had taken this method of getting even. He said Free had taken his discharge much to heart and, to evince his displeasure, had thrown away a lot of provisions in his charge, before he went away, leaving the camp short of supplies.

Three Land Decisions.

Three decisions were received in the United States land office today. Peter Lemieux endeavored to take the ne¼ of section 21-152-19 under an Indian allotment, alleging that James A. Quigg, who filed a homestead, had abandoned the land. The local officials found for Quigg and the general land office affirms this.

H. F. Schrubing, Jr., vs. Michael and Patrick Meade has been decided in favor of Schrubing. The Meades filed pre-emptions on the ne¼ of se¼ of section 34 and nw¼ of sw¼ and e½ of sw¼ of section 35-63-14. Schrubing filed a timber and stone application. The local officers ruled in his favor and the general office affirms this.

Hugh McDonald has been denied a review in his case against Charles McKenzie, involving the se¼ of sw¼ and w½ of sw¼ of section 4 and nw¼ of nw¼ of section 9-57-21.

DECISION

Howard & Haynie Creditors May Participate Without Filing Releases.

Judge Moer So Decided Because No Records Were Kept.

Grand Jury Presented Three Indictments This Morning--Other Matters.

Judge Moer has decided that the creditors of the Howard & Haynie co-partnership may be allowed to participate in the estate without filing releases of their claims. His findings to that effect were filed this morning, and in them he finds that the co-partnership kept no books or records from which their true condition could be ascertained, and the books they did keep do not make such showing. In a memorandum accompanying the findings he says:

"The evidence in the case shows that the insolvents a short time before the assignment conducted a half price sale for six days. There does not appear to be any record of this sale either in the book accounts or otherwise, and it is therefore impossible to determine what the condition of the insolvents was at the date of the assignment. An account of the sales was kept on slips, but the slips were not produced and were never turned over to the assignee, so that there is no method of determining how much the insolvents received during the sale. There is no doubt that a large sum was received, and the insolvents having failed to keep a record thereof they are not entitled to have the benefit of releases."

THREE INDICTMENTS.

Grand Jury Returned Them This Morning.

The grand jury came into court this morning and presented three more indictments. Samuel D. Lisbon, otherwise known as Walker Romans, was indicted for uttering a forged instrument, the particular charge being that he passed a forged order for $15 for a fake advertisement upon Stryker, Manley & Luck.

James W. Fowler, the West End undertaker, who was indicted last term for indecent assault, was indicted again, this time upon the more serious charge of assault with intent to commit rape. The complaining witness is one Mary Miller.

John F. A. Behning was indicted for uttering a forged instrument. He is accused of passing one upon L. N. Berklund, a check for $8 purporting to be signed by the Farmers Grain and Produce company.

The jury at noon adjourned until this afternoon without presenting any action on the Stratton case. Just before noon the accused was permitted to appear and give his side of the story. The grand jury is permitted to hear the defendant's story when it thinks an explanation will save the trouble of indictment and trial.

Albert Quady, being arraigned this morning upon a charge of uttering a forged instrument, pleaded guilty. Edward Lee and William O'Brien each pleaded guilty to charges of grand larceny in the second degree. The prisoners indicted this morning were arraigned this afternoon and given until tomorrow to plead.

The trial of petit jury cases was taken up this morning, and by noon all three divisions of district court were in full swing. Judge Ensign's room took the first choice at the jury lists, and a jury was drawn to try the case of William Hare, as administrator of the estate of Stephen Hare, against the Eastern Minnesota Railway company. Hare was a fireman, employed by the road, and at Kerrick station, while looking out of the cab window of a moving engine, a switch target hit his head and killed him. His administrator sues for $5000. The case was tried once before, and a verdict for the plaintiff for $2000 was rendered. Edson & Hanks are for the plaintiff and John Murphy, of Superior, is for the road.

Judge Moer drew a jury to try the case of Carl Germanson against Louis Tredo. The plaintiff claims that last September Tredo assaulted him on Garfield avenue, and gave him a bruising which laid him up for three weeks. Not satisfied with that, he had Germanson arrested on a charge of taking indecent liberties with little girls. He was jailed, and was released after the grand jury had investigated his case and found no indictment. He sued for $2000 damages. There was no appearance on the part of the defendant.

Judge Morris took up the case of A. Mansfield against W. D. Williams to recover $600 on an order purchased by the plaintiff from another party who had bought it at an auction sale of the paper of an insolvent bank which had cashed it in Berlin, Wis. The defendant claims that the order was without consideration, but the plaintiff claims that as he accepted it when it was presented he is bound to pay it by the doctrine of estoppel. The order is dated in 1889. O. W. Baldwin appears for the plaintiff and C. T. Crandall for the defendant.

The struck juries were excused until May 25, and the struck jury case of Michael Vail against the Chandler Iron company was set for May 26. The personal injury cases of Charles E. Jones, as administrator, and Rebecca Raab against the Duluth Street Railway company were dismissed by the plaintiffs.

MANAGER HENDERSON.

He Talks of "Sinbad," His Great Show.

"Sinbad," with its eighty odd people, including dancers, choristers, comedians and other principals who have achieved a name among the foremost exponents of extravaganza in this country, arrived in Duluth this morning. At once the three carloads of baggage and scenery were transferred to the Lyceum theater, where the performance will be given tonight, and all those who have ever seen Henderson's "Crystal Slipper," "Ali Baba," "Aladdin, Jr.," or "Sinbad," can expect a performance which for musical strength, gorgeous scenic investiture and brilliancy of costumes is unsurpassed in this country.

"It is about four years," said Manager Henderson this morning to the writer, "since 'Sinbad' was seen in Duluth. The present revival has been an enormous success everywhere. Its present tour in California, from which point we have just come, was the most successful that I have played in that country in eight years. 'Sinbad,' since it was seen in Duluth, has been written up to date so far as music and lines are concerned. There are many features in the piece now that were not in it when last seen in this city. When seen it was formerly at the old theater. At the Lyceum, where the stage gives every facility for spectacular productions, 'Sinbad' will be seen to far more advantage.

"We will give only two performances in Duluth," Manager Henderson went on to say, "because I am anxious to get back to Chicago to begin the summer season with my company at the Schiller theater. You understand that at the termination of my lease of the Chicago Opera house on the first of January, after nearly eleven years occupancy of that house, I have become one of the lessees of the Schiller theater, where in the future the same line of productions which made the Chicago Opera house famous throughout the country will be continued."

"'Sinbad' can scarcely be compared to 'Aladdin, Jr.,'" said Manager Henderson in answer to a question. "Aladdin, Jr.,' relied more upon its marches for its effect than 'Sinbad.' 'Sinbad's' strength lies not alone in its scenic beauty, but in its comedy music. The company has been conceded all over California to be the best that I have ever had. Mr. Girard is in many essentials the best low comedian the American Extravaganza company has yet put forth. Miss Elssing, the original Sinbad, you all know. Mr. Chilvers has an international reputation, although he is very little known in Duluth, and so on."

WAS SLOWLY STARVING.

Old Man Found in a Pitiable Condition.

A sad story of privation has been reported to the humane officials, the case being that of an old man named Bain, who is said to have been lying in his lonely shack in the woods near Columbia Junction, in the last stages of starvation. Bain, who is about 70 years of age, had cleared out a little space in the timber where he had built himself a small cabin in which he lived alone, supporting life on the few vegetables he was able to cultivate, his growing infirmities rendering impossible any great exertions in the farming line. The chance passers during the past few days had failed to notice the old man moving about his place as usual and an investigation was made. He was found lying on his bed too weak to move. Not a scrap of eatables was found in the house, while his emaciated face completed the story of starvation.

Supplies were sent for and the old man revived somewhat under the influence of draughts of warm coffee and what little food he was able to take.

Officer Haskins today notified the unfortunate man's brother, who lives in this city, of the state of affairs. The latter was horrified, his brother having, through pride evidently, given no inkling of his condition. He will be promptly cared for.

BEESON'S DIRECTORY.

Volume For 1896 is a Fine Publication.

Bigger, better, more comprehensive and handier than ever is Beeson's Marine Directory for 1896, which was distributed to Duluth subscribers today. A number of new and valuable tables are added, and the arrangement of the vessel lists is much fuller than last year. Cargo records and freight fluctuations are given in ingenious and readily understood diagrams, and the press work is a thing of beauty. Beeson's book is the standard work on lake shipping, and this year's number totally eclipses all former issues. The illustrations are superb.

PUNISHED THE BOY.

Miss Mary Braithwaite, of Bryant School, Arrested.

Miss Mary Braithwaite, principal of the Bryant school, was arrested today charged with beating a scholar, an 11-year-old boy named Henry W. Grytdahl, with a piece of rubber tubing. The complaint was made by Peter Grytdahl, an uncle of the boy.

According to the story of the Grytdahls, the boy went home Wednesday and complained that Miss Braithwaite had whipped him severely with a piece of rubber tubing for having leaned against the fence surrounding the school grounds. Mrs. Grytdahl made an examination and found a number of welts on the boy's person. He was taken to Dr. Bakke, who dressed the bruises, after which he was taken home and put to bed.

When the Grytdahls say, a complaint was made to Superintendent Denfeld, but he refused to do anything in the matter, whereupon a prosecution was decided upon.

The case was reported to Humane Officer Haskins by the boy's parents, and the officer took the boy before Assistant City Attorney Holmes, who drew up a complaint.

Another examination was made by Drs. Magie and Pillsbury, who found a number of bruises on the lad's back and legs.

Superintendent Denfeld had nothing to say beyond the fact that as soon as the matter was reported to him he had started an investigation. He had heard the teacher's story and had called on the boy's parents to get their side of the case. Henry was present during the interview and did not seem any the worse for his chastisement. He had been whipped at noon and had remained at school the balance of the day, going through his exercises as well as if nothing had happened.

Miss Braithwaite reported that the boy was intractable and vicious; so vicious, in fact, that she had forbidden the younger boys to associate with him, fearing that he would contaminate them. He was idle, insubordinate and a bad example generally. The punishment was not given for merely one offense, but for a series of them extending over several months. Miss Braithwaite is a slight woman and does not look capable of inflicting a very brutal beating on anybody. Her friends say that the trouble is being exaggerated by a certain person whose enmity she has incurred by action she at one time felt compelled to take for the welfare of her school.

Dr. Magie said that the boy had evidently received a severe thrashing and that a few minor blood vessels lying just under the skin had been broken possibly, a not uncommon occurrence where a thrashing is administered.

The article in connection with the matter in the morning paper yesterday presented but one side of the case and undoubtedly did Miss Braithwaite an injustice.

HANCOCK

Equestrian Statue of the Dead Major General is Unveiled.

Washington Turns Out to Honor the Superb Soldier Hero.

Imposing Military and Civic Display---Senator Palmer's Speech.

Washington, May 12.—With imposing ceremonies the heroic equestrian statue of Maj. Gen. Winfield Scott Hancock was unveiled here this afternoon before an immense gathering, which included President Cleveland, Vice President Stevenson and representatives of the supreme court, the diplomatic corps, both bodies of congress and army veterans and colleagues of the late general. The unveiling was preceded by a military demonstration. Four companies of artillery marched as infantry, four companies of marines, with the Marine band, light battery C, Third artillery, a squadron from the Sixth cavalry, the full district militia and numbers of military organizations, including the Second army corps, at the head of which Gen. Hancock achieved the greatest victories, participated in the parade.

Brig. Gen. Brooke, commanding the department of the Dakotas, United States army, was the grand marshal of the day. The exercises opened with a prayer by Rt. Rev. James Satterlee, bishop of Washington. The principal address was delivered by Senator John M. Palmer, of Illinois, major general of the United States volunteers during the war. A salute was fired as the unveiling of the statue took place. Seven hundred invited friends gathered at the scene, including many relatives and friends of the deceased general. The statue stands in the heart of the business district of Washington. It is the work of John Elliott, the noted sculptor, and its total height is 33 feet 8 inches; the distance from plinth to the top of the hat is 14 feet 6 inches, and the height of the pedestal, from the ground to the plinth, is 19 feet 2 inches. The proportions of the rider are such that if standing erect it would measure 10 feet in height.

Senator Palmer's address was devoted to a eulogy of the manly and soldierly qualities of Gen. Hancock, and contained a beautiful tribute to his wife, who was his biographer. "The military qualities of Gen. Hancock," he said, "are well known to the country. The story of his brilliant services has been told in detail by biographers, but Gen. Grant has condensed his real character and reputation in a few sentences:

"'Hancock stands the most conspicuous figure of all the general officers who did not exercise a separate command. He commanded a corps longer than any other one, and his name was never mentioned as having committed in battle a blunder for which he was responsible. He was a man of very conspicuous personal appearance. His genial disposition made him friends, and his personal courage and his presence with his command in the thickest of the fight won for him the confidence of troops serving under him.'"

Continuing, Senator Palmer said: "I have said that Hancock had an 'eye for a battle field.' The terms I use are not technical, but they describe a quality in an officer that every practical soldier understands. It has its application to a field like that of Gettysburg and in a less degree at Chickamauga. When he reached Gettysburg Hancock found the position held by the Union forces menaced by startling dangers. At a glance he saw the advantages of the position and boldly resolved that this great battle should be fought to determine the fate of the continent. To be great is to be equal to the requirements of great occasions, and it is to the skill, the courage and the resolute coolness of Hancock that Gettysburg was selected as a battle field, and it is to the officers of all ranks and grades and to the hardy, resolute courage of all private soldiers of many states that the country owes the crushing repulse of the Confederate forces.

"I will not intrude myself into the invidious office of inquiring whether Gen. Hancock possessed all the qualities which are, by universal consent, conceded to other great commanders. It is enough to say for him that he was great, according to that best test: definition of greatness. He comprehended and seized great opportunities. Now that we have ceased to struggle against each other, we know with absolute confidence the men of every section and of all parts of the great republic are equally patriotic, and alike willing and ready to defend the integrity of the Union and the honor of the nation against all and every foe. Americans of all sections and of all parties, of one common country, now know, respect and confide in each other, and we will transmit that sentiment of respect and confidence to our children, which will afford a sure guaranty for internal peace and the defense of national honor. But at the beginning of the strife between the sections the officers of the army were embarrassed by difficulties of an altogether different character.

"For the most part they had been educated together in the national military school; they knew each other well, and none of them doubted the courage or the resolution of the others. They were citizens of different states, and some of them were overcome by the delusion that their paramount allegiance was due to the state of their birth or of their domicile. When I characterize the theory of primal allegiance to the state as a delusion, I confess that the embarrassments of the army officers born in the seceding states were cruel. The war very soon assumed the apparent aspect of a struggle between rival governments supported by substantially the whole population of the opposing sections of the Union. If some of the officers of the army erred even to a criminal extent, it must not be forgotten that their homes were threatened with invasion, and they only shared the fortunes of those with whom they lived.

"Mr. President, we stand in the presence of this appropriate monument of a hero, we do all that we can to perpetuate his fame, conscious that as the centuries recede his great name will be less and less known and less and less frequently mentioned."

NEW CONSTITUTION.

Methodists at Cleveland Set About Preparing One.

Cleveland, Ohio, May 12.—Today's session of the Methodist Episcopal general conference opened with Bishop Fowler in the chair. The devotional exercises were conducted by the Rev. H. G. Jackson, of Rock River.

In the call for memorials and resolutions the Rev. R. D. Munger presented one of great importance. The resolution created a commission on constitution to consist of two ministers and two laymen from each district as it now stands. The resolution recited the fact that there is great question as to what parts of the discipline constitute the constitution of the church, and this commission is authorized and empowered to draw up a constitution. The members of this commission are to be over 30 years of age and will meet in Chicago, on the first Wednesday in August, when they will organize by electing a president and secretary.

They are to draw up the constitution and after it is completed it is to be published twice in all official papers of the church within thirty days after its completion. This commission is also authorized to devise rules for election, and not less than three or more than six months afterwards, the church will vote on its adoption. Only those over 21 years of age will be permitted to vote, and the result shall be certified to the secretary of this general conference. If adopted by a majority of those voting, the constitution so adopted shall be effective at once. The resolution was referred without argument to the committee on constitution.

The conference soon got into a snarl in which the local morning newspapers were attacked, and in which the meeting of the committee on the state of the church held yesterday afternoon, came out prominently. In that meeting Rev. Dr. Quail in the course of his remarks about the Christian Endeavorers in their attempt to secure a recognition of the deity in the committee, used the language which appeared in the morning papers, which is as follows:

"Not long ago that organization not only made itself ridiculous and all the churches which it represents, but actually made the religion of Christ ridiculous by praying for the redemption of Bob Ingersoll. Do you think that the Methodist church would ever be guilty of such an act of absolute idiocy?"

Cries of "no, no," were expressed throughout the room. F. J. Cheney, of Central New York, then arose and presented a resolution which recited the fact that the local morning papers had so quoted a member of the conference, and disclaimed any responsibility of such sentiment by the general conference. He presented the resolution for adoption. It not only disclaimed responsibility, but also endorsed the Endeavorers. As soon as it was read, two motions were made, one to refer to the committee on Epworth league and the other to lay on the table. Bishop Fowler ordered the vote taken on the motion to refer. A mistake was made in the counting and a second vote was ordered. Dr. Buckley desired to present a substitute, but Bishop Fowler refused to entertain it.

The vote on the motion to refer it to the committee on Epworth league was then lost by a vote of 162 yeas to 235 nays. Mr. Henry French, of California, moved its adoption, when Rev. W. A. Quayle, of Kansas City, who had made the remark rose. He is a youthful looking delegate and after stating what he said concerning the Christian Endeavorers, denied the use of the language attributed to him. Every attempt by Mr. Cheney to get at the facts of the case was howled down. Every denial of the article called out wild applause, but Mr. Quayle said he did say a certain society was idiotic and he thought that was the sentiment of the majority of the members. Another wild burst of applause greeted this and the conference appeared to concur in the opinion that the action was idiotic.

HARD ON THE HOSE.

Present Fire Tug Pumps Cause it to Wear.

In speaking of the test of the fire tugs yesterday Fire Commissioner McGregor said that it would be advisable, on the re-letting of the present contract for the service, which will expire Dec. 10 next, that provision be made for either rotary or double action pumps, the present direct action being hard on the hose. With the pumps now in use, said the commissioner, the vibratory motion of the hose under full pressure caused a constant rubbing against anything with which the hose came in contact. It usually happens, for instance, that hose has to be laid for some distance along the rough planking or docks, on which the hose is literally filed down, when the pumps are at full head. At the fire on the Northern Pacific docks, a few weeks ago, about $500 worth of new rubber hose was nearly ruined in this way.

There are four tugs of the Inman line quipped with fire apparatus. Provision is made, however, for furnishing hose for but two, and the Dudley and Lyon were selected by the officials.

The Bicycle Problem.

Alderman Phillips, of Minneapolis, is in the city, being a member of the petit jury panel of the federal court. The Alderman says that Minneapolis is struggling with the bicycle problem. The common council of that city has just passed an ordinance providing that permission may be granted on petition for the construction of a bicycle path of six feet in width on either side of the street inside the curb line, the expense to be borne by the parties constructing it. This, he says, is not intended as a restriction on the wheelmen, as they will not be confined to such a path where one exists, but is intended to give them added accommodations on streets other than boulevards, where owing to the pavement or the traffic the street itself is not suitable. The real object of the measure is to allow the building of a bicycle way between Minneapolis and St. Paul, and it is not probable that many paths aside from this will be constructed.

FOUR KILLED BY LIGHTNING.

Louisville, Ky., May 12.—A special to the Post from Cadiz, Ky., says: Yesterday afternoon after a severe wind and hail storm here, John J. Wallace, a prominent farmer and his three sons sought shelter under a large tree. The men had no sooner reached the tree than a bolt of lightning struck it and killed all four of them instantly.

FILLED CHEESE BILL.

Washington, May 12.—The finance committee of the senate today reported favorably the house filled cheese bill, with some amendments. The amendments made reduce the annual revenue tax on manufacturers of filled cheese from $400 to $240, and on wholesale dealers in the article from $250 to $200. The report was adopted by a bare majority of one, the vote standing 5 to 4.

MISSOURI

Hot Time at the Republican Convention at St. Joseph This Morning.

Filley and Kerens Factions Almost Have a Riot About Tickets.

Police Called Out to Save the Building---Mad Delegates.

St. Joseph, Mo., May 12.—The Republican state convention was almost turned into a riot this morning before the delegates were admitted to the hall. The hour set for the opening of the convention was 10 o'clock, and at that hour fully 2000 people were in front of the Crawford Opera house, where the convention was held, clamored for admittance. The cause of the trouble was a disagreement between the Filley and Kerens factions for supremacy. The former, as chairman of the state committee, issued tickets to his set of delegates before leaving St. Louis. Kerens and his followers are present in force with a contesting delegation, and this caused all the trouble. The local committee on arrangements recognizes Kerens as boss, and this committee also issued tickets to the convention, and having obtained possession of the keys of the opera house, refused to admit anyone until Filley would consent to a compromise.

For over two hours the delegates stood in the hot sun, cursing alternately Filley and Kerens, but all to no purpose. Finally, however, the crowd became so boisterous that it was feared an attempt would be made to break down the doors, and police were sent for to restore order. At about noon newspaper reporters and telegraph operators were admitted to the convention hall, but the delegates were kept on the outside while a truce was being arranged between the factions. A little after noon a crowd of men, wearing Filley hats, congregated in the rear of the theater and attempted to smash in the rear door. They used a battering ram and glass was smashed. The sergeant-at-arms on the inside telephoned for the police, and a patrol wagon full of officers was sent to the scene.

The sergeant-at-arms was unable to identify the individuals using violence, and no arrests were made, but the officers remained on guard. At this hour John L. Bittenger, chairman of the local committee on arrangements, still had possession of the keys and will admit no one to the hall. The delegates in the street are furious, and threats are made that both Filley and Kerens will be turned down when the convention opens finally.

DIAMOND STATE.

Delaware Republicans Have a Lively Contest.

Dover, Del., May 12.—The Republican state convention met here at noon today. The Addicks and Higgins delegates held separate caucuses and the latter nominated ex-Senator Higgins and John Pilling, of Newcastle county, for national delegates. The former nominated J. Edward Addicks and D. F. Stewart. Mr. Addicks was wildly applauded and cheered as he entered the hall. He sat as a contestant from Brandywine county. Dr. C. Y. Layton, of Georgetown, was chosen temporary chairman.

WEYLER STAYS.

Two More Americans to Be Tried in Cuba.

Havana, May 12.—There is no foundation for the rumors that Capt. Gen. Weyler has been dismissed. The naval authorities have formed an ordinary court-martial for the trial of Charles Barnett and William Leavitt, the two Americans who are said to have formed part of the Competitor expedition, and who were captured, as announced in these dispatches yesterday, by the local guerrillas of Palma, Pinar del Rio.

UNION WRECKER DEAD.

Chicago, May 12.—William A. Simscott, ex-secretary and treasurer of the Switchmen's union, died last night of quick consumption. In 1886 he was elected to the important position in the Switchmen's union, which he held until 1894. His disappearance during the summer of that year caused a great deal of excitement when it was discovered his accounts were short to the extent of $10,000. After two weeks' search he was located in the Washingtonian home in Chicago. There was no prosecution and soon the Switchmen's union went to pieces.

GREEN BAY ROAD SOLD.

Green Bay, Wis., May 12.—At the foreclosure sale of the Gren Bay, Winona & St. Paul railway today, the main line of road was bought by M. T Cox, of New York, on behalf of the reorganization committee of bondholders, for $1,000,000. The line extended across Wisconsin from Green Bay to Eastmore. The Buffalo county branch, from Onalaska to La Crosse, was bid in by Cox as an individual for $20,000. The sale was made on the motion of the Farmers' Loan and Trust company, trustees, and conducted by F. M. Hoyt, of Milwaukee. Half a million dollars will be spent in improvements.

EXPORT SUGAR BOUNTY.

Berlin, May 12.—The reichstag today by a vote of 159 to 110 fixed the export bonty on sugar at 2½ marks per 100 kilos. The government proposal was 4 marks per 100 kilos.

CRICKETING IN ENGLAND.

London, May 12.—The Australians resumed their innings today in the cricket match against the Sheffield team, and were all out for 257 runs. Yesterday the Australians made 241 runs for five wickets.

PECULIAR ACCIDENT.

Gas Tank Explodes and Burns Several.

Columbus, O., May 12.—During a storm yesterday a falling tree slightly displaced and made a hole in the gas tank of the state school for feeble-minded youths. At 11 a. m. today men from the tank in position. They supposed the gas had all escaped, but ignition caused by lanterns resulted in the burning of Dr. G. A. Doren, who had been superintendent almost forty years; Theodore Lentz, chief engineer; Robert Joiner, George Churchman, William Banks and Thomas Hunt, expert laborers. Superintendent Doren and Engineer Lentz are badly, but not critically burned about the face, hands and neck. Hunt is believed to have been critically burned. The others are badly burned.

IDAHO FIRE BUGS.

Attempt Made to Burn a Concentrator.

Wardner, Idaho, May 12.—A determined attempt was made last nigh: to burn down the mammoth Bunker Hill concentrator at Wardner Junction. The concentrator was fired with the aid of boxes, sacks and kerosene, and at the same moment a portion of the lamp flume was blown up with dynamite, which shook the buildings at Kellogg at nearly a mile distant. The dynamite was used a few hundred yards above the mill. The machinery stopped and the electric lights were extinguished two minutes later.

The time selected was when most of the mill hands were at supper. One remaining saw the fire as soon as it started and promptly extinguished it. The object was to get the concentrator to burning and prevent its extinguishment by cutting off the water supply. The Bunker Hill employs 400 men. The militia was called out and remained out all night, but no arrests have been made as yet.

WHY JAMESON FAILED.

Because Rhodes and Hammond Deserted Him.

London, May 12.—The Daily Courier today confirms the report that Dr. Jameson's raid into the Transvaal failed because Cecil Rhodes wished the reformers to revolt under the union jack, while the latter insisted upon the Transvaal flag.

It also appears to be confirmed that all arrangements were made to proclaim Charles Leonard president and John Hays Hammond state's attorney, but they refused to alter their plans and consequently left Dr. Jameson in the lurch.

FIRES PUT OUT.

Damage Between Duluth and Soo is Heavy.

St. Paul, May 12.—A special from Houghton, Mich., to the Dispatch says: Heavy rain fell for five hours last night, effectually quenching forest fires, which had been burning for the past week at a number of points, and which have caused great destruction. The loss by fires of the past week in the southern shore of Lake Superior, between Duluth and Sault Ste. Marie, will reach fully $1,000,000.

A. P. A. MEETING.

Supreme Body is in Session at Washington.

Washington, May 12.—The supreme court of the American Protective association held an informal meeting this morning, the first of the convention. No business was transacted except the appointment of a committee on credentials. This committee at once began making the roll of the council. The morning was spent by delegates in listening to many fraternal speeches, as they were called, all of them informal.

There are now about 200 delegates on the scene. Every state and territory, with the exception of three, are represented. From Indian territory there are Indian delegates. New England, New York and Pennsylvania have sent the largest delegations. The concensus of opinion among the Eastern delegates is that attempts to bring the financial question to the front will be checked. The action of the advisory board in blacklisting McKinley will be opposed by the Eastern men

LOTS OF CARS.

Milwaukee Company Wins the Street Car Strike.

Milwaukee, Wis., May 12.—The street railway company is today running cars on all but two lines. There are obstructions on the track of the Russell avenue line, and on the line to Merrill park. Trees are felled across the track at Merrill Park. The company has notified the board of public works to clear its tracks so that it can operate its lines.

About 120 cars are now in operation, and there is so little disturbance that some of the cars are without police officers. A few stones were thrown on Russell avenue this morning, but aside from this no disturbance has been reported thus far today. Sixty-four experienced motormen from Grand Rapids have been engaged by the company, and thirty new men who came of their own volition. The wages at Grand Rapids are 15 cents an hour.

EX-POLICE CAPTAIN SENTENCED.

New York, May 12.—Ex-Police Capt. Edward B. Carpenter pleaded guilty today, in the criminal branch of the supreme court, to the charge of bribery, and was sentenced to three months in the penitentiary and to pay a fine of $1500. Carpenter admitted having received a bribe of $1000 from the Liquor Dealers association of the Twenty-third district.

IOWA'S HEAVY STORM.

The Ecclesiastical Gathering at Cleveland as Seen By Dr. Forbes.

The Real Merits of the Woman Question Are Clearly Explained.

Four More Bishops to Be Chosen and Other Officials Elected.

Cleveland, May 9.—(Special correspondence of The Herald.)—I write a line from this great ecclesiastical gathering for the readers of The Herald in and about my own Northwestern home, Duluth. I reached Cleveland on the evening of Thursday, April 31. I made my trip by the St. Paul & Duluth to St. Paul, thence by the Burlington to Chicago. The first named road is well known to Duluthians, who hold in high esteem the genial general manager, A. B. Plough. The gentlemanly employes of that road are also favorably known to travelers between the Twin Cities at the south and the other twins at the north end. The Burlington has for many years been my favorite route to Chicago. W. J. C. Kenyon and Cal. Wilkinson "are all right" so is the road. The Lake Shore gave us special rates to Cleveland and return.

The first great question, as your readers know, was the "woman question," but the real merits of that question are not so well understood. The great M. E. church was organized by itinerant preachers. The preachers, not the people, are the basis of its constitution. The church began its work in 1766 in New York, through the agency of Philip Embury, a Wesleyan local preacher from England. Societies grew up rapidly and Methodism was first admitted.

The question before this body was not so much "ought the women to be admitted to seats in the general conference," but "are they eligible under the constitution?" A small minority interpret St. Paul's words as being of universal application, and hence on Scriptural grounds believe that women are to be excluded. The overwhelming majority believe in their Scriptural eligibility, but believe that a constitutional change is needed in the law of the church in order to their practical admission. The question before the body was: Did the constitutional change of 1872, in admitting "laymen," include women? Some said "no," others said "yes," hence the debate of a whole week. I am glad to report that the debate was conducted in a kind and courteous spirit, no acrimony, no personality indulged in, but with the dignity of Christian gentlemen, ministers and laymen brought all their arguments to bear on the momentous question, and the crowded galleries gave evidence of the public interest in the question. At last a compromise was reached after much pleading both majority and minority reports. The compromise is in substance this: The women elected hold their seats by a title in dispute, and the question is to be submitted to the annual conferences once more. If three-fourths of all the members of the annual conferences vote in favor of admitting them, they will be eligible to seats in the general conference in 1900.

The provisions for a constitutional change are two-thirds of all the votes cast in a general conference, and three-fourths of the votes cast in all the annual conferences, which are 129 in number. Since the amendment failed in the annual conferences by less than 100 votes last year, the probability is very strong that it will secure the necessary three-fourths next year, and if secured more than the necessary two-thirds in this session of the general conference. If so, then it becomes a law on the proclamation of the bishops.

Our bishops are among the ablest presiding officers in the land. They are sixteen in number and preside a day each in the order of seniority. Probably four men will be added to the board at this session. Of course it is as impossible to foretell the vote of a general conference as the verdict of a petit jury, but I venture to say that Day, Cranston, Hamilton, Smith, Nelly, McCabe and Goucher are the names from among whom the four will be chosen. The elections will take place Monday, May 18, if any are to take place. Agents of the great book concerns, editors of the church papers and secretaries of the benevolent societies are prizes for which men may honorably strive. For myself I ask no higher place in the church than a pulpit from which to proclaim God's love to dying men.

A large number of the delegates are comfortably settled in the Weddell house. The rooms are pleasant and the table is a luxury to a man with an appetite, and I have mine with me.

Mrs. M. E. Stacy, Nashville, Tenn.—Dear Madame: According to agreement I now write you again in relation to Baco-Cure. I used tobacco fifty-six years, not moderately, but all the time, night and day. DIVIDING A COUNTY

Polk County as it May Be Sliced Up.

St. Paul, May 12.—Petitions have been filed with the secretary of state for the division of Polk county into five counties.

The southeastern corner is to be Nelson county, with Fosston as the county seat.

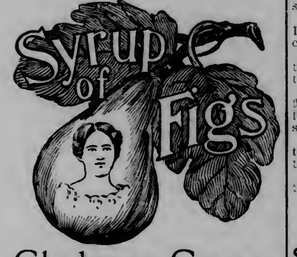
The northeastern corner will be Red Lake county, with Red Lake Falls as the county seat.

The northwest corner will be Hill county, with East Grand Forks as the county seat.

In the extreme south on the line between Marshall and Polk will be Garfield county, with Fertile as the county seat.

The remains to be known as Polk county will be in the central and western portions of the county.

The state commission will pass upon the matter in a short time.



Gladness Comes

With a better understanding of the transient nature of the many physical ills, which vanish before proper efforts—gentle efforts—pleasant efforts—rightly directed. There is comfort in the knowledge, that so many forms of sickness are not due to any actual disease, but simply to a constipated condition of the system, which the pleasant family laxative, Syrup of Figs, promptly removes. That is why it is the only remedy with millions of families, and is everywhere esteemed so highly by all who value good health. Its beneficial effects are due to the fact, that it is the one remedy which promotes internal cleanliness without debilitating the organs on which it acts. It is therefore all important, in order to get its beneficial effects, to note when you purchase, that you have the genuine article, which is manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co. only and sold by all reputable druggists.

If in the enjoyment of good health, and the system is regular, laxatives or other remedies are then not needed. If afflicted with any actual disease, one may be commended to the most skillful physicians, but if in need of a laxative, one should have the best, and with the well-informed everywhere, Syrup of Figs stands highest and is most largely used and gives most general satisfaction.

COLLEGE CONTESTS.

Sanford University Team Goes to Chicago.

Palo Alto, Cal., May 12.—The Stanford track team will go to Chicago to represent California in the Western Intercollegiate contests on the sixth of June. Ever since the men made such a good showing in the games with Berkley they have been urged by their friends to send a team East, and after the Berkley team had given up the idea of going East, the pressure brought was too great to be withstood.

An application has been made for membership in the Western Intercollegiate association, and on June 10 the team starts for Chicago. It is not yet decided how many of the men will go. This will depend somewhat on the amount of money which can be raised. There will be at least eight in the team and probably more.

United States Is Severely Scored By French Newspapers of All Kinds.

Regard Uncle Sam's Interference in Cuban Affairs as Improper.

Why Europe Favors the Victory of Spain Over Insurgents.

Paris, May 12.—The Figaro, referring to the attitude of the United States towards Cuba, says this morning: "The United States authorities since the outbreak of the revolt have observed an attitude of defiance toward Spain and support of the insurgents. They ought to consider that Europe will not sanction this mode of action. If the Monroe doctrine permits the Americans to drive the Spaniards from Cuba, it also permits them to turn the French and the British out of their possessions in the Antilles."

The Soliel, commenting on the same subject, remarks: "The United States have no more right to interfere in the affairs of Spain than to mix themselves up with the affairs of Guadaloupe, Martinique and Guiana. If Spain loses Cuba, it will be a terrible blow to European influence in the Antilles."

The Matin says: "Europe will protest unanimously against the continual interference of Americans in matters which do not concern them. The United States government does not gain credit by pleading the prisoners' case without extenuating circumstances."

The Gaulois expresses the opinion that the steps taken by the United States in the Cuban question are not of a nature to facilitate its settlement.

CUBAN AFFAIRS.

Senor Sagasta Admits They Are Mixed.

Madrid, May 12.—At a meeting of the Liberal deputies and senators last evening, Senor Sagasta admitted the difficulties attending the immediate application of reforms to Cuba and denied the right of the United States to recognize the insurgents as belligerents since, he added, they did not commit murders.

Continuing, Senor Sagasta expressed the belief that President Cleveland would not accord belligerent rights to "rebels who have no government with a fixed place of residence and who do not hold a fortified position." Senor Sagasta also promised to support the government in the matter of the expenditures necessary to prosecute the Cuban campaign, and declared that the elections in Madrid and Cuba should be quashed.

The Correspondencia says it believes that if Capt. Gen. Weyler resigns he will be succeeded by Gen. Blanco, governor of the Phillipine Islands, who will proceed to Cuba via the Pacific and San Francisco.

THE DAKOTAS.

NORTH DAKOTA.

At Hillsboro preparations for the state encampment of the G. A. R. to be held there June 3, 4 and 5, are being pushed as rapidly as possible. The city council at its last meeting appropriated $200 toward defraying expenses. This, with $600 subscribed by citizens and pledges of more if needed, assures abundant provision for the entertainment of all visiting veterans, while the Woman's Relief corps and ladies of Hillsboro will do everything in their power to make their stay enjoyable.

"Miss Harum Scarum," a funny young woman, has been compelled to cancel her dates west of Jamestown on the Northern Pacific through force of circumstances over which she has no control. Walking is bad west of Dickinson. "Miss Harum Scarum" is a comedy in which Amy Lee and Frank Doane have been starring jointly until they struck Dickinson. They are not starring now and from present indications they will probably play a summer engagement on some North Dakota farm. Owing the fact that the Northwestern circuit has been "played to death" in the last few months by theatrical companies, the Northern Pacific Railroad company has done all it could to discourage the Harum Scarum company from coming west, but the company would not be discouraged and although the railroad refused to advance transportation on the installment plan, the theatrical company started out by paying local fares between towns from St. Paul to Dickinson, but could get no farther.

SOUTH DAKOTA.

City Engineer Scott, of Hot Springs, has just completed an extensive survey of Wind Cave, the great underground world situated twelve miles from that city. He was engaged seven days in the work and as a result of his investigations a map of the interior of the cave will be printed, thus giving explorers in the cave an exact knowledge of their whereabouts. Another object of the survey was to discover an exit, so that the necessity of traveling the same ground to the entry could be avoided. An excellent place for an exit was discovered, only a little blasting being necessary to find open air. Wind Cave already has ninety-seven miles of explored passage.

The olive branch Senator Pettigrew at Sioux Falls is offering to the delegates to the national convention is not accomplishing the desired result. The senator has provided a well-stocked private car for himself and friends, and issued invitations to the delegates to accept his hospitality. Unfortunately, however, other arrangements had been made, and it became necessary to decline the invitations. The story that Phillips, Kittridge and Johnson had been invited to be of the senator's party is denied by them.

At Huron H. C. Coburn and wife brought to the county auditor nine wolf scalps, for which they received $12.50 bounty. Eight of the number were killed by Mrs. Coburn.

Rio De Janeiro, May 12.—The students of the Polytechnic raised a serious disturbance on Monday. They maltreated the professors, shouting "Death to the directors," "Down with the monarchy," "Long live the republic."

The new cruiser Brooklyn was given her unofficial trip yesterday off the Delaware breakwater. She accomplished the splendid speed of twenty-one and seven-hundredths knots an hour, on a run of three hours under forced draught. This is fully a knot faster than the speed called for in the contract and insures a premium for her builders, the Cramps, of over $200,000.

Winners at St. Louis races yesterday were Sycamore, Scribe, Maid of Honor, Tartarian, Neutral and Flying Dutchman.

Forest fires have burned all over Marinette county, Wis., notwithstanding the very wet weather this spring. At Middle Inlet, a small town above Ellis Junction, on the St. Paul railway, the citizens are obliged to summon aid from a crew in the Peshtigo Lumber company's camp to save the place. One hundred or more men fought the fire. The rain last night has allayed fears in this vicinity for the present.

SOJOURNERS AT DEERWOOD.

The Popular Summer Resort Now Attracting Visitors.

Deerwood, Minn., May 12.—E. R. Jefferson and family are nicely located in their snug little cottage on Serpent lake, and Mr. Jefferson has already, this early in the season, covered himself with glory, and is on record for a 16-pound muscallonge, caught on light bass tackle, which took every moment of Mr. Jefferson's time for one hour and fifteen minutes. The fish was sent to Duluth for inspection.

Paul Sharvy was down for a few days getting things in shape for his new cottage on Pine Point, at Serpent lake. Mr. Sharvy and family will take possession about June 1.

Cuyler Adams and family and W. C. White and family arrived a few days ago and are nicely domiciled in their cottage on Reno lake.

S. E. Hall and family, of St. Paul, are guests of Mr. and Mrs. White, at Wyuka lodge.

Louis Hamlish, wife and daughter, of West Superior, are making records for themselves every day with the bass at Serpent lake.

F. A. Green and A. L. Craig, of St. Paul; R. A. Eva and A. W. Kuehnor, of Duluth, succeeded in emptying a large number of bass from Serpent lake the first of the week, and are well pleased with their success. Many large ones graced their strings, and Deerwood will undoubtedly see them again this season.

E. J. Luther, who has been a resident of Duluth for the past six years, is making many improvements at the inn, and expects a busy season this summer.

The Northern Pacific railway has a steam shovel and large crew of men at work on the summit, just east of Deerwood, cutting the top of the hill down, and will thereby be enabled to increase its freight loads materially. Several miles of track on either side of this place is being evened up and put in fine condition.

NOISY CONVENTION.

Colorado Republicans Have an Exciting Time.

Denver, Col., May 12.—The Arapahoe county Republican convention to elect delegates to the First congressional district convention and to the state convention, which will elect delegates to the national convention, took a recess at 2 a. m. today until 2 p. m., without having done anything more than to effect an organization. Although for five hours a woman, Mrs. Carrie O. Kitter, was in the chair, the convention resembled a bear garden, and numerous personal altercations occurred.

The water and tramway company adherents finally obtained the upper hand, and took steps to prevent a single supporter of Mayor McMurray from being elected as a delegate to either convention. Both sides profess to be in favor of sending Senator Teller as a delegate to the national convention.

CHICAGO CONVENTION SPACE.

Logansport, Ind., May 12.—S. P. Sheerin, secretary of the Democratic national committee, and chairman of the sub-committee on press and telegraphic accommodations and facilities for the Democratic national convention to be held at Chicago July 7, announces that it is desirable that applications for space for working reporters and correspondents in the convention hall be made with the least possible delay. All application for press and telegraphic accommodations should be addressed to S. P. Sheerin, secretary Democratic national committee, Logansport, Ind.

WEST END

Third Annual Ball of the Hibernians Will Be Held May 29.

Fern Club Will Give Its Last Dancing Party This Evening.

Small Fire at Mitchell & McClure's Mill Yesterday Evening.

The third annual ball of the Ancient Order of Hibernians, division No. 4, will be held at Great Eastern hall. Thomas Murphy's orchestra will furnish music, and E. L. Fischer will act as prompter. Full provisions will be made to entertain a large crowd, and a chartered car will be procured to return Duluth guests to their homes after the dance. As near as can be learned this will be the last large ball of the season, and will wind up the terpsichorean pleasures, which have been so popular in West Duluth during this season.

This evening the members of the Fern club will give their last entertainment, previous to the summer months, and will no doubt receive a deserved success for the extensive arrangements made.

A SMALL BLAZE.

A fire alarm was turned in from the Mitchell & McClure mill yesterday afternoon, and considerable excitement was aroused about the town, as is always the case when a report comes in of a fire about the mills. The blaze started in a pile of culled lumber. Fortunately the pile stood alone, and every thing was favorable to the extinction of the flames. The fire caught from a spark from the refuse burner. The damage was merely nominal, amounting to not more than $6 or $7.

MARINE NOTES.

The revenue cutter Andy Johnson arrived at the Sault yesterday to assume charge of the patrol service in St. Mary's river.

The shipments from Ashland last week included 63,000 tons of ore and 4,200,000 feet of lumber.

The Buffalo corn rate dropped to 1⅝ at Chicago yesterday, and several boats on the market at that rate went over without being chartered.

There is not much stirring in lake freights in Duluth. The wheat rate is nominal at 3 cents with no demand at present. Shippers will probably pay 3 cents as soon as they need tonnage. There is not so much lins tonnage in the market as there was last week.

Ore rates remain unchanged at $1 for single trips to Chicago and Lake Erie ports.

Lumber shipments this week will be large. Rates remain unchanged at 15 shillings to Tonawanda, 14 shillings to Ohio ports, and 16 shillings to Chicago.

May 4 the schooner I. N. Foster was attached at Sault Ste. Marie at the instance of John Goodman, who lost his leg while acting as sailor on the vessel in July, 1894. Mr. Goodman asks $10,000 damages. The vessel was bonded.

Senator Gorman has offered an amendment to the river and harbor bill reducing by 25 per cent all appropriations in the bill, over $100,000, and limiting the amounts to be expended under the various contracts to $7,000,000 annually. At both ends of the capitol the fate of the bill is being discussed. There is very general impression that the president will veto it. In expectation of this action, a canvass is now being made to determine whether it can be passed over the veto.

AN OBSTACLE DEVELOPS.

An obstacle has arisen to the completion of the negotiations for the sale of the $250,000 bond issue to Rudolph Kleybolt & Co., the bidders to whom the award was made by the council last evening.

Mr. Stedman, representing Kleybolt & Co., City Clerk Richardson and Assistant City Attorney Holmes met today to draw the contract of sale. The certified check deposited by the firm was not satisfactory to Mr. Holmes, and Mr. Stedman offered another certified by the Western German bank, of Cincinnati, but he would not deposit it without protection. No agreement was reached on this point and the conference closed. The other bidders have been requested to wait until Wednesday, when the council meets again.

UNITED STATES COURT.

The May term of the United States court opened today, Judge Nelson presiding. The demurrer to the indictment against I. Grettum was overruled, and Grettum pleaded not guilty. The case of D. M. Ferry et al vs. the City of Duluth was dismissed. The criminal calendar will be taken up tomorrow.

$100 REWARD, $100.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages and that is catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers, that they offer One Hundred dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

WHEAT WENT HIGHER.

Crop Damage in Various States Caused an Advance.

The government report showed a greater improvement in the condition of winter wheat between the dates of April 11 and May 1 than had been looked for and the condition of 82.7 prevailing on May 1, as reported yesterday, indicated a crop over 390,000,000 bus if that condition was maintained up to harvest. That caused weakness on the curb at Chicago yesterday which had, however, been partly recovered from when the traders met this morning, but the bears had numerous selling orders which forced down the price. Reports soon began to come in from the country of damage to the wheat crop in Indiana, Illinois, Missouri, and Kansas which is apparently incurable by rain. It has cancer of the heart in the shape of grubs of the chinch bugs and Hessian fly at its roots. The condition as given in the government report was soon relegated to the shelf as back number information. Before the session was over the opinion among the traders was that if the government could get returns of the wheat crop as it now stands, it would be found at least ten points below that given out yesterday, and as a result, of this statement the market ruide strong.

July opened on the Duluth board ⅛c lower at 62⅝c, declined to 62¼c but recovered and sold up to 63⅛c at the close of the first hour. It dropped again to 63c and fluctuated between that and 63¼c until the last half hour when it reacted to 63⅜c. Shippers bought 25,000 bus to arrive at ⅛c under July, and the mills took 25,000 bus at ¼c under July. The close was is higher for May, June and July and 1¼c higher for September. Following were the closing prices:

GOSSIP.

Received over private wire of B. E. Baker, grain and stock broker, room 21 Chamber of Commerce and 207 Board of Trade, Chicago, May 12.—Wheat advanced 1c a bushel today on the bearish government report and rains in the Southwest. It ought to have done just the opposite on this news, but the trouble was that nearly everybody was short a little. The market was nervous and very erratic but it closes firm at the top. The crop news, notwithstanding the breaking of the drouth, was the worst for some time. Kansas wheat appears to be suffering from a new trouble which is killing the tops without the aid of bugs. Samples were shown on 'change today which confirmed the reports we had last week. An excellent and unbiased authority claims that the Red River valley will not produce 60 per cent of last year's crop, and the flood of buying orders from the Northwest today shows that bulls up there are backing up their opinions. A great deal of wheat was sold by bears in their efforts to break the market but was absorbed well and the advances was only stopped by calls.

Corn and oats followed wheat.

Provisions were firmer with lighter offerings and improved cash demand.

Puts, July wheat, 63⅜c.

Calls, July wheat, 64⅞c.

Professor Munyon is honored today as the leading authority in the medical world. His new and humane methods of treatment have swept away all the old-fashioned ideas of doctoring with poisonous drugs that create a dozen diseases in the effort to get rid of one. He does not claim that he has one remedy that will cure all complaints, but that he has prepared a specific cure for nearly every disease. He does not claim that Munyon's Rheumatism Cure will cure consumption, dyspepsia or any other complaint, but he does assert that it will cure rheumatism. Munyon's Dyspepsia Cure is prepared expressly to cure dyspepsia; Munyon's Cough Cure to cure coughs; Munyon's Catarrh Remedies to cure catarrh; Munyon's Kidney Cure to cure kidney troubles. THE DEEDS FILED.

Formal Conclusion of the Nelson-Weyerhaeuser Deal.

The deeds containing the deal already published, by which the holdings of the C. N. Nelson Lumber company were transferred to the Weyerhaeuser syndicate, were filed with the register of deeds this morning. Only the part lying in St. Louis county is contained in these instruments. The largest deed is from the C. N. Nelson Lumber company to Frederick Weyerhaeuser, of St. Paul, and F. C. A. Denkmann, of Rock Island, Ill., and the consideration is $400,000. There are thirty-eight pages of descriptions in this deed. Another deed of $50,000 is from Andrew Gowan and the C. N. Lumber company, to the same parties, and another of the same amount is from Andrew Gowan alone. From W. P. Allen, of Cloquet, there is one deed of $25,000 and another of $10,000. In each case the mineral rights to the property are reserved. The total consideration for the St. Louis county lands is $535,000.

On the same property Weyerhaeuser and Denkmann also filed a mortgage deed for $1,400,000 to the Boston Safe Deposit and Trust company. The mortgage draws 6 per cent interest, and it is payable in semi-annual installments of $100,000 each, the cash of which is due July 1, 1903.

LOST WITH RECIPROCITY.

The serious loss which the repeal of the reciprocity clauses of the McKinley tariff law inflicted on the producers and manufacturers of this country will be the subject of an elaborate report to be presented to congress within a few days by the house committee on ways and means. This report is the result of a careful investigation which was undertaken by a sub-committee appointed at the instance of Congressman Tawney of this state, who was impressed by the great benefits of the reciprocity policy and felt that a complete presentation of what the people of the United States have lost by the foolish abandonment of that policy would prove valuable in an educational sense. The report which the sub-committee has prepared is said to be very complete and filled with interesting and valuable information.

According to a Washington correspondent who has read the report, it will show a condition respecting American trade with foreign countries which demands the attention of congress. For instance, the records show that during the year when reciprocity was working to the best advantage to this country, 1892, the exports of breadstuffs by the United States aggregated $299,000,000 worth, while in 1895, one year after the repeal of the reciprocity law, our exports of breadstuffs amounted to only $114,000,000 worth. The report will direct the attention of the country to the effects of the abandonment of reciprocity upon our trade in agricultural products. It will show that not only have we lost markets in the Spanish American countries to the southward, but on account of the discriminating duties that have been levied by some of the European countries against our breadstuffs and meat products we have lost many valuable advantages in those countries. The repeal of reciprocity with Germany was a severe blow to the trade of our milling industry. In addition to this, Germany retaliated against our differential duty upon her beet sugar with a duty of 30 cents on wheat and $2.21 on flour. France has proceeded upon a line of policy that has not only shut our breadstuffs out of that country, but has resulted in closing the markets of many other countries of Europe. She has given her millers a bounty on exports of flour of 16 cents a barrel, and a rebate of all duties paid upon wheat. As to the Spanish American countries, the report will show that the people of Cuba, through the medium of reciprocity, would be more certain to purchase American flour with the duty fixed at their ports at 88 cents a barrel instead of as now $5.78 a barrel, and Brazil would buy more of our cotton goods rather than buying of England if the reciprocity policy were restored and the Brazilians were enabled to buy our cotton goods at duties 25 per cent below the duties levied upon English goods.

The report will present some striking figures in relation to our trade with the Latin American states. For example, it will be shown that in 1895 we purchased from these countries $246,000,000 worth of goods, of which more than 90 per cent were admitted free of duty at our ports. During the same year we sold to the same countries goods to the value of only $143,000,000, and every pound and yard and bushel of those goods and merchandise was taxed at the ports of entry of those countries from 5 to 100 per cent. The balance of trade against the United States represented by these figures, amounting to $103,000,000, we paid in gold. This goes some distance toward explaining where our gold reserve has gone to since the Democratic party abandoned the reciprocity policy. The trade statistics as to one of the Southern republics affords food for reflection, especially when contrasting the results of trade between that republic and the United States or England. England buys annually $5,000,000 worth of goods and merchandise from Brazil, and sells to that country goods to the value of $47,000,000. The United States buys $80,000,000 worth of goods annually from Brazil and sells to that country but about $15,000,000 worth. Under the reciprocity policy, inaugurated by the last Republican congress, and repealed by the Democrats, the privileges which it gave to merchandise from the United States exported to Brazil afforded almost a complete offset to the advantages which the European countries enjoyed in the markets of that country.

Of course the committee, having a Republican majority, will take full advantage of the opportunity presented by this report to score a few points against the Gorman-Wilson tariff law enacted by the last Democratic congress. It will be claimed that after all the hue and cry which the Democratic party made over Mr. Blaine's famous utterance about "opening up foreign markets for additional bushels of wheat and barrels of pork," that party, by failing to utilize the principle of reciprocity, utterly gave away a splendid opportunity to gain additional markets when it adopted the policy of free wool. It will be urged that the last Democratic congress might have used its policy for free wool as a mighty lever for opening the markets of the great wool-growing countries, and thereby brought some advantage to the producers of this country in return for the giving away of the American market to the free access of raw wool. On the contrary, the report will contend, the Democratic party gave away as a free gift the markets of the United States for wool without gaining a single advantage in the countries which produce the wool that is now being dumped upon our markets at prices so low that the American wool grower cannot compete with them. The report will argue that the application of the policy of reciprocity, to accompany the free wool clause of the Gorman-Wilson tariff act, would not only have saved some part of the American wool market, but it would have secured from the foreign wool-growing countries, in exchange for the free entry of their wool, the removal, or the reduction in an important degree, of their duties upon the products of the United States exported to these countries. This would have been helpful to our farmers and manufacturers. The Republican speakers in the coming campaign will no doubt draw liberally upon this report for facts, figures and arguments to strengthen their speeches on the tariff question.

A WISE DECISION.

It was announced by a St. Paul dispatch to The Herald yesterday that the county jag cure law passed by the last legislature is invalid for the reason that it confers upon the probate judge power not contemplated by the constitution. The opinion was written by Justice Mitchell, who says that neither the legislative nor the executive branch of the government can assign to the judiciary duties not judicial. In this case the duties are not judicial, for the place where the inebriate is to be treated is not designated by the judge, but by three citizens to be appointed by him.

The opinion of the court will be very generally commended. While the idea of those who framed the law may have been a beneficent one, it was an imposition upon the residents of a county to be compelled to pay the expenses of lodging every inebriate in a Keeley cure institution. If the law had been held constitutional, it would have resulted in a rich harvest for these institutions and a serious addition to the burdens of the people who are already sufficiently taxed.

BOSS PLATT'S BITTERNESS.

A New York dispatch says that the latest political sensation is a statement given out by Platt, and of his own compilation, which, after reasserting his belief that McKinley will not have a sufficient number of votes to nominate him at St. Louis, attacks his personality, his reputation as a champion of protection, his character as a man of firmness, prudence and purpose, and his attitude on the financial question. He says that McKinley is vulnerable, that he will plunge the Republican party into turmoil and trouble, that he is not a well-balanced man of affairs like Morton, not a great man like Reed, not a trained and educated public man like Harrison, not an astute political leader like Quay. He is simply a clever gentleman, too impressionable and much too amiable to be safely entrusted with a great executive office. He had less to do with the protective tariff than had Senator Aldrich or Governor Dingley, and it is not handsome to defraud them of the honor.

This onslaught on Mr. McKinley shows how bitterly disappointed the New York boss is at the failure of his plans to dictate the nomination at St. Louis. Of course, his claim that McKinley will not have enough votes to nominate him is absurd. It is altogether likely that no other name will be presented at St. Louis. Governor Morton must soon see, even if Mr. Platt has temporarily blinded him to the fact, that he has not a ghost of a chance of getting the nomination, and out of self-respect he will be compelled to announce his withdrawal from the contest.

Senator Elkins, who was for a time in the combine against McKinley but pulled out when he saw that it was useless to oppose the popular choice, gave the other bosses good advice recently when he urged that it was useless to continue the fight, and that it would be good politics to nominate Mr. McKinley by acclamation at St. Louis. Boss Platt is bitter in the face of defeat. He is proving that he is not a good loser, and a man who cannot accept defeat gracefully has no business to set up as a politician. Heretofore Mr. Platt has never let his disappointment in the hour of defeat become so visible. It looks as if he felt that the day of his boss-ship has nearly reached an end.

IT NEED NOT WORRY.

The political column of the Minneapolis Journal yesterday contained the following: "If Congressman Towne is looking for trouble in the Sixth district, he will find it without looking far. The story is still going the rounds of the district that Towne will refuse to accept a gold platform and, in case the national convention adopts gold, will make the race for congress as an independent. Mr. Towne is doing nothing to discourage this talk, and people are at last coming to take some stock in it. If Mr. Towne will insist upon making a martyr of himself, why, let him do it."

The Herald is not informed in regard to Mr. Towne's intentions. It has no doubt that he will be renominated by the Republican convention at St. Cloud and will accept the nomination. What platform that convention will adopt cannot be foretold at this time, but The Herald has a good recollection of the fact that the platform upon which Mr. Comstock ran in the old Fifth district, of which the present Sixth district was then a part, contained a tariff plank which differed materially from the national platform. Mr. Comstock desired such a platform and the friends of Mr. Nelson (who had voted for the Mills' bill not many years previously and was then flirting with the Populists) were also anxious that it should be adopted. Perhaps the convention at St. Cloud may adopt a platform that will please Mr. Towne and the thousands who agree with him, better than will the national platform that will be adopted at St. Louis.

But the Journal need not worry about Mr. Towne getting into trouble because the story is afloat that he will run as an independent candidate. The people of the Sixth district do not believe every story that is circulated, particularly when it appears in the Journal's political column. The political prognostications of the Journal, so far as this district is concerned, have invariably been "off color" this year, and they are now regarded with mild amusement. The Journal may be fearfully alarmed that Mr. Towne "will insist upon making a martyr of himself," but there are few people in the Sixth district who believe that it would not be mightily pleased should he fail to get the Republican nomination. The Journal's friendship for Mr. Towne is not sufficiently well proven to justify him or his friends in accepting its advice. The Sixth district can get along without the aid of the Journal's political wisdom in the future, as it has always done in the past.

A correspondent makes a strong plea for a proper observance of Memorial day. An old soldier himself and holding, as should every American citizen, in deep and tender regard the memory of the dead heroes who gave their lives to save the Union from dismemberment, his feelings are hurt by the preparations made in certain quarters to turn Memorial day into an occasion of merriment and amusement. He looks upon such a procedure as a gross desecration of what should be a sacred, solemn occasion, and The Herald believes that he is right. There are other holidays when amusements are in order. Memorial day should be kept sacred and devoted to thoughts of patriotism.

A decision handed down by the state supreme court yesterday in regard to the rights of married women is of considerable interest. The court rules that under the law of 1894, section 5530, that a woman married maintains the same legal personality as before she was married, and is entitled to the same protection for all her rights as a woman that her husband receives as a man; that all property she owns at the time of her marriage shall remain the same after marriage as before. More than that the decision holds that the wife has a right to sue her husband both in courts of law and those of equity to maintain her rights, just the same as though her husband was a stranger and she was not married.

The council acted wisely in deciding to obtain the opinion of Judge Dillon, of New York, upon the validity of the issue of $1,856,000 of water and light bonds. There is no better authority in the country than Judge Dillon upon such subjects, and his opinion that they are valid would be accepted by all bond-buyers as conclusive.

The high credit of Duluth with investors was illustrated by the bids received by the council last night for $350,000 of 4½ per cent thirty-year bonds. The bonds were sold for a net premium of $2165, which is highly satisfactory, considering the low rate of interest which the bonds bear.

Boss Platt's chagrin at his defeat is great, but he is making a serious mistake in attacking Mr. McKinley personally. Perhaps if Mr. McKinley had been willing to give Thomas C. Platt a place in his cabinet, this attack would not have been made.

Mr. Platt still claims to be holding the New York forces solid for Morton, but of the ten delegates from King's county, eight are for McKinley and Mr. Platt cannot control them.

By preventing the completion of the Duluth & Winnipeg road Attorney General Childs has lost whatever strength he had in St. Louis county.

Duluth's credit is all right, as the sale of the city bonds last night indicates.

THE ROUNDER.

In one of the office buildings on Superior street the elevator boy has been greatly troubled by some mischievous rascals who slip into the building, ring the elevator bell and then scamper away. He ground his teeth for a long time, but hit upon a plan a few days ago, and it worked so successfully that he has been chuckling ever since. One boy in particular he had suspected of doing this, and one day last week he heard the bell ring as he was coming down and saw this youth disappearing through a doorway. Being something of a judge of human nature, or boy nature, he concluded that the lad would ring the bell again when he came out. He quickly procured a bucket with about a gallon of water in it and ran the elevator up so that it was considerably above the first floor, but low enough so that he could reach over the screen.

In a few moments out came the youth, whistling bravely. The elevator boy grasped the bucket ready for action. Unsuspectingly the boy slid over to the elevator and pushed the button—and the elevator man did the rest. That "kid" went out of there about as well soaked as if he had fallen into the lake. He took his medicine like a man, however, and went off looking rather sheepish, but still whistling as gaily as ever.

Duluth is getting a large amount of free advertising in the outside world now but whether it is of a character beneficial to the city is open to doubt. The people of the city have some of the correspondents of outside papers to thank for the notoriety. They take a simple item and manufacture from it the wildest kind of a tale and then send it out to one of the big dailies. Perhaps when the editors of those sheets are so gullible the correspondents are not to be blamed.

A few weeks ago a boy who attends one of the schools carried a muskrat with him and released it in the teacher's desk. Of course, when found it there was consternation for some moments and excitement—and the teacher, too—ran high. The circumstance was noted in the local papers and the greedy correspondent saw in it great material for a sensation. In a few days Eastern papers contained a thrilling account of how a whole drove of muskrats took possession of a school in Duluth, frightening the teachers and scholars half to death.

But this was not all.

The Police Gazette seized upon it and in the last number there appears a large picture of a Duluth school room with about ten frightened maidens perched on a table and making the usual Police Gazette display of hosiery, while through the door a lot of great big fat rats are coming on the run.

The man who sent the item out probably enjoyed that picture more than anyone in town.

Here is another piece of his work. A few days ago a moose was swimming across the lake and his course was diverted by a tug so that he landed on Minnesota Point. The incident was regarded here as somewhat singular but excited no great amount of wonder. What must the Chicago people have thought when they read the following in one of their papers:

"Duluth, Minn., May 6.—(Special.)—This morning a small herd of moose, which had been driven from the Wisconsin side of the bay, attempted to land on the main street of this city, which runs along the lake shore. The animals had taken a long swim, and were tired, but, being frightened by a tug which was coming toward them, they turned and headed for a strip of land extending out into the lake several miles. The herd landed on this strip, close to a number of residences, and then retreated into the pines. The point of land on which the animals now are is quite a summer resort, and an attempt will be made to keep the moose there."

THE GOVERNORSHIP.

Todd County Argus: The managers of Governor Clough's campaign realize now that he is beaten, but the shout is still echoed and prolonged that he is gaining strength in order to catch those who can be made to believe it is true. Clough is a goner.

Sherburne County Star-News: The fact that Lee, Van Sant and Eustis have concluded to let the people of Hennepin county decide which of them they prefer, seems to cause the machine politicians an extraordinary amount of worry. The new idea that the common people should have a voice in the matter is unprecedented.

Hermann Enterprise: Clapp is decidedly in the race for gubernatorial honors, and there is no doubt but what he will carry the Seventh district. He is a man above reproach.

Alexandria News: There is no question but that the Republicans of the entire Seventh district would be pleased with the nomination of Mr. Clapp for governor. Even those counties that have some other choice like Mr. Clapp.

JENSWOLD AS A FARMER.

Carlton County Vidette: John Jenswold, the noted Duluth attorney, has embarked in a somewhat unique business not far from Carlton. He has a crew of men at work on his farm on 49-16-22, which he will clean up and devote the whole forty acres to the cultivation of celery. An extensive tamarac swamp formerly covered the ground where the farm now is, and the land is a rich black loam—the best imaginable for the purpose. Those who have tried the cultivation of celery in this county have met with the most encouraging success, and there is not the slightest doubt that its cultivation on a large scale will prove most remunerative. In the cultivation of this delicious vegetable large fortunes have been realized in both Michigan and Wisconsin, and there is reason to believe that conditions in Carlton county are even more favorable than in those localities.

OCCUPY CHEFOO.

Russia Encroaches Upon Some British Domain.

London, May 12.—A dispatch from Shanghai, says that the Russians, through an American agent named Smith, have taken possession of the disputed territory at Chefoo, over which the British claim rights. Six Russian warships are there as well as the Detroit, Yorktown, Olympia and Machias, of the United States navy. The dispatch adds that intense excitement prevails at Chefoo.

A dispatch to the Globe from Shanghai says that the Russians have seized lot 12 of the British concession at Chefoo in defiance of all legal and treaty rights. The Globe's editorial comment on the despatches from Shanghai contains the remark that "the seriousness of the news from Chefoo cannot be overestimated. The action taken is in direct contravention of existing laws and treaties and cannot be viewed by Great Britain as other than an unfriendly act.

"I had kidney trouble badly. Doctors prescribed for me, and I followed their advice, but found no relief until I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. THE BONDS

Council Sold a Block of $350,000 at Last Evening's Session.

Alderman Crandall Gave the Board of Public Works a Roasting.

Several Waterworks Matters Came Up and Caused Discussion.

The $100,000 bond issue for the benefit of the general fund was disposed of at a premium to E. Beckman Underhill, of New York city, his bid of par, a premium of $3250 and interest from July 1, 1896, having been accepted by the council. The $250,000 bond issue, to retire maturing loan notes issued in 1893, will be taken by Rudolph Kleybolt & Co., of Cincinnati, Ohio, at par, with interest from July 1, 1896, less a commission of $1085.75, their bid being accepted provided they enter into a contract within twenty-four hours.

The other bids were, for the $100,000 issue, Dietz, Herman & Prior, of Cleveland, Ohio, par and interest from July 1, 1896, less a commission of $1530; for the entire issue of $350,000, W. J. Hayes & Sons, par and a premium of $21, less a commission to be agreed upon, and Cushman, Fisher & Phelps, of Boston, par and a commission of $6.55.

After the report of the auditing and finance committee, which had canvassed the bids during a recess taken for that purpose, and the announcement of the award, Mr. Penhill, agent for Hayes & Sons, arose and after calling the attention of the council to the fact that his firm was the highest bidder for both issues, asked that in case the $100,000 was not taken by Mr. Underhill his firm be allowed to take it. He said the attorneys of his firm had practically passed upon the bonds and the firm was ready to deposit $500 as a guaranty of good faith in the proposition he made. He was referred to the auditing and finance committee.

A BICYCLE ORDINANCE.

An ordinance to amend the ordinance relative to riding bicycles on sidewalks, extending the prohibition to cover all walks within the city limits, was introduced by Alderman Coventry. He asked that it be put on its passage under a suspension of the rules, to which request Alderman Harwood voted no and the ordinance took the regular course.

A resolution introduced by Alderman Krumsieg, was passed directing the city attorney to procure the opinion of Judge Dillon on the validity of the $856,000 bond issue, provided the expenses of procuring the same did not exceed $500.

Alderman Richardson moved as an amendment that the legality of the election be covered by the opinion, but it appearing that that question was necessarily involved in that of the validity of the bonds, he withdrew it.

Alderman Harwood objected to the resolution as calling for a further expenditure of the people's money.

The liveliest round of the evening was had over an unoffending looking resolution that was led in by Alderman Krumsieg. It merely recommended the construction of a storm sewer in Eleventh avenue east from Second to Fifth streets and instructed the board of public works to procure the usual estimates, but it afforded Alderman Crandall an opportunity to jump on the board, which he did with great vigor, not being very particular where he landed. He put in a mock plea for that body which, he said, was so overworked that it could not attend to business. He objected to the present measure or any other that looked to the expenditure of any money unless somebody made it their business to look after it. He was tired, he said, of seeing money spent broadcast, thrown out as a sop to this person and that; there was too much carelessness in the manner of looking after such matters.

Alderman Richardson heartily concurred in Alderman Crandall's remarks.

Alderman Krumsieg defended the measure and asked that the residents of the locality named be given the relief they desired, and the resolution passed.

HUMANE SOCIETY DONATION.

A resolution was introduced by Alderman Richardson appropriating $300 to the Humane society to be paid during the ensuing year in installments of $25 each month.

Alderman Harwood moved an amendment including St. Luke's and St. Mary's hospitals, and Alderman Sang put in an objection to any appropriation whatever. The latter said that the appropriation to the Bethel was of doubtful legality and its payment might yet be enjoined. The resolution, however, passed by a vote of 13 to 2.

The council then took up naval affairs, a resolution being introduced to purchase twenty-six life preservers for use at the ferry. This seemed an unnecessarily large number, and Alderman Stevens wanted to know if it was planned to have thirteen on each boat. He said an extra boat would have to be procured to carry them. Alderman Christensen wanted to know what they would cost. He also said he did not know exactly the nature of the thing and he wanted information before voting.

Alderman Coventry, who toils by the waterside and is acquainted with things marine, undertook to explain what life preservers were and what they cost. He informed Alderman Christensen that they were shaped like a doughnut, consisting of a hole surrounded and kept in place by a more substantial substance, usually cork covered with canvas. He said they only cost 60 cents and often came quite handy. It was explained, too, that there would be six placed on each boat and ten on each pier.

It was voted to procure the life preservers, but not until Alderman Crandall had inquired in tearful accents if the shoulders of the board of public works were to be bowed with the additional burden of purchasing them—if so, he would protest against this lack of consideration. It was finally decided to delegate the work of buying the preservers to the purchasing committee.

THE FERRY INSURANCE.

The board of public works was authorized to contract with the Union Casualty and Surety company for insurance to protect the city in operating the ferry, limited to $5000 in case of death or injury of one and $10,000 in case of death or injury of several, at a yearly premium of $165.

The board was also directed in purchasing waterworks supplies, to secure bids from not less than three dealers, when the amount was $100 and less, and in case of purchases to a greater amount, advertise for bids.

The pay of stenographer in the city attorney's office was fixed, by resolution, at the sum of $55 per month, beginning June 1 next. The appointment of John Lundberg as poundmaster of the first district, and the awards to A. W. Clark of contracts for sprinkling district 3 and sweeping district 1, were confirmed.

The city clerk was directed to advertise for bids for publishing the annual reports of the city officers.

A resolution introduced by Alderman Krumsieg, providing for the employment of a consulting engineer on the waterworks construction was tabled, pending advice on the legality of the bonds for building.

The city attorney was instructed to draw up a lease for Great Eastern hall for armory purposes for one year from May 15.

On motion of Alderman Sang, it was decided to invite the fire commissioners to meet the council on Monday afternoon next to consult with a view of curtailing the expenses of the fire department.

A communication from the Ore Trimmers' union was received, asking the moral support of the council in the union's struggle with the Duluth, Missabe & Northern Railway company over the question of access to the latter's dock to compete for the work of unloading cargoes. On motion of Alderman Sang a committee consisting of Aldermen Dahl, Sang and Rowley was appointed to confer with the company.

A petition was received from residents of Cody street, asking for lights at Sixty-second and Sixty-fourth avenues west, to guide their feet on the straight and narrow sidewalks of that locality. It was referred to the committee on light and water.

On motion of Alderman Trevillion, the council adjourned to Wednesday evening at 7:30 o'clock.

MILITIA INSPECTION.

Lieut. A. B. Johnson is Here Conducting It.

The annual inspection of the Duluth battalion of National Guards began last evening with Company A, and it will last until Thursday evening. The inspection of "A" last evening took place in the armory on Michigan street, beginning at 8 p. m., and it lasted until 10:15. Lieut. A. B. Johnson, of the regular army, conducted the inspection, and the usual form was gone through. Capt. Eva was in command of the company, and the inspection of quarters, arms and accoutrements was conducted while the men were in dress uniform. Following this the company donned fatigue uniforms and a lengthy drill followed. The inspector said that the inspection was satisfactory, though the percentage will not be known until it is promulgated from headquarters.

The company inspected fifty men. Lieut. Johnson was accompanied by Maj. Van Duzee and Capt. Persons, and the party is at the Spalding. This evening Company H, of West Duluth, will be inspected at its armory.

LOSE MILLIONS.

Tobacco Manufacturers Out $10,000,000 in '95.

Prospect of Still Larger Loss in '96.—Great Anxiety in Tobacco Circles.

Chicago, May 11.—(Special.)—It was reported here today that a large sum of money had been offered for the tobacco habit cure No-To-Bac, famous all over the country for its wonderful cures. This offer, it is said, was made by parties who desire to take it off the market and stop the sale, because of its injury to the tobacco business. General Manager Kruner, of No-To-Bac, when interviewed at his office, No. 45 Randolph street, said:

"No, sir, No-To-Bac is not for sale to the tobacco trust. Certainly No-To-Bac affects the tobacco business. It will cure over 200,000 people in 1896, at an average saving of $50 which each would otherwise expend for tobacco, amounting in round figures to $10,000,000. Of course tobacco dealers' loss is gained by the cure. Does No-To-Bac benefit physically? Yes, sir. The majority of our patients report an immediate gain of flesh, and their nicotine saturated systems are cleansed and made vigorous. No-To-Bac is sold by druggists throughout the United States and Canada, under absolute guarantee that three boxes will cure any case. Failure to cure means the money back. Of course there are failures, but they are few, and we can better afford to have the good will of an occasional failure than the enmity. We publish a little book called 'Don't Tobacco Spit and Smoke Your Life Away,' that tells all about No-To-Bac, which will be mailed free to anyone desiring it. Address the Sterling Remedy Co., Chicago, Montreal, Can., or New York."

MEMORIAL DAY.

A Plea Made For Its Proper Observance.

To the Editor of The Herald:

There are several national holidays that are more or less faithfully observed by the American people. First comes Christmas, which, in common with all the Christian world, is universally observed as a day of great joy and manifestations of rejoicing by young and old because of the birth of the Son of God and the Savior of man.

Next in importance is the Fourth of July, which, to the American people, is the national day of freedom, the birthday of our glorious country. This day is observed with all the manifestations of rejoicing that we can devise or imagine, and from midnight till midnight we turn ourselves loose to have not only a good time, but a big time. To a lesser degree, but in the same manner, we observe Washington's birthday, and latterly Lincoln's birthday.

There is one day, however, and only one, that has been appointed by the American people, and recognized by law, as well as universal public sentiment, as a day to be observed in honor of the heroic dead, whose lives were given to our country in her time of greatest peril from fratricidal foes. It is the nation's solemn, sacred, Sabbath day, a feast day, but the "feast day of the dead," the honored dead. That day will soon be here, when the people will, in some public manner, show their respect for the "fallen braves," and, it may be, profess great love for the living heroes. Preparations are being made all over the land for fitting observance of the occasion, and we are sorry to say that preparations are being made by the thoughtless for desecrating the day and dishonoring the noble dead by turning the day into a holiday for races, games, dances and other methods of amusement. Would those people dance over their mother's grave or have a horse race or bicycle race in honor of their father's death? Ah, no! Yet thoughtlessly they are doing just as unholy and inhuman things.

This is one of the two great days most important in American history, and on this day as we now see it, or should see it, we can only know and appreciate the debt that we owe to the men who saved us the nation. But for their valor we would be today a divided country, the laughing stock of kings and emperors, the tomb of liberty and the hopes of mankind. To these men we owe all—vastly more than ever will or can be paid. It is not a day for merriment or jollification, but an earnest, solemn, patriotic sentiment should envelope every heart; a quiet sense of gratitude should fill every breast; a feeling of thankfulness should possess every soul. We are in the presence of the nation's dead.

The graves of Grant and Sherman and and Sheridan and Hancock will be on our minds. We will stand by tombs of Baker and Ellsworth, of Kearney and McPherson, of Lyon and Mansfield, who fell in the front of battle while leading their brave boys on to victory. The graves of thousands with headstones marked with name and regiment, and thousands more whose only record is "unknown," will alike be decorated in our thoughts by us. The sufferings of Libby and Andersonville surely cannot be forgotten. Gettysburg, Shiloh and Chickamauga, the Wilderness, Missionary Ridge and the march to the sea will all be the in the ceremonies of May 30. The hardships of the war, the lonely picket, the forced march, the bivouac in snow and mud, the dying comrades will come up fresh as of yesterday. The vacant chair—brother, father, uncle, it may have been grandfather—ah, it is a time for sober reflection; it is a time for solemn meditation; yea, a time for tears and prayers and gratitude to Almighty God that though dead they did not die in vain; a glorious, united country is preserved to this generation, and liberty shall continue to live and go down through the "gateway of the ages" to generations yet unborn.

Ah, no, it is no time for amusements but for sober, earnest thankfulness and gratitude to the nation's honored dead and to the living, who have but a few years yet left to see you enjoy what they have given you. All business should be closed. Let the day be entirely given to thoughts and the manifestations of patriotism, heroism, to the buried dead. Let all the people unite in doing honor to whom honor is due.

S. C. Maxwell.

A CLEVER FORGERY.

Bogus Draft on a Grand Rapids Bank.

Last Tuesday evening the First State bank received among its collections one for $100 that proved to be a very slick forgery, and one that was well calculated to deceive, says the Grand Rapids Review. It purported to be a personal draft on Stevens Bros. in favor of M. R. Stevens drawn on the Lumbermen's State bank. The form was lithographed and all of the work was well executed. The name of Shook & Stevens, lumbermen, headed the draft, and in the lower left hand corner it said: "to the Lumbermen's State bank," there being an error of one letter in the name, it being printed "lumberman's" instead of "lumbermen's." Across the face was stamped a certificate stating that the draft was good for its face, $100, and signed F. P. Sheldon, Jr., paying teller. On the back Mr. Stevens had apparently endorsed the same to the party who drew the money.

There was no attempt made to imitate the hand writing of either Mr. Stevens or Mr. Sheldon. The draft was cashed by the First National bank, Springfield, Mo., and from there was sent to St. Louis, Minneapolis, Duluth and Chicago for collection. Whoever uttered the forged paper went at it in a systematic manner and worked the bank down in Missouri very easily. It will be a great wonder if other banks are not victimized with the same form of draft. Cashier White immediately protested the paper and sent it back with the information that it was a forgery.

A Meeting Called.

The Democratic county committee will meet on Friday evening at the St. Louis hotel according to a call issued by Chairman John Flood. The county convention will then be called and the apportionment determined upon. The convention will probably be held on June 9 or 10 as the state convention will be held on June 11.

A BRIGHT DOUBLE EAGLE

Is a pleasant object to contemplate, particularly if one happens to be its proprietor. But the hue of that justly esteemed coin is not provocative of admiration when visible in one's complexion. This indication of biliousness, as well as discomfort in the vicinity of the liver, fur upon the tongue, sick headache, sourness of the breath, nausea, constipation and dyspepsia are speedily remediable with the never failing aid of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, the finest alterative, carminative and corrective in existence. As a preventive and remedy for malarial complaints it is also thoroughly reliable. They whose sedentary pursuits tend to impair the active discharge of active digestion and bilious secretion never seek its help in vain. It is a capital appetizer and promoter of nerve quietude.

AMUSEMENTS.

SINBAD."

"Sinbad" with its beautiful scenery, tuneful music, excellent comedy and pretty girls was received with enthusiasm by a large audience at the Lyceum last evening. Manager Henderson made no mistake in reviving this delightful extravaganza. It is one of the very best which he ever sent out, the music being sprightly and popular and the comedy bright and clever. "Sinbad" probably depends more on those two features than any of the other Henderson spectacles. The production which is now being given is quite as good as that when it was first seen here. The scenery is magnificent and some beautiful pictures are presented. The "Frozen Valley of Diamonds" is superb and under the coloring of the light effects presents a dazzling scene.

Some of the old favorites of the American Extravaganza company are still in the cast but many more are missing. Miss Louise Essing appeared as Sinbad, the sailor, which role she created. Miss Essing has accumulated a little more flesh in the past four years and it is close to the danger limit, but she is as dashing as ever and makes as pretty a boy as she ever did. Unfortunately she suffered from a terrible cold last night and had to retire in the last act. Miss Frankie Raymond made a charming Ninetta, looking very sweet and singing very prettily. Miss Marta Ramsford as Maraschina was excellent.

Hugh Chilvers has taken the role of Snarleyow, that which Henry Norman filled. He sings well and has a powerful voice and acts the part well also. Oscar Girard is a decided improvement on Eddie Foy, for whom Duluth people never cared very much. Mr. Girard sings well, but did not sing as much as the people wanted him to last night. He is a good comedian and makes a very eccentric appearance. Murphy and Turner sang the "Ha-Ha" song and their clever specialty brought down the house. Harry Clay Blaney did some clever acrobatic dancing and was warmly applauded. The dancing of the premiers Mlle. Ferrero and Signor Blanchfiori was quite marvelous and was accorded great enthusiasm.

Asked to Reconsider.

At the council caucus in the afternoon, Secretary Buchanan and P. S. Anneke, acting as a committee from the jobbers' union, appeared and urged that the council withdraw from its position of demanding free passage for pedestrians on the proposed bridge between Rice's and Connor's Points. Both gentlemen argued the matter at some length, and were invited to meet, if they wished, the committee on bridges and viaducts, in whose hands the question properly belonged, to confer on the subject.

Was taken with La Grippe and tried all the physicians for miles about, but of no avail and was given up and told I could not live. Having Dr. King's New Discovery in my store I sent for a bottle and began its use and from the first dose began to get better, and after using three bottles was up and about again. "THE TRIUMPH OF LOVE IS HAPPY, FRUITFUL MARRIAGE."

Every Man Who Would Know the Grand Truths, the Plain Facts, the New Discoveries of Medical Science as Applied to Married Life, Who Would Atone for Past Errors and Avoid Future Pitfalls, Should Secure the Wonderful Little Book Called "Complete Manhood, and How to Attain It."

"Here at last is information from a high medical source that must work wonders with this generation of men."

The book fully describes a method by which to attain full vigor and manly power.

A method by which to end all unnatural drains on the system.

To cure nervousness, lack of self-control, despondency, &c.

To exchange a jaded and worn nature for one of brightness, buoyancy and power.

To cure forever effects of excesses, overwork, worry, &c.

To give full strength, development and tone to every portion and organ of the body.

Age no barrier. Failure impossible. Two thousand references.

The book is purely medical and scientific, useless to curiosity seekers, invaluable to men only who need it.

A despairing man, who had applied to us, soon after wrote:

"Well, I tell you that first day is one I'll never forget. I just bubbled with joy. I wanted to hug everybody and tell them my old self had died yesterday, and my new self was born to-day. Why didn't you tell me when I first wrote that I would find it this way?"

And another thus:

Write to the ERIE MEDICAL COMPANY, Buffalo, N. Y., and ask for the little book called "COMPLETE MANHOOD." Refer to this paper, and the company promises to send the book, in sealed envelope, without any marks, and entirely free, until it is well introduced.

MORTGAGE FORECLOSURE SALE.—Default having been made in the payment of the sum of two thousand one hundred fourteen and 50-100 (2114.50) dollars, which is claimed to be due at the date of this notice upon a certain mortgage duly executed and delivered by R. Jessie Blackmarr and Frank Blackmarr, her husband, of Duluth, Minnesota, mortgagors, to William H. Whitridge and William A. BEFORE IT

Grand Jury Had Some State Bank Employes Up This Morning.

John Panton Also Called and A. M. Barsness and C. I. Turner.

T. G. White Claims His Corn Deal Was Gambling and Wins.

The grand jury is still grinding away in its rooms at the court house, and unless something happens it may develop something interesting. This morning John Panton was before the jury for a time, and A. M. Barsness and C. I. Turner, clerks in the State bank before its assignment, were also in. It will be remembered that during the trial of Charles H. Stuckey for the robbery of the State bank, Stuckey accused Hall of appropriating stock dividend certificates to his own use, among others one or two belonging to John Panton. In view of this fact the call of the jury for those witnesses is significant, whether anything comes from it or not.

When the jury adjourned at noon it was again engaged on the Stratton case, and F. A. Stratton, the defendant, was again before that body. He had with him a pile of voluminous documents by which he was explaining to the jury that the charges against him were false. He showed an immense mortgage covering about 75,000 acres of Kentucky land which the Merritts bought from some Boston parties.

James W. Fowler this morning pleaded not guilty to the charge of assault with attempt to commit rape upon one Mary Miller. John F. A. Behning pleaded not guilty to a charge of uttering a forged instrument, and Samuel D. Lisbon entered a demurrer to his indictment.

Judge Morris was still hearing the case of A. Mansfield against W. D. Williams at noon, and Judge Ensign was still engaged on the case of William Hare against the Eastern Minnesota railway.

HELD IT WAS GAMBLING.

Judge Moer yesterday and today was hearing two cases in which B. E. Baker, the commission man, was interested. Yesterday afternoon the case of Stephen T. Welch against Thomas G. White, the employment agent, to recover $1100 on checks given by defendant, was taken up. White did not deny that he had given the checks, but put in as a defense the statement that he had put them up with B. E. Baker as a speculation in corn, and that as the proceeding was a gambling transaction he did not have to pay the checks. Judge Moer held that it was gambling, and he directed a verdict for White.

This morning the case of Julius Cook, by his guardian, against B. E. Baker. Cook claims that he lost $551 in speculations in wheat, gas stocks and sugar, and he wants to recover the amount on the ground that it was a gambling transaction. Cook's testimony developed the fact that part of the money he claimed to have lost he had won from Baker in previous speculations, which caused Judge Moer to ask if that was not what was called the "double cross." Cook claimed that he spent $450 to $475 of his own earnings in this way.

The case was still on trial at noon. Yesterday afternoon Carl Germanson obtained a verdict of $1000 against Louis Tredo for false imprisonment. Tredo allowed the case to go by default.

This is one of the special hearing cases on a pre-emption entry. Receiver Ryan decided for Louden and Register Taylor for the government. Receiver Ryan's decision is sustained, and Register Taylor's reversed.

May Take a Hand.

Complaints have been made to the police of a gang of young toughs who are in the habit of gathering at the Salvation Army barracks, disturbing the meetings and accosting the women who attend. Chief Hansen said today that the patrol wagon would back up there some evening when business was dull and the whole crowd would be accommodated at his hostelry, even if some of them had to sleep on the floor.

THE O. E. S. GRAND CHAPTER

There Are Three Candidates For the Head Office.

The session of the grand chapter of the Order of the Eastern Star, to be held in Duluth this week, promises to be one of the most important held in years, because of the three-cornered struggle which will be indulged in. There are three candidates for the position of worthy grand matron: Mrs. Louise Lyon Johnson, of Minneapolis, the present incumbent, Mrs. McGinley, of Duluth, present associate grand matron, and Mrs. Mary Taylor, of Minneapolis, who was Mrs. Johnson's predecessor for several terms. All three have their friends, and the struggle is bound to be an interesting one.

The spectacle of two Minneapolis candidates arrayed against each other in the battle for place is due to personal differences which have arisen in Eastern Star circles in Minneapolis, owing to a ruling on the part of the present grand worthy matron some months ago. These personal differences are so acute that they will be important factors in the convention and will certainly have a marked effect upon the election. There are several candidates, too, for the office of secretary, which is important and has a salary attached thereto, and has been occupied for several years past by Mrs. Ida Wing Brown, of Minneapolis.

Outside of the election there will be other important matters to be considered. The convention will be important in point of size, because there are over 100 subordinate chapters in the state, each of which is entitled to three delegates, making a gathering which will aggregate 300. In addition to these there are past grand officers and past matrons and patrons who were in office at the time of the last convention, which was held in Minneapolis, to the number of several hundred more, the grand total figuring close to 500. According to the original plan, a past matron or a past patron was a life member of the grand chapter, but the growth of the order has been such that the grand body grew unwieldly, and at the last session all future past matrons and past patrons were excluded from life membership.

The session will begin at 10 o'clock tomorrow morning. A number of the members will arrive this evening, but the majority will not be here until morning. They will be quartered at the Spalding, St. Louis and other places. The grand worthy matron, Mrs. Johnson, of Minneapolis, will be at the Spalding. The local reception committee consists of Messrs. J. T. Armistead, W. B. Patton and T. W. Hugo and will meet all trains. Henry Van Brunt, Mrs. T. W. Hugo and Mrs. McGindley are to look after the hotel accommodations.

The address of welcome at the opening session will be made by Mrs. A. N. McGindley and there will be responses by the grand worthy matron and grand worthy patron. The business will then be proceeded with. The meetings are secret. On Wednesday evening Zenith chapter No. 25, O. E. S., will exemplify the work for the grand chapter.

AMERICAN HORSES.

Lorrillard's Nags in Good Form at London.

London, May 13.—P. Lorillard's Sandia won the Maiden plate, 103 sovereigns, at Newmarket today, seven horses running. George H. Ketchum was second and Red Virgin third. The betting stood 7 to 4 against George H. Ketchum and 9 to 2 against Sandia. Normanton got away with a lead and made the running for a short distance, when Sandia overtook him and led for the remainder of the race, and won easily by four lengths.

Mr. Lorillard's Rersack ran third in the race for the Dyke plate of 300 sovereigns; R. Le Baudy's Perasil won, and P. Brassey's St. Agnes was second. Persil carried a penalty of three pounds, having won a previous race. Five horses started.

In the all-aged selling plate of 103 sovereigns there were sixteen starters, including an American horse, Mr. Wishart's entry, which finished second. Molsey was first and Castlor third. No American horse started in the race for the Newmarket stakes of 300 sovereigns by subscription of 30 each for 3-year-olds. Leopold De Rothschild's Galaxza was first; the duke of Devonshire's Balsamo, second, and J. H. Platt's Bardwardine, third. Fifteen horses ran.

PASSED

Senate Passes the River and Harbor Bill By a Decisive Vote.

Fifty-Seven Votes Were in Favor While Only Nine Opposed It.

Mr. Gorman's Restricting Amendment Was Defeated By the Senate.

Washington, May 13.—The river and harbor bill was taken up as soon as the senate convened today, the agreement being that the final vote be taken at 3 p. m. The pending question was Mr. Gorman's amendment, directing the secretary of war to so apportion contract appropriations that not more that $10,000,000 be expended on contracts in any one year.

Before proceeding, Mr. Vest gave notice of a minority report on the filled cheese bill by himself and Senators Walthall, Harris, Jones (Arkansas) and White.

The bill was passed for the appointment of guardians for pensioners in the District of Columbia found to be "squandering pension money by drinking or vicious habits."

Proceeding with the river and harbor bill, Mr. Vest opposed the Gorman amendment, declaring that it would permit the secretary of war to nullify the river and harbor bill, and to substitute his opinion in lieu of that of congress. He did not believe there could be a partisan in the chamber who would give such autocratic power to a cabinet officer. He had never known a secretary of war to whom he would intrust such vast power. While he was a Democrat and knew the expenditures would be made by Democratic officials up to March 3 next, yet that was not a factor to consider, as he opposed any such abdication of power by congress and its transfer to one official.

Mr. Gorman insisted that the resolution did not abdicate, but merely limited the power of the secretary of war, so that not more than $10,000,000 would be spent annually on contracts. It was a necessary provision, said Mr. Gorman, in view of the fact that "this is the first time in the history of the government that we have gone into the wholesale business of authorizing contracts."

If he were secretary of war, said Mr. Gorman, he would apply the rule suggested by Mr. Sherman of not obligating the government for one dollar of these contracts, until congress made provision for the revenues to meet them. This amendment was merely a caution to our executive officers, that in view of our condition we must spend more than $10,000,000 a year. The senator expressed his appreciation of the river and harbor bill—the most important of the appropriation bills—but this amendment would permit ample expenditures with proper limitations.

In reply to a suggestion of Mr. White that the secretary of war had already shown a disposition to restrict river and harbor work, Mr. Gorman took occasion to express his high personal regard for the present secretary of war, but the senator felt that he could not conscientiously give his vote to a measure that would "put it in the power of one man to spend money that the government does not possess."

The debate took a wide range under the five-minute rule, which had been agreed upon. An amendment by Mr. Gray was accepted making the $10,000,000 restriction apply specifically to contracts, and not to direct appropriations.

The river and harbor bill finally passed the senate by a vote of 57 to 9.

Those who voted in the negative were: Bate, Chilton, Harris, Hill, Smith and Vilas, Democrats; Brown, Republican; Allen and Kyle, Populists.

IN THE HOUSE.

Washington, May 13.—The house has begun today on the Rinehecker-Downing election contest and will vote after 4 p. m. The result is doubtful, as the Republican majority is not united on the case.

OHIO G. A. R.

Boys in Blue Rally at Columbus.

Columbus, May 13.—The thirtieth encampment of Ohio G. A. R. opened today, Department Commander Maj. Charles Townsend, of Athens, presiding. Public buildings and business houses are decorated. Public and parochial schools are to witness the parade tomorrow. The 200 Ohio war regimental flags in the state house are to be carried. National Commander I. N. Walker will arrive Thursday.

The new feature introduced by J. M. Wells, of Columbus, of having post "associates," the latter composed of men who were not in the war, but who pay annual dues and attend opening camp fires, is to be considered with a view of adoption. The other business will be mainly routine.

NEW YORK STOCKS.

Opening Was Firm But Trading Was Light.

New York, May 13.—The stock market opened firm with trading in very light volume. London quotations were irregular but did not influence the local speculation. Manhattan rose ½ per cent and gains of ¼@½ per cent were scored in other shares. The announcement that $1,000,000 gold will be exported to Germany tomorrow had no influence on the speculation today. The activity was confined to industrials in which liberal fractional advances were scored in Bay State Gas, Rubber and Leather preferred. Transactions in the railway list were generally at an improvement over earlier figures.

Trading increased slightly after 11 o'clock and the railway shares assumed greater prominence in the speculation. The granger and Louisville & Nashville commanded the most attention and gains were recorded extending to 1 per cent in the latter. The announcement of engagements of $1,500,000 gold for export to Germany tomorrow did not check the improving tendency to the market and impetus was imparted to the advance by the reported heaviness of the foreign exchange market. The sales to noon were 48,300 shares.

KINGS OF FORGERY.

Two Noted Experts Indicted at San Francisco.

San Francisco, May 13.—On Friday last the grand jury found true bills against two men whose names and crimes have thus far been kept secret. The men indicted are Charles Brecker, known for twenty years as the "Prince of Forgers," and James Creegan, who has no equal as a negotiator of spurious paper. Bail was fixed in each case at $20,000 and bench warrants were issued by Judge Black for the arrest of the two expert criminals.

In order to make these indictments possible, the men now in jail here are charged with the Nevada bank forgery by which a Woodland draft for $22 was cashed for $22,000 and, a man who is known as A. H. Dean, Frank L. Seaver and otherwise, turned state's evidence, told a dramatic tale to the grand jury and was promised on behalf of the district attorney immunity from the operation of the law.

CHEERS AND AMENS.

Prohibitionists in Iowa Greet Free Silver Remarks.

Des Moines, Iowa, May 13.—When the Prohibition state convention assembled today, Temporary Chairman J. A. Harvey spoke two hours. He said the Republican party in Iowa had bent everything in favor of Senator Allison, and enacted the mulct law in the interest of his presidential candidacy. He accused the party of disloyalty to the people, and called the church people voting for the Republican nominees "pious frauds." He blamed the Republican party for the present national financial condition; said capitalists got the United States supreme court to declare the income tax unconstitutional; roasted the Republican papers, calling them "organs of the bummer element."

A telegram from the Nebraska committee urged Charles Eugene Hagley for president. The convention went into district caucuses to select national delegates members of the state committee, vice presidents and members of the convention committees. The temporary chairman's free silver sentiments were endorsed with cheers and amens.

A BUSINESS AFFAIR.

Occupation of Chefoo Shore Land By Russia.

London, May 13.—A special dispatch received here from Shanghai says that the British and German ministers at Pekin have protested against the action of Russia in occupying part of the foreshore at Chefoo contrary to treaty rights. The dispatch adds that the entire Russian squadron in Chinese waters will rendezvous at Chefoo in readiness to occupy Port Arthur or Kiaohu Bay on receipt of instructions from St. Petersburg.

In well informed commercial circles here it is believed that the Chefoo incident is nothing but an ordinary business deal, as Fergusson & Co. have been offering the land, which is alleged to have been taken for sale during the past year. The only cause for disquiet is found in the fact that the Russian Steam Navigation company, through whose agent, J. S. Smith, an American, the land has been occupied, is a company subsidized by the Russian government.

SUMMONED BY GROVER.

Why Minister Terrell is Hurrying to Washington.

Washington, May 13.—The coming of United States Minister Terrell to Washington from his Texas home, it can be stated, is not because any emergency exists, nor any threat of trouble in Turkey. He has been summoned here by the president for consultation. In view of the fact that not much of his leave of absence remains unexpired, it may be that Mr. Terrell will not return immediately to Texas from Washington, but will rather choose to go directly to his post.

It was the understanding when the Rev. Dr. Knapp, the American missionary who was expelled from Bitlis, was brought to Constantinople under charges preferred by the Turkish officials, that his trial would take place before Minister Terrell, and this fact may operate to hasten Mr. Terrell's return to Constantinople.

HACKED TO PIECES.

Jealous Man Stabs His Wife Twenty-One Times.

Ottawa, Ill., May 13.—James McGuire, a kiln-setter employed at the Utica tile works, stabbed his wife twenty-one times and then plunged the knife into his own breast five times. The woman was literally hacked to pieces. McGuire is in jail. His injuries, although severe, are not fatal. Jealousy was the cause of the act.

BANK MAY RESUME.

Denver, Col., May 13.—The American National bank which recently failed, will probably resume business at an early day, a majority of the depositors having agreed to accept certificates drawing 4 per cent interest. Ten per cent of the deposits will be paid in cash when the bank resumes, and the remainder in six semi-annual payments of 15 per cent each. The bank's liabilities have been reduced to $821,000.

MORRISON FOR PRESIDENT.

THE TREASURY CONDITION.

INDICTED BANKERS.

Denver, May 13.—The federal grand jury has found three indictments against John J. Riethmann, Sr., John Reithmann, Jr., Charles McClinton and Charles Kunsmiller, Jr., officials of the defunct German National bank.

ARMENIA

Methodist Conference at Cleveland Denounces the Turkish Outrages.

And Will Send the Resolution to Both Houses of Congress.

Proposition to Hold Future Conferences Every Six Years Is Made.

Cleveland, May 13.—The Methodist Episcopal conference was opened today with Bishop Vincent in the chair. The devotional services were conducted by the Rev. R. E. Gillum, a colored minister from Central Missouri.

The first resolution offered denounced in the strongest terms the Armenian outrages and massacres, and referred to the apathy of the Christian governments of Europe and America. It closed by calling on congress to pass a joint resolution authorizing the president to enter into negotiations with the European powers most directly interested, with the view of interfering and preventing further massacres. The resolution also provided that a copy of the resolution should be sent to both houses of congress. It was referred to the committee on state of the church without discussion.

The proposition to change the time of holding the general conference from May 1 to the first Wednesday in May aroused a discussion on the point of constitutionality of the action. Three-fourths of the annual conferences have approved it, and it was approved by more than two-thirds of the general conference. Dr. Leonard led the opposition, but he was literally buried, as the vote stood 397 yeas and 19 nays. The next general conference will therefore meet on the first Wednesday in May, 1900.

A proposition was presented by Rev. L. R. Fisk, of Detroit, to hold the general conference each six years. The reasons given were that it would save $2500 per day, and would save time, as under the present arrangement 540 men are out of church work four weeks, or an aggregate of forty-five years. Other reasons were that it would reduce the anxiety incidental to elections, would give a more satisfactory test of officers elected, would save criticisms, would give a longer time in which to test changes in discipline and would insure greater stability and permanency. It was referred to the committee on state of the church.

Chaplain C. C. McCabe presented a constitutional amendment, which forbids any missionary society from appropriating any sum in excess of the income of the year previous. This was to call a halt on the appropriations which have been made in excess of the income.

A largely eulogistic resolution regarding the work of missionaries was the first document presented after the recess. It set Tuesday, May 19, at 11 o'clock, as a day on which missionaries, deaconesses, etc., are to be presented to the conference. A motion to refer to the committee on the state of the church by Dr. Buckley was defeated, as was a motion to table. The resolution was then adopted.

Great interest was manifested when the committee on episcopacy was called. Dr. Buckley reported that the committee is unable to report at present on the number of bishops, but he promised to do so first thing tomorrow morning.

A report, in which a change was proposed in the matter of baptism, caused a prolonged debate. The proposition was to the effect that those who were sprinkled in infancy could, if desired, be immersed when they grew older. This was opposed by Dr. Leonard and others, on the ground that it was a discrimination against infant baptism, and after a prolonged discussion the report of the committee was recommitted.

The committee on book concerns made an adverse report on the recommendation to establish a Methodist daily paper; it also made a like report on the recommendation that the Western, Northwestern and Central Christian Advocates be consolidated into one paper for the Mississippi valley. The report was immediately adopted. Another report authorized the book concern to publish certain books and periodicals of the Methodist church in the Spanish language. After the announcements had been made the conference adjourned.

BURLINGTON ROAD.

Old Officers Will All Be Re-Elected.

Chicago, May 13.—At the annual meeting of the stockholders of the C. B. & Q. railway held here today the old directors were re-elected with one exception, that of Robert Treat Paine, the second, of Boston, was elected to succeed Charles J. Payne, who is now in Europe. There were 483,241 shares of stock represented. The only business was that of approving the president's annual report and that of selecting a board of directors.

The meeting was harmonious. T. W. Barhydt, of Burlington, presided at the meeting and L. O. Goddard acted as secretary. Officers of the company will be elected at the next meeting of the board of directors. It is said the old officers will be re-elected.

ALLISON'S BOOM.

Contract For 2000 Cots For St. Louis.

Des Moints, Iowa, May 13.—The Allison managers held a meeting last night at which a contract for 2000 cots was made. They are to be placed in the 4-story building rented at St. Louis for Allison headquarters. Arrangements have been made with the Y. M. C. A. of St. Louis to furnish meals for 25 cents apiece during the convention week in headquarters. The management has twenty-five men on the road organizing Allison clubs.

JAPAN

American Vessel Builders Return From the Realm of the Mikado.

They Did Not Secure Any of the New War Vessels.

Japan's Commercial Importance is Making Great Strides in the Orient.

San Francisco, May 13.—Among the passengers on the steamer China which arrived here last night from Japan were Gen. G. B. Williams, of Philadelphia, and G. W. Dickie, of this city, the gentlemen representing respectively, the Cramps, of Philadelphia, and the Union Iron works, of this city. They have been to Japan in the interest of their respective firms as looking toward securing for the United States a number of the contracts for the building of war vessels which the Japan government expects soon to let.

In discussion last evening the probability of this country securing the awards for building Japan's new war vessels, Gen. Williams said, that at the time he and Mr. Dickie left Japan no official action had been taken in regard to awarding the contracts.

The financial status of the nation for the current year has not been determined. When the diet adjourned six weeks ago the Chinese indemnity had not been paid and the appropriations for naval construction had been set aside. The Japanese government, said the general, is very favorably impressed with the war ships of the United States, which have thus far been sent into Japanese waters. Gen. Williams said Japan was rapidly developing her resources in the way of navigation. Already she is turning out first-class war ships of from 3000 to 4000 tons burden.

PROSPEROUS JAPAN.

She is Making Great Commercial Headway.

San Francisco, May 13.—J. T. Copman, general manager of the Standard Oil company in Japan and China, arrived from the Orient on the China last night. Mr. Copman has great faith in Japan as an important factor in the commercial world. He says she is forging ahead in all lines of industry, and he thinks she will soon be a hot competitor with Europe for the Oriental trade in many kinds of manufactured goods. This competition, Mr. Copman says, will affect Europe more than this country.

The Japanese, he says, have the two requisites to success of any nation—frugality and industry. These traits of character he says are alike noticeable in the rich and poor. Further than this, he says, Japan is ambitious and this coupled with her frugal and industrious habits will bear her along on the full tide of commercial power, her influence will be felt all over the world.

BOND COMMITTEE.

Five Senators Appointed to Make Investigation.

Washington, May 12.—At a meeting of the senate committee on finance today Chairman Morrill appointed a sub-committee of five to investigate the bond sales under the Peffer resolution naming for that service Senators Harris, Vest and Walthall, Democrats; Platt, Republican, and Jones, of Nevada, Populist.

Secretary Carlisle's letter to Senator Morrill saying that he was willing to furnish the committee any information at his command, was read, and the chairman was authorized to request the secretary to supply a statement in writing with the understanding that if additional facts should be required he would be pleased to appear personally. Nothing was said about the time of the beginning of the inquiry, the understanding being that this would necessarily depend upon the time taken by Mr. Carlisle in preparing his statement.

SECRETARY MORTON'S TRIP.

San Francisco, May 13.—J. Sterling Morton, who is making his first tour of the Pacific coast, arrived in this city last night. While not inclined to discuss the coming campaign at length, he said he believed the Democratic convention would endorse the financial policy of the administration. The secretary, who is traveling as the guest of his son, Paul Morton, third vice president of the Atchison road, will remain in this city about a week.

EMULSION of Cod-liver Oil and Hypophosphites has been for twenty years the acknowledged remedy for consumption. By the observance of the laws of health it will cure in its early stages and give comfort and prolong life, and sometimes cure when the patient has almost given up hope.

The time to take it is when you first realize the danger, when you have a stubborn cough, and are getting thin.

DO NOT GROW OLD.

What Charles Dickens Said and a Valuable Hint to All Who Wish to Retain Youth.

Charles Dickens never wrote a truer thing than the following description of old age:

"Can anything be more pitiable than the sight of elderly men and women who realize that the strength of earlier years is departing? Down the plain of life, whose end is darkness they look, and wonder if their weary steps will carry them painlessly to the end."

But what can elderly people do to avoid these dangerous symptoms of weakness? How can they prevent the trembling of the nerves, the lessening of vitality, the decreased vigor, their frequent chilly sensations? Plainly they must have assistance. Ordinary food and drink will not help them. Drugs should be avoided. The best advice on the subject is given by Dr. Gardner, an eminent physician, who says:

"Elderly persons who suffer from cold feet and find artificial heat, applied externally, fails to afford relief, may, with great advantage, take whisky and hot water on going to bed. If headache or foul tongue should follow it may be regarded as a sure sign that the spirit is impure, and probably contains fusel oil. A very slight trace of this noxious ingredient will, in some constitutions, produce headache—as accurate a test of impurity as chemistry can employ."

There is only one absolutely pure whisky, free from fusel oil, and that is the well-known and universally popular Duffy's pure malt whisky. It has all the properties that contribute to health and vigor and none that can injure. It cannot harm the stomach of even a child. It may be procured from any reliable grocer or druggist, but care should be exercised that no inferior imitation is substituted. There is nothing else that can possibly take its place.

COMPETITOR CASE.

Excitement in Madrid is Subsiding Somewhat.

New York, May 13.—A dispatch to the World from Madrid says: There has been intense anxiety in political and military and even in financial circles over the effect on the country of the decision of the government to remit the cases of the convicted Americans found on the Competitor to the supreme court of naval and military appeal in Madrid, with a view to quash the sentences passed by the court-martial. By this act the government clearly admits that all American subjects are entitled to trial before courts of ordinary jurisdiction, under the seventh article of the treaty of 1795 and the treaty of 1877 between Spain and the United States, which the government concedes to be applicable to the case of the Competitor.

The ministerial press have so clearly exposed this novel aspect of the affair and have so plainly insisted upon the friendly way in which the American government simply insisted upon the execution of the treaties, without challenging the right of Spain to try these offenders by the ordinary courts of justice, that the excitement has slightly subsided, despite the efforts of the jingo press. The result of the decision of the Spanish government is to postpone a fresh trial of the Competitor crew several months.

A MONTH'S POSTPONEMENT.

New York, May 15.—A special to the Herald from Havana says: L'Union Constitutional, the inspired government newspaper, announces that the verdict of death pronounced against all five of the Competitor's crew tried on Friday by a naval court-martial was promptly confirmed by the admiral, and all preparations were being made for carry the sentence into effect when orders came to remit the papers to Madrid, though the prisoners had not been formally sentenced and have not as yet even been notified of the court's finding.

The transfer of the case to Spain amounts to actual suspension of judgment for a month or six weeks. The Spanish authorities have no desire to precipitate matters. If the superior military tribunal at Madrid should decide that Consul General Williams' protest was well based, the cases of any members of the party whose American citizenship was clear may yet be transferred to the civil court, Spain having no desire to evade treaty stipulations. The American people, he continued, may rest assured that only justice will be carried out, and that after due consideration of the diplomatic pratest of the United States and careful revision of the evidence by the best jurists in the Spanish courts.

Young mothers dread the summer months on account of the great mortality among children caused by bowel troubles. Perfect safety may be assured those who keep on hand DeWitt's Colic & Cholera cure, and administer it promptly. For cramps, bilious colic, dysentery and diarrhea, it affords instant relief. S. F. Boyce.

GOING TO 'FRISCO.

General Passenger Agents Will All Meet There.

San Francisco, May 12.—The general passenger agents of nearly all the transcontinental lines are hurrying westward to attend the meeting of the Trans-continental Passenger association in this city, tomorrow. This will be the first meeting in San Francisco, and the event is attracting great interest in local railway circles. Among the questions enumerated in the call issued by Chairman Caldwell are the following:

The use of a continuous trip ticket that will absolutely prevent stop-overs en route; business from Pacific coast points to Europe; delivery of tickets in blank to the representatives of Eastern lines by the initial lines; some matters connected with first class excursions, personally conducted; questions of commissions on tickets; demand of the Southern Pacific for a differential rate on through business; the use of second class tickets on first class sleepers by the Chicago & Great Western; consideration of a proposed rule requiring all passengers to sign their tickets; more strict enforcement of the rule requiring the re-hanging of half fare for children over 5 years of age, and full fare for children over 12 years of age.

The demand of the Southern Pacific and the Canadian Pacific for a differential on business out of this territory is a matter which promises to be debated at great length. At the present time the rate to Chicago is $62.50 first class, and $52.50 second class, via all points, and the lines above mentioned now claim the right to a differential of $10 on first class tickets, and $5 on second class tickets, on account of the circuitous route and consequent inconvenience to passengers. Until two years ago the Canadian Pacific enjoyed a differential in the sums mentioned, and it is understood that a fight will be made for the restoration of the old rates.

New Consumption Cure Discovered By an Elgin, Illinois, Physician.

Help Afforded in All Cases No Matter How Far Progressed.

Treatment is By Inhalation of Medicated Air and Other Remedies.

Elgin, Ill., May 13.—The discovery of a new process for the cure of consumption by Dr. W. A. Sheppard, of this city, is a topic of conversation. The treatment is based on the principle of inhalation and exhilation, applied by a device which introduces into the diseased lung cells healing remedies. The instrument is cylindrical, about twenty inches high and seven inches in diameter, and contains two compartments, one above the other. In the lower is the medicine which saturates the air that is taken into the lungs, and in the upper is a register for measuring the quantity of air taken into and expelled from the lungs. About 100 consumptives, it is said, have been cured by the treatment. Every case in the first stage has been restored, as were 75 per cent in the second stage, and about 10 per cent of those in the last stage.

Upon request of prominent citizens the mayor appointed A. H. Lowrie, editor of the News; Col. John S. Wilcox and George S. Bowen, president of the Elgin Scientific society, to visit a number of the patients and examine their condition. The committee reported that all of the patients testified in the most positive terms to the complete success of the treatment, that their previous opinion as to the incurability of consumption was dissipated, and they were convinced that the disease in the first and second stages had and could be cured, and that even after progressing beyond hope of cure, the patient could get great relief.

THE GROWING CROPS.

Illinois' Report is Favorable But Needs Rain.

Chicago, May 12.—The Illinois weekly crop bulletin issued today by the United States weather bureau at Chicago, says: Crops have generally advanced rapidly, with little bad effect from the great heat and lack of rain, but there is now much need of rain throughout the central counties, and showers would aid the entire state. Wheat is heading rather short and shows considerable damage from the dryness and chinch bugs; it is a poorest in the southeast counties and some fields there are being plowed up or pastured. Corn is mostly in and the early planted up, with a good stand generally, although cut worms are causing some damage.

NEW YORK'S POLICE TROUBLES.

New York, May 12.—The old fight between the police board and Comptroller Fitch took on another phase today. At the meeting of the police board a motion was presented by Commissioner Andrews suspending the payment of all drafts on the contingent fund of the department. No appropriation has been made to meet the expenses incurred by this fund, and until that is done it is proposed to stop the collecting of evidence against saloon keepers, policy shops, the feeding of criminals and the photographing of criminals for the rogue's gallery.

PEFFER'S BOND INQUIRY.

Washington, May 12.—Secretary Carlisle has received a letter from Chairman Morrill, of the senate committee, notifying him of the passage of the Peffer bond investigation resolution, and asking the secretary if he desired to be heard orally or in writing. The secretary has replied that he is ready to do either or both, as the committee may direct, but he calls attention to the fact that it will take time to prepare the information evidently desired by the resolution.

TURKEY'S NEW MINISTER.

Washington, May 12.—The state department has been advised by Mr. Riddle, the charge d'affairs at Constantinople, of the appointment of Mustafa Bey to succeed Mavroyeni Bey as Turkish minister at Washington. No reason is assigned for the recall of the present minister, who has been in Washington for the past nine years, and stands third on the list of foreign ministers here in length of service. Nor is anything known of the personality of his successor, save the fact that he is set down as the assistant in the Turkish foreign office.

THE DAKOTAS.

NORTH DAKOTA.

Sheriff O'Hara, of Ward county, and Deputy J. C. Allison, of Glasgow, Mont., who had charge of the posse organized to capture Seppick and Nelson, the two desperadoes wanted for murder, horse stealing and jail breaking, brought into Minot five horses and a camp outfit recently which the sheriff took from them twenty-five miles south of Stanley. The outlaws escaped, however, and are still at large, but will be apprehended shortly dead or alive. Twelve Indian police, in connection with the full sheriff's posse, are hot on their trail. Sandy Hart, an old timer rancher on Knife river, was arrested yesterday for harboring these cut-throats last winter, and is now in jail at this place. All who have assisted them will be dealt with by law. The deputy reports a sharp battle with the outlaws.

On June 19 next the Red River Log Rolling association will hold its annual session and picnic in Grand Forks. Reports received by President Aznoe, of the association, are to the effect that many of the Modern Woodmen camps will attend in a body. SOUTH DAKOTA.

W. F. Rudy, of Collamer, has been arrested in the upper Cheyenne country, and brought to Pierre, on a charge of stealing cattle belonging to Judge Canty, of Minneapolis, Minn. His detention is one of the most important rustling arrests ever made by the stockmen's association, which is now waging a sharp war on cattle thieves. The marshals who arrested Rudy had one of the longest chases on record, having traveled several hundred miles to reach him. Judge Canty is a member of the Missouri River Stockmen's association, and has some 400 head of cattle near the Cheyenne. These cattle were last season rebranded, and the association has been working up evidence in the case for five months. There is plenty of evidence in this case. The only feature is that the penalties are so light for stealing on the reservation, being but one year's imprisonment or $1000 fine. Rudy had about 100 head of cattle of his own, Stockmen are determined to wipe out the rustlers.

S. B. Coulson, a steamboat man on the upper Missouri river, is dying at Yankton as the result of a bite inflicted by Dr. Coney on the evening of May 2. On that date the county commissioners received bids from physicians for the pampers for the year. Dr. Coney's proposal was rejected, although it was the lowest bid offered. Dr. Coney, while under the influence of liquor, charged the rejection of his proposal to Mr. Coulson, who is a commissioner, accused the latter of favoritism and applied foul epithets until Coulson lost patience and struck the doctor. In falling he fell, and, being a very portly man, Coney soon had him at a disadvantage, with the captain's finger in his mouth. It is from this hurt that Mr. Coulson will probably die. Coney is in jail.

A. D. McKay, a prominent Black Hills contractor, died last night, from diabetes, at Hot Springs, after an illness of two years and a half. He built the magnificent Hot Springs city hall, plunge bath and other large buildings in the Black Hills. He was a native of Nova Scotia, and had been a resident of Hot Springs eleven years. He leaves a wife and child comfortably situated.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages and that is catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

TO THE ST. LOUIS CONVENTION WITH THE CELEBRATED REPUBLICAN FLAMBEAU CLUB.

A special vestibuled train of sleeping cars, dining and baggage cars, will be run from Minneapolis and St. Paul to St. Louis, June 13, via the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul railway (the popular "Hiawatha route"), to accommodate the Republican Flambeau club and their friends throughout the Northwest.

Leave the Twin Cities afternoon of June 13, and arrive at St. Louis next day.

This train will be side-tracked at a point within two blocks of Auditorium convention hall and six minutes walk to the principal hotels. Passengers desiring to do so can occupy the sleepers during the convention at low rates.

The service, in every particular, will be absolutely first-class and all may depend upon thoroughly comfortable and pleasant accommodations, both going and returning, and while occupying the cars in St. Louis.

The Republican Flambeau club is composed of leading business and professional men in Minnesota, and their trips to former national conventions and inaugurations have always done great credit to the Northwest.

The railroad rate is one fare for the round trip. For exact information as to sleeping car rates and accommodations, meals, etc., address Frank P. Nantz, secretary Republican Flambeau club, 604 Oneida block, Minneapolis, or J. T. Conley, assistant general passenger agent, C. M. & St. P. Ry., St. Paul.

Constipation can be cured easily and certainly by the use of Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets. HAD A FINE TRIP.

Joseph Watson Writes of His Passage Across the Sea.

The Herald has received a letter from Joseph Watson written aboard the steamer Campania of the Cunard line. It was written as the boat was nearing Queenstown. He said that his passage was the finest he ever experienced and he has crossed eight times. The ocean was wonderfully calm, no rougher than Lake Superior at any time. The boat carried more than 1000 passengers, among them some very prominent people. Mme. Melba and many of the grand opera singers were aboard, also Lord Gough and family, Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Havemeyer, Mrs. Pierre Lorillard, and many prominent New Yorkers and titled foreigners.

On Wednesday evening, April 29, a grand concert for the benefit of the Seamen's Charities of Liverpool and New York was given by the artists of the Royal Italian opera in London and Metropolitan opera house in New York. It was a great success and $750 was realized. Melba, Miss Marie Engle, Madame Mantelli, Mlle. Lolla Beth, Signor Ancona and Signor Russitano, sang and Nathan Franko gave violin solos. Lord Gough delivered an address. The captain declared it to be the finest concert ever given on the boat.

THE SUPREME COURT.

Justice Canty Hands Down Several Decisions.

St. Paul, Minn., May 13.—The supreme court, in a decision handed down by Justice Canty this morning, settled for all time, or at least until the laws are changed, the question as to the precedence of the states claim in the case of defunct banks. The decision was on the appeal of the receiver of the City bank, of Minneapolis, from an order of the court directing the receiver to pay over to the state its claim of $14,199.87, with accrued interest, making the total amount due $14,217.68.

BASEBALL DECADENCE.

Cleveland's Team Only Has Sixth Place.

Cleveland, O., May 13.—The Plaindealer this morning contains a half column editorial in reference to baseball and the lack of interest in the sport here. It says one reason for the great falling off of attendance at the games is the popularity of open air exercise. Baseball is enjoyed from the standpoint of the on-looker, and the only exercise for the spectator is in the way of riding on a street car to and from the grounds.

The Plaindealer thinks 50 cents dear for a couple of hours of "pleasure or disappointment, as the case may be," and, judging from the present conditions in Cleveland thus far this season, it is believed baseball will soon be a thing of the past in a professional sense.

PASSENGERS SEVERELY SHAKEN.

Pittsburg, May 13.—A report has reached this city that the eastbound cannonball express on the Central Ohio division of the Baltimore & Ohio, was wrecked near Cambridge early this morning. As yet it is not known whether any passengers were hurt. The train was running on schedule time and at a cross switch the engine jumped the track derailing several cars. The engine is a complete wreck. Later reports state that the passengers escaped with a severe shaking up. After a delay of several hours the train proceeded.

Wheat Was Very Nervous Today and Closed With Lower Prices.

A Slight Advance on the Start on Crop Damage Reports.

Rains in the Southwest and Rain Predictions Were Bearish Factors.

There was a slight advance in wheat today at the start on the chinch bug and Hessian fly reports from the winter wheat states. The market was also strengthened by liberal buying at Chicago and steady cables. It soon eased off on reports of rain in drouth stricken regions.

Again it firmed up and even higher prices than at the start prevailed. It had many spells of weakness during the day, followed by spurts of renewed strength. The market was more than ordinarily nervous and responded readily to the lead of any spirited trading on either side. The rains of the past few days in the Southwest and the prediction of general rain all over the winter wheat territory in the next thirty-six hours made the short sellers feel aggressively bearish and caused the selling of lots of wheat on every hard spot.

July opened here ¼c higher at 64c, declined to 63¾c, reacted to 64¼c, and then fell off again to 63¾c. It kept seesawing the rest of the morning and at 12 o'clock was down to 63c. Later it pulled ¼c, but again fell back to the low point. The mills bought 15,000 bu to arrive at 1c under July. Shippers took 35,000 bushels, paying ¾c under July for round lots and ⅛c under for car lots. The close was ⅛c lower than yesterday for cash and ⅝c lower for futures. GOSSIP.

Received over private wire of B. E. Baker, grain and stock broker, room 107 Chamber of Commerce and 207 Board of Trade, Chicago, May 13.—The action of the board of trade in making Armour's elevators irregular was the main topic but had no direct effect on the wheat market, though many traders thought the elevator interests active in their endeavor to hold the market down so as to buy in at short July wheat. The market declined fractionally, but on each soft spot the buying was good and very little wheat came out on the declines. The rains in the Southwest caused a weaker feeling, but the best authorities agree that great damage has already been done and whether the rains will entirely remedy the difficulty remains to be seen. Some of the most bullish reports of the season came today from Indiana on damage by Hessian flies, and from Kansas where irreparable damage has occurred from the recent hot winds. Paris sent much higher quotations on flour and the Northwest again bought here. Seaboard clearances made a better showing, and a good deal of wheat was bought today for traders who are a power in the market.

Corn and oats moved only slightly.

Provisions were freely sold by packers, and receipts of hogs are estimated to be larger for the next few days.

Puts, July wheat, 63c.

Calls, July wheat, 63¾-64¼c bid.

Whereas a libel has been filed in the district court of the United States for the district of Minnesota, Fifth Division, on the 7th day of May, 1896, by Byron B. INJURIOUS TO THE CITY.

The police authorities are justly indignant at the crass and incomprehensible policy pursued by the News Tribune in representing Duluth as a city where footpads and sandbaggers abound and holdups and assaults are of daily occurrence. There is not the slightest atom of truth in the story published this morning about a man from Ely being held up and robbed of $5 on Monday night near the Temple opera house ruins, and this fact could have been ascertained had the News Tribune made the slightest inquiry at police headquarters. In the first place, the man who is said to have been robbed did not have $5. It is doubtful if he had a cent in his pockets, while it is certain that he did not have more than 25 cents, because he borrowed that amount from a saloonkeeper but a short time before he is alleged to have been held up. His total earnings since he has been in Duluth, about two weeks, did not exceed $3.25, and further evidence of the fact that he was without money is the fact that he has been sleeping on the floor in a room over a saloon. All these facts were known by Chief Hansen and the detectives who thoroughly investigated the man's story yesterday, and if the News Tribune had been as desirous of publishing the truth as it is of printing sensational "fakes," it would have made inquiries at police headquarters and learned the facts.

The Herald refers to this matter at length, because it is the most recent illustration of the news methods pursued by the morning paper. While such false stories are calculated to reflect upon the city administration and upon Chief Hansen and his assistants, they have another and more serious effect. They are repeated in outside papers, and the reputation of Duluth suffers seriously. The city is pictured in outside papers as filled with thieves, footpads, sandbaggers and other criminals, and the erroneous impression is created that there is practically no police protection here. Not only this, but the stories attract the attention of crooks everywhere. They naturally argue that if such things happen as in this instance almost in the shadow of police headquarters, Duluth must be a fine field for their operations, and the result may be an influx of the criminal classes.

The fact is that Duluth was never more free from the criminal element than at present. Chief Hansen and his force are alert and active in protecting the lives and property of the citizens, and their vigilance has kept the city free from the presence of crooks and other criminals, and it is outrageous that such false stories should be published by the morning paper, reflecting on the police department and defaming the reputation of the city.

The Kansas City Star says: "The three most eminent prelates of the Catholic church in the United States at the present time are natives of this country. They are Cardinal Gibbons, Archbishop Corrigan, of New York, and Archbishop Kain, of the great province of St. Louis. These are Americans born, 'sons of the people,' and attached to the country, its flag and its institutions by every possible tie." The Star has omitted the name of the most eminent prelate of all—Archbishop Ireland, of St. Paul, an American in every sense of the word, whose patriotism is unquestioned and whose eloquent tongue is ever ready to proclaim the glories of the American nation.

WHY NOT END IT?

The Kansas City World asks these pertinent questions: "Is it not about time for the United States to intervene and stop the war in Cuba? Has not the butchery of women, children and prisoners of war gone about far enough? How much longer must the United States sit supinely by and permit atrocities upon American soil surpassing in horror those recently committed in Armenia? In the name of liberty and humanity how much longer must these things be tolerated?"

The Kansas City paper is right. The butchery in Cuba has gone far enough, and it is the duty of this country to intervene and put an end to it. The voice of the American people has spoken in no uncertain tone on this question. The sentiments of the great majority of the people are well expressed in the resolutions adopted by congress, and President Cleveland should proceed without further delay to give them proper effect. Not only should the belligerent rights of the insurgents be recognized by this country, but Spain should be compelled to recognize those rights and carry on the war in a civilized manner, according to the customs recognized by the international law which governs wars between nations.

The barbarous methods pursued by Spain at present are a disgrace to the nineteenth century. They are a disgrace to the other nations of the earth which permit them, and especially so to the United States, the home of freedom and the haven for the oppressed. No better pretext for interference can be found by this country than the recent seizure of an American schooner and the sentencing to death of American citizens who were captured on board the boat. President Cleveland should not permit the Spanish butcher in Havana to order the shooting of these men, but should demand their instant release. If this be refused, let the "white squadron" train its guns upon Morro castle.

BOSS FILLEY'S TRIUMPH.

All the political bosses have not been defeated this year. Chauncey I. Filley is in the saddle in Missouri. He ran the Republican state convention at St. Joe yesterday and had things all his own way, after a lively scrap at the opening, which was conducted in the usual Missouri style and resulted in numerous damaged noses and discolored optics. Mr. Filley was wiser than some of the other bosses, and this is why he is on top. He saw the McKinley wave in the distance and, seeing that it was impossible to stem the tide, he promptly decided to ride to victory on the crest of this wave. And he did it. He had a hard fight, but the victory is his, and his enemies, who merely represented other and small bosses, are discomfited.

The indications are that Mr. Filley will be the next member of the national committee from Missouri. He failed to get this honor four years ago, and at once began to lay his wires to capture it this year. The result shows that his wires were well laid and well worked. The delegates to St. Louis were of his own choosing, and they can be depended upon to vote as he desires, and of course they will cast their ballots for Chauncey I. Filley for national committeeman. Mr. Filley has been chairman of the state central committee for several years, and he used the power of this position to further his ambition. Incidentally it may be remarked that the chairman of the Republican state central committee in Minnesota is playing a similar game. He also wants to be a member of the national committee. Will Tams Bixby be as successful as Chauncey I. Filley?

The Swift County Monitor offers this excellent suggestion: "J. J. Hill delights in immigration conventions. How would it do to encourage the farmers and shippers already in the Red River valley and the Dakotas by giving them living freight rates? The rate for the same haul, northwest of the Twin Cities, is two and one-half times the rate east of the cities, and more than double the Iowa rate." Now that the matter has been drawn to his attention, perhaps Mr. Hill will reduce the rates and thus encourage the farmers already here as well as induce immigration.

Assistant Land Commissioner Best has decided adversely to the request of the would-be bidders for Red Lake pine, that the full lists and the descriptions of each tract of lands to be sold be published in the newspapers designated under the provision of the Eddy-Towne bill. Mr. Best says that if the entire lists and descriptions are published the expense will be too large.

The political talent of the delegates to the Methodist general conference at Cleveland will have a chance to assert itself in the election of five or six new bishops, and Methodists are generally accounted pretty keen politicians.

Ex-Governor Bookwalter of Ohio predicts that Grover Cleveland will be the "war candidate" of the Democratic party on a free silver platform. Mr. Bookwalter is getting decidedly humorous in his old age.

The St. Louis Star thinks McKinley will not want to be president more than four years. There are not many people who will agree with the Star on this point. It is not likely Mr. McKinley will assent to this statement.

The New York World urges that "sound money" is not a party question. The World may discover after the votes are counted in November that it was mistaken.

A recent writer on Alaska mentions a bed of strawberries thirty miles long. And yet many people think of Alaska as only a land of ice and snow.

Missouri has given Mr. McKinley another boost. Platt, Quay et al. should hasten to jump on the band wagon, or they may be too late.

Last Sunday closed the first twenty-five years since the end of the Franco-Prussian war. It has been a period of peace and great progress.

A woman was recently fined in New York for beating her husband. At last poor, persecuted, down-trodden man is being avenged.

The elevation of Bill Merriam to a seat in the cabinet would be an insult to Minnesota Republicans.

The rush to the Red Lake reservation is on. The opening on Friday promises to be lively.

THE ROUNDER.

The other day there was a slack in court proceedings at the court house and while a number of attorneys were waiting for proceedings to begin several of them, by way of training for their term's work before the jury, tried to tell a few stories which did fairly well for lawyers.

One lawyer, who had been in Kansas, told a cyclone story. A lady was sitting at a window in her home on a Kansas farm holding her baby in her arms when the cyclone came. The suction of the twister jerked the baby from the arms of the agonized mother up into the air. She saw nothing more of it, though she searched high and low for its remains.

Eighteen years after that the mother had occasion to visit a neighboring town, and just as she was entering the outskirts something fell from the sky to her wagon. In an instant she recognized her daughter, just returned by the cyclone, unharmed and now grown into a beautiful young woman.

* * *

Not to be outdone, another attorney, who was waiting for a case before the grand jury, related an authentic incident which has a familiar ring to readers of Munchausen. A friend of his was out hunting one winter day when he decided to dismount from his saddle horse and try it afoot for awhile. So he tied his horse to a small bush which stuck above the snow and trudged away. While he was gone the sun came out and melted all the snow.

When he returned he hunted high and low for the horse, but he could not even find where he had left him. While he was looking about he heard his horse neigh above his head and looking up he saw the beast suspended by the bridle from a tall tree where the vanishing snow had left him. The hunter raised his gun to his shoulder and blazing away cut the bridle and the horse fell unharmed to the ground.

If the Rounder had heard these stories from any other but lawyers he would not have believed them.

* * *

The "king's English" is much juggled with. People of a careless way of speech get into the habit of using words much warped from their original meaning and which but indifferently fit into the setting in which they are placed, if, indeed, it happens that they are even distantly related to the idea it is attempted to make convey. A woman was overheard on the street the other day to utter an invitation which undoubtedly came from her heart and was meant as an offer of hospitality, but it sounded queer. Said she:

"And isn't Katy able to get out much? I am often thinkin' I'd like to have her visit a couple of weeks with me when I am gone."

SOUND ARGUMENT.

Zumbrota News: There is one thing about this gubernatorial contest which makes us very, very weary, and that is the persistency with which some newspapers advance the argument that Clough should be defeated because he helped elect Knute Nelson to the United States senate. This is practically a dead issue, and as an argument does more harm than good. Why not conduct the campaign on the merits of the several candidates and let the best man win? That's our stand exactly. Can you put Governor Clough beside Capt. Van Sant, William H. Eustis, William E. Lee, Moses E. Clapp or John L. Gibbs, and honestly assert that he is their peer intellectually, morally or otherwise? No you can't and when you come right down to the facts, Governor Clough is not a fit man to be governor of this great commonwealth, either intellectually or morally. Did you ever hear of any of Governor Clough's friends assert that he was a clean man, an honest, straightforward, manly man, a man of the people? No, you haven't, and why? Because such an assertion would be palpably untruthful, and would incite the blases of those who know better. The best that any of Governor Clough's friends attempt to say of him is that he "has made a fairly good governor, as governors go," and there they stop. In no way is the weakness of their cause shown up as in the faint-hearted praise tehy bestow upon their candidate.

A WISE CONCLUSION.

Madison, Minn., Independent Press: Sixth district Republicans seem to have reached the conclusion that Mr. Towne is O. K. That is a wise conclusion.

AN OFFER DECLINED.

Rainy Lake Journal: The so-called Reform club, 52 William street, New York city, offers the Journal a lot of "plate matter" free of cost. It is a generous offer, generous to a fault! But inasmuch as the stuff is a lot of "stuff and nonsense" from a gold-bug Cleveland-Rollins child point of view, we most emphatically decline to avail ourself of this "golden opportunity. The Journal has not said much on the political questions of the day as yet, and if we do, it shall be to voice the cause of the people against the ruinous and rapacious greed of the "sound money" crowd, who thus attempt to bribe the weekly press of the land by an offer of free plate matter!

WHY REED KICKS.

St. Paul Globe: "Doubtless," says the Minneapolis Tribune, "Speaker Reed considered Mr. McKinley well qualified for the position he gave him at the time." And doubtless he did not. He simply followed the rule established by a series of precedents, and appointed his leading rival for the speakership to the chairman of the committee on ways and means. The Duluth Herald is unquestionably correct in saying that Reed feels like kicking himself every time he thinks of that appointment.

ARE STANDING IN LINE.

The Rush For Red Lake Lands Is On.

Crookston, Minn., May 13.—A line was formed yesterday morning by Register Dunlava, of the United States land office, which promises to be a memorable line in the history of Minnesota. It was the line which will be kept in position from now until the end of the rush for the lands of the Red Lake Indian reservation.

Some of the men who composed the line were presumably prospective settlers upon the reservation, though there may be a question as to their being able to hold their claims against those who comply strictly with the law and go upon the reservation after 9 o'clock next Friday morning to begin permanent improvements, and then come back to Crookston to make their filings. In fact, Register Dunlava admitted there were likely to be many contests over such filings, but his position is that priority of filing will be at the same time and thereby priority of occupancy.

When urged that injustice would be done to a man who strictly complied with the law and then had some other man file upon the land he had gone upon in good faith, after 9 o'clock on Friday morning, Capt. Dunlava said that it did not seem right, but that the only thing to do under such circumstances would be to settle the matter by a contest. If a man went up on the reservation next Friday morning and made his selection of land and, commencing his improvements, came back to Crookston and found a filing made by some one else, the date of which was even one minute after he began digging on his claim, the filing would be no good.

It appears plain that there will be many contests arising out of Friday's filings, as there will probably be many hundreds, perhaps thousands, of men in line here who will not attempt to go upon the reservation that day, but have already picked out choice pieces of land on which to file.

The trains from Crookston reservation points are heavily laden. United States Inspector Andrews arrived yesterday, and in a spirited speech to the crowd, which formed in line and was being allotted numbers, said that he would arrest any man who tried any Oklahoma boomer business here and prosecute him to the end. The leader of a party said to be Oklahoma boomers, made a strong resistance, claiming his rights as a citizen. The inspector had the building cleared last night, and will not recognize any parties as being entitled to be in line until the actual hour of opening. It is claimed that the boomers intend to hold their places until actual settlers put in an appearance on Friday, and then sell their positions in the line. There is an extra police force on duty.

HURTS THEIR BRAINS.

Babies Are Not Benefited By Bicycle Rides.

Chicago, May 13.—The fond father, the admiring uncle and the doting big brother, who have been in the habit of strapping baby into a basket, or other contrivance, and giving the youngster a ride on a bicycle, must forego that sort of amusement, or incur the liability of prosecution. Such is the edict of the Illinois Humane society.

The officers of the society have been giving the matter serious investigation. The brunt of a shock when a collision occurs, is only one of the least objections raised. Medical experts agree that the rapid and unnatural motion affects the child's brain. The official protectors of the children propose to invoke the aid of the law.

FRENCH OPINION.

Paris Papers Continue to Roast Uncle Sam.

Paris, May 13.—In the French newspapers of today there is further adverse criticism of the attitude of the United States in the matter of the Competitor filibusterers. The tone of the comment corresponds with the following, which is from the Eclair:

"It is clear that Brother Jonathan has just as many scruples as his brother John Bull. He wants to interfere, at any price, in affairs which do not concern him. This policy will not find supporters in France."

A LIVELY COUNCIL.

Free Fights at a Hammond City Meeting.

Hammond, Ind., May 13.—Free fights followed the meeting of the common council last night. A mob of angry citizens became aroused to fury by the councilmen's action and precipitated a hand to hand battle, in which the following persons suffered most severely:

Ex-Councilman Fred W. Newell, scalp wound, caused by heavy cane in the hands of Charles Speichert.

Theodore Ahlendorf, ex-township officer, two teeth knocked out, back injured.

Frank Bonleer, head cut and internally injured.

Charles Speichert, eyes gouged and otherwise disfigured by by-stander.

The measure that caused the trouble was a bill to redistrict the city.

KILLED HIS FRIEND.

Kid McCoy Shoots Actor Charles Stewart.

Denver, Col., May 13.—Comedian Charles J. Stewart, formerly a member of the Haverly minstrels, and lately one of the managers of the Stewart & Young Graphophone combination, was fatally shot by William Newell, alias "Kid" McCoy, an ex-convict, in Pat Hickey's saloon about midnight.

Newell had words with Hickey over the payment for drinks and pulled a revolver intending to shoot Hickey. He fired, the bullet striking Stewart, who was standing at the bar. Newell and Stewart had entered the saloon together and were friends. Newell was arrested.

THEY ARE SQUEALING.

Mazeppa Tribune: The Clough people are squealing hard over an alleged combination on the part of Van Sant, Lee and Eustis to carry Hennepin county and the Fifth district. From the tone of voice in which the Princeton Union speaks of it, one would be led to believe that the combine could cook the deal to suit themselves. It's shameful for them to do it, though! They should allow Clough to walk off with everything without so much as protesting—according to the Union's notions. But it seems there are several people on earth in this great state who propose to do as they please whether it suits the Princeton Union, Bob Dunn, Governor Clough or Tams Bixby, or not.

One swallow doesn't make spring, but one swallow of One Minute Cough Cure brings relief. S. F. Boyce.

Grand Chapter of the Eastern Star Order in Session Today.

The Address of Welcome Was Delivered By Mrs. A. N. McGindley.

Grand Worthy Matron and Others Responded---Business Taken Up.

The grand chapter of the Order of the Eastern Star, of the state of Minnesota, convened at Masonic hall this morning in its eighteenth annual session, a large number of delegates from all parts of the state being in attendance. The proceedings of the chapter are conducted in secrecy.

The chapter was opened and formed at 10 o'clock by Worthy Grand Matron Louise Lyon Johnson, of Minneapolis, assisted by Worthy Grand Patron Charles D. Boyce, of St. Paul. The address of welcome was delivered by Mrs. A. N. McGindley, of this city, which was responded to by Mrs. Emma Fuller, of Graceville. Worthy Grand Matron Johnson then addressed the chapter, reviewing the affairs of the order and its work during the past year.

The reading of the reports of the various officers occupied the greater portion of the afternoon. The session will be taken up almost entirely with business affairs.

It will not be possible to give a complete list of all the delegates until the committee on credentials has made its report, but there are about 200 present. About fifty of them came in last night and the balance this morning. Most of them are at the Spalding, but the St. Louis, St. James', and other hotels have quite a large number.

Tonight the local chapter will exemplify the work of the order for the grand chapter.

THE RUSH FOR LANDS.

Many Going to Red Lake Via Deer River.

Grand Rapids, Minn., May 13.—Passenger travel on the Duluth & Winnipeg railway is greater than usual now, on account of the movement to the Red Lake reservation. Formerly the coaches were only half filled, but they have very few, if any, unoccupied seats these nights. Three-fourths of the passengers stop over here, the others ride on to the terminus—Deer River, fifteen miles north west. The well-to-do class of travelers take advantage of the metropolitan conveniences that present themselves at the county capital.

The railroad agent at Deer River, D. D. McLennan, was here yesterday. He said that about half of the travelers that get off the trains at his town are either prepared, or soon prepare themselves, and proceed northwestward and westward. Some of them have told him they were going to the Red Lake reservation, and he knows of quite a number that have been up that way and took claims on this side of the reservation limits, as they were satisfied that the locations were just as good as they wanted. Beyond the swamp lands, that are found occasionally between here and Lake Winnibegoshish, there is a vast quantity of excellent land, mostly timbered, obtainable under the ordinary provisions of the "homestead" and "timber and stone" laws. The existence of the intervening swamps gives the assurance that Grand Rapids can have no sharp rival for metropolitan progress within fifty or sixty miles, unless a railroad should be built up from the south, and yet there are varied resources here sufficient to insure the permanency and growth of the established business.

Hon. D. M. Gunn and County Attorney Pratt have returned from Minneapolis, where they delivered the abstracts of the Grand Rapids experimental farm property to the board of regents of the state university. They are highly pleased with the progress made by Professor W. M. Hays and Superintendent W. W. Pendergast toward getting matters in shape so that the work of the farm here will proceed early this season.

The commissioners of Itasca county received the keys of the handsome new court house Friday night. It cost nearly $60,000.

A WORN-OUT FAD.

"Spring Medicines," "Blood-Purifiers" and "Tonics" an Old-Fashioned Idea.

Pure blood, strong nerves and muscles, firm healthy flesh can only come from wholesome food well digested. "Blood purifiers" and "nerve tonics" do not reach the cause of the mischief. The stomach is the point to be looked after. The safest and surest way to cure any form of indigestion is to take after each meal some harmless preparation which will of itself digest food. There is an excellent preparation of this kind composed of vegetable essences, pure pepsin, Golden Seal and fruit salts, sold by druggists under the name of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets, and these tablets taken after meals assist digestion wonderfully because they will digest the food promptly before it has time to ferment and sour, and the weak stomach relieved and assisted in this way soon becomes strong and vigorous again.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are superior to any secret patent medicines, because you know what you are taking into your stomach. They are sold by druggists everywhere at 50 cents per package.

Write Stuart company, Marshall, Mich., for book on stomach diseases.

ACTOR DIES SUDDENLY.

New York, May 13.—William Tucker, a theatrical man who came to this city from Chicago with his family a short time ago, died suddenly last night while witnessing the performance in the Union Square theater. The cause of his death has not as yet been determined, but it is supposed to have been heart failure. His was 40 years of age, and had been traveling actor and stage manager for a number of years. He recently traveled with Robert Gaylord's "In a Big City" company, and had acted as stage manager for "The Fortune Teller" company.

DESIRE AN EXCEPTION.

Cyclists Want to Ride on Park Point Walks.

At the meeting of the council on Monday evening, Alderman Coventry introduced an ordinance prohibiting the riding of bicycles on any sidewalks within the city limits. The ordinance came very near passing immediately, but was finally referred to the ordinance committee.

The ordinance is admitted to be excellent in its idea, but many cyclists think it is too sweeping. There will doubtless be an effort made to secure the exception of the streets on Park Point. A large number of those people who camp across the canal in summer ride down on their wheels from the canal to the first curve, and the street railway track from there on. If they are prohibited from riding on the sidewalk they might almost as well be barred from Park Point altogether. Then, too, the sidewalks down there are traveled very little, and that only for a distance of a few blocks. If the riding of bicycles on the walks down there is stopped there will probably be a large decrease in the number of campers on the Point this year.

AMUSEMENTS.

"SINBAD."

"Sinbad" was repeated at the Lyceum last night before a fair house, and the last performance of the old Henderson stand-by took place in Duluth. Miss Elsing did not sing, her place being taken by her under study. The company left last night for Chicago, where it will put on for rehearsal Henderson's revival of the "Crystal Slipper."

This also closes the Lyceum's season with the exception perhaps of Richard Mansfield in June. He is booked but his coming is uncertain.

Manufacturer's Sale.

An odd entertainment is in progress at 221 West Superior street, given by the Ladies Aid society of the First M. E. church. A large stock of goods, donated by the manufacturers, is on sale at low prices. At noon dinner is served. The assortment of articles accumulated from the manufacturers is worth seeing.

Derby-Cross Wedding.

Willard B. Cross and Mrs. Anna Perry Derby were married in the presence of a few friends at St. Paul's Episcopal church at 9:30 last evening. After the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Cross left for a trip by way of St. Paul. After their return they will make their home here. Both parties are well known here. Mr. Cross is secretary of the Sagar Drug company, coming to Duluth from Marquette a number of years ago.

Recovered the Balls.

COVERED WITH SCALES

Eczema made its appearance on my head in its worst form, and it continued spreading until my face was covered with scales and became a horrid sight. I had a fine head of hair, seven years' growth, and had to sacrifice it. I was in despair. The physicians had failed even to relieve me, when one recommended CUTICURA SOAP. My father procured a set of CUTICURA REMEDIES, and in three weeks the scales left my face and the skin lost its florid hue. In six weeks I was entirely cured. My face was smooth and my complexion clearer and finer than it had ever been before.

TALK ON MEXICO.

An Entertaining Discourse By Prof. A. J. Woolman.

A large party of people took "A Trip Through Mexico" last evening with Professor Woolman, at the Pilgrim Congregational church, being transported to that country by means of the stereopticon. The professor, after prefacing his remarks by saying that he had nothing to say about Mexico, proceeded to say a good deal about it, entertaining his auditors with a word picture of the country, the people and the manners that evidenced the most intelligent observation and the keenest insight, and was altogether as vivid in outline as the charming, well selected views that followed.

The history of Mexico, said the speaker, is divided into two periods; the one, before the conquest and stretching back to the horizon of history, the other covering the time after the subjugation by the Spaniard to the present time. The first period, although presenting scenes often of barbaric cruelty is, nevertheless, in pleasing contrast to the second epoch, which latter presented a revolting record of intrigue and vandalism never paralleled, and of which some conception may be gained by viewing the fact that in the space of fifty years Mexico has had fifty-five presidents, two emperors, and one regent.

"The Mexicans," said the speaker, "as that people is made up today, are of three distinct species, the Europeans and Americans making up the first class; the Mexicans proper the second class, and the Indians the third class. The Mexican proper is a cross between the old Spaniard and the Indian. Of the first class, about 10 per cent are French, English and other nationalities, and the balance are Spaniards, the latter constituting the bulk of the nobility, as they might be called, and are the land owning class.

"The Mexican himself ranges all the way from a Spaniard to a full blooded Indian. He is of all vocations and has great capacity for intrigue. Restless, yet with no liking for work and with no continuity of purpose, he seems to be in a transition stage between the impassiveness of the old state and something new and scarcely, as yet, foreshadowed. As he is at present constituted, it seems to be a luxury to him to pass from palace to hovel and to wander from the city to the desert until, perhaps, a bullet ends his erratic career.

"Mexico is ruled by the strong arm. It is the best policed country in the world. By the presence of soldiery everywhere only is travel rendered safe and traffic possible. The Mexican has lost what skill his forefathers may once have possessed in manufacturing and he is now below the standard of the Indian. In agriculture, even, he has no method, no regular seed time and harvest, but sows and reaps in a slipshod, haphazard way."

The views included portraits of Juarez, the Washington of Mexico, and Maximilian, the unfortunate; scenes in and about the capital city and other cities of the republic, including typical dwellings, of which both interior and exterior views were given, and street scenes. The travelers were shown the pyramid of the sun, in which priceless relics of the Aztecs are buried; the aqueducts designed by the priests and built by slave labor, by which the water supply is conducted to the capital; and the celebrated calendar stone of the Aztecs; the canal of Mexico city and the new drainage canal, now in course of construction. They also gazed out over a desert given over to cacti and the "Spanish bayonet," and looked into the crater of Popocatapetl. As the last view disolved, a round of applause testified the appreciation of the audience.

FURTHER PARTICULARS.

Some More Facts Concerning the Flogging Case.

It is quite possible that there will be some developments at the trial of Miss Braithwaite, the Bryant school principal who is accused of beating Henry Grytdahl, one of the pupils of the school, in an inhuman manner, which may prove rather confusing to those persons who are engaging themselves so actively in pushing the prosecution. The boy is alleged to have received the whipping on Wednesday last. The News Tribune, which received its story entirely from those people who are concerned in the prosecution of Miss Braithwaite, had this to say on Sunday morning:

"When the boy was finally released after this specimen of enlightened methods of nineteenth century instruction, he managed to stagger home to his parents. Then he complained of his injuries, and an examination showed that the thighs of the child were covered with livid welts that would appeal to the sympathy of the most brutal person. Mrs. Grytdahl burst into tears when she saw the injuries the boy had received. By this time the tender flesh had begun to swell, and Henry was taken to Dr. Bakke, who dressed the bruises. Then the child was taken home and put to bed, where he remained for a day, being unable to go to school and his parents being unwilling to permit him to go."

Now, as a matter of fact, there is positive evidence that the boy continued in school throughout the afternoon of the day of the whipping and went through his exercises as usual. More than that, on Thursday, the day following, he was out with a number of boys who were herding cows and was scuffling and wrestling with them and having a good time.

Miss Braithwaite, in punishing the boy, followed the rules laid down by the board of education, which require that the punishment be administered in the presence of at least one witness. The instrument used was a piece of small rubber tubing.

Only a day or two ago another instance of the kind was reported. The mother of another young hopeful, who probably did not get half what he deserved, called on Superintendent Denfeld and declared that her darling had been whipped till he was covered with welts, and that she was going to swear out a warrant against a certain teacher, also at the West End. The superintendent took the boy's name and went down and saw him. An examination showed no sign of any marks, and the boy told Mr. Denfeld that he "hadn't been hurt a bit."

RINGLING'S CIRCUS.

The Great Show to Be Here June 8.

Ringling Bros.' World's Greatest Show, than which no more popular exhibition ever visited this city, will be in Duluth again Monday, June 8. Since the famous and popular big show was here last it has been greatly enlarged, and is now, beyond all question, the grandest combined circus, menagerie and hippodrome ever organized in the United States. The show has recently concluded a phenomenally successful three-weeks' engagement in Chicago, and the newspapers of the World's Fair city unequivocally declared it the greatest of all great shows. The performances to be given here will be the same as those presented in Chicago, and among the arenic celebrities are many European specialists entirely new to this country. Chief among these are the French family of expert bicyclers and roller skaters; Le Pluer, the intrepid French diver; the three Picardas; the acrobatic Brothers LeRoy, and the Landauer troupe of nine classic models from Berlin. Among the many other sensational features are the incomparable Nelson family of nine lady and gentleman acrobats, the highest salaried arenic act in the world; the flying DaConnas; M'lle Irwin, the "human top;" Miss Rooney, Elena Ryland and a dozen other male and female riders of worldwide reputation; three herds of performing elephants, including the only herd of baby elephants in the world; Monsignor Nazello's laughable pig circus; the world's greatest menagerie, embracing the only living giraffe in the United States, a genuine blood-exuding hippopotamus, and more other strange and interesting wild animals than any dozen zoological gardens can boast of; a revival of the ancient hippodrome races on a scale of unparalleled grandeur and completeness, and a grand introductory spectacle, typifying the wealth of color, the richness of wardrobe and the classic gorgeousness of the famous festival of Olympus.

An original feature with Ringling Bros.' shows is the fact that nothing is advertised that is not presented in the performance precisely as announced. Another departure particularly commendable in this day of equivocation and misrepresentation, when so many shows are masquerading under obsolete titles, is the fact that the show is owned, controlled, managed and accompanied by its five famous proprietors, who make it their personal pleasure to look after the comfort of their patrons, and thus guard them from the impositions that are too frequently permitted by other managers. Circus day will be inaugurated with a grand street parade, in which all the brilliant processional features of the show will be exhibited free upon the city's streets.

I have been a close student for many years of the subject of weakness in men, the fact is, I was a sufferer myself. Too bashful to seek the aid of older men or reputable physicians, I investigated the subject deeply and discovered a simple but most remarkably successful Remedy that completely cured me, and fully enlarged me from a shrunken, stunted condition to natural size and strength. I want every young or old man to know about it. I take a personal interest in such cases, and no one need hesitate to write me, as all communications are held strictly confidential. HUDSON BAY CANAL.

Col. Scoble, the Chief Engineer, Is in Duluth.

Col. Scoble, of Winnipeg, chief engineer of the canal projected to unite the waters of the Red river with those of Hudson bay, is at the Spalding. Col. Scoble's visit here is to obtain estimates from the American Steel Barge company as to the cost of constructing light draft barges for the canal. Incidentally, he has been inquiring in regard to the scheme to construct a canal from Duluth to connect with the natural waterway between here and Winnipeg. While he looks upon this scheme as feasible, he believes that the heavy cost will hardly warrant the construction of the canal for some time to come.

Discussing the project upon which he is himself engaged, Col. Scoble said: "The proposition to connect Winnipeg with Hudson bay by the improvement of the existing waterways is neither novel nor chimerical. The Red River of the North, flowing for 600 miles from south of the international boundary to its northern boundary to its northern outlet on Lake Winnipeg, presents with the lake a navigable stretch of nearly 1000 miles, broken only by the rapids on the Red river, a hiatus of not more than ten miles altogether. The Nelson or Sea river, as the eastern branch of that river is called, is navigable for thirty-eight and one-half miles further, the point of departure on the proposed chain of communication. From that point northeasterly to Hudson's bay there exist navigable stretches of 330 miles, broken only by surmountable obstacles, embraced in a total distance of less than fifty miles. It is not proposed that a greater depth than seven feet of water shall be at present provided, as that would be sufficient to float barges of 300 tons capacity, such as recently have been constructed at Cleveland for the use on the upper lakes and Erie canal. Out of the 681½ miles between Winnipeg and the mouth of the Nelson river, on Hudson's bay, no less than 616½ miles require absolutely no improvement, the existing waterways being sufficiently wide and deep. Of the remaining distances, only ten and one-half miles of canal will be necessary. The canal can be built in one season. The longest continuous piece of work is only a mile and three-quarters, so that the whole work can be under construction at the same time. Our scheme commences at the international boundary line. We aim to connect the improvements on the Red river in Minnesota and Dakota, with those projects by us, so as to secure continuous navigation from, say Fargo, to the sea."

LONDON DIVORCE SENSATION.

London, May 13.—The divorce suit of Mrs. Watt against her husband, Hugh Watt, formerly a member of parliament for Glasgow, on the grounds of cruelty and misconduct, is exciting a great deal of attention. Most of the leaders of the bar are engaged on one side or the other. Mr. Watt denies his wife's allegations, and asks for a judicial separation on the ground of cruelty, claiming that his wife for months declined him marital relations.

A LIVELY SCRAP.

Box Receipts Attached at the Lyceum Last Night.

The season of David Henderson's company and the Lyceum theater came to an end simultaneously last evening, and both went out with a glare of fireworks that proved very interesting. The box office receipts of the American Extravaganza company were attached last evening on a claim of Alfred Biancofiori, a member of the company.

Officer Jenson was armed with the writ and, awaiting an opportunity, made his way into the box office, where he found Manager Marsh. There was trouble at once and the officer though: he had stepped into a beehive. Manager Marsh was up in arms the moment the official star rose above the horizon.

"You will only get the box over my dead body," he exclaimed, jumping in front of the cash receptacle. He waved his arms threateningly and a warlike spirit gleamed in his eyes.

Two members of the company, hearing the loud talk, rushed in and ranged up alongside of the manager. They announced they would fill the officer full of lead. A resolution to that effect passed unanimously, but it could not be conveniently carried out because they had no guns.

Court Officer Marshall and Sergeant Kenna now put in an appearance and Manager Marsh was persuaded to leave the office and the cash was seized. At this juncture overtures for a settlement were made and accepted.

Managers Marsh and Henderson also had an unfriendly set-to, in which it is claimed a blow was struck, but without doing any damage.

This engagement of the "Sinbad" company was certainly not without sensational incidents. Last night's was the second. The first occurred on Monday night. When David Henderson stood on the Lyceum steps that evening and saw the boycotters urging people to keep out of the theater, and succeeding in many cases, he was mad clear through. He went into Manager Marsh's office and asked where the police of Duluth were. Chief Hansen and the patrol were sent for, and both managers demanded that people be allowed to enter without being molested or threatened. Mr. Henderson wanted several men arrested, claiming that he would produce witnesses against them.

Chief Hansen said the men had a right to pass their cards and would make no arrest without having a warrant. There was some warm talk on both sides, but nothing was done.

HOW DOES IT FEEL TO BE A MILLIONAIRE?

Was asked the other day of a rich man. "I never thought of that," he replied, "but now that you speak of it, I believe I am no better off, certainly no happier, than when I didn't have a dollar to my name and had to work from daylight to dark. I wore a good suit of clothes then, and I only wear one suit now. I relished three meals a day then a good deal more than I do three meals a day now. I had fewer cares; I slept better, and I may add generally that I believe that I was far happier than I have been many times since I became a millionaire."

Lord Bacon was about right when he said that money was "like muck—not much use unless spread."

That's what the Metropolitan Life Insurance company is doing —spreading money. It is spreading it this year among 60,000 families, the great bulk of whom would have nothing but for industrial insurance. It paid to its beneficiaries last year over $6,500,000.

It has a branch office in this city, where full information concerning its operations may be had.

DELIGHTFUL MUSICALE.

Frank M. Stephenson's Song Recital Last Evening.

The lecture room of the First Methodist church was filled last evening at the song recital by Frank M. Stephenson, assisted by the Gounod choir. The giving of this recital was a graceful act on the part of Mr. Stephenson and was warmly appreciated by his friends. He is to leave within a few days for Pittsburg, where he will make his home, and the recital was a farewell.

Mr. Stephenson has a baritone voice of remarkable quality and should he choose to follow a musical career would not fail to make his mark and a very high one at that. His voice is rich, full and resonant and possessed of abundant power, in fact, in strength, it seems to be almost limitless. Its range is wide and all of the tones are round and clear. The careful training which Mr. Stephenson has received is evident for he controls his voice admirably and sings with artistic finish. It is too often the case that a singer with a powerful voice is unable to hold it in check, but Mr. Stephenson sings in planissimo as softly and delicately as could be desired and his shading is excellent. Eight numbers were on his program. He opened with the recitative "Like Death's Foreboding," and aria "O Thou Sublime Sweet Evening Star," by Wagner, a magnificent selection. Three Schubert numbers followed "By the Sea," "The Wanderer" and "Serenade." "The Wanderer" was one of the most beautiful of the evening and "By the Sea" was a difficult one in that it required the sustaining of so many of the high notes. "Salve Regina," by Dudley Buck was received with great enthusiasm and Mr. Stephenson was twice recalled. "Echoes," by Sadley was a superb selection, and "The Muleteer of Tarragona," by Heurion was a spirited number which was in decided contrast to some of the others. As an encore to the final number Mr. Stephenson sang the beautiful "O Promise Me," by DeKoven.

The Gounod choir sang five numbers under the direction of Mark C. Baker, and all were well received. The "Serenade," by Neidlinger was sung by Mr. Baker and the choir, and received an encore. The work of the choir deserves great praise and was remarkably smooth and finished.

A WRECK DISCOVERED.

Dunkirk, N. Y., May 13.—(Special to The Herald).—Fishermen have discovered a floating spar on the lake, about four miles west of Van Buren Point, which is fastened to something at the bottom of the lake. It is thought to be the wreck of the propeller Dean Richmond, which foundered in that vicinity in October, 1893, and for the finding of which a reward of $1000 is standing.

THE KENT AND MOONLIGHT.

Marquette, Mich., May 13.—(Special to The Herald.)—The schooner Kent, which was released from Chocolay beach by Capt. J. Hursley, of Sault Ste. Marie, last Sunday evening, is not seriously damaged. Her hull is as good as it was before she went ashore. Her starboard bulwarks amidships were stove in by the Moonlight and her deck planks started for a distance of perhaps fifteen feet; otherwise she seems all right. Capt. Hursley purchased both the Kent and the Moonlight for $7000. He was two weeks dredging a channel to the Kent, but half of that time was unable to work on account of unfavorable weather. The sand was of such active nature that much of it had to be handled two or three times. It will require about the same amount of dredging to release the Moonlight. Capt. Hursley expects to have both boats at Duluth inside of ten days.

THUNDER CLOUD AT WASHINGTON

HEAD CHIEF OF THE KICKAPOOS SHOWN THE SIGHTS OF THE NATIONAL CAPITAL.

The beauty of the Buildings entranced him; the height of the Monument surprised him; the mysterious Trolley Cars bewitched him; but what astonished and appalled him was the many sudden deaths in civilization. Impure blood, liver and kidney troubles responsible for many being so stricken.

THUNDER CLOUD.

Thunder Clond when on a visit to Washington recently to see the Great White Chief, as the red men call the President, was paid many attentions and shown the sights at the Nation's Capital. When asked what surprised him most about civilization, the Head Chief of the Kickapoos startled his questioners by replying,—"The appalling number of sudden deaths among you 'pale faces.'"

The truth of Thunder Clond's assertion cannot be denied. Statistics show that yearly thousands of people are suddenly stricken on the street, in public places, at their desks, and in their homes. Their deaths are attributed to "heart failure," but if the truth were known, impure blood, liver and kidney disorders are what sever so quickly the thread of life.

How unlike are the people of today from the Indians whose "one talent" was and is to keep well, strong and able to endure the most terrible hardships and privations. For years they kept the trail to health a secret. Now, thousands are being cured of disease by Indian remedies. The Kickapoos now and always led their race in medicine compounding. Sudden death from disease is unknown to them. Why? They always keep their blood—the oil in the lamp of life—pure and strength-giving by using their great blood purifier and tonic, Kickapoo Indian Sagwa.

If you are "off the hooks," lack the activity and ambition that you usually have, are irritable and nervous, have a poor appetite, suffer the terrors of sleeplessness, or get up in the morning feeling more tired than when you went to bed, or if your skin is dry and hard, and distressing eruptions break out over your body, your system is run-down and your blood needs toning-up and purifying, or your liver and kidneys demand attention. If you want to be well and strong again, do as the Indians did.—take Kickapoo Indian Sagwa. Don't delay, buy a bottle at once, you won't be well until you do. Stop on the crest of the steep hill of failing health while you can, once on a downward course means suffering despair—death.

Sagwa is for sale by all druggists, $1.00 a bottle. If you have any special trouble write to the Kickapoo Indian Remedy Co., New Haven, Conn., and one of their corps of skilled physicians will advise you free and treat your letter confidentially.

A. P. A. MEETING.

Newspaper Men Excluded From Council Chamber.

Washington, May 13.—The supreme council of the A. P. A. began its routine business today behind closed doors. It has been decided to hold only one session a day, and to devote the afternoon to committee work. Today's session was consumed in the reading of reports by the officers. President Traynor read his annual address, and the reports of Supreme Secretary C. T. Beatty, of Chicago, and Supreme Treasurer C. C. Campbell, of Minneapolis, were also read. Each report was referred to a special committee, and no publicity will be given their contents, until the committees have passed upon them and decided what parts are suitable for general consumption and what should be kept secret.

An effort was made by newspaper men, who are delegates, to secure admission to the meetings for members of the press, but the motion was lost. "There is really nothing done in the meetings which could not properly be heard by the public," said Mr. Dewolf, of the Boston Standard, the chairman of the committee.

The question of sustaining the advisory board which blacklisted McKinley arouses more interest than any other question connected with the council. Many of the delegates wear McKinley buttons. Buttons bearing the likeness of Congressman Linton, of Michigan, are worn by many of the delegates. Little talk of Mr. Linton for a presidential candidate is heard, but there is a movement on foot to secure an endorsement of him by the Republicans for the vice presidency.

A new and apparently strong candidate for the supreme presidency of the A. P. A. has appeared on the scene in the person of J. W. Echoles, an Atlanta, Ga., lawyer. Baltimore and Atlanta are the two cities in the field endeavoring to secure the next convention.

MILWAUKEE STRIKE.

Company Running More Cars Than Usual.

Milwaukee, May 13.—The street railway strike is practically over. The company is today operating 155 cars, two more than the usual number, and traffic is maintained without interruption on all the lines. Thirty experienced men came from Cleveland today, and the same number from Buffalo. The latter were in uniform. The company states that it now has nearly enough men to operate its lines regularly. Defections have to be figured on, however.

The strikers cut the trolley wires on North avenue this morning, and the police made eight arrests for the act, including a member of the grievance committee of the strikers.

Did you ever think how readily the blood is poisoned by constipation? Bad blood means bad health and, premature old age. DeWitt's Little Early Risers, the famous little pills, overcome obstinate constipation. S. F. Boyce.

BRITISH MISSION LOOTED.

Shanghai, May 13.—Anti-missionary riots broke out at Klang-Yin yesterday. The British mission was looted and burned. The missionaries escaped.

FILIBUSTERING CASES.

Judge Benedict Admits Prisoners to Bail.

New York, May 13.—John D. Hart, Capt. John O'Brien, Mate Edward Murphy, and Col. Emilio Nunez, who were recently arrested in Philadelphia, for violating the neutrality act in connection with the first trip of the steamship Bermuda to Cuba, appeared before Judge Benedict in the criminal part of the United States circuit court today. Since their arrest the prisoners have been indicted. Pleas of not guilty with leave to withdraw, if considered necessary, in the course of ten days, were entered for each of the defendants.

Judge Benedict fixed bail in each of the cases at $2500. The alleged filibusterers will not be brought to trial, it is believed, until the United States supreme court decides the appeal in the Horsa cases, which are to be argued at Washington next Monday. The prosecution of John D. Hart for the Laucida's first expedition having been abandoned, United States Commissioner Shields today dismissed the bail which was $1500.

JACKSON'S TRIAL.

Defense Closed Its Argument This Morning.

Newport, Ky., May 13.—Attorney Crawford, for the defense in the Scott Jackson case, closed his argument at noon. Among the propositions presented today was one that Pearl Bryan was dead before her body was left in Kentucky, and another was that if she was killed in Kentucky the murderer was not Scott Jackson. Attorney Lockhart, for the commonwealth, will begin his argument this afternoon. It is possible the case may go to the jury tonight.

KRUGER IS LENIENT.

Releases a Number of Pretoria Reform Prisoners.

London, May 13.—It was reported on the stock exchange today that the Pretoria reform prisoners, with the exception of the five leaders, had been released subject to three years police supervision. These prisoners were fifty-nine in number and each of them was sentenced to two years imprisonment with £2000 fines, or failing payment, one year's additional imprisonment, and three years banishment after the expiration of the term of imprisonment.

SENATOR WALLACE.

New York, May 13.—There is no change today in the condition of ex-United States Senator William A. Wallace. He is unconscious and his death may come at any time.

A. L. Wooster, a prominent citizen of Osseo, Mich., after suffering excruciatingly from piles for twenty years, was cured in a short time by using DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve, an absolute cure for all skin diseases. More of this preparation is used than all others combined. S. F. Boyce.

BOSS WON

Chauncey I. Filley Carried All Before Him in the Missouri Convention.

Re-Elected State Chairman and Endorsed For Member of National Committee.

The Downfall of Mr. Kerens and His Followers Was Complete.

St. Joseph, Mo., May. 13.—Not until 4:30 this morning did the Republican state convention adjourn, after resolving in favor of McKinley, in favor of sound money and electing four delegates to the national convention. The convention was in some respects the noisiest and most troublesome ever held in the state.

The delegates-at-large are: Chauncey I. Filley, of St. Louis; ex-Congressman E. G. Niedringhaus, of St. Louis; Maj. William Warner, of Kansas City, and J. H. Bothwell, of Sedalia. Alternates: Byrd Duncan, of Butler county; Charles F. Gallenkamp, of Franklin conty; H. R. Williams, of Greene county; Charles P. Covington, of Pike county; Maj. Warner withdrew his name, but was elected as the last delegate chosen.

The convention re-elected Chauncey I. Filley as chairman of the state central committee and passed resolutions favoring him as member of the national Republican committee to succeed R. C. Kerens, who was turned down by the delegates.

Filley, in addition to being made chairman of the state central committee named all the members and controls the machinery in every respect. The downfall of Kerens and his followers was complete. Kerens was voted for as national delegate at large, after Bittenger, of St. Joseph had withdrawn in his favor but was defeated. The only riffle in the clouds was the election of Major Warner, who has been classed as a follower of Kerens, but who, in seconding the nomination of Filley, showed that he was being taken in by the boss.

After the locking out of the delegates by Kerens' followers yesterday Filley is said to have resolved to leave no stone unturned to secure their ultimate defeat in everything, and to that end will this afternoon try to control the convention of the Fourth congressional district which meets in this city. The convention met at Platt City, Monday, but after routine proceedings adjourned to meet in St. Joe this afternoon at 2 p. m. A combination had been effected between the anti-Filleyites by which a silk stocking district delegate was to be sent to the national convention, but Filley will defeat this.

The fight between the followers of Kerens and Filley will therefore likely be renewed at the district convention. The postponement of this convention was had in order to allow the election of Bittenger as district delegate, in case he was defeated as delegate at large. But Filley's presence may turn the tide and this afternoon's fight will be as bitter, on a small scale, as was the one of yesterday and last night.

TARSNEY'S NEW JOB.

Washington, May 13.—The president today sent the following nominations: Justice—John C. Tarsney, of Missouri, to be associate justice of the supreme court of the territory of Oklahoma. Also some minor army promotions. Mr. Tarsney is a well known ex-congressman, and comes from Kansas City. He held a seat in the present congress, but it was contested, and he was unseated. He served on the ways and means committee in the last congress.

PRIZE FIGHTERS ARE HELD.

New Britain, Conn., May 13.—J. J. Walsh, Al Farr and Luke Bowen were today held for trial on the charge of aiding and abetting the prize fight which "Johnny Hoolihan" was defeated in last week. Nolan has disappeared, and it is said was spirited away by his friends that he might escape prosecution on the charge of manslaughter. Rumor has it that Nolan is in constant delirium, and that the chances for his recovery are poor. The remains of Hoolihan were buried this afternoon.

CHAIRMAN KNIGHT DEAD.

Philadelphia, May 13.—T. C. Knight, chairman o fthe Philadelphia stock exchange for the last ten years, is dead, aged 57.

Found His Man.

Sheriff Holmberg, of Hennepin county, met Charles Johnson on Fifth avenue west, near Superior street, this forenoon. The sheriff was glad to see Charles; he had come all the way from Minneapolis for that very purpose. Charles was so flustered by the meeting that he apparently forgot his name, telling the sheriff it was Jones. The sheriff had a picture, however, which a young lady had given him, and when Charles saw it he wilted. Charles is a colored Romeo, whose presence in Minneapolis coming events demand. He acknowledged he was the man, and the sheriff and he left for Minneapolis at noon.

THE COURT

The Grand Jury Returned No Indictments This Morning.

It Is Still Wrestling Vigorously With the F. A. Stratton Case.

A Jury Reports a Disagreement After Being Out Two Hours.

The grand jury this morning was again in session, and again did it adjourn without bringing in any indictments. It was still wrestling with the case of F. A. Stratton, and from the length of time the case has taken, it appears to be a difficult knot to untangle. The impression about the court house, founded of course largely upon surmise, is that no indictment will be returned.

Judge Ensign's court was still occupied with the case of William Hare against the Eastern Minnesota, and the defense began its side of the testimony this morning. One of its exhibits is a complete, life-size switch target and block. The one which the plaintiff alleges caused Thomas Hare's death.

In the case of A. Mansfield against W. D. Williams, the jury yesterday afternoon returned a verdict for the defendant. The case of Mary Engel against the Scott & Holston Lumber company was next taken up, and the drawing of a jury begun. The jury was not completed until this morning, when the case proceeded. The plaintiff claims that it cut some logs on the St. Louis river and that the defendant appropriated them. Damages in the sum of $1700 are asked.

The case was tried once before and decided in favor of the defndant upon a law point, which decision was overruled by the supreme court.

The case of Julius Cook against B. E. Baker was given to the jury this morning and in less than two hours the jury asked to be excused on the ground that it could not agree. This breaks the record for disagreements. The jury was sent back to try it some more.

The cases of the Powers Dry Goods company and the Schmidt Bros. Trunk company against W. M. Abrahamson to recover goods sold to Moses Cook and purchased by Abrahamson from him, were decided in favor of the defendant. It will be remembered that Moses Cook ran a clothing store on Lake avenue. He purchased a large quantity of goods, it was claimed, and then failed. The plaintiffs in the above cases replevined the goods bought from Cook by Abrahamson, and when the cases came up this morning they made no appearance. The jury was waived and judgment entered for the defendant for the value of the goods taken.

The case of the Pabst Brewing company against W. W. Butchart was next taken up, and it was on trial at noon. The suit is to recover a stock of liquor, valued at $700, seized by the sheriff from W. A. Wagner, upon which the beer company claims a prior lien by virtue of a chattel mortgage executed by Wagner.

ONLY TWO LEFT.

The Circuit Court Calendar is Nearly Cleared.

The May term of the circuit court has been narrowed down to two cases and one of those may possibly be continued. These are Peter Canfield, guardian of William Canfield, against the receivers of the Northern Pacific railway, and John C. Klatundy against Le Roy Brooks, J. G. Mitchell and W. C. McClure. The chancery cases have not been reached.

The case of Ann E. Morey against the city of Duluth was argued and submitted yesterday and Judge Nelson decided in favor of the defendants. The facts were agreed upon by stipulation. W. C. Sherwood and F. W. Smith deeded the right for a street across a certain piece of property at the East End, which they had previously mortgaged to Ann E. Morey. They defaulted and she bid in the property for the full amount of the mortgage. She sued to recover on the ground that they had no right to deed the property without her consent. Judge Nelson held that the transfer was good.

This morning the case of James S. Gardner, Newton McFadden and James Dewar vs. D. F. Sexton was dismissed, also John Rathler vs. Northern Pacific railroad, and Aaron T. Bliss vs. Samuel Hodgedon and James J. McDonald. A motion to strike out part of the answer in John C. Klabundy vs. LeRoy Brooks, et al, was argued and submitted.

The trial of the criminal cases was taken up in the district court this morning. John F. Gisse, charged with introducing liquor on the Fond Du Lac reservation pleaded guilty. It was explained that he was going into the woods and was asked to take a bottle of whisky to another man. He crossed the river on the reservation side because it was better traveling there and met a man who asked if he had any whisky. He innocently replied yes and was arrested. Judge Nelson ordered the marshal to keep him in charge until sundown and fined him $1.

The case against I. Grettum the attorney, will come up for trial next week. An Indian, Mish-oc-quod, was on trial this morning for introducing liquor on the Fond du Lac reservation.

The grand jury has returned indictments against Frank Montveidle, Antonio Cadrean and Michael Furlong for introducing liquor on to an Indian reservation; Archibald Cameron and Patrick Lyons for selling liquor to Indians, and Lawrence Picansh for contempt of court in failing to respond to a witness summons. Frank Montveidle not being present his bail was declared forfeited and a bench warrant was issued.

The Eastern Star.

The afternoon session of the Eastern Star, it was expected, would be taken up with the report of the committee on credentials, the call of the roll of delegates and the reports of other committees, in which case the election of officers would not be reached until tomorrow. All the offices are to be filled, being those of worthy grand matron, grand patron, secretary and treasurer, which are elective, and those of warder, sentinel and points of the star, which are supplied by appointment of the worthy grand matron.

HE WAS NOT ROBBED.

The Story About the Roberts Hold-Up Untrue.

Frank Roberts, the teamster, who who alleged he had been held up and robbed on Monday night has departed, having borrowed 10 cents from J. W. Schultz, a Lake avenue saloonkeeper, on which he traveled to Superior. He concluded not to wait to recover the money he asserted had been taken from him by a highwayman.

Roberts, who was here about two weeks, was a hanger-on about saloons, subsisting partly on the charity and partly on the few dollars he earned driving a night scavenger wagon. His pay for the work he performed as teamster was doled out to him in small driblets, and his employer says he never paid him more than a dollar at a time.

On Sunday night Roberts asked to be allowed to sleep on the floor in a room over the Bodega saloon, on West Superior street, which request was granted, and he spent the night there. On that evening, at 7 o'clock, about two hours before he was held up and robbed of $8, as he claimed he borrowed 25 cents of the bartender at the Bodega, and he was seen afterwards hanging around with two strangers, to whom he had attached himself, who seemed to have money, and who were treating him. If there was an attempt to rob anybody, the police are inclined to think Roberts tried to rob one of these men, and got the worst of it.

Yesterday morning Roberts slept on the floor over the Bodega, and told several stories to account for the condition of his face, finally saying he had been kicked by a horse. He was interviewed by the detective, and pointed out a man he claimed was one of the two who had robbed him, but on being confronted by the person he accused, he weakened. The inquiries growing pretty searching, and his tale not standing the strain very well, Mr. Roberts departed for fresh pastures.

New Duluth Fire Department Trouble Adjusted.

The leaders of the factions in the New Duluth fire department fight, attended by about fifty retainers, were rounded up in the mayor's office yesterday afternoon, where a conference was held with the view of healing the dissension that has arisen in the New Duluth volunteer fire company.

As heretofore stated, the trouble arose over the action taken by the fire commissioners at their meeting in the early part of the month in substituting one man to do duty both as engineer and watchman in place of the two who had heretofore performed those duties. About half of the volunteer firemen immediately announced that they would no longer serve, others volunteered to take their places, and there was at once a fight on that involved nearly the whole town.

The meeting yesterday was held in response to invitations from the mayor to meet and talk the matter over in his office. The question was discussed at length, and Reindl and Shaw submitted a proposition to work for a little less money than they had been receiving.

The fire commissioners heard the merits of the controversy as presented by the respective sides. Strong representation had been made to the commissioners against the change effected by the resolution passed at their regular meeting. After a thorough canvass of the names attached to the petition presented and hearing the arguments advanced, it was decided that it would be for the best interests of the community that Reindl and Shaw be reinstated, and the resolution ousting them was reconsidered, the motion to that end prevailing 2 to 1, Commissioner Randall voting in the negative. Reindl and Shaw will receive $10 and $45 per month respectively, in accordance with a proposition made by them.

STATES HIS POSITION.

Alderman Richardson Thinks He is Misunderstood.

Alderman Richardson's position in regard to the selection of a site from which to take the supply of water for the city has not been accurately understood, so he said yesterday.

"My position now, as it has been all along, is as stated in the report I drew up in behalf of the special ways and means committee appointed by the council," said he. "In it I stated that I was in favor of investigating Minnesota Point as a source of supply, as well as all other localities where we might obtain water at a minimum of expense. No one can say that I was a party to any scheme to delay the building of the waterworks by agitating the question of a change of site as a means of creating a division of sentiment in order to bring work to a standstill. If we could get pure water from Minnesota Point, and it proved to be advisable on the score of economy, I was for it. I was not in favor of Minnesota Point; I was in favor of the best water at the least cost."

GODDESS OF JUSTICE

Dimensions of the statue—Height, 9 feet; weight 97,000 ounces of pure silver, valued at $61,850, with gold base valued at $224,000, making a total value as seen at the World's Fair of $285,000 worth of precious metal.

Now enthroned on the third floor of our store.

This peerless statue of Ada Rehan, representing "JUSTICE," is the product of Montana's genius and enterprise; it is the marvel of the age and proved the leading feature of the World's Fair and the Atlanta Exhibition. Its enormous intrinsic value of nearly $250,000 merely accentuates the immensity of the exhibit. The expense of bringing the Statue to Duluth and giving the people at the head of the lakes an opportunity to view this masterpiece of art of the century is a very large one, but it is only another proof of the great enterprise and sagacity of Duluth's Most Popular Store.

Bitter Fight Expected at the Colorado State Republican Convention.

A Bolt By the Wolcott Party is Considered Probable.

Demand That His Name Go in the Resolutions With Teller's.

Pueblo, Colo., May 14.—The delegates to the Republican state convention, which will meet here this evening, are split up into several factions, and until some middle ground will be found upon which all will come together there will be a bitter fight which may result in a bolt. While it is agreed that Senator Teller shall be elected by acclamation as the first delegate-at-large, the friends of Senator Wolcott, under the lead of J. F. Sanders and Henry Brady, threaten to bolt and send a contesting delegation to St. Louis, should any stigma be cast upon the junior senator, in the resolutions, or otherwise. A strong section of the party insists that Wolcott shall be condemned, and his resignation as senator demanded, in consequence of his course regarding the silver issue and the Venezuelan question.

The El Paso county (Colorado Springs) delegates, and many also from Denver, demand not only that there shall be no condemnation of Senator Wolcott, but that his name shall be coupled with those of Senator Teller and Representative Shafroth in any endorsement of their course in congress. In some quarters it is intimated that Senator Wolcott will not be contented with anything less than delegate-at-large, but it is well understood that Senator Teller will not serve on any delegation of which his colleague in the senate is a member, since the latter has boldly announced his purpose to stand on the platform adopted at St. Louis, even should it declare for a gold standard. Several hundred delegates from the northern part of the state, including the contesting delegations from Denver, arrived on special trains between 10 and 11 o'clock this morning.

As the Second district congressional, the delegates to which are also delegates to the state convention, is still in session, having failed to finish its deliberations yesterday, the opening of the state convention will be delayed, and in consequence of the contests that will have first to be decided, the more important business will not be reached until this evening, and the convention may have to continue in session tomorrow.

Delegates from forty-one of the forty-two counties in the state held a caucus this forenoon and agreed upon the following, which will be incorporated in the platform and undoubtedly adopted:

"We hereby endorse the course of our representative member of the congress on the silver question, and heartily endorse Hon. Henry M. Teller in his stand and actions in the United States senate, on the tariff, in maintaining that no tariff legislation be passed by congress until silver is restored to its proper place in the currency of the country, and there is free coinage of that metal at a ratio with gold of 16 to 1."

The Wolcott men still threaten to bolt. Should they do so, those who remain will adopt a resolution demanding his resignation as United States senator.

Charles Brickerstein, of Conejos county, and C. C. Hart, of Pueblo, were elected delegates to the St. Louis convention from the Second Colorado district by the Republican convention this morning.

Senator Teller was endorsed and asked to lead the Colorado delegation. An effort to amend the resolution, so as to instruct not to bolt at St. Louis, was defeated by a vote of 199 to 170. Bimetallism and protection are declared paramount.

WEST VIRGINIA.

Republicans Hold Their State Convention Today.

Clarksburg, W. Va., May 14.—Promptly at 11 o'clock, State Chairman Dawson called the Republican state convention to order. The great wigwam was crowded, all the delegations being in their places. Chairman Dawson congratulated the Republicans of the state on the splendid state of the organization and the outlook for Republican success in West Virginia, and named for temporary secretary Hon. Stuart F. Reed, of Harrison, and assistant, T. W. Duckwall, of Monongahela.

Hon. Thomas E. Davis, of Taylor, was named as temporary chairman. Mr. Davis was enthusiastically cheered. He spoke briefly, declaring at the outset that McKinley was already nominated, and it only remained for West Virginia to add her voice to the ratification. This was greeted with enthusiastic cheers. The usual committees were then appointed, and at 12 o'clock the convention adjourned until 1:30 p. m.

The convention reassembled at 2 o'clock. The committee on permanent organization recommended P. W. Morris for permanent chairman, and P. H. Waters, of Kanawha, secretary. Chairman Dawson made a speech which stirred up the McKinley enthusiasm.

The convention instructed for McKinley and declared for sound money amid great enthusiasm.

WASHINGTON REPUBLICANS.

Everett, Wash., May 14.—The Republican state convention will meet here this afternoon. The time will be almost solidly for sound money. The chairman of the convention will undoubtedly be John McKellar. The indications are that the delegates will be instructed for McKinley, although there is a strong sentiment in favor of sending the delegation absolutely uninstructed.

SENATOR WALLACE UNCHANGED.

New York, May 14.—Ex-Senator William A. Wallace, of Pennsylvania, remains unconscious. There is no change in his condition today.

ALL ARE INDIANS.

People of Mixed Blood Maintaining Tribal Relations.

Washington, May 14.—The senate committee on Indian affairs today considered the house bill providing for free homesteads on public lands in Oklahoma for actual settlers, and after amending it so as to make it apply to all other states and territories, agreed to report it with a favorable recommendation. As amended the bill applies the homestead laws to all lands which have been acquired from Indian tribes in all the public land states, and it is of very general importance. The bill also carries a provision suspending the land laws in the territory heretofore known as Greer county, Texas.

The committee also agreed to a favorable report on the senate bill defining the rights of mixed blood Indians. The bill declares all persons who have Indian blood, and who have maintained tribal relations with any tribe of Indians, to be Indians and entitled to all the rights and privileges of full-blooded Indians.

PAID THEM OFF.

Receivers Payne and Rouse Discharged By Court.

Milwaukee, Wis., May 14.—Judge James G. Jenkins made an order in the United States circuit court at Chicago, in the Northern Pacific railways case yesterday afternoon, which was filed last evening in the clerk's office of the same court at Milwaukee, discharging Receivers Rouse and Payne as such receivers, and canceling their bonds. The court awarded the receivers as compensation for their services the sum of $36,250 in addition to $45,250 which each had already darwn, being in all at the rate of $2716.66 per month for two and one-half years.

By the terms of the order the trust estate and the property is made liable for all the receivers' contracts and responsible for all their liabilities. This order frees them entirely from all liability, and relieves them from duty.

ANOTHER EXPEDITION.

Guns, Ammunition and Men Sail For Cuba.

Key West, May 14.—The schooner Gladiator eluded the vigilance of the United States revenue cutters at Ft. Myers, this state, and has sailed for Cuba with arms and men. It is said that there are on board 1300 rifles, 1400 machetes, 250,000 rounds of cartridges, a quantity of dynamite and four rapid-firing guns. It is understood that among the eighty-five men on board are several Americans, and that the leader of the expedition, A. F. Gonzales, is a naturalized American citizen.

The Americans supposed to be on board are: W. R. Washburn, an inventor; L. C. Stewart, a military engineer; George R. Jones, an expert gunner, and two others who are skilled in the manufacture of gunpowder.

HEAVY EARTHQUAKES.

Disturb the Serenity of South American Towns.

New York, May 14.—A dispatch from Panama, Colombia, says: Advices from Guayaquil, Ecuador, are to the effect that great damage was done in Quito and the interior towns of the republic by the recent heavy earthquakes which destroyed the city of Puerto Viejo. Babahoyo and Ambato were great sufferers by the seismic disturbances and the loss of life was very great.

The port of Bahia was visited Tuesday night by a hurricane of signal violence, accompanied by subterranean thunder. Along the coast of the province of Manabi chasms of enormous extent have opened in the earth.

CHINA WARNED.

Will Have to Respect All British Interests.

London, May 14.—Answering a question on the subject in the house of commons today George N. Curzon said the government had no information confirming the report that Russia was occupying the foreshore at Chefoo. He added that, according to the British minister at Pekin, a concession had been granted to a Russian firm, by the terms of which the British owners consider their rights infringed.

China, Mr. Curzon continued, had been warned that she must not include in the Russian concession property belonging to British subjects, unless with the consent of the owners. In conclusion Mr. Curzon stated that the Tsung Li Yamen had been informed that it would be held responsible for all injury to the British interests.

ODD FELLOWS TEMPLE COMPANY.

Cincinnati, May 14.—The Odd Fellows Temple company, incorporated for the purpose of building and maintaining the great Odd Fellows temple at Seventh and Elm streets, made an assignment to Marcus Worthi. The assets are estimated at $550,000, and the liabilities at $260,000. The building was completed a year or two ago, and is one of the most complete of its kind in the United States.

RETIRED

Bishops Bowman and Foster Relieved of Their Episcopal Duties.

Grown Gray in God's Service, the Methodist Conference Relieves Them.

The Two Old Gentlemen Leave the Conference Hall Together.

Cleveland, Ohio, May 14.—Today's session of the Methodist Episcopal general conference was marked by the largest attendance of the session, both of delegates and spectators. The boxes were all filled and the seats reserved for the general public were occupied. Instead of taking up the general order of business the call of the committee was resumed where it was left off yesterday. When the committee on temporal economy was called, Secretary Monroe asked for a suspension of rules, whereby a resolution, which contemplated a change in the discipline, could be acted upon without being in the possession of the conference for one day and without being printed in the Daily Advocate.

The report of the committee on missions, to increase the contingent fund from $25,000 to $50,000, was adopted. The committee also recommended a Hing-Hua mission in China. It was adopted.

The reports of the committee on education, which excuses students from taking the conferences' examinations in those branches in which they have passed satisfactory examinations in some Methodist school, was adopted unanimously. The committee on church extension made a report against the extension of work in foreign lands.

Great interest was manifested in the report of the committee on episcopacy. Dr. Buckley, the chairman, made a report upon three distinct subjects. He read the report of the committee. It stated, in the opinion of the committee, Bishops Bowman and Foster are too old to stand the strain of the duties, and recommended their retirement at the end of this conference. In the list of bishops returned as effective were all other bishops with the exception of Bishop Taylor, and his name was not mentioned. A generous appropriation was urged for them, and the respect felt for them was fully set forth.

As soon as the report was read Bishop Foster advanced. The entire audience arose and received him with the greatest applause. In the midst of a most impressive silence the low tones of Bishop Foster's voice were heard. He said he simply had a request to make. He knew the question was one of great delicacy and he begged to be permitted to retire. Cries of "No, no," came from all parts of the hall, and Bishop Foster extended his arms, saying:

"Please, please."

It was a most pathetic scene. Bishop Foster spoke for a few moments, and the conference, by a rising vote, granted him his request. Bishop Bowman said he would make the same request, as he had just learned, for the first time in his life, that he was not effective. A call was made for a few remarks from him, but he declined to say anything, and the two white-haired fathers left the hall. Bishop Foster's speech was touching in the extreme, and he left everything in the hands of the conference.

The first part of the resolution was adopted. Then Dr. Buckley read the second part, determining the non-effectiveness of Bishops Bowman and Foster. Dr. Buckley moved the adoption of the report and a hundred voices seconded the motion. Dr. George H. Bridgeman, of Minnesota, offered a substitute, which cited that Bishop Morris and Bishop Simpson be continued on the board of bishops but relieved of their active duties. In support of his motion Dr. Bridgeman said it was unnecessary and unkind to take such action as was contemplated in the report of the committee. He eulogized Bishops Bowman and Foster, and urged that they be permitted to round out their magnificent careers as effective members of the board.

Rev. J. C. Sawyer spoke feelingly in favor of the substitute. He said the other members of the board could be trusted to give them little work or none at all. The only object in retaining them was to retrench, and that was unnecessary in the face of the immense membership. He closed with a strong appeal for the adoption of the substitute.

The report stung Rev. Dr. John Lanahan, of Baltimore, who said the proceedings of the episcopal committee had been unparalleled in the history of the church, and he hoped it would never occur again. "The meetings have been secret, but they have called them executive and the name has been most appropriate in that the meetings have been held for execution," he continued. "Why say to the world that things are to be said that cannot be said in public and published to the world? Why should anything be said of these noble men behind their backs?"

Dr. Lanahan had been informed that things had been said which could not be said in public and he called on Dr. Buckley to inform him if such was the case. Dr. Buckley refused to reply to any question, and said he would later answer the singular arraignment of the committee.

The previous question was moved and Dr. Buckley then said that the reason for secret sessions was in order that the bishops, who are about to be retired, might be interrogated without the interference of "incompetent and unsympathetic" reporters. He made a strong appeal for the report, and said that the bishops had declined in the vital force of life, until they had come to a point where it would be necessary for them to retire. The appeal was dramatic and strong, but did not answer the questions of Dr. Lanahan.

A recess of ten minutes was taken. Immediately after the recess Dr. Buckley read the report on a bishop of African descent. The report first stated that in the selection of bishops there should be no discrimination by reason of color or nationality and recommended the election of a bishop of African descent as the present time is fit and propitious for it. After a stormy two hours' debate the substitute of Dr. George H. Bridgeman, of Minnesota, prevailed. It provides that Bishops Bowman and Foster be relieved of their active duties but continued on the board of bishops and that two new bishops be elected.

RAINY AT DES MOINES.

Des Moines, Iowa, May 14.—It has been raining steadily since 4:30 last evening. The rain is the longest of the season.

DIAMONDS STOLEN.

Heavy Robbery From a Soda Water Emporium.

New York, May 14.—The police heard of a robbery committed some time Monday night in the soda water and confectionery store of Eugene C. Ackers, in Sixth avenue. The booty amounted to $22,000, most of it being diamond jewelry. Although Ackers is not a dealer in jewelry, he has invested a lot of money in diamonds and this accounts for so many of them being in the safe at the time.

The police have arrested John H. Riedell, on suspicion of having been connected with the robbery. The arrest was made yesterday. Riedell had been cared for by Ackers and was looked upon as much as an adopted son until his fast manner of living rendered him unendurable to his benefactor.

A. P. A. COUNCIL.

Much Secrecy Observed in Their Meetings.

Washington, May 14.—The supreme council of the A. P. A. continued today to deal with routine matters, with no interest to others than members of the order. Many resolutions were introduced at today's session and were referred to various committees for consideration. The council has not yet decided whether to give to the press an abstract of President Traynor's annual message, which is reported to be a very spicy document. Although the interest of the delegates is centered upon the policy to be pursued by the A. P. A. in the coming presidential campaign, it is exceedingly difficult to secure any correct account of the factions and under currents at work in the council, on account of the secrecy which is being observed.

Last night the advisory board held a meeting to consider the action of its executive committee in black-listing McKinley. A special oath of secrecy is said to have been imposed upon the board in relation to the McKinley matter. Two reports are in circulation as to the course likely to be pursued. One report has it that the advisory board will report its action upon McKinley's candidacy to the council tomorrow. The other story is that the board will be very glad to have the declaration it has made heretofore stand without any consideration by the council, and will not bring the matter forward, but will act on the defensive if it be called to account for its policy.

The Ohio delegates declare they will leave no stone unturned to secure a reconsideration of the ban placed upon McKinley, and insist that they will call on the advisory board for an explanation. A majority of the councillors seem to regret that the body should have become entangled in such an issue. Many of them believe that the A. P. A. should announce the principles upon which a presidential candidate must stand to receive the support of members of the order, and should avoid personalities.

MILWAUKEE STRIKE.

A Conference Being Held There This Afternoon.

Milwaukee, May 14—The feature of the street railway strike today is the conference between a committee of citizens, the directors of the railway company, and a committee of the striking employes. The citizens' committee proposes to raise a fund of $5000 to be spent in deporting the new employes, so as to make room for the return of all the strikers. Nothing is expected from the conference, which is to be held this afternoon, because deportation is impractical.

Many of the men came to the company's assistance out of idleness, and to return them to that state after they risked their lives to break the strike would, from their standpoint, be rank ingratitude. The company now has 750 employes, including forty of its old hands. The union denies that any of the strikers have returned, but some of the old men can be seen upon the cars.

HANGED HER CHILDREN.

Louisville, May 14.—A special to the Times from Ripley, Ohio, says a widow named Fitzpatrick near there this morning hanged her four children and herself. It is supposed that the woman became suddenly insane.

Collier, Southside, Pittsburg; Edward Dummer, Wheeling; William Davis, Atlanta, Ind.; William Davis, Elwood, Ind.; M. M. Markland, J. C. Kilgallon. The committee will meet here Friday morning and will get through by Saturday. The annual convention at Detroit will be called to order Tuesday morning and may be in session two weeks.

CHAMBERLAIN HAS NO NEWS.

London, May 14.—The secretary of state for the colonies, the Right Hon. Joseph Chamberlain, has not received any news tending to confirm the report circulated in Berlin and in the city, that the sentences of the Johannesburg reformers have been commuted.

GOLD RESERVE DECLINING.

Washington, May 14.—Today's statement of the condition of the treasury shows: Available cash balance, $267,601,326; gold reserve, $116,154,105.

TWO KILLED AT BUFFALO.

Buffalo, May 14.—Two men were killed at the Ellicott building today. They are: Gus Purdy and Val Jehley. Both men were working at the bottom of an elevator shaft. Other workmen engaged at the top of the shaft, ten stories up, dropped a steel jack weighing forty pounds and an iron bolt weighing five pounds. The jack struck Purdy on the head fracturing his skull, and the bolt fractured Jehley's skull. Both men expired shortly after being removed to the hospital.

GUILTY

Jury at Newport Say Jackson Killed Poor Pearl Bryan.

They Affixed the Death Penalty to Their Verdict Today.

General Satisfaction With the Verdict---Jackson Asserts His Innocence.

Newport, Ky., May 14.—The Scott Jackson case went to the jury at 10 o'clock this morning. Before receiving their instructions, bloody clothes, letters and other articles that were shown in evidence were placed in their hands. At 12:05 the jury returned to the court room with a verdict. Amid a death-like stillness the foreman handed the verdict to the clerk, who read as follows:

"We, the juny, find the defendant, Scott Jackson, guilty of murder in the first degree, and fix his penalty at death."

The judge had previously announced that no demonstration of approval or disapproval by spectators would be permitted. Officers were placed about the room to enforce this order and bring them before the court to be punished for contempt. Consequently the verdict was heard with silence, but immediately upon the adjournment of court the spectators rushed to the jurors and shook their hands heartily. They also shook each other by the hand, showing a hearty approval of the verdict of the jury.

Jackson himself received his doom with no manifestation of emotion except an ashen paleness of the face. None of his relatives were present. The aged father of Pearl Bryan, and her brother, Fred Bryan, were present when the verdict was rendered.

The usual motion for a new trial was made, and then Jackson was taken away to jail. He had been surrounded by a half dozen or more officers when the jury came in, and went out under their protection, although there was no demonstration to indicate a necessity for so much care. The general impression is that the verdict is right.

In anticipation of trouble, in the event of a disagreement, or of acquittal, the commonwealth had arranged for a special train to transfer Walling, as well as Jackson, to the state penitentiary at Frankfort. This train was in waiting until noon, and no one knew anything of it except the officers and railway officials.

In a long interview Jackson admits his surprise over the verdict, and claims that he had proved an alibi. He still maintains his innocence, and says that Walling killed Pearl Bryan. The prisoner is greatly depressed over the verdict, and in his interview could not suppress his despondent feelings.

Walling has also been interviewed since the verdict and expresses his satisfaction. He still maintains that Scott Jackson killed the girl, and in his interview repeatedly stated that Jackson deserved hanging.

FRANTIC EMPLOYES.

Badly Scared But Not Hurt By Fire.

St. Louis, May 14.—For half an hour, between 12 and 1 o'clock today, thirteen frantic people, mostly girls, were imprisoned in two rooms on the fourth floor of a burning building at 622 Locust street. The two front rooms of this floor are occupied as tailor shops by M. N. Bannoff & Co. and Siegelbaum Bros. A gasoline stove used for heating irons exploded and filled the narrow hallway with flames.

In the rooms thus shut off from the stairway by the flames were the seamstresses and others. As the smoke came pouring into the room the wildest excitement seized the girls. They rushed for the stairs, but smoke and flames shut them off. Panic stricken they ran back into the room and would have dashed themselves out of the windows forty feet above the ground had they not been restrained by the men present. Several of them swooned from fright, while others were nearly crazed by excitement. The fire department soon arrived, however, the flames were speedily subdued and all the penned up people were rescued without bodily harm.

THE ARMOUR STRIKE.

Kansas City, May 14.—Decided action on either side is expected in the Armour strike situation before the day closes. The company's temporary injunction against the men runs out today, and the strikers have called a mass meeting to make plans to conduct their fight systematically. Following the cut by Armour, Swift and other concerns, it is said, contemplate reducing their forces.

DENIED BY DICKINSON.

New York, May 14.—Don M. Dickinson, of Michigan, postmaster general in the first term of President Cleveland, unequivocally denied today the statement published in a Detroit paper that he had a letter from President Cleveland which said that the latter would not be again a candidate for the presidency.

AN ARTISTS' CONVENTION.

Kansas City, May 14.—Members of the Western Authors-Artists' club, including men and women from various places in the West, are holding their eleventh annual meeting here. The gathering is noted for the interchange of thought and ideas than the transaction of any particular business. Several people of more or less note are in attendance.

NOMINATED BY THE PRESIDENT.

Washington, May 14.—The president today sent the following nominations to the senate: State—Ernest Mann, of Florida, to be consul of the United States at Bergen, Norway; Robert Ransom, of North Carolina, to be second secretary of the legation of the United States to Mexico.

KNITTERS ON A STRIKE.

Salem, N. J., May 14.—About 100 employes of the Salem knitting mills, which are owned by J. P. Sheppard, went out on strike on account of a reduction in wages.

TEMPEST

A Severe Storm Raged in Western Wisconsin During Last Night.

Over Twenty Railroad Bridges Reported as Being Washed Out.

Miles of Track Under Water and Railroads Are Blocked.

St. Paul, May 14.—Reports indicate that perhaps $100,000 worth of property has been destroyed in Western Wisconsin by a great storm which raged there last night. There were cloudbursts at Colfax and Bloomer, and great damage was done. At least twenty bridges are reported washed out in Western Wisconsin.

The Wisconsin Central train from St. Paul, due to reach Chicago this morning, is tied up at Colfax, bridges being torn down on both sides of it. There are also several washouts and a couple of landslides. A mile east of the passenger train a freight train is caught between two washouts and can move neither way.

An attempt was made to run a special train to Colfax from Eau Claire, but it could not get through. Miles of track are under water.

Reports from points south of Chippewa Falls say the storm was the worst ever known, and that the small streams are swollen to raging rivers. Nearly two inches of rain fell in St. Paul.

FRIGHTENED PEOPLE.

Moving From Homes to Escape a Flood.

Chippewa Falls, Wis., May 14.—Destructive storms visited this section of the country last evening, doing much damage in the country, and especially along the track of the Wisconsin Central road west of this city, where 400 yards of track and four bridges have been washed out. At Bloomer, north of here, a cloudburst did much damage. The dam at that place is expected to go out, and if such is the case, high water is expected in Duncan creek. Merchants and families along the creek in this city are moving out.

CORRESPONDENTS ARRIVE.

Exiled From Havana Under Weyler's Orders.

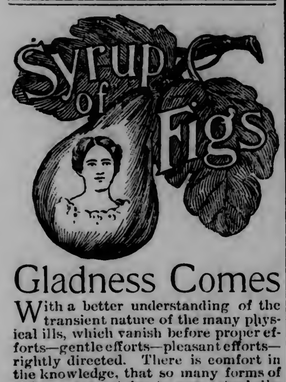
New York, May 14.—The Ward line steamer Sergranca, Capt. Hoffman, arrived today from Mexico and Havana, bringing fifty-three cabin passengers. Eighteen passengers were unable to produce certificates of acclimatization from Dr. Burgess, United States medical inspector at Havana, and they were transferred to Hoffman island, where they will be detained until tomorrow afternoon.

Among the detained passengers were Messrs. Creelman, Lawrence and Biddle, Cuban war correspondents for New York city papers, who were ordered to leave Havana by Gen. Weyler. The correspondents were most anxious to proceed with the steamer to the city, but the health officers would not allow them to go. They were sent to Hoffman island in the lower bay. They will be released about 4 p. m. tomorrow.

PREFER REED.

National Committee Wants Him For Vice President.

Cincinnati, May 14.—The Commercial Gazette sent letters to all members of the Republican national committee stating that the nomination of McKinley at St. Louis being conceded, it was desired to gather preferences for vice president. The replies will be published today, and show that, with the exception of three preferences for Hobart, of New Jersey, the members of the national committee favor Thomas B. Reed for vice president.



Gladness Comes

With a better understanding of the transient nature of the many physical ills, which vanish before proper efforts—gentle efforts—pleasant efforts—rightly directed. There is comfort in the knowledge, that so many forms of sickness are not due to any actual disease, but simply to a constipated condition of the system, which the pleasant family laxative, Syrup of Figs, promptly removes. That is why it is the only remedy with millions of families, and is everywhere esteemed so highly by all who value good health. Its beneficial effects are due to the fact, that it is the one remedy which promotes internal cleanliness without debilitating the organs on which it acts. It is therefore all important, in order to get its beneficial effects, to note when you purchase, that you have the genuine article, which is manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co. only and sold by all reputable druggists.

If in the enjoyment of good health, and the system is regular, laxatives or other remedies are then not needed. If afflicted with any actual disease, one may be commended to the most skillful physicians, but if in need of a laxative, one should have the best, and with the well-informed everywhere, Syrup of Figs stands highest and is most largely used and gives most general satisfaction.

SHE SMILED SWEETLY

On the Manly Man in the Full Vigor of His Magnetic Manhood.

No Use Now-a-Days For Puny, Debilitated Individuals—Everybody Can Be Quickly, Easily, Permanently Made Happy.

Sparkling eyes, a quick beating heart and the rosy blush of pleasure greet the strong manly man, when he meets his lady love. That is the kind of a man whose very touch thrills because it is full of energy, vigorous nerve power, and vitality. That is the kind of a man that every man should be, and his magnetic presence would make everybody happy around him. Why is it not so? One of the principal reasons is the universally prevailing tobacco habit. Tobacco kills nerve. Stay with tobacco long enough, and every man will be a sallow, skinny, nerveless wreck, inspiring disgust instead of love and affection. No man who uses tobacco can be as much of a man as without it.

No grasp so strong as the death grip of habit, and man once fully in its clutches is helpless without aid. That's why every tobacco-user has the same good excuse—"I can't quit." No-To-Bac removes this only excuse, and anyone who will can quit easily, quickly and permanently. Here's an instance:

MADE HIS WIFE HAPPY.

Crestline, Ohio, June 5.

Dear Sirs: No-To-Bac has entirely cured me of the use of tobacco, and the result of the treatment has been a surprise to myself and friends. Now when I am offered a chew or smoke by my friends it is declined with thanks, and I refer them to No-To-Bac. I could not begin to tell you how many times my wife has thanked your No-To-Bac for what it has done in my case. J. W. McCULLY.

This is only one of thousands. Talk with your wife about it, and start your cure today.

No-To-Bac is not sold on the recommendation of men like Mr. McCully, one of over 300,000 cases cured, but can be obtained from any druggist in the United States or Canada under absolute guarantee of cure or money refunded.

Our booklet, "Don't Tobacco Spit and Smoke Your Life Away," written guarantee of cure and sample sent free. Address The Sterling Remedy Co., Chicago or New York.

Crum appeared in his own behalf and got the case adjourned from the public court room to Judge McConnell's chambers, much to the disappointment of the large audience present.

Four hall storms and over two inches of rain is the record at Britton for the past three days. Best of Langford and south of Newark hail and wind did considerable damage. Stock were badly bruised and cut by the hail. About three inches of rain fell where the storm was heaviest. NELSON

Minnesota's Senator Speaks at Washington on Immigration Question.

Pays a High Tribute to the Millions of Foreigners Here.

Spoke of Minnesota as a Good Example of Immigration's Benefits.

Washington, May 14.—Senator Nelson of Minnesota, was the chief speaker today on the immigration question. His remarks were particularly happy, and he presented the cheerful side of the question. Mr. Nelson said that the darker side of the immigration question had been presented, and he would endeavor to present the brighter side of the problem. It should be considered in its economic, political, social and ethnic features.

"Our own experience," he said, "should be scanned and studied, for it will furnish us much information, and many valuable lessons. We have been to a large extent a nation of immigrants, and a large share of our history is a history of immigration. No nation of modern times has had such a varied and extended experience in this field. The chief factors in our extraordinary growth and development have been our free system of government, our abundant supply of cheap and fertile lands, and the immense immigration to our shores. The first two have brought about, absorbed and utilized the third. And the three combined have been a trio, in force and magnitude, such as no other nation ever possessed. Ample space, ample freedom, and ample numbers have given us a force and momentum of growth unknown and unheard of in any other nation, and the evidences of it are palpable on all sides."

FROM THE TOILING MASSES.

He then reviewed the statistics of immigration to this country, and continued: "Only a small proportion of them have belonged to the learned professions or been skilled laborers. The great bodies have been small farmers, small tradesmen, and agricultural and other unskilled laborers. Nearly all of them have been from the ranks of the common people—the toiling masses of humanity. People of rank and of wealth have little occasion or desire to emigrate, nor indeed have they been desirable in a country progressing under conditions such as ours. We have needed men to dig our canals, to build our railroads, to open and exploit our mines, to clear our vast forests, to open, develop and reduce to a state of cultivation our vast expinse of untilled land; in short, to perform the toil incident to a new country and to an unsettled country. And this want has, in a large measure, been supplied by our foreign born immigrants. And in this field they have not been hostile usurpers, but have merely occupied ground that has most willingly been accorded to them by the native born. And this toiling, struggling mass of humanity, charged to a large extent with the prudence of our progress and civilization, viewed from an economic and financial standpoint, has added millions to the wealth and capital of the country. An immigrant increases our wealth in a two-fold way by the money he brings into the country, and by his value as a laborer and producer of wealth."

Mr. Nelson said that in time of war the foreign-born population responded nobly to the call of their adopted country, and he mentioned particularly how much was done by Capt. John Ericson. He also claimed that the foreign-born element rendered great service during the revolution.

"From an ethnological standpoint," continued Mr. Nelson, "immigration has, beyond a fair question, infused much vital force of a better kind into the being of the nation. The immigrant has not been a mere inert labor machine, but has added to it a physical, a moral and a mental factor that has been responsive, and has brought accessions to the intellectual and moral makeup and instincts of the nation. We are an English speaking people, of English texture and origin, but of a more cosmopolitan character, of more pronounced elements of strength and energy and with a greater concentration of force and vigor than was possessed by English of the England that gave us birth, or even by the English of today. In the eyes of the universal observant world, the Yankee is never confounded with the Englishman, nor is he ever placed in the rear rank. It took England more than 1500 years to produce the Englishman of the colonists. She began with the Celts, and these, according to Professor Huxley, were only an earlier edition, a more primitive product of the great Teutonic or Germanic race."

THE GERMANIC POPULATION.

The senator then at considerable length traced the races of mankind, especially those who were the ancestors of the people who came as immigrants to the United States. "It appears," he said, "that the blood of nearly 15,000,000 of Germanic people has been infused into the heart and loins of the American people. And these immigrants have not come to these shores, as their ancestors did to the Celts of Britain, as a scourge, as freebooters and as pirates, but they have come on a mission of peace, to participate with us and to aid us in evolving from the great undeveloped resources of this country a mighty nation—mighty in wealth and numbers, and, above all, mighty and noble in the makeup and texture of its people. The new blood is transfused into the old. The sluggishness of ease and plenty is quickened by the unrest of limited opportunities and honest poverty.

"The immigrant, Nikola Tesla, transmits and guides the unutilized force of the American Niagara. In the great realm of human development, the one is the lesser though necessary complement of the other. It cannot in fairness be said that this great Germanic immigration has been of other than great advantage to our country. The immigrants however seared and benumbed they may have become from the environment of the land of their birth have no sooner landed on American soil than they have individualized and as if by inspiration, responded in full measure to the intellectual, moral and political instincts and requirements of the nation, and became thoroughly assimilated to all that is good and progressive among our people, and the children of these immigrants become the most intense and emphatic of all Americans within our borders.

"But while all this is admitted as to the Germanic races, it is said that people of other and inferior races, wholly unfit for American institutions and wholly unfit for self-government, flock to our shores. And Russians, Poles, Hungarians and Italians are cited as samples of these races. He who belittles and affects to despise these races knows little of their history and ethnic make-up." He then paid a high tribute to these people and recited some of their great achievements.

DID NOT DEPRESS LABOR.

"It may be urged," he said, taking up another branch of the subject, "that our great immigration had depressed or will depress the price of labor. This might be true if American labor was content to remain in the put of mere labor, but our experience in the East, and all over the country, has demonstrated that the large influx of foreign labor has led American labor to seek higher pursuits and more profitable callings. The result has been, on the whole, the promotion of American labor to greater and more enlarged spheres of usefulness. When the American girl was crowded out of the kitchen and dining room by her foreign-born sister she entered the school room as a teacher, the store as a cashier or saleswoman, and the counting house as an accountant or bookkeeper; and when the American boy was crowded out of the factory, the mine and the rolling mill by his foreign-born brother, he became a captain or lieutenant of industry, and sought and assumed higher callings in various directions. And the process that has thus been going on between the native and the foreign born has also been going on among the foreign-born themselves. High wages and good living, under the sunshine of American institutions, has rendered an earlier crop of foreign-born laborers, fit and anxious to be crowded out of their labor sphere and placed on a higher industrial level by the later arrival of foreign-born labor. And thus it has come to pass that continued immigration, so far from depressing the scale of wages, has rather resulted in generally promoting labor to a higher level. And this is a great gain.

"Brute toil and the almighty dollar are not the chief aims of our existence. All who are fit to survive, fit to stay in the ranks of a great nation, by their very nature aspire to a higher plane of development. And the space above in the social and economic world results, in a large degree, from the pressure below. The crude ore becomes pig iron, and the latter becomes the finished engine."

As to the criminal classes Mr. Nelson said: "But, finally, the objection comes to us that foreigners furnish an undue proportion of criminals. This may be true as to numbers, but not as to character or quality. In matters of defalcation and embezzlement in fiduciary relations, the immigrants are not in the front rank, nor do they excel in shocking and barbarous crimes. Holmes, Hayward and Durrant, the greatest and most depraved criminals of our day and generation, are neither immigrants nor the sons of immigrants."

A TRIBUTE TO MINNESOTA.

He said that the foreigners were no doubt drawn into crime in the large cities and contended that reasons existed for this which were well known. In conclusion he paid a high tribute to his own state, which is largely peopled with foreigners, many of them being of his own race. He said:

"Fifty-five years ago Minnesota was a territory—an undeveloped wilderness, the home of large bands of roving Indians, with but 6000 white people within her borders. Eight years later she became a member of the American Union, with a population of over 150,000 people. In 1895, pursuant to a census then taken, she found herself with a population of 1,574,619 people, of whom 517,335 were of foreign birth, and 573,783 were natives of foreign parentage. In 1894 her assessed valuation was $642,903,651, and her permanent school and university fund was $11,746,187, and she expended during the year, for educational purposs in all, $3,945,645; and 337,761 pupils were enrolled in her common graded and high schools, 1839 in her normal schools, and 1828 students in her state university.

"But of all this population there were but 613 inmates in her state prison and state reformatory—the only places for confinement of adult criminals outside of the jails and workhouses—and out of this prison population 425 were native born, and 150 foreign born. And in the state reform school, for incorrigibles and juvenile offenders there were 428 inmates, of whom 359 were native born, and 69 of foreign birth. No state can show a finer record than this, and the foreign born have a prison record better even than the native born. Such is Minnesota. And she is, to a large extent, under the sunshine and dew of her free institutions, the product of the industry, the perseverence, the frugality, and the thrift of her foreign born citizens, and their children. But she is entitled to all, and more than all, they have brought: her. They came there, most of them, poor and empty handed, with no capital, but stout hearts and willing hands, but possessed of an intense desire and purpose to become good American citizens. The state received them with open arms, as though they were to the manor born, and on a parity with her own people, and today, after the lapse of half a century, she can truly say that they have not betrayed the trust she reposed in them. As the good wife, though loving her mother, still gives her husband the uppermost place in her affections, so do the foreign born sons and daughters of Minnesota, though loving the lands of their birth still place her, and, the great country of which she is a part, uppermost and foremost in their love and affection."

NORTHWESTERN MILLING.

A Smaller Production Will Be Made This Week.

Minneapolis, May 14.—The Northwestern Miller gives the following summary of the week's milling news: The output last week at Minneapolis was 188,185 barrels against 213,090 barrels for the corresponding week last year. The capacity in operation Tuesday indicated that the output would be about the same this week, but today a 6000-barrel mill, previously running, was shut down and will reduce the production about 25,000 barrels. During the closing half of last week some mills had a little better demand for flour, even New England taking a limited quantity.

Not all, however, experienced this agreeable variation in the market. The sales of the week approximated 140,000 barrels. Export trade was again very light. Considerable clear was worked, but little patent. Most mills are sold up very closely or well into the future, on all grades below straight and are cautious about tying themselves up further on such products without first selling the necessary patent.

WEST END

Coal Dock Hoisting Apparatus Seriously Damaged By the Storm.

Several of the Streets Badly Washed Out By the Rain.

George Stewart Injured at Merrill & Ring's Mill Yesterday Afternoon.

A small cyclone struck the Pennsylvania and Ohio coal docks about 4:30 yesterday afternoon and caused a heavy damage. The big Brown steel hoists are bent and twisted in all directions and the long cantilever arms are resting their weight on the docks and the broken timbers of the coal sheds. The damage cannot yet be correctly estimated, but the lowest guess places the amount at $10,000. Considering the fact that the hoists cost in the neighborhood of $35,000, it is safe to say that the total damage will exceed the above figure.

At the time of the giving way of the machinery there were several men working in what is termed the house, located immediately under the cantilevers, and containing the engines and boilers. They scampered down and away quickly, and fortunately no one was injured.

The engines, six in number, and the boilers are uninjured. One of the cantilevers forced its way through the roof of the coal sheds, and is so badly sprung and twisted that it may be considered a total wreck.

On Tuesday a boat load of coal was unloaded at the docks, and the company expected to commence unloading another this morning. It is estimated that it will take at least thirty days to complete the necessary repairs and again place the machinery in working order.

CAUSED WASHOUTS.

The heavy rains of yesterday caused washouts on several of the streets and added to the damage of previous storms. Messrs. Reed and Wilson, of the board of public works, have been up several times investigating the damage. The board of public works is considering the matter of letting out the work of repairs by contract. The big ravine through which runs Keene's creek is filling up, and there are a large number of people in fear that they must soon desert their homes and betake themselves to higher land for safety.

BADLY INJURED.

George Stewart, an employe of the Merrill & Ring sawmill, was quite badly injured yesterday afternoon. He was working near a windlass when a lever broke and the windlass flew back, striking him in the abdomen, rendering him unconscious. It is not yet ascertained how badly he is hurt, as his injuries are of an internal nature.

The old man who looks out at the world with clear and healthy eyes cannot help feeling great gratification at the thought that his children have inherited from him no weakness nor tendency to disease. The healthy old man is the man who has throughout his life kept his digestion good and his blood pure. Not one in a thousand does do it. Germs go through the healthy body without effect. Let them once find lodgment or let them find a weak spot, they will develop by the million and the blood will be full of them. Instead of giving strength to the tissues, it will force upon them unwholesome and innutritious matter, and the man will lose flesh and the more susceptible he is to disease. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery is the only medicine that absolutely and infallibly cures all blood diseases, and almost all diseases are blood diseases. It isn't a medicine for some one particular so-called disease. It is a medicine for the whole body. It forces out all the germs of disease, and replaces impurities with rich, red blood.

THE PRODUCE MARKET.

It was a falling market that existed on Provision boulevard this morning, but lemons went higher. Veal was firmer for choice grades, and new brick cheese showed a tumble in prices. Supplies were plentiful, but trade was not brisk.

FLORENCE'S STORY.

William J. Florence, the comedian, had a reputation for bright stories and practical jokes. The following one is said by Harper's Round Table to have been told by him at a dinner one night when the conversation turned on traveling theatrical companies.

"Years ago," said Florence, "I was in a small company skipping from town to town. We had met with extremely bad luck up to our landing in the town of D——. There we found the lowest ebb of all, for when the curtain rolled up there was just two persons in the audience, a young lady in an orchestra chair and a young man in the front row of the balcony. We went on with the performance, however, possibly to warm ourselves more than anything else. According to my part I was helping the heroine to escape the clutches of the villain and in one of my lines I said: 'Have you noticed that even the bright moon is rising to light us on our way?' Before she had time to reply the young man in the balcony called out, 'I am not so certain about the young lady downstairs, but I can see it all right.'"

GOSSIP.

Received over private wire of B. E. Baker grain and stock broker, room 107 Chamber of Commerce and 207 Board of Trade.

Chicago, May 14.—Today's wheat market ruled unusually dull and with narrow fluctuations, closing unchanged from last night's close. Continued rains throughout the winter wheat belt gave sellers more confidence, but the buying, though not of large extent, was of good quality and absorbed the offerings readily. Frost was noted in some sections of the West last night and more is predicted for tonight and while from the Southwest come reports of improved conditions consequent of the wetting down of the wheat fields, yet every day brings worse reports from Indiana and Michigan, and numerous samples shown today from these states were alive with the Hessian fly. The news today was sufficient for a good up-turn, but unfortunately outside buyers are about as indifferent as the foreign trade, and the demand for shipping and export is very quiet.

Corn and oats followed wheat.

Provisions met with good buying, influenced by a better foreign demand, but the packers continue liberal sellers.

Puts, July wheat, 63c.
Calls, July wheat, 63¾@⅞c bid.

NEW YORK STOCKS.

Opening Firm and Some Gains Recorded.

New York, May 14.—The stock market opened firm with gains of slight fractions general. Buffalo, Rochester and Pittsburg preferred attracted attention by a jump of 3½ per cent to 59. In the bond operations Atchison adjustment fours were the feature, rising 1¼ per cent. Speculation up to 11 o'clock was without notable feature. Some concessions from the initial price were made on realizing orders, but the losses were soon regained, the traders being encouraged to bid up prices by the improved London quotations and some foreign buying.

A reduction of ½ per cent to 448, in the posted figures for long sterling, by a prominent drawer, also contributed to the general firmness. The high-priced industrials absorbed the great bulk of limited dealings, but some inquiry was noted for the grangers and Louisville & Nashville, the latter recording an improvement of ⅝ per cent.

The speculation continues to run within very narrow limits, the variations in the leading shares during the second hour barely exceeding ⅛ per cent. The general impression in exchange circles is that from $1,000,000 to $2,000,000 in gold will be shipped on Saturday, but no definite news on the subject has been received. The sales to noon were 67,300 shares.

FAMOUS CASE ENDED.

Milwaukee, May 14.—The famous case of the state ex rel John Schlerf against the school board of the city of Milwaukee has come to an end. The plaintiff has given up the fight and the case has been withdrawn from the supreme court, without costs to either party. This was the case involving the right of the school board to enforce the rule requiring that public school pupils shall be vaccinated before they are admitted to the schools.

THE APE MUTINIED.

W. C. Coup, the circus man, had many remarkable experiences, and a reporter once asked him if the dreadful cry of "Hey, Rube!" had ever sounded in his tent, says the Philadelphia Times.

"No," said he, "but it came near it once in a small Kansas town, where, fortunately, there were no newspapers to spread the affair publicly. I had among the attractions of the show a man-eating ape, the largest ever in captivity. He was chained to the dead trunk of a tree and looked very ferocious.

"Early in the day I speak of a countryman handed him a piece of tobacco, which the ape chewed with great pleasure. The word was passed around that the ape would chew tobacco, and several gave him plugs. Finally one gave him a piece that was filled with cayenne pepper. The ape bit it, then, smarting with indignation, snapped the fastening of his chain and yelled: 'Let me at 'im, the murtherin' ijit. O'll hev the loife av him or me name ain't Mahoney.' Then he started through the crowd with a handspike ready to strike, but the culprit escaped. I docked the ape a week's salary, and it was the last time I had any trouble with him."

CHEESE AND COURTSHIP.

Aristocracies in different places and ages have prided themselves on many different things, says the London News. One of the queerest, perhaps, is the aristocracy according to cheeses, which, according to the Neue Zuricher Zeitung, prevails among the patricians of Zermatt. The aristocracy of families is valued by the number and age of the cheeses they possess. There are families who possess cheese made at the time of the French revolution. When a child is born a cheese is manufactured, which is then called by the name of the child. It is partly eaten when its namesake gets married, each wedding guest tasting a portion. The cheese is then put away again, and finally cut into and finished at the funeral of the person whose name it bears.

When a young man woos a maiden he begs to be allowed to dine with her family on a Sunday. His offer being accepted, the lovers await anxiously to see whether the girls father will cause the cheese to be set on the table. At the end of the long meal, if all goes well, the master of the house solemnly fetches the cheese bearing the would-be bride's name, sets it on the table, cuts it, and gives a piece to the young couple. When they have eaten it they are betrothed pair. The others at table partake of the cheese and drink to the eternal friendship of the two families.

ALLOWANCES FOR GIRLS.

When a girl reaches a certain age, say 17 or 18, she should be made an allowance, says the Philadelphia Times, paid monthly or quarterly, out of which she should be expected to provide herself with gowns, hats and all the staple requirements of her toilet. As to luxuries, like furs, jewels, ball gowns and such things, they may be left to the individual generosity of her parents, who need not stint themselves in that because they give her an allowance. Too much stress cannot be laid upon the fact that every girl should have an allowance, and thus be trained to the expenditure of money. Many a young girl when she marries and goes to her husband excites alternately his irritation and alarm, owing to her utter ignorance of money. If such a girl had been trained from girlhood to the receipt of a stated sum, out of which she had to meet her needs, she would make a better wife.

WHY SHE FELT SURE.

Judge: "So you overcame that old antipathy of yours," her husband remarked, "and called on Mrs. Bobbles?"

"Yes."

"Do you think she was glad to see you?"

"I am sure of it."

"Ahem!—You must have some reason for that belief outside of her assurances."

"I have. I had on the old dress that was made over twice, my hat was out of style and my hair had come uncurled, while she had on a gown that couldn't have come from anywhere but Paris. Could she help being glad to see me?"

MUST STAND BY LEE.

The starting point of whatever strength Governor Clough may have in St. Louis county dates from the combination and agreement made two years ago, as a result of which he was promoted to the governorship, and in return appointments were made of several state officials, large and small, in this city. That combination was brought about largely through the "guidance" and "efforts" of a resident of this city, who now seeks to carry out what was "nominated in the bond," for two reasons: First, because it was a part of the agreement; second, and to him the still greater reason, to demonstrate to the Merriam-Clough-Bixby trinity that he is a sure-enough boss and can deliver all the delegates from the range to Rice's Point on all offices from delegates to the state convention down to county coroner. This is the nucleus around which have gathered the aforesaid state appointees, and here we have in a nutshell practically the rank and file of Mr. Clough's warriors in St. Louis county. There might be added to the coterie mentioned a few personal friends of the state incumbents, who desire to see them hold their jobs. It can be truthfully asserted that there are not twenty-five more men in the county who are active supporters of Mr. Clough or to whom his nomination would be even gratifying.

The great interests of Duluth in its relations to the rest of the Sixth district must not be perverted or lost sight of to please anyone or a dozen politicians. These interests are not political only by any means. The commercial relations of the people of this district with Duluth outweigh the question of the governorship. Their legislators—and they compose nearly one-fourth of the legislature—can make or break, as shall suit their pleasure, the much-needed legislation that St. Louis county in its formative period should have. Any man "with his brains above his bellyband" will see at a glance that our every interest in this contest and all future contests is with our own congressional district—a small empire in itself.

The people of the other counties in the district have given us the congressman, and will do so again if treated fairly. They have just conceded us a delegate—practically two—to the Republican national convention at St. Louis. They have ever treated us fairly. They now present a candidate for governor who is the peer of any man mentioned in ability, experience and integrity, and who is one of our own household—a man as much interested in the development and success of this great inland port and the waterways leading thereto, as much interested in our iron mines and eventual utilization of their products by home industries as is any man in this county—and it is proposed by the aforesaid few men in waiting on the royal gubernatorial bed-chamber to turn him down because, forsooth, some deputy game warden or state tom-tom beater may be compelled to earn his living by the sweat of his brow instead of the sweat of his jaw. The Herald would say to every business man, politician or other resident of this city: The solution of this question of governor is important to all of you. The result will confront you for good or evil for twenty-five years to come. Give the "marble heart" to your neighbors, and after this year you will not nominate another congressman nor receive a recognition on the state ticket for many years, and you will richly deserve such treatment.

But The Herald does not apprehend that the Republicans of St. Louis county will be so foolish. They appreciate thoroughly the importance of this contest and the absolute necessity of working in harmony with the rest of the Sixth district. For this reason St. Louis county's delegation to the state convention will be for Hon. William E. Lee as its first choice, and should the possibility of a second choice arise they will turn to Moses E. Clapp.

THE LAKE TRAFFIC.

The annual report of the Sault canal, which has just been made public, directs attention once more to the wonderful growth of traffic on the great lakes and the steady reduction which is being produced in transportation charges by the improvement of the waterway between Duluth and Buffalo. The report shows that during last year there passed through the canals, both American and Canadian, freight to the value of $159,575,129, which is $14,000,000 greater than the business of any preceding year, and double the business of 1887, or of any preceding year. The total cost of transporting this valuable freight was $14,238,758, and the average distance carried 823 miles, making a cost per ton per mile, of 1.14 mills, or about one-fourth the cost on long haul, of the cheapest freight carrying railway in the United States. In 1894 the rate per ton-mile was 1.10 mills, which was the lowest ever on record, and never before had it been so low as in the season now under discussion. Only seven years ago the lowest rate had been 2.3 mills per mile-ton, and since then it has steadily dropped. The total mile-tons of freight passing through the canal was the enormous figure of 12,502,548,892, which is three times the corresponding total of seven years ago, and more than 3,500,000,000 tons more than the total of the year immediately before.

The valuation of the vessels that passed in and out of Lake Superior during the season is placed at $42,895,000. These figures demonstrate the immense importance of the lake trade. When it is remembered that fully 75 per cent of the traffic included in the figures above given belongs to Duluth and Superior, the immensity of the business handled on the docks can be imagined.

MORE MISREPRESENTATION.

The political reporter of the St. Paul Dispatch directed the full force of his massive intellect to the Sixth district yesterday. This may account for the heavy electric storm which prevailed last evening. This very acute young man has discovered that the Duluth Gold and Silver club is "a thing of the past, a reminiscence that most of the former members would most gladly forget, because they have changed their views;" that sentiment in the district, "especially in Duluth, has undergone a wonderful change;" that Mr. Towne is hurting himself by not defining his position, allowing some of his friends to spread the report that he will run as an independent candidate this fall. Of course, all this stuff is utter nonsense—false and devoid of the slightest foundation. Sentiment on the money question in Duluth has not changed. There never was such strong opposition to the single gold standard which Bill Merriam and the Dispatch advocate as there is today. The Gold and Silver club is very much alive. That Mr. Towne should define his position at this time is absurd. There will be time enough after the St. Louis convention has adopted a platform. In the meantime Mr. Towne will stand upon the platform upon which he was elected.

Heretofore the Dispatch's political wiseacre has not exposed his ignorance regarding the Sixth district. He has let that duty to his brother "Jerry" on the Minneapolis Journal. His sudden interest in this district is easily explained, however, as is the source from which he drew the inspiration for this tissue of misstatements. A little farther along in the same column we find the explanation. It is in the shape of an interview with a Duluth politician who was evidently ashamed to have his name published. He probably thought that if his name appeared the interview would have no weight. This interview consists solely of an attempt to show that Mr. Clough will win easily in St. Louis county, and that all Mr. Towne's friends are supporting him. The utter falsity of this statement relieves The Herald from further commenting on it. Outside of the state appointees and a few friends and a "down-in-the-mud" boss and his heelers, there are not twenty-five people in St. Louis county who favor Mr. Clough's nomination.

If the Dispatch will publish the name of the "Duluth politician" who gave this wonderful interview, The Herald will guarantee to prove very conclusively that he is one of Mr. Towne's worst enemies, even if he does outwardly profess friendship for him.

Whenever exposed in the act of publishing a bald "fake" story as news, the News Tribune flouts that the other papers are mad because they have been "scooped." This is the way it replies to The Herald's exposure of the falsity of the story of an alleged hold-up on Second avenue east Monday night. It adds that the police authorities are not indignant at its attempt to show that crime is rampant in Duluth. The Herald is authorized by Chief Hansen to state, over his own signature if necessary, that he regards the policy of the morning paper in publishing these false stories of hold-ups and sandbagging as damaging to the reputation of the city and as a gross reflection upon the efficiency of the police department, and that he feels highly indignant at the misrepresentations.

THE MILWAUKEE STRIKE.

While the dispatches from Milwaukee represent that the back of the street car strike has been broken and that the trouble is practically ended, the Milwaukee papers' accounts of the progress of the strike show that it has not ended by any means. It is true that the company has imported many men and has a considerable number of cars moving, but they are not running on schedule time and they are carrying few passengers. Many of the labor unions in Milwaukee have endorsed the action of the striking street car men and have passed resolutions forbidding their members to patronize the cars while the strike is on, under penalty of expulsion from the unions or being fined.

The result is that organized labor in Milwaukee is standing solidly in line, while the strikers have the sympathy of a large portion of the citizens not connected with the labor organizations. There is no doubt that the men have grievances which should be redressed, not the least of which is that they are not receiving living wages. They have asked an increase in wages of 1 cent per hour, and to this small increase they are entitled.

The St. Cloud Journal-Press says: "The Duluth Herald is surprised that the Journal-Press, a Republican paper, should publish a speech made by Secretary Carlisle. That surprise is the index of The Herald's idea of conducting a newspaper." The Journal-Press is evading the point which The Herald made—that it was surprising that a paper which claimed to be Republican should publish the gold standard speeches of Mr. Carlisle as well as the campaign articles prepared by a wing of the Tariff Reform league of New York, a Democratic free trade organization, merely because these articles are furnished free in plate form to newspapers that will use them.

It is to be regretted that the aldermen last night rejected the report presented by the joint committee of the council and the jobbers' union in reference to the Duluth-Superior bridge. The Herald agrees with the aldermen that a provision for free foot passage would be a good thing, but inasmuch as capital cannot be secured to construct the bridge so long as this provision is left in the bill, it is foolish to insist upon it. The necessity for a bridge is so great that the business men would rather have tolls charged to foot passengers than see the building of the bridge delayed much longer.

Even a Boston paper will make errors at times. For instance, the Boston Post the other day said: "Thirteen years ago, the New York World came into the control of Mr. Albert Pulitzer." Of course the Post meant to refer to Joseph Pulitzer, whose brother Albert for years was the proprietor of the New York Journal and made a fortune out of that paper.

The London Spectator has advanced an amusing explanation of the refusal of the Boers to permit President Krueger to visit England. It says: "They are afraid of his receiving too strong an impression from a high civilization and being carried away by its attractions." And the Spectator makes his remark as if he expected its readers would believe it.

The supreme court of Illinois has declared that the law closing barber shops on Sunday is unconstitutional, although similar legislation has been pronounced constitutional in the states of New York and Massachusetts. The Missouri supreme court handed down a decision which is similar to that reached in Illinois.

The St. Louis Star, a goldbug paper, sneeringly says that Bland's campaign fund now amounts to $771. What figure, it asks, does Bland think this will cut against Cleveland's millions and the whole weight of the treasury? Unconsciously, the Star thus gives away the secret of all the strength which the goldbugs have.

The small boy will now begin to save his pennies for the circus.

MR. FLETCHER'S SURPRISE.

Minneapolis Times: Congressman Fletcher was given a little surprise party Monday evening, when a gathering of Seventh ward Republicans, supposed to have been gathered indiscriminately, cheered a free silver speech and went enthusiastic over the mention of County Attorney Nye's name as a congressional candidate. Harry D. Stocker, a young attorney, and secretary of the Gold and Silver club, created a stir. The young man observed that Congressman Fletcher was in the audience, and he addressed himself to that gentleman. He contended that Mr. Fletcher was with Wall street in sentiment and action, and urged that he be not nominated. Mr. Stocker's silver sentiments were received in a manner which surprised the opposition. Several speeches were made by others, also advocates of free coinage.

ALWAYS UP-TO-DATE.

Beltrami Eagle: The Duluth Herald now has the subscribers and patronage of the defunct Commonwealth. The management of The Herald are rustlers and get out a paper that is up to the times.

A PHOSPHORESCENT TEA.

A phosphorescent 5 o'clock tea was recently given in Paris at 8 in the evening, at which no lights were used, the light coming from the ceiling, carpets, chairs, pictures, teacups and flowers, says the New York Sun. The ladies wore phosphorescent dresses, and their faces, shoulders and arms gleamed with light. M. Henry, of the Academie des Sciences, has invented a phosphorescent starch which was used on the occasion and which, employed as face powder, "lends a moonlight radiance very becoming to some."

ABSOLUTELY PURE

NOT LOVED IN ISANTI.

Isanti Press: In its issue of May 1, the Rock County Herald devotes much of its editorial space to the discussion of its qualities in Governor Clough which should prevent his nomination by the Republicans for the governorship of this state. The reasons given are in the main the same we expressed a month or more ago. Governor Clough is not loved in Isanti county, and though memories are short in politics the voters of this section have not forgotten the means by which he attained his present position.

THERE IS STILL TIME.

New York Mail and Express, (Rep.): Mr. Morton's duty to himself is plain. He has never been a hopeful candidate. His signature to the Haines bill made him an impossible candidate. He should withdraw from the race while he can do so with dignity. When the presidential trust sought, as a dernier resort, to use the honored name of Benjamin Harrison as a club to beat down the popular will, he flatly and firmly refused to become a party to the unpatriotic conspiracy. Can the favorite son of New York afford to do less than Indiana's favorite son has done? Governor Morton is not in the hands of his friends, but of his enemies. He is, consciously or unconsciously, the tool of a gang of plotters who have miscalculated the will and strength of the people. Mr. Morton cannot hold the votes of his own state. Ten have already drifted from the moorings, and by June 16 at least one-third of the delegation will have slipped from him. It is time for him to realize the fatal folly of his course, and avoid the humiliation which must come to him and to his state in the end. Let him send Boss Platt about his business, and emerge from the shadow cast upon his name by an unholy alliance.

A FEW REFLECTIONS.

St. Paul Globe: Will Mr. Rockefeller please take note of the fact that Mr. Carnegie is building a freight railway from Lake Erie to Pittsburg to carry the ore from Mr. Rockefeller's Minnesota mines to his mills, a distance of 135 miles, at a cost not to exceed 65 cents a ton? Will the king of the Mesaba range then please reflect on the fact that he is charging 80 cents a ton for hauling ore from the mines on the range to the lake, down hill, where trains run almost by gravity. It may then occur to him that there is no reason why he should charge more than 50 cents a ton if Carnegie can haul the same ore on his line a half greater distance for one-sixth less. And should these reflections and that conclusion fail to get lodgment in Mr. Rockefeller's mind, might not another Minnesota legislature give him a sharp reminder?

HAVE TO EARN THEIR PAY.

Minneapolis Times: The Clough organs find it very difficult to keep within hollering distance of the truth nowadays. Here is the Heron Lake News, for example, which says: "Even the Minneapolis Times admits that Governor Clough now leads throughout the state, and that the actions of the Washburn people, so heartily commended by the Times, have only resulted in developing strength for the governor. The people rule and they will not see a capable man turned down to please a few politicians." Of course, the Times has never said that Clough now "leads throughout the state." The nearest it has come to saying anything of the sort is that the anti-Clough Republicans were in danger of underrating the power of the patronage in the governor's hands, supplemented by the hoodle of the Merriam machine, but the Heron Lake News, with the other Clough organs, whose editors have been hanging round the state house a good deal this spring, presumably to milk the machine, have got to earn their pay.

Council Meeting Last Evening Anything But a Tame Affair.

Citizens' Report on Water Works Angered Alderman Harwood.

Council Insists on Free Foot Passage Over the Bridge.

The council last evening received the report of the chamber of commerce committee on waterworks, killed the report of the jobbers' union and the council committee recommending that the action of the council in favor of free passage to pedestrians, teams and vehicles be rescinded, and declared in favor of no tolls for foot passengers.

The session was a warm one. The city fathers were all in fighting trim, and as the business before the adjourned session consisted almost wholly of matters over which considerable feeling has been aroused, all the storm conditions were present and figuratively speaking the air was constantly cleaved with bolts and the thunder peals were continuous.

The report of the committee on waterworks, recommending that the report of the citizens' committee be adopted, was the first matter that stirred the waters.

Alderman Harwood arose and said that the council should take no notice of the report. "Who are these people," said he. "The council has asked them to make no report. The Salvation Army might as well make a report on this question. They are some of the tax league people."

President Hale asked Alderman Harwood what he would do with the report.

"Tear it up," replied the latter, loudly.

ARE LEADING CITIZENS.

Alderman Sang took Alderman Harwood to task. He said that the names attached to that report were not to be compared with the Salvation Army in that sighting way. "They were the names of leading citizens and their report should be treated with respect and not disposed of in the flippant manner proposed. The voice of the people should be regarded and the communication before the council should not be torn up and cast to the winds.

Alderman Harwood rejoined that the Salvation Army could get up a bigger meeting than the chamber of commerce. The latter could ordinarily hardly scare up a baker's dozen to attend their meetings.

Alderman Richardson urged that the report be treated courteously.

Alderman Harwood had not exhausted his ammunition and he proceeded to fire the other barrel. He said that the chamber of commerce had at a recent meeting abused the council. "Alderman Sank sat there and calmly took that abuse," he went on. "If he had had any gumption, he would have resented it right there."

Alderman Sang rejoined that the new members of the council had been specially excepted from the criticism of the chamber. "The grictures," said he, "were upon the old council, and the old members, of whom some of the leading stars were in sight and it was their business to do the resenting."

At this shot, Alderman Harwood grew thankful and ex-Alderman Howard, who was present, looked interested. He evidently longed to be in the fray.

The report was finally received by a vote of 10 to 4. Aldermen Dahl, Harker, Richardson and Sank voting no.

THE BRIDGE MATTER.

During all this time, several members of the jobbers' union had been attentive listners and when the joint report of the council bridge and viaduct committee and the committee from the jobbers' union was taken up, they turned up their coat collars and looked appreheusively at Alderman Harwood. The report approved the act of congress of April 24, 1894, and the acts amendatory thereof, with the exception of section 6 of the pending amendment, providing for the free passage over the Duluth-Superior bridge of wagons, teams and foot passengers, the matter of tolls on which the report recommended be left to the arbitrament of the secretary of war. The report was signed by Aldermen Hansen and Rowley, of the council, and J. A. Ferguson, P. S. Annske and W. Buchanan, of the jobbers' union.

Alderman Krumsieg attempted to file that section of the report by an amendment providing that the report be placed on file. This amendment was lost, after some discussion.

Secretary Buchanan, of the jobbers' union, told the council that if free passage was insisted on, the bridge scheme might as well be hung up. He said that if the franchise lapses, the Lake Carriers' association and the people of Superior would stand in the way of another. L. A. Barber, of the jobbers', also urged that the bridge be secured.

WANT FREE PASSAGE.

Alderman Crandall and Krumsieg took the position that free foot passage would not make very much difference in the receipts according to the statements of those in favor of tolls, and they refused to believe that the bridge could not be financed unless foot tolls were assured. They insisted that the working men should be looked after as well as Eastern capitalists.

Alderman Nelson alluded to the disclaimer of Mr. Mendenhall, who had been before the joint committee urging foot tolls, of any financial interest in the scheme, and remarked that it was significant that the street car companies on both sides were interested nevertheless. He urged the council to stand for free foot tolls.

Alderman Sang asked Secretary Buchanan if the street car company was to be charged for passengers it carried across.

Mr. Buchanan replied that Mr. Mendenhall had taken the committee into his confidence on that subject and it ought not to be violated. Mr. Mendenhall, he said, had plans for the betterment of the city's interests that could not be disclosed at present. However, passengers would only be charged 5 cents for transportation clear to Superior.

Alderman Sang was not satisfied with this statement. He said the council had a right to be fully informed before it acted. If anybody wanted any privileges they should come to the council and explain their plans.

DISCUSSION GREW WARM.

Secretary Buchanan remarked with some heat, that the jobbers' union had had the courtesy to go to Mr. Mendenhall and talk with him.

Alderman Sang said the council did not have to go around and ask people their opinion—it was not in the position of the jobbers' union.

Secretary Buchanan remarked somewhat acidly that the jobbers' union sized up favorably with the council.

Mutual explanations followed at this point and everybody became more amiable.

Alderman Harwood made a motion to table the report, which was lost, and the report carried. Alderman Richardson, however, requested that his vote be changed, he having voted yea under the impression that free foot passage was provided for. This defeated the motion to adopt and the report went glimmering.

Alderman Krumsieg presented a resolution that the resolution of the council passed March 16, 1896, be rescinded so far as it related to teams and vehicles. This left standing the recommendation of free foot passage.

After some discussion, the resolution was adopted by a vote of 11 to 3, Aldermen Crandall, Rowley and Stevens voting in the negative.

On motion of Alderman Krumsieg, the committee on fire department was instructed to confer with the fire commissioners to outline some plan for entertainment of delegates to the State Firemen's association convention.

On motion of Alderman Coventry, The Herald and News Tribune were directed to file with the city clerk sealed sworn statements of circulation from April 11 to May 11, 1896, not later than May 16.

Aldermen Christensen and Olafson were absent.

DAMAGE

The Heavy Storm Yesterday Afternoon Caused Considerable Trouble.

Pennsylvania & Ohio Fuel Company's Hoisting Apparatus Badly Injured.

Lightning Created Trouble on George Spencer's Premises.

The rain storm which broke over Duluth yesterday afternoon about 4:30 o'clock was a severe one and caused a large amount of damage. The rainfall for the twenty-four hours yesterday, and it nearly all fell in the storm, was 1.12 inches. It came down in torrents and might well be called a cloudburst. The lightning was sharp and caused considerable damage.

The most serious damage reported occurred at the Pennsylvania and Ohio Fuel company's dock at Oneota. The big iron hoisting apparatus was torn and twisted and thrown on the dock in a confused mass. The men in the vicinity say that it seemed to be caught by a cyclone from overhead, which picked it up and dashed it on the dock. The hoisting apparatus used on this dock is of steel and travels along the dock on rails. The loss will amount to $8000 or $10,000.

Fortunately no men were on the dock at the time. The engineer had come down from his perch on the hoist and the laborers had all left the dock. Had the crew been working there would undoubtedly have been a loss of life.

During the storm the lightning struck a large pole at George Spencer's residence and went through some very freaky performances. It knocked about three feet off the top of the pole, ran down and jumped to a wire fence which encloses a hog kennel. It ripped the kennel almost to pieces, scattering the boards in all directions, some of them being found 100 feet away. Two dogs inside were uninjured. It then entered the barn and ripped up the floor to a considerable extent, finally spending its force and entering the ground. There were two horses and a cow in the barn, but they were unhurt. One of the horses was trembling like a leaf when found in the barn a little later. A mail carrier who was going up Eighteenth avenue east when the lightning struck says the block knocked him off his wheel and walk. The covers were knocked off two electric light converters in the vicinity.

The storm was the most severe the Hartman Electric company has experienced. A large number of converters were burned out and the "trouble sheet" was covered with complaints today. The damage was confined principally to burning out converters, but it necessitated placing a large force of men at work today. It is expected that the lights will all be in order tonight.

In several localities the streets were heavily damaged. On Lake avenue a perfect torrent rolled down the hill, undermining gutters and carrying heavy stones and any amount of dirt and gravel. At the corner of Lake avenue and Second street the square was covered with a mass of dirt and stones. The street railway tracks were covered with sand and gravel to a thickness of at least six inches, and the cars were blocked for a half hour or more.

HIGH WATER PREVAILS.

Log Drives Are Hung Up in Itasca County.

Grand Rapids, Minn., May 14.—While the high water has hung up the log drives so that comparatively little timber is now moving down the streams, it has not given this town anything like the old time floods, for the reason that the government dams at Pokegama Falls, Winnibigoshish lake and Leach lake now hold back billions of gallons of aqua pura and conserve this element of nature for use in the coming dry season, when it will be needed to keep the stage of water in the Upper Mississippi at a proper point for the purposes of navigation. If the three dams should break at once they would give West St. Paul an inundation in the spring and leave her high and dry in the fall. As it is, there is little danger of any of the government dams giving way, and every town between Pokegama Falls and St. Louis has the benefit of not having too much of a good thing.

John Chisholm, one of the best known foremen of the Itasca Lumber company, has just returned from Aitkin. He says that down there they are putting considerable more water than they want, for while the gates of the government dam at Sandy lake are all open, still, the water flows over the top of the dam and the people of Aitkin would prefer to have as much water as possible kept back by the dams at and above Pokegama Falls. The site which was offered to the state for the experimental farm at Aitkin is now covered with more than a foot of water.

Prairie river, two miles from here, has risen to within ten inches of the bridge, and the Duluth & Winnipeg railroad men have to stack up trains and run slowly through the several miles of muskeg swamp that lies between Wawina and Floodwood. The section men are very busy shoving poles under the track at every weak spot.

BICYCLE ORDINANCE.

The Duluth Cycle Club Talked It Over Last Evening.

The regular meeting of the Duluth Cycle club was held at the new headquarters in the Y. M. C. A. building last night and the proceedings were lively enough. The most important feature was an animated discussion of the proposed ordinance barring wheelmen from the sidewalks anywhere in the city limits. The club plainly considered this unjust and altogether too sweeping. The members believed that the present ordinance, which provides that riders may use the sidewalks outside of prescribed limits, is all right. Reference was made to Park Point, where the soil is of such a character that wheels can not travel off the sidewalks. A committee of three was appointed to see the aldermen, as follows: W. H. Lowd, Henry E. Harris and Frank S. Burrows.

The membership is swelling at a rapid rate. Last night the eleven new members were admitted, and new applications are constantly coming in. The committee appointed to see the new Duluth Driving association reported that the grounds were not yet secured, as the race committee found some of the prizes were coming in at a rapid rate. An auditing committee was elected as follows: John Green, F. B. Taylor and P. H. Hasselblad. F. B. Taylor was instructed to see the High School Athletic association and the Driving Park association about medals won by the late Ben Barnham. It is claimed that he never finished some of them. Thos. Duncan, F. N. McLaren and H. E. Harris were appointed a committee to draft resolutions of condolence on Mr. Barnham's death.

There was some discussion of a club button to be worn by members this year. The club favored one with a dark back ground surmounted with gold initials.

A DISASTROUS FAILURE.

Financial convulsions which disturb the equilibrium of the business world are productive of far less mischief than the failure of the kidneys to perform the office assigned to them by nature. When these organs become inactive the circulation acquires impurities which bring on dropsy, diabetes, Bright's disease, gravel, catarrh of the bladder and other maladies. To impart to the kidneys and bladder a healthful impetus, very different from the excitement produced by an unmedicated alcoholic stimulant, use Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, the finest diuretic in existence. This excellent remedy for inactivity of the kidneys is also of the greatest service in malarial, dyspeptic, bilious and rheumatic troubles, and has received the unqualified sanction of eminent physicians. The nervous, the elderly and infirm and convalescents derive unspeakable benefit from its use. Use it with persistence and at fixed intervals, and anticipate with confidence the happiest results.

BIDDY'S CHARMED LIFE.

One of the most exciting things that occurred recently was the going over the falls of a hen on a cake of ice. Probably 200 people saw the hen in Auburn and Lewiston, says the Lewiston, Me., Journal.

It was in the forenoon and the ice was running in large cakes over the falls. As one cake approached the dam a living object was seen moving on it. Some one cried out that it was a baby, others that it was a dog. When it sped, eddying and turning, by Little Island, those on the Auburn end of the Maine Central railroad bridge thought that they discerned a hen sitting on the ice, and as it drew nearer it proved to be one. She was taking it easily and seemed rather to enjoy life. As the cake on which she sat went over the first undulation of the west end of the dam she cast her weather eye up at the folks on the pier, as much as to say: "Why don't you folks come and take a ride with me?

"That hen is a goner!" said one who saw the cake of ice strike another and go to pieces in the rips below the falls.

But biddy calmly fluttered over onto the bigger piece and rode on. A great crowd came rushing down to see her fate in the thrashing caldron of West Pitch.

"Now she's as good as dead," and it did seem to worry her, for when the cake of ice rode over the top of the Old Gentleman of the Falls and plunged downward into the mass of flying spray and foam the hen gave a surprised sort of a call and spread out her short wings and flew, cackling, over the dashing waters and seething foam, out and down into the eddy below the falls, where she lit on the nearest ice cake and sailed calmly on. Right under the Grand Trunk bridge, says Nelson A. Dodge, of Whipple street, she lost her footing on the cake she was on and got into the water, but she fluttered and floundered onto another cake, and in a minute or two disappeared below the island.

"That hen will live," said the man who saw it go over the falls. "If she doesn't go near enough to the shore to get off she will be picked up at sea by some passing vessel."

LEGS VERSUS STEAM.

Six Riders Will Race With an Express Train.

Albany, N. Y., May 14.—If a bicycle can beat a railroad train it will be the highest achievement of all for the wheel. Six strong-lunged and muscular-legged riders will endeavor to accomplish this. The trial has been arranged to take place next week between the Empire State express of the New York Central and a sextet which has been built for the purpose. The bicycle that has been made for the purpose is said to be the largest in the world. Its length over all is thirteen feet, and its "water line" or wheel base is something under a foot less. It weighs 137½ pounds, giving each rider about twenty-three pounds in addition to his own weight to propel. The wheels have only two inches more of diameter than those of the average bicycle; that is, they are thirty inches across. The tires are said to be the largest ever made. They are two and one-half inches in diameter. The gear, wherein lies the secret of its phenomenal velocity, has been compounded to 196. The machine is built on the cantilever principle, and it is claimed the weight of its six riders will not deflect the frame in the least. There are four sprockets used in gearing, so that at each revolution of the pedals the bicycle moves ahead forty-two feet.

The six riders will be men of even weight, about 145 pounds. The track will be about six miles of a straight-away road, parallel with the route of the New York Central's flyer near this city. The race will be for a mile only, and an improvised track has been laid out there. Six straightaway miles at least are necessary. It is estimated that it will require at least two miles for the sextet to get properly started, and that after the half mile has been run against the express train from three and a half to four miles will have to be gone over before the sextet can be stopped. The riders will be supplied with a patent breathing apparatus attached to an air chamber, from which each man, having his nose and mouth closed off against the wind, will be obliged to respire from start to finish. The inventor believes the sextet can cover a mile in thirty-five seconds.

If the men turn their pedals once a second they travel a mile in 98 seconds—1 minute and 38 seconds. If they turn twice a second they go a mile in 40 seconds; two and one-half revolutions a second means a mile in 39 1-5 seconds, and three revolutions a speed of a mile in 32 2-5 seconds. This latter would mean that the train (with a record of a mile in 37 1-5 seconds) would be beaten by 2 2-5 seconds, a distance of over 400 feet in a half-mile race. When it is considered that in riding a half-mile in 1 2-5 seconds the racer turned his pedals better than three times in one second, it is seen how the sextet is likely to go at the rate of a mile in 32 2-5 seconds—nearly 120 miles an hour.

The team will be made up from the following men: John Lund, or "Dave" Coburn, of St. Louis, as steersman; Fred Rau, winner of the Chicago road race in 1894; Fred Loughead, the young Canadian champion; John Lawson, the "Terrible Swede;" Fred Weage and W. S. Kenyon, of Chicago; F. W. Benkey, of Mount Clemens, Mich.; H. E. Fredrickson, the Nebraska champion. It will be the hardest task ever undertaken by wheelmen. If they fall off or the machine breaks, the undertaker will be necessary. In fact, it is looked on as sure death to fall off while going at such a rate of speed. Besides, the nervous strain is fearfully exhausting. Even in making pace on a regular track on a "quad," the riders say, the strain is so great that they are far more exhausted than the champion whom they may have paced.

HISTORICAL FLOWERS.

The lotus flower is most associated with antiquity. As the sacred flower of Egypt, as the flower always seen with Buddha and twined around the Indian Cupid, it is the mystic and symbolical, says the St. Louis star.

The Greeks always painted asphodel and mallow around their tombs and strewed them with amaranth, myrtle and polanthus. The asphodel was sacred to Proserpine, the amaranth was fadeless and a symbol of eternity.

The Island of Rhodes and the female names Rhoda and Rosamonde came from the Greek and Latin words for rose. Many legends of saints and martyrs are connected with the rose. When St. Elizabeth of Hungary sought to evade her husband's anger when he asked what she had in her apron—bread which she was giving to the poor—by saying "roses" the contents were indeed changed to roses for the time being and she was saved.

The three-leaved shamrock is said to have been an emblem among the ancient Persians. Its usual time of blossoming is near St. Patrick's day. The story goes that St. Patrick was trying to convince a stubborn man of the theory of three in one. Stooping, he plucked a shamrock, which fully explained his idea.

The pretty pink heather blooms all the year round. An old saw runs: "When heather is out of blossom kissing is out of fashion." The ancient Picts were able to brew a delicious beverage from these flowers.

The flower of the broom, planta genista, has given its name to the lofty race of the Plantagenets. Geoffrey, the son of count of Anjou, adopted it as his crest and rode into battle with a plume of the waving yellow blossoms in his helmet. "He gave the gypsy flower's name to a race of kings," for he became the father of Henry II.

Henry IV of England was the first to give the forget-me-not its meaning. While in exile he added this flower to the SS on his collar, entwining it with the initial letter of his motto: "Souveigh de moy," leading, as it were, for remembrance in exile.

The daisy was the chosen flower of Marguerite of Anjou. On her coming to England all wore her badge and her royal husband had it engraved on his plate.

The original hues of the lily were orange and purple. All poets from the days of Homer have sung its praises. In some of its many forms it was an early ornament for scepters, scalls and robes. The fleur-de-lis of France are said to have originated simply as lance heads or the extremity of the javelin. A more picturesque explanation is that Clovis I embroidered the lilies on his armorial bearings because they were shown him by an angel from heaven.

WANTS $200,000 DAMAGES.

Chicago, May 14.—Thomas J. McNichols, county commissioner, began a damage suit this afternoon against Judge John Barton for $200,000. The suit is the result of the charge made against McNichols by Judge Payne, that the commissioner received a bribe in the O'Brien murder case to exert his influence in preventing the indictment of Saloonkeeper O'Brien for wife murder.

WOMAN'S INFLUENCE.

The influence of women upon the civilization of the world, could never be measured.

Because of her, thrones have been established and destroyed. The flash of her eye, the touch of her hand, and we have the marvellous power of women, glorious in the possession of perfect physical health.

Lydia E. Pinkham, by her wonderful discovery of the "Vegetable Compound," has done much to place this great power in the hands of women.

She has lifted thousands and thousands out of the misery brought by displacement of the womb, and all the evils that follow diseases of the uterus.

The "Vegetable Compound" restores natural cheerfulness, destroys despondency, cures backache, strengthens the muscles, restores the womb to its normal condition, and you are changed from a physical wreck to the joy of your home and friends.

By the way—the leading druggists tell us that the demand for Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is simply beyond their power of understanding, and what is best of all, it does the work and cures where the best physicians utterly fail.

A FORCED APOLOGY.

But The Revolver was the Inducement.

The lines of editors are often cast in hard places, says the Kansas City Journal. In the 70's I was editor and publisher of a newspaper in Central Illinois. I had secured quite a corps of country correspondents, and among the number was a young lady of bright attainments and very popular in her own village. Very often personal squibs are meaningless to any one outside of the neighborhood covered by the "country correspondence" column. An item of this character came in one day from the young lady in question. Of course, it went into the paper, as it was supposed to be something smart, and harmless as well.

The day following the issue of the paper, while seated in my sanctum, I was surprised on looking up on the entry of a visitor to find that I was looking down the barrel of an enormous revolver in uncomfortably close proximity to my nose. Behind the gun stood one of the most excited individuals it has ever been my ill luck to encounter. This bloodthirsty personage was in turn supported by a lusty person who stood guard at the door. "Who wrote that article?" said the man behind the gun, pointing to the paragraph in question. "We" explained promptly and vigorously that our fair correspondent in his village was the author. Why he did not shoot then and there has always been a mystery to me. He denounced me as a prevaricator of the most villainous type and insisted that editors wrote everything that appeared in newspapers.

A written retraction and apology was the only thing that would appease the gentleman, and as the circumstances did not admit of argument, the apology was furnished with all the alacrity possible. Within twenty-four hours the man returned to humbly beg the editorial pardon. He added that if I would kick him out of town and abuse him to the best of my ability in the next issue of the paper he would thank me. He had learned the facts in the case, and that the young lady, his particular friend, had intended the squib as a compliment to him and his family. He was arrested and fined some $400 or $500 for his rash act, and to this day I have regretted the course I pursued in the matter, for he was a prominent citizen, a good man, and ever afterward my special friend. But the dignity of the profession had to be sustained.

WHY GOLD IS USED.

It is not generally understood that there are scientific reasons for the employment of this metal, says the Cleveland World. Gold can be welded into a solid mass while cold. It also can be pressed into the smallest cavities and depressions. When once the cavity is properly cleaned and the gold carefully put in, care being taken that it fills every particle of space, the union of teeth and filling is as nearly perfect as is possible without the action of heat. A gold filling may be built up to almost any size or shape required. None of the acid secretions of the mouth or stomach have any effect upon it.

FOR SEASICKNESS
USE HORSFORD'S ACID PHOSPHATE.
Dr. J. Fourness-Brice, of S. S. Teutonic, says: "I have prescribed it in my practice among the passengers traveling to and from Europe, in this steamer, and the result has satisfied me that if taken in time, it will, in a great many cases, prevent seasickness."

AND SALT IS CHEAP.

Salt puts out a fire in the chimney, says the Cleveland World.

Salt in the oven under baking tins will prevent their scorching on the bottom.

Salt and vinegar will remove stains from discolored teacups.

Salt and soda are excellent for bee stings and spider bites.

Salt thrown on soot which has fallen on the carpet will prevent stains.

Salt put on ink when freshly spilled on a carpet will help to remove the spot.

Salt in whitewash makes it stick.

Salt thrown on a coal fire which is slow will revive it.

Salt used in sweeping carpets keeps out moths.

ICELAND DRESS.

Peculiar Costumes For Women Worn There.

The common working dress of the Icelandic women, without distinction as to social equality or wealth, consists of an undergarment or wadmel, in one piece, extending from the shoulders to the heels, fastened at the neck with a button or clasp, with petticoats of white or blue wadmel, and a blue cap, the top of which hangs down on one side and terminates in a tassel, says the New York Times. On Sundays and festival occasions their dress is singular. Then they wear, in addition, a bodice and two or three blue petticoats, called "fat," and in front an apron, bordered with material resembling black velvet, which is a domestic manufacture. The petticoats are fastened immediately beneath the bodice by a girdle of this black velvet embroidered and studded with such silver or gilt ornaments as they may possess.

The bodice is also ornamented and fastened in front with large clasps, generally gilt, and rendered more conspicuous by being fixed upon a broad border of black velvet, bound with red. Over the bodice is a jacket, called "treja," fitting close to the shape and made of black wadmel or velvet. The stockings are of dark blue or worsted, and the shoes, which are of seal, shark or sheepskin, are made tight to the foot and fastened about the ankles and insteps with leather laces. On their fingers the women generally have many rings of gold, silver or brass, according to their means; and, be it known, no present is so acceptable to an Icelandic girl as a ring. The most singular, and at the same time the most beautiful part of the female costume is the headdress, called "faldur," which is made of white linen, stiffly starched, kept in shape with an immense number of pins, and from fifteen to twenty inches in height. This is the holiday and Sunday head covering.

When you visit a family in Iceland you must kiss each member, according to their age or rank, beginning with the highest and descending to the lowest, not even excepting the servants; on taking leave the order is reversed; you first kiss the servants, then the children, and lastly the master and mistress. Both at meeting and parting an affectionate kiss on the mouth, without distinction of rank, age or sex, is the only mode of salutation known in Iceland.

WERE HEROINES.

Two Brave Confederate Women Little Known.

Very few people, says the New Orleans Picayune, know that the Army of Northern Virginia monument shadows the sepulchre of two women who followed the fortunes of the Confederate forces from the first gun to the surrender. They sleep side by side with the men whose hardships and dangers they shared. The names of these women were Rose Rooney and Mary Gillan.

When Col. Monier led the Tenth Louisiana regiment to the field, the command was accompanied by Mary Gillan, whose husband was an enlisted man. There were numbers of women who followed their husbands' fortunes at one time or another during the war, but this woman was destined to become, in her way, indispensable to the men whom she adopted as her especial charge, although her husband had fallen early in the fighting and she was left alone. She left New Orleans with "the boys," and did not come back until the last one of them had returned. She followed them through the battles of Fraser's Farm and Malvern Hill, Cedar Run and second Manassas, was with them at Sharpsburg and the terrible seven days' fight at Richmond.

Finally, when the gallant regiment of 1200 good men and true, reduced to only 350, laid down their arms, she came back with them with a record of mercy and kindness that the old soldiers at the Home love to recall. She lived in New Orleans after that, and when she died, a little over a year ago, she was placed in the vault of the Army of Northern Virginia. Rose Rooney left the city with the St. Paul battalion, Chasseurs de Pied, and made a record very similar to Mrs. Gillan's. When, after the fall of Richmond, that command was disbanded, some of its members formed as the Crescent Blues, and with them she shared the fortunes of war until its close, when she took up her residence in New Orleans again, and a few years ago became quite destitute. The veterans never forgot her gentleness to the sick and the dead and dying, and they made her a position at the Soldiers' Home, where she lived in a little cottage apart from the men's quarters, and attended to the wants of her old comrades in arms.

AT A BARGAIN.

Chicago Post: "Dear," she said, and her sweetest and most engaging smile illumined her face, "if you had a handsome lap-robe could you use it?"

"Certainly not," he replied. "You know very well that we haven't a vehicle of any description."

"That's what I thought," she returned, "so I have packed it away. Later, when we are wealthy and keep horses, we can—"

"Packed it away!" he exclaimed, interrupting her. "Packed what away?"

"Why, the lap-robe," she answered sweetly.

"Why, we haven't a lap-robe," he protested.

"Oh, yes, we have, she returned. "I happened to stumble into that department of one of the big stores today, and they had marked them down so low that I felt that I ought to get one before the opportunity slipped away."

"But we don't need—"

"Not now, but we may," she interrupted. "It's just as well to get these things when they can be had at a bargain, and this was a real bragain. You men are very thoughtless about such things. You would never have thought of buying this robe now; you wouldn't have had the foresight, but would have waited until you had a horse, and then very likely you would have to pay a dollar more for it."

ROUGH ON THE PROFESSOR.

The late Professor Blackie used to relate with great gusto the following story against himself, and I do not think that it has ever been chronicled in print. As everyone knows, the genial old professor used to be a picturesque and striking figure in the streets of modern Athens, says the Cleveland World.

A wiry-framed old patriarch, with strikingly handsome features and long hair that fell in ringlets about his shoulders, no one once having seen him could forget him. Passing along one of the principal Edinburgh streets, he was accosted one day by a very little street gamin with: "Shine your boots, sir?"

The urchin was very importunate, and the professor, being impressed with the extreme filthiness of the boy's face remarked:

"I don't want a shine, my lad; but if you go and wash your face I'll give you a sixpence."

"A richt, sir," was the lad's reply and going to an adjacent drinking fountain, he made his ablution. Returning, he held out his hand for the money.

"Well, my lad," said the professor, "you've earned your money; here it is."

"I dinna want it, auld chap," returned the gamin, with a lordly air, "ye can keep it and get yer hair cut."

THE DISCOVERY SAVED HIS LIFE.
Mr. G. Caillouette, druggist, Beaversville, Ill., says: "To Dr. King's New Discovery I owe my life. Was taken with la grippe and tried all the physicians for miles about, but of no avail and was given up and told I could not live. Having Dr. King's New Discovery in my store I sent for a bottle and began its use and from the first dose began to get better, and after using three bottles was up and about again. It is worth its weight in gold. We won't keep store or house without it." Get a free trial at Duluth Drug company's drug store.

"THE TRIUMPH OF LOVE IS HAPPY, FRUITFUL MARRIAGE."

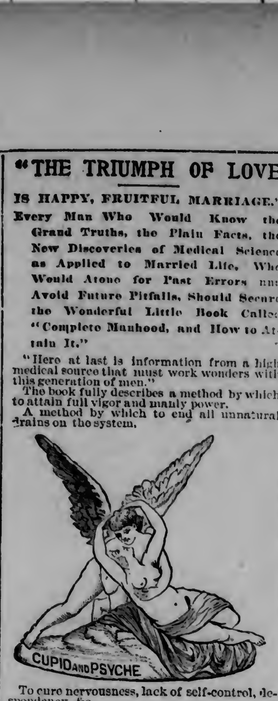
Every Man Who Would Know the Grand Truths, the Plain Facts, the New Discoveries of Medical Science as Applied to Married Life, Who Would Atone for Past Errors and Avoid Future Pitfalls, Should Secure the Wonderful Little Book Called "Complete Manhood, and How to Attain It."

"Here at last is information from a high medical source that must work wonders with this generation of men."

The book fully describes a method by which to attain full vigor and manly power.

A method by which to end all unnatural drains on the system.



To cure nervousness, lack of self-control, despondency, &c.

To exchange a jaded and worn nature for one of brightness, buoyancy and power.

To cure forever effects of excesses, overwork, worry, &c.

To give full strength, development and tone to every portion and organ of the body.

Age no barrier. Failure impossible. Two thousand references.

The book is purely medical and scientific, useless to curiosity seekers, invaluable to men only who need it.

A despairing man, who had applied to us, soon after wrote:

"Well, I tell you that first day is one I'll never forget. I just bubbled with joy. I wanted to hug everybody and tell them my old self had died yesterday, and my new self was born to-day. Why didn't you tell me when I first wrote that I would find it this way?"

And another thus:

"If you dumped a cart load of gold at my feet it would not bring such gladness into my life as your method has done."

Write to the ERIE MEDICAL COMPANY, Buffalo, N.Y., and ask for their little book called "COMPLETE MANHOOD." Refer to this paper, and the company promises to send the book, in sealed envelope, without any marks, and entirely free, until it is well introduced.

A LITERARY TREE.

A Famous Fraud of Thibet Exposed.

One by one, the traditions of antiquity and the illusions of youth are ruthlessly dispelled. Many people will hear with sorrow and regret, says the London Telegraph, that the sacred tree of Kum-Bum in Thibet, is, on no less an authority than Mr. Thistleton-Dyer, of Kew Gardens, a fraud and an imposture, like the Mahatmas of that interesting but thoroughly mendacious land. Who has not heard of the wonderful tree which sprang from the spot where the mother of Tzong-Kapa shaved her worthy offspring's head when she dedicated him to the divinities and threw his matted hair on the ground?

Ever since that memorable event the leaves drop, branches and the bark on its trunk have not been the same as on ordinary trees, but contained sacred prayers and asymbols, which were supposed to grow naturally on them and diffused a strong odor of incense. The priests were very jealous of it, watched over it themselves and were careful to prevent strangers seeing either leaves or branches, until ready to be sold with letters and signs on them. Travelers, however, have now managed to obtain specimens, and they have been critically examined by experts here.

The tree has been identified as an ordinary syringa vilosa, common in China, and any marks which the leaves contain are impressed on them by the priests with molds, aided probably with heat. As Mr. Thistleton-Dyer remarks, the sacred tree is "an elaborate fraud." Kum-Bum therefore, goes the way of the celebrated plant in Kent, which was believed to produce live roses in its branches.

One of the early popes sent a messenger to investigate our southeastern country's phenomenon. When he arrived, the people there told him the tree grew in the midlands; in the midlands they said it was only to be found in Scotland; in Scotland they said it flourished solely in the Orkneys; and had he gone there he would very likely have been informed that the goose tree acted as the north pole. At all events, he could not find it. The sacred plant of Kum-Bum must now be placed in the same category of delusions and relegated to the dustbin of exploded impostures.

TEMPTED.

Texas Sifter: Judge—You are charged with breaking up a meeting and striking this woman. What have you to say?

Prisoner—It was this way, judge. It was a spiritualistic meeting, and this woman was the medium, when she exclaimed, "I am happy." I could not resist the temptation to strike a happy medium just once in my life.

THE OLDEST WOMAN.

Mrs. Margaret Bowen, who is 121 years old, is dying in her little cottage on the outskirts of Chicopee, Mass. The doctors say she cannot live but a few days at the most. She came to this country on the day Lincoln was assassinated. She is one of a family of nine, all of whom lived to be 70. She married when she was 88 years old, her husband being 43, a widower, with two children.

Mrs. Bowen says she is ready to die, as she believes her time has come. She speaks only the Irish language. She refuses to have any medical treatment, as she never took any medicine in her life. The little hut in which she lived was so small that she had to scoop a hole in the earthen floor in order to find a place for her coal and wood. Mrs. Bowen is the oldest woman in the United States.

A BRUTE.

Cleveland World: It was in the train, and he was trying to read. There was the usual variety of passengers, and among them a lady with a very sprightly little girl that had blue eyes, a head of glistening gold, and an inquisitorial tongue. She plied him with questions and toyed with his watch chain.

The mother, who was a widow, fairly beamed upon him. He was becoming nervous, and, turning to the mother, said: "Madam what do you call this sweet little darling?"

The widow smiled enchantingly, and replied with a sigh, "Ethel."

"Please call her, then."

It was said quietly enough, but for a moment the other passengers half hoped there would be an accident or something to relieve the tension.

FISHING

Mackinaw Trout Are as Gamy a Fish as Any.

Many Are of Very Large Size and They Fight Fiercely.

A New Rig Which is Used in Fishing For Them ,Nowadays.

"If the Mackinaw trout could be fished for with a light rod and tackle, as salmon are," said a sportsman to the New York Sun, "the title of the salmon as king of game fish would fall at once. This trout is stronger than the salmon, of greater average weight, equally tactful, and as fierce a fighter as the muskallonge, if not fiercer. A bout with a Mackinaw trout at the end of a hundred feet of line on a supple split bamboo rod would give the sturdiest salmon fisherman enough work to satisfy him for a day. Eighteen, twenty, and even twenty-five pounders are by no means uncommon, and thirty-pounders are common enough to excite no more than passing comment among the Mackinaw fishermen. But the Mackinaw trout isn't built for fine tackle, and if you want to have fun with him, you must work the oars of a boat faithfully, and trail your whirling bait at the end of 200 or 300 feet of line in from 50 to 100 feet of water.

"There is no mistaking the strike of a Mackinaw trout on the troll, and the instant he makes it all other business must be subordinate to landing him. In the expressive parlance of the Lake Michigan fisherman, he must be kep' a-goin'. It is no easy matter to keep a thirty-pound Mackinaw trout a-goin', and the experienced angler will find that the first thing he knows the trout will be keeping him a-goin'. If the fish gets the least bit of slack line he will turn and dash away, sometimes actually pulling the boat around. Leon Caverly, an old Traverse bay fisherman, tells how his boat was not only turned round by a Mackinaw trout once, but was actually towed more than half way across the bay, in spite of all Leon could do.

"'That feller would a been towin' me yit, I honestly think,' Leon likes to say, 'if a steamboat hadn't come in between my boat and the trout, and the swash throwed my boat back so hard and suddint that it stood dead still for a second or two. The trout kep' a goin', and the strain was such that the line broke, and I escaped.'

"The fact is, if a Mackinaw trout once gets headed away from the fisherman he rarely fails to break the hook's hold in his jaw. The fisherman who's kep' a-goin' as he hauls on his line hand over hand may get it alongside or within speasing or shooting distance in course of ten or fifteen minutes' hard work. No one takes the risk even of gaffing a big Mackinaw trout. A barbed-tined spring gig is used by most fishermen on Traverse bay to spear their catches. Some carry revolvers of large caliber, and when the trout is hauled within safe shooting distance he is shot in the head.

"When the old-time white linen line was used universally in fishing for Mackinaw trout the fisherman held one end of it between his teeth while he rowed his boat. But now that different kind of line is used it is tied around one leg. This line was adopted only two or three seasons ago. From time out of mind Mackinaw trout have been fished for with a slender, minnow-shaped troll, so made that it will whirl rapidly when drawn through the water, and fastened to a casting white line, almost as big around as a lead pencil. Some few fishermen would now and then venture to say that this line, its size and whiteness, intensified by refraction on the water, was a menace to the fish, and something to be suspected and shunned by them, especially by so shy and wary a fish as the Mackinaw trout. They argued that this trolling line was a good deal like a scarecrow in a cornfield.

"It is only the most skilful and strategic anglers who succeed in manipulating this conspicuous tackle so as to disarm the trout's suspicion,' these fishermen used to argue.

"But their idea was ridiculed by the great body of Traverse bay fishermen, and the big white fishline continued to be the universal tackle. Their fathers and their grandfathers had been satisfied that it was the proper thing, and they couldn't see why they should set themselves up as knowing better than their fathers and their grandfathers.

"Fortunately, though, there happened to come to the Traverse bay country, three or four years ago, a man whose father or grandfather had never fished for Mackinaw trout, nor heard of one. Consequently he had no family tradition of the angler to keep embalmed; and, moreover, he had patiently and diligently trolled in vain for trout with a line whose blanched trail he could follow with his eyes almost from boat to troll, as if it were a long chalk mark in the water. He wasn't rowing a boat and dragging 500 feet of ghostly fishline all day merely to show his respect for other folks' tradition. What he wanted was trout. One day he got an idea.

"'It won't do no harm to try it,' he said. 'It can't catch me any fewer fish than the chalk line has caught.'

"So he went to Traverse City and bought a coil of fine copper wire, and one day he went out on the bay. Fishermen saw him trolling without any visible line in the water, and paused in astonishment to see at what short and frequent intervals he was hauling in big Mackinaw trout. The result was that the irreverent but thoughtful fisherman, instead of coming in without a fish, as had been his former wont, rowed ashore with a boat load of the finest trout seen for many a long day anywhere on the lake. The secret was out, and a run on copper wire instantly began. The white linen cords of the fathers was cast aside to become clothesline or bed cord, and the fishing that Traverse bay and other Mackinaw trout grounds have yielded since the introduction of the invisible copper wire is ahead of anything ever known in the best days of the staring white line.

"The bones o' the father and grandfather, maybe, rattle in their graves,' says the discoverer of the copper trout line, 'but they ain't made noise enough yit to scare the trout away from the new tackle.'

"Trolling fishing gets better and better in Michigan as logging in the streams is discontinued by railroads making that mode of getting logs to the mills unnecessary. This is especially the case in the Pigeon river and its tributaries. Those waters now offer as fine grayling fishing as they did in their old-time days. This is equally true as to brook trout in the streams of that part of Michigan.

"It was to the choking and damming of the river and creeks and the ploughing up of their beds by the interminable log drives that the apparent annihilation of trout and grayling in their favorite haunts was due. The lumber operators have found that they could get their logs to the mills quicker, safer, and cheaper by means of tram roads built into the very heart of the wilderness, and consequently most of the streams have been abandoned to the possession of their native fish again. The marvelous recuperative powers of trout and their kind when causes for their disappearance have been removed are demonstrated to a remarkable degree by the recovery of the streams of Michigan from apparent sterility to fertility in trout and grayling.

"If any one wants to have sport with the biggest and gamiest muskallonge to be found anywhere let him go to the country about the head of the Monistique river in Michigan. There are a number of lakes scattered about in that region, not large in area, but very deep, natural homes of muskallonge and pickerel. I killed a muskallonge in Little Reedy, one of these waters, last season that weighed forty-one pounds. They are very shy and chary of taking the hook. I killed my big fish with a brook trout, that weighed half a pound, baited on my muskallonge rig. I shot two—one a twenty-five and the other a twenty pounder—by waiting on a runway for them, so to speak. I noticed that on sunny days muskallonge would come up close to the surface, and lie like waterlogged sticks of timber there until something startled them, when they would disappear like a flash.

"Early one morning I took my gun and climbed to the branches of a tree that stood near the shore of the lake, in the hope that some big muskallonge would come up for a siesta, when I would try what a rifle bullet would do for him. This mode of capture, though, was not decided upon until I had exhausted all my skill and patience in efforts to induce some of those suspicious denizens of the lake to take my hook and let me kill him like a gentleman. I waited in the tree all forenoon without seeing any sign of a muskallonge coming up to bask, and the sun was shining hot as the dickens. About midday, though, deep down in the water I saw the dim form of one rising slowly toward the surface. It seems to me that this big muskallonge must have been at least ten minutes coming from the spot where I first saw him to the top of the water, and that distance was not more than ten feet, so cautious and suspicious are these fierce and savage fish.

"He took so much time in getting to the surface that I got a very fair case of buck fever while waiting for him. But he came at last. He lay with his whole body stretched in sight, not more than three inches below the surface. Not a movement was visible about him except the slow working in and out of his gill covers. I aimed at his head and fired. Instead of turning up dead on the surface as I had supposed he would, the muskallonge was nowhere to be seen. He was away, as I call it, was an arm of the lake, about fifty feet wide where I waylaid this fish. As I was gazing in amazement everywhere on the water to see what had become of the game, the muskallonge came snorting out of the water half its length close to the edge of the shore on the opposite side of the arm, and lay there as dead as the log he resembled. This was the 25-pounder. The 20-pounder I shot near the same spot next day.

"He kicked and flopped about on the surface, making the water fly for half a minute before he was dead, and during his throes three other big muskallonge appeared on the scene, swimming frantically about the wounded fish until he quit struggling, when they disappeared as suddenly as they had come; and although I perched in that tree for hours three days in succession after that, I never saw another muskallonge there, nor the sign of one.

"Why the muskallonge in this lake are so averse to the trail or lure of any kind is one of those piscatorial mysteries one comes in contact with everywhere, and which no one can solve. There are three or four other lakes near Little Reedy, apparently the same as it as to condition and nature of water, bottom, and food resources, where the muskallonges are fully as large, and they are free and fierce biters, especially at a bare spoon troll."

VERY OLD POTTERY.

In digging out the colossal statue of Rameses II, nine feet and four inches of Nile mud had to be removed before the platform was reached, says the Cleveland World. It is known that this platform was laid in the year 1361 B. C., when Rameses was still living. Therefore three and one-half inches of accumulated Nile mud represents the lapse of a century. It being known that 3300 years have passed since the platform was put down. Under that platform was found thirty feet more of Nile mud before the originally sandy soil was reached, hence many years must have elapsed from the time of the Nile's first overflow down to the time of Rameses II. The curious part of the story is this: Pottery and fragments of the same were found on the original sandy soil thirty feet under the base of the statue, which would seem to indicate that the Egyptians understood the potter's art at a very early date.

Grand Jury Again Returns Indictments Against the Tinkhams and Cummings.

John H. Brigham, the Well Known Lawyer, Is Also Indicted.

Manner of Burying County Dead Is Vigorously Roasted.

At 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon the grand jury came into court and returned four indictments and reports of no indictment in four more cases. No indictment was found against Frank A. Stratton, of Tennessee, who was accused of defrauding A. R. and E. T. Merritt of $300,000 on a Kentucky coal land deal. Mr. Stratton and his bondsmen were ordered released by Judge Morris.

No indictments were returned against John Peterson, charged with obtaining board and money on a forged note, and the A. Booth Packing company and Messick & McCaulay, charged with violating the game laws. John McLeod was indicted for grand larceny in the second degree for stealing an umbrella and an overcoat from a boarding house at Virginia last Saturday night.

TINKHAMS INDICTED AGAIN.

There were two indictments against parties not yet in custody. One was against H. R. and E. A. Tinkham and A. D. Cummings, for grand larceny in the first degree. They are accused of defrauding John McAlpin of $400 by selling him some land as clear of title, when there was a $400 mortgage upon it. The indictment charges the same offense as did the one found last term, to which a demurrer was sustained by Judge Moer. The defendants were arraigned at noon and the Tinkhams were released on their own recognizances, while Capt. Cummings was allowed to go with his attorney to get $500 bail. They will plead tomorrow.

Another indictment is against John H. Brigham, the well-known attorney, for grand larceny in the second degree. He is accused by Rosa Fiedler, of Procterknott, of having defrauded her of $500 in the following manner: She alleges that some time ago she lent him $500 on a house and lot, which he alleged was free from encumbrance. The fact is, she now claims, that there was a mortgage of $1000 on the property and she cannot collect her money. She also has a civil case on this term's calendar to collect the money.

THE FINAL REPORT.

This morning the grand jury returned its final report and was discharged. This jury spent more time looking over the county institutions, and it evinced a greater desire to criticize than most juries have in the past. The committee which visited the poor farm, while it praised Overseer and Mrs. A. F. Rockwell, very highly roasted the system of burying paupers. The report on the subject follows:

"A better and more perfect system of identification should be adopted, especially as it would not be expensive. The present system of sticking a pencil marked board light in the earth at the end of the grave with a number upon it corresponding with a number in the books at the office could at least be greatly improved in execution, if not in system.

"The most serious matter, however, is the interment of the dead in the winter months. It was formerly the custom to dig a larger number of graves in the fall in which the coffins were placed during the winter months, when the ground was too hard to be worked, and they were allowed to remain uncovered all winter. When the snow began to melt the coffins were frequently found floating in the water and were weighted down until the ground thawed out so the graves could be filled.

VAULT SHOULD BE BUILT.

"The present overseer has improved upon this plan somewhat by digging a deep trench during the fall with a drain to draw off the water in the spring. Here the dead are dumped and buried in the spring. Even this did not commend itself to your committee, and they would recommend that a vault be built to care for the dead during the winter."

The ventilation of some of the rooms of the poorhouse was also commented upon as showing disregard for the health of the inmates. The committee on jails found the city and county lockups all right, but recommended hammocks for the city jail for the accommodation of over-night visitors.

The committee on hospitals found them all clean and neat and praised their operation, but St. Luke's building was termed "a veritable firetrap and dangerous for the sick and helpless." The Women's and Children's home was found to be in good condition and worthy of more liberal financial support and a better building.

The grand jury investigated M. O. Hall, ex-president of the State bank, but took no action whatever, the charges made against him during the Stuckey trial not being sustained by the evidence presented to the jury.

Are Running Today.

There was a strike of the nailers and packers in the mills at Superior yesterday for an advance of 25 cents a day in wages. As a result all the mills were shut down, the companies refusing to accede to the demands. Today new men have been put at work and the mills are all running.

SECURED A PLACE.

Stevenson Girl Sent to the Faribault School.

As the result of the efforts of Mayor Truelsen and Police Matron Van Sickle, a place has been secured in the school for feeble-minded children at Faribault for Annie Stevenson, one of the daughters of John Stevenson, to whose family affairs it was necessary to call attention some time ago, when Mrs. Stevenson, who is the stepmother of Annie and her sister Minnie, who is now at Owatonna, wound up her drunken orgie by attempting to carve the father with a butcher's knife.

Matron Van Sickle interested herself in the girls and brought the matter before A. P. Cook, superintendent of the poor. The latter immediately took the necessary steps to procure an order from the probate court placing Minnie at Owatonna, whither she was taken some three weeks ago. The matron procured a place for Annie, who is feeble-minded, at the Woman's home until arrangements could be made to send her to Faribault.

It developed, on inquiry, that there were over 100 applications pending for admission to the latter institution, and that the prospect was poor for obtaining entry for Annie at present. Nothing daunted, however, the matron laid the case before the mayor, who addressed the governor on the subject, the latter granting the request and procuring entrance for the girl at once. Annie was taken to Faribault this afternoon by Mrs. Ayer.

A POKER PARTY.

Rattle of Chips Informed the Police Officers.

The rattle of chips attracted the attention of Sergt. Ratty and Officer Lalond to a room over Normanna hall, 2103 West Superior street, last evening and the two made a call. Six gentlemen were found offering up sacrifices to the goddess of fortune and they were escorted to the police station, where they gave their names at Pat Rooney, James Saunders, William Baker, William Jones, James Murray and Gus Johnson.

Johnson, who is a railroad man, deposited $15 at the central station for his appearance for trial, and was allowed to go out on his run. The others put in the night on the hard benches. They all pleaded not guilty in the municipal court this morning, with the exception of Johnson, who had not returned, and will have their trial this afternoon.

THE DISTRICT COURT.

Judge Ensign's Division Was Adjourned Today.

Judge Ensign's court was adjourned for a week this morning because of the death of his father, and the case of Hare against the Eastern Minnesota will go over. Judge Morris at noon was still hearing the case of Mary Engel against Scott & Holston, and it was expected to last all day. Judge Moer was hearing the case of the estate of Harry Mee against the Banker's Life association, of St. Paul, to recover $4000 insurance on the life of Harry Mee's brother. Judge Dickinson was the attorney for the plaintiff and Thomas F. Fauntleroy, of Kueffner, Fauntleroy & Rice, of St. Paul, was for the defense.

Yesterday afternoon Judge Moer dismissed the case of the Pabst Brewing company against W. W. Butchart on motion of the defendant. The jury in the case of Julius Cook against H. E. Baker was discharged at noon, it having failed to agree after a deliberation of twenty-six hours.

There will be a resetting of jury cases tomorrow, and the criminal cases will be set for Monday.

REPAIRING THE STREETS.

Board of Public Works Has Much To Do.

The board of public works was kept busy last evening and this morning by the storm. A large part of West Duluth was afloat and Messrs. Reed and Wilson, of the board, went down last night to anchor it and bale it out before it drifted off.

The condition of Sixty-third avenue west was the worst, the street being flooded from the foot of the hill to Grand avenue. The pavement came up in chunks and the sidewalks wandered about at will. A force of men was kept at work at the catch basin to prevent the street going into the sewers. The latter were in good order, but the flow of water overtaxed their capacity. From Central avenue to the west end of West Duluth, the streets were pretty generally flooded. A force of fifty was put to work on the St. Paul & Duluth track to clear the way for the night passenger train to St. Paul.

At the East End affairs were not so bad, although at Eleventh avenue east and Third street, where there is no storm sewer there were a few basements flooded. The street railway company had to shut down one engine made necessary by water getting into the power house.

Company C, of the Duluth battalion of the Third regiment of National Guards, underwent a splendid inspection last night under Lieut. Johnson. Capt. Resche turned out fifty well-drilled and well-uniformed men, and the inspection was considered one of the best so far of the Duluth battalion. Lieut. Johnson expressed himself as well pleased with the inspection. Tonight Company G will be inspected at the Michigan street armory, and there will be a number of visitors, including Adjutant Gen. Muehlburg, Col. Shandrew, of the Third regiment, and the brigade quartermaster, Capt. W. H. Hart.

SEAL FISHERIES.

The Commercial Company May Take 30,000 Skins.

Washington, May 14.—The secretary of the treasury has instructed J. B. Crowley, agent for the seal islands, that he may permit the North American Commercial company to take seals during the coming season to the number of 20,000, if in his judgment that number may be taken and still leave a sufficient number to fertilize the females which may come to the rookeries.

Last year the company was only allowed to take 15,000 skins, but the secretary has come to the conclusion that, as the seals after leaving the rookeries are slaughtered in great numbers by poachers and hunters, outside the 60-mile zone, the government might as well realize the profit on the skins as private parties, and especially foreigners, and hence he doubled the number which may be taken. Mr. Crowley leaves for the seal islands as soon as these instructions reach him at San Francisco.

BIG BOSTON FAILURE.

Boston, May 14.—The assignment of Mitchell, Dexter & Co., large general produce merchants, was announced late this afternoon. The firm had extensive connections in the West. Wallace F. Robinson, president of the chamber of commerce, and Solomon P. Hibbard are the assignees. No figures are available.
